Spanish Rebels Advancing

Industry and Money Seized By Loyalists

Desperate Government Takes Control of All Business

FURIOUS BATTLE

Uprisers Reach Irun; Britain, France Ban Arms Exports

The tottering Spanish government, with its troops flung across the countryside in a bloody battle against the fascist rebellion, tonight ordered new socialization of industry and sought to halt the flight of any capital that might reach rebel hands.

The huge oil, tobacco, and other industries were confiscated by labor organizations and given over to workers to operate under state control.

A government decree forbade buying, selling, or lending securities, and banned transfer of real estate—the object being to prevent the nobility from liquidating any wealth that might be used to purchase arms.

Rebels reached the gates of Irun, Bay of Biscay Port, after furious fighting. Hundreds of leftist refugees streamed across the international bridge into Hendaye, France.

The refugees said loyalist forces had imprisoned 1,200 fascists aboard two ships at Santander, and threatened to blow them up if a rebel cruiser started shelling San Sebastian.

Portuguese border guards fired on loyalists who made a third invasion of that country. Portugal protested to the Spanish government and expressed fear of becoming involved in the revolution.

The British foreign office announced a full agreement with France's proposal for prohibition of arms and munitions exports to Spain.

Britain warned that meddling in the rebellion might bring "serious repercussions."

J. O. Ambler of San Antonio, Texas, who had been held as hostage in the Huelva province by government forces was reported rescued among 37 others.

New complications entered strife when Portuguese border guards fired on government troops near Camp Major, Portugal.

The British communique, issued with the full approval of Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, declared the British government's intention of taking "every measure open to them to prevent the supply of civil aircraft" to belligerents on either side in the inter-inecine war.

Maintenance of a strict, impartial attitude of non-intervention is essential if the unhappy events in Spain are to be prevented from having serious repercussions elsewhere," the government declared.

Even as to the foreign office, visibly alarmed over the failure of France to achieve a general European neutrality accord respecting the question of barring export of civil planes, three aircraft took off from Croydon airport for Barcelona.

Officers Find Body of Texan In Deep Lake

Trent Man Leads Posse To Spot Where He Sunk Victim

WIFE INVOLVED

19-Year-Old Bride is Named Accomplice In Slaying

SWEETWATER, Tex., Aug. 15. (P)—The body of G. H. Jones, middle-aged Trent filling station operator, was found in Lake Sweetwater today by officers who were directed by Clarence Duncan, Trent farmer, who confessed to Jones murder. He said Jones, the former employer of his wife, had been trying to induce her to leave him, officers said.

Duncan was charged with murder. Similar charges against his 19-year-old bride, Billie Lorene Duncan, and her brother, Winiford Allen of Stamford, will be reduced to accomplish charges, officers said.

Jones was listed as missing early Wednesday after his automobile, with lights burning, was found on Highway 1, between Trent and Sweetwater. The arrest of the trio followed in Stamford late that afternoon.

Duncan told officers that he, his wife and her brother encountered Jones Tuesday night near the White Flat school house, six miles west of Jones' station, and that Jones hailed them.

Duncan said he and Jones got out of their cars and fought; then he knocked Jones down; then beat him in the head with a rock and threw him, still gasping, into the rumble seat of his car and drove away.

Noticing that Jones was still breathing, Duncan told his questions that he pounded the victim's head with a small rock, weighted him down with a large rock in a two-sack, and waded and swam with him out to deep water, where Jones was dropped. He said that en route to the lake he dropped Mrs. Duncan's brother, Allen, and that neither Allen or the woman had a hand in the killing or disposition of the body.

Light Vote is Polled in City Election Here

Perry Leads Peters by 63 Margin With Melton Third

741 BALLOT

Runoff Date Will be Called Within Next 20 Days

John Perry led his two opponents in the race for city commissioner of Ward 3 in balloting at the special city election here Saturday, but Dr. A. F. Peters, trailing by 63 votes, won the right to a run-off for the office.

Tom Melton was the third man in the race.

Unofficial returns gave the following standing of the three candidates:

John Perry—301.
Dr. A. F. Peters—238.
Tom Melton—202.

