ELKS' CREED

"Don't keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up till your friends are dead. Fill their lives with sweetness, speak approving, cheering words while their ears can hear them, and their hearts can be thrilled and made happier; the kind things you meant to say when they are gone, say before they go. The flowers you mean to send to their coffins send to brighten and sweeten their homes before they leave them. If my friends have any alabaster boxes laid away full of fragrant perfume of sympathy and affection, which they intend to break over my body, I would rather they would bring them out in my weary, troubled hours and open them, that I may be refreshed and cheered while I need them.

"I would rather have a plain coffin without a flower, a funeral without an eulogy, than a life without sweetness of love and sympathy. Post mortem kindness does not cheer the burdened spirit. Flowers on the coffin cast no fragrance back over the weary way.

"The faults of our brothers we write upon the sand; their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory."