The 741 votes cast were considered a light ballot inasmuch as the voting strength of the city is normally more than 1,000. City officials anticipated a light vote, however, and ordered only 600 ballots. The election tickets were exhausted Saturday afternoon and typewritten ballots had to be used to complete the voting.

Election judges said that a run-off election date would be set for not less than 10 days and not more than 20 days from Saturday's election.

The election was called to fill the vacant term of the late D. A. Campbell.

Judges and clerks for the balloting, which was held at city hall, were Coke Murphy, John A. Woods, Mrs. J. B. McConico, and Miss Claudia Sayers.

LUFKIN PIONEER DIES AT AGE 83

Mrs. M. S. Gray, 83, resident of Angelina county for the past 50 years, died suddenly at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning at her residence at 320 Frank avenue.

Mrs. Gray had been in ill health for some time, but her condition was not believed serious.

She was born in Alabama in 1853 and came to this county about 1866. She was a member of the Methodist church.

Funeral arrangements were being held up awaiting word from a son, Lee H. Gray of Tyler, who is on a vacation trip on the West Coast. He was in Spokane, Wash., when last word was received from him.

A daughter, Mrs. Ed Jones of Lufkin, left Abilene, where she had been visiting for several days, to return to Lufkin as soon as she was notified of her mother's death. She is expected to arrive here early today.

Other survivors include a son, R. V. Gray of Kilgore, and a brother, W. R. Fuller of Lufkin. Nine grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren also survive.

Glenn Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Farmer in Audience Calls Hand of Speakers and Mounts Platform to Label W. W. Glass

Two speakers who came to the Angelina county court room Saturday to speak against John S. Redditt for state senator were sharply answered by H. Edgar Brown, Angelina farmer, who followed them on the platform.

Brown heard the speakers assail Senator Redditt, candidate for reelection against W. W. Glass. When they finished, Brown arose and told the audience:

"You're having the wool pulled over your eyes by these men," he said, after listening to the voices of Ferdinand Jones and D. M. Wrotenbury, who denounced Redditt.

Brown called attention to Glass's official record in which the latter introduced a pension bill that would give "every man past 65 a pension."

"Had that bill passed—it didn't even get past the house—you'd be getting $10 or less instead of your $30 a month pension," said the speaker as he was interrupted frequently by Jones.

Brown called attention to the affirmative vote by Glass on a bill which would have forced every voter to have passed a literacy test and to his bill that would keep cattle tied up and prevented from grazing along the highways.

Laird Challenges Senate Candidate To Tell the Truth

Former State Representative Confronts Cherokee County Man at Speaker's Stand at Address Here

Citing his experience as ice-slinger, boiler-stoker and freight train hobo, bitterly assailing his opponent, Austin lobbyists, utilities, railroads, newspapers, and state officials, until challenged in person by former Representative John S. Laird, W. W. Glass, among scattered chuckles and handclaps, Saturday night asked a gathering on the Lufkin courthouse lawn to vote for him to succeed John S. Redditt as state senator.

"There is no assurance that the measly pensions you old folks are getting will continue. Insurance companies, railroads and special interests have subsidized the newspapers. I am not mad at the newspapers. I am just a country boy. I am for the laboring and farming class. If elected state senator, I will not let anyone be fined $200 for permitting livestock to run on the highway. I want the country people to vote."

These were among the high-lights of Glass' talk, delivered to an audience that alternately cheered and heckled him. The crowd seemed to be out for a good time.

Glass advocated negro suffrage and cited instances in other undesignated states where negroes were deprived of the right to vote by being supplied with unsuitable paper, scratchy pens and watery ink.

When he announced that he was going to put it on "John Laird of Lufkin, Mr. Laird confronted him at the speakers' stand and demanded of him:

"Glass, just be sure you tell the truth."

Glass hesitated, then said, Laird is a good friend of mine. I don't mean to battle him."

Most of the speaking was done. See CHALLENGES Page 8

REPORTS CAR STRUCK

L. E. Hambrick reported to the sheriff's department Saturday that his automobile had been struck by another car driven by a man he said was intoxicated. Deputies Sheriff Arch Caraway and Sam Stovall arrested a suspect in connection with the accident.

The wreckage of the truck blazed as it ricocheted along the right of way and thumped to a stop.

The locomotive crushed it as though it were a fragile box and the men spilled out, some of them rolling under the wheels of the train. Steel shrieked against steel as the engineer in the locomotive applied the brakes and the train jolted to a stop.

Rescuers—the handful of persons who witnessed the accident and members of the train crew—raced down the right of way to pull bodies from the wreckage.

Many of the truck's occupants were mere boys from 14 to 16 years of age.

LOUISVILLE, Que., Aug. 15. (P)—Twenty-two men and boys were crushed to death early today when a fast Canadian Pacific freight train struck and splintered a large truck in which they were riding.

Returning from a political rally, a party of some 40 persons drove directly into the path of the locomotive at a grade crossing as it hurtled toward them at high speed.

A dozen or more were injured. Four men who sensed danger a split second before the locomotive jumped to safety.

Witnesses said the truck passed two passenger cars which had halted at the crossing for the train.

Seventeen men apparently were killed outright, and within a few hours, five others had succumbed to their injuries.

The accident occurred at a level crossing one mile west of this village.

Bodies were strewn over the roadbed.

One Dies With Loaded Pistol Held In Hand

Negroes Fired Upon Wells Constable, Earl Pryor

HEADED BY PURVIS

Victims Had Escaped From Eastham Farm With Two Others

By ALFRED WEEKS Daily News Staff Writer Ranger Captain Hardy Purvis headed a posse of heavily armed men that shot and killed two escaped negro convicts as they resisted arrest at dusk Saturday two miles south of Wells in Angelina county.

One of the negroes died as he crouched behind a fence post in a cornfield with a fully loaded .41 Colt pistol clutched in his hand.

The other was felled with a rifle bullet through the heart at a distance of 200 yards as he ran through a peanut field toward a thicket. In his pockets was found additional ammunition for his companion's gun, and five cents in cash. The victims were two of four who escaped from Sugarland prison farm early this week.

Earlier in the day, one of the negroes had fired upon Constable Earl Pryor of Wells, Cherokee county, when he sought to investigate them and the automobile they were driving. His escape from death at their hands was miraculous.

The officer when he stepped to the side of the car as it was parked along the highway near his home.

The constable dropped to the ground and scampered to the back of the auto. The negro opposite the driver jumped out of the car and ran around to the back of the auto where he fired at least two more shots at Pryor, who was unscathed.

The constable was delayed in defending himself with his own pistol when he had to throw a shell into the barrel of his weapon, which was an automatic. By that time the negroes were turning their car into the highway and starting away.

Pryor fired several times at the auto. Then ran to his own car parked nearby and gave chase. The negroes, seeing they were being overtaken by the officer, abandoned their car and took to the woods.

As they bailed out of the car, which later was found to have been stolen from Columbus, Texas, Pryor fired several more shots but failed to hit his mark.

The constable called Huntsville where the warden told him he would send a doghouse from Eastham Farm. As soon as citizens of Wells learned of the happenings they quickly formed a posse and began to surround the wooded territory into which the blacks fled.

Included in the group of officers besides the range captain was Sheriff J. R. Key of Lampasas. See CONVICT SLAIN Page 2.

"Five Oakes" Ranch Near Montell Is Link in Texas to Pioneer Day

MONTPELL, Uvalde County, Tex., Aug. 15.—(AP)—"Five Oakes" Ranch, in the Nueces Canyon between Uvalde and Rock Springs, so named about 50 years ago because five massive oak trees shade an acre of the front yard, is a link with pioneer days.

A cabin built of hewn cedar logs sits back in the shadows of the great oaks. There is no record when it was built, but it resembles the law office of Gen. Sam Houston erected at Huntsville in 1847.

The adjacent land was patented in 1847 to F. M. Box and early-day practices suggest the cabin was built without delay.

Legends say white men lived in the canyon before land patents were given, and relics indicate Indians preceded them. Arrowhead, adzes, knives, scrapers, a gorget chiseled from stone, fragments of pottery, a shell bangle and other Indian artifacts were excavated around the pioneer home.

The old house was put together with wooden pegs, some of which remain. The ceiling and floor joists, and rafters are cedar poles. Nails used for subsequent repairs are spare, a type made for many years. A port-hole, typical of homes before Indians were subdued, suggests the house was built in those troublous times. The hole penetrates the thick wall at slightly more than the height of an average man.

Many who lived in the old house figured in the history-making of the canyon. William Cox, members of whose family were massacred by Indians near the site of Uvalde more than 75 years ago, lived there. Henry Bellah, born in the old house 67 years ago, says his father, G. W. Bellah, a Ranger, shot at Indians and bandits through the port-hole. The elder Bellah with a few companions once chased a band of Indians out of the enclosure and across the meadow, Bellah killing one Indian. Henry Bellah said the old house was abandoned when his father came here and occupied it after the Civil War. He believes the owners abandoned it because the Indians were troublesome.

For 12 years after Santa Anna surrendered at San Jacinto, the country between the Nueces and the Rio Grande was practically "no man's land" but was claimed by Mexico. Texas also claimed the land to the Rio Grande.

Meanwhile the disputed territory became the rendezvous of Mexican vaqueros, hostile Indians and outlaws. A few settlers attempted to occupy the land and built crude homes of adobe, or logs.

Mexico relinquished claim to the territory in 1849 after war with the United States. There is a legend that many longhorn cattle and horses were here before Box received his patent.

More than 40 years ago a family named Humphreys lived on the old oak Grandfather and Grandmother Humphreys, as they were familiarly known, are buried in a large pecan and oak grove 150 yards from the log house.

The old oak trees still bear hitching rings that have been there as long as old-timers can remember. The present owners of Five Oakes ranch say they intend, eventually, to make a neighborhood museum out of the old cabin to house relics excavated here and other collections in the region.

A charcoal burning automobile soon will be manufactured in Japan.

CONVICT SLAIN

and Pryor were Sheriff Henry Billingsley and Deputy Sheriff Luke Lankford of Angelina county, Police Chief Ralph Chaney of Lufkin, and Deputy Sheriff Dan Lowe of Cherokee county.

Discovered in the car abandoned by the negroes were 15 suits of clothes, marked so as to indicate they had been stolen in Huntsville by the two negroes.

Convict Clothing Found
A bundle of convict clothing, which included marked underwear was also reported found in the car.

Bloodhounds were brought to the scene by a prison official but due to the extreme heat and the sandy condition of the country over which the negroes fled for liberty, the dogs had little success. Several times they picked up the trail of the convicts only to lose them after a short distance.

After fleeing from the car the negroes walked about a mile straight across the timbered section and started out the other side but were seen by two boys at a distance. They fired at the blacks but the distance was so great that the bullets did not hit their mark as the blacks were seen to run back into the woods.

Inquire Directions
At noon a section hand working on a railroad told Sheriff Billingsley and Deputy Lankford, a negro had approached him and asked the way to Jacksonville. The man said he watched the negro walk away, saw him meet another negro and converse with him a few minutes before both started off through the cornfield. The cornfield was on the old Bill Session place on which J. W. Choate is now farming a ten-acre tract which is a government re-habilitation project. That was the last time the negroes were reported seen until just before dusk when a farmhouse resident advised a posseman that he had seen two negroes cross the highway near his home and start walking down the Cotton Belt railroad tracks toward Cornell Switch.

Ranger Purvis with a companion sped at 70 miles an hour to the scene. He continued down the highway which runs along the railroad track until he saw other cars and heard shooting.

Purvis Spots Negro
Seeing a negro walking alongside a fence across from the tracks where a cornfield was located, Purvis observed him as he darted behind a post.

"It was just at dusk," Captain Purvis said. "The sights were hard to see on the 30-30 rifle I held. I fired at the negro as he crouched behind the post, and also did a posseman who rode with me to the scene. He was using a shotgun."

"The negro's left underjaw and neck was torn by the shot. The negro behind the post straightened up and dropped back dead," Purvis said. "I could see the other negro running across the corn field and into a peanut field. There were several shots fired at him."

Negro "Nose Dives"
It was believed however the accurate aim of Purvis at 200 yards with his rifle caused the negro to do a "nose dive" to earth as he dropped with a bullet straight through the heart.

No gun was found near his body. Officers said they would search the field in daylight Sunday to see if a weapon could be located.

Both bodies were brought to Lufkin in a Glen ambulance and later transferred to the East Texas Undertaking Co. There Chief Chancey finger-printed them. He will forward those records to Warden W. W. Wald at Huntsville.

THE CAPITAL JIGSAW

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, Aug. 15. (AP)—The name of A. M. Aiken, Jr., of Paris will start every roll call of the Senate in the next legislature.
It will be the first time since 1921 the Senate will have a roll call beginning with "A." J. M. Alderdice of Ellis county led off from 1917 to 1921.
Aiken succeeds Tom Deberry, who retired.

Employees in Gov. Allred's office stood it as long as they could and then got out pastepot and scissors.

Over the nameplate on an electric fan they pasted the government name in red letters, covering up the manufacturer's designation of "Hunter."

Tom F. Hunter was one of Allred's opponents in the first primary election.

Two men were talking at the entrance to the Capitol.
"The unemployment situation still is bad," said one.
"You're right," said the other.

"The Governor could relieve some of it by calling a session of the Legislature," said the first.
"There are 181 members, you know."

"And he might even get Federal aid for the session," said the second. "Aid for unemployed legislators wouldn't be a bad idea."

Then they strolled away.

On Gov. Allred's desk after the election were a pair of scissors, a bit of blue ribbon and a card. Scissors and ribbon were attached to the card, on which was written: "Keep cutting 'em Jimmy."

The governor's political opponents had criticised his frequent participation in Centennial and other public meetings, calling him a "ribbon cutter" and "queen crowner."

The advice to keep it up was from John V. Moss of Bonham.

In the Harris county election Eugene DeBorgg received one vote his name was not on the ballot, for lieutenant-governor, although Lieut. Gov. Walter F. Woodul of Houston officially was unopposed for re-election.

In the same box which recorded the vote for DeBorgg, Woodul received one vote for attorney general. Attorney General William McCraw was unopposed on the formal ballot.

The Harris county Democratic convention urged that William C. Repass of Houston be named temporary chairman and keynoter of the state Democratic convention in September.

Repass is managing editor of the Houston Chronicle and a colonel on the honorary staff of Gov. Allred.

Parole officials of Arkansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona and Texas will hold the first southwestern states parole conference at Galveston, Tex., Sept. 2-3.

FALL GLOVES SPORT FANCY STITCH-WORK

THE principal purpose of Life insurance is to provide food, clothing and shelter—possibly for the wife and children and possibly for a husband and father.

A family that is putting aside a definite percentage of income will be interested in the Hundred a Month plan of Life Insurance, recently announced by The Travelers Insurance Company. It provides an income of $100 a month to the family for twelve months or as many months as is desired. If the husband and father lives to age 65 and there is no longer need for such insurance he can get back every cent he has paid for his life insurance protection, if he purchased his insurance on the Cash Settlement form of policy.

This is an excellent offer—it is worth investigating.

Scanning New Books

By JOHN SELBY

When you drain off Edith Sitwell's wine-colored prose, you wonder just what there is left of her latest book. The name of the book is "Victoria of England" (Houghton Mifflin).

There are doubtless documents hidden away in the English archives which, were they to be released, might make a new life of Queen Victoria worth the trouble. There is no evidence in "Victoria of England" that any hidden information has been discovered; there is plentiful evidence that Miss Sitwell has read most of the modern biographies of the little old lady, however.

The effort has been to relate Victoria to the social phenomena of her time, such of those as she was responsible for and such of these as she was definitely not responsible for. Miss Sitwell has made an earnest effort, with some success. She has been a little more frank about a good many people, some royal, than is the habit in England.

But essentially she merely has retold Victoria's family story. The real difference between "Victoria of England" and other recent efforts along the same line is in the type of Miss Sitwell's prose. This is at times incredibly lush. Whole pages sound as if they were from a modern hammock romancer whose command of English is much above the ordinary. And this seems to be a mere American incongruity in the extreme. Victoria wasn't that kind of queen.

"The Big Money," by John Dos Passos (Harcourt, Brace); another of Dos Passos' panoramas in prose; this one attempts to chart the channels through which the "big money" has flowed since the war.

"England Have My Bones," by F. H. White (Macmillan); another Englishman puts the thoughts and emotions aroused in him by the English countryside into prose; Mr. White touches other subjects as well—gardening, of course.

"Anne of Windy Poplars," by L. M. Montgomery (Stokes); a successor to "Anne of Green Gables," provided such is possible.

"Children of Ol' Man River," by Billy Bryant (Furman); the facts of show-boat life, told by one of our most illustrious show-boaters.

"Green Gates," by R. C. Sheriiff (Stokes); a quietly satisfying novel about the life of an Englishman who retired at 58, and finally found a new life; Sheriff wrote "Journey's End," of course.

"The Story of the Gems," by Herbert P. Whitlock (Furman); the story of precious and semi-precious stones, from the mine to the wearer; there's a lot of fascinating information about famous stones, too.

"Venus Over Lannery," by Martin Armstrong (Harcourt, Brace); the generations contrasted, English style; a little talky.

"Burn, Candle, Burn," by Harriett Henry (Harpers); bright new book by the author of "We Walk Alone"; three of Miss Henry's books have been made into movies, so far.

"Idols and Invalids," by James Kemble (Doubleday, Doran); the physical ailments of a great many famous personages of history, with consideration of their effect on the personages and on history; Columbus, Lord Nelson, Mary of Scotland, etc.

"The Man From Norlands," by John Buchan (Houghton Mifflin); the governor general of Canada writes another costume romance.

Norge originated 30 of the most important features in modern refrigeration. The greatest of these is the Rollator, exclusive Norge cold-making mechanism. With but three parts slowly moving in a permanent bath of protecting oil, the Rollator opens up a new world of limited current and unlimited cold. Because of its surplus of cold-making power, the Rollator needs to work only a small part of the time to give you more cold than you'll ever need and more economy than you've ever known. And because of the generous shelf space and flexible arrangement of the Norge interior, you can store greater quantities of food—save by buying in bargain quantities—by making fewer trips to market.

Don't Talk So Much About Music, Says Heifetz, Hitting 'Time Fillers'

NEW YORK, Aug. 15. — (P) — We talk too much about music, thinks Jascha Heifetz. This holds for every department of the art — particularly for commentators on the air and elsewhere.

Heifetz just had flown on from California and his beloved yawl, the "Galatea," for two appearances at Lewisohn Stadium. The official count said 31,000 persons heard him, which is more than double the normal capacity of that out-door auditorium.

"I understand perfectly well why commentators talk so much about music," says the great violinist (many say the greatest). "They've got time to fill."

"But I think it's dangerous. An audience needs to know only certain basic facts about the music to be played—what it is, who wrote it, the period, perhaps something of the life of the composer and the history of the piece itself."

"So far, so good. Unfortunately, many commentators go on to say what this important chap thought about the music; and sometimes what the speaker himself thinks the audience should think. This is bad. We ought to let the listeners alone, to react directly to the music itself."

Cuts Hands Sailing

"Most people don't listen, anyway. They think they do. But they don't really hear."

Sailing and Badminton have occupied the Heifetz summer. Sailing is hard on the Heifetz hands, their owner admits.

"Cut to ribbons. But damped if I'll wear gloves on the boat."

In spite of that, he needs only two weeks to get himself in shape for his summer "appearance" in New York. He has no set schedule for practice through the summer.

Tolerant of Jazz

Heifetz is A-1 in musical tolerance. He won't speak unkindly, even of the people who assail the ear with the "fruity," slushy violin tone of the so-called popular musicians.

"There's a market for that, obviously. For my sort of playing too, thank God."

"But I am glad my reputation rests on good music, which nothing seems to be able to kill."

Teddy's Cabins Being Rebuilt in N. Dakota

MEDORA, N. D., Aug. 15. — (P) — Two cabins in which Theodore Roosevelt lived as a rancher, cowboy and hunter in the picturesque Badlands of western North Dakota are being rebuilt on his old Maltese Cross ranch just south of here.

The old ranch lies in the beautiful valley of the Little Missouri river, surrounded by buttes, and covered with purple sage and blooming cactus.

W. O. Trenor of Roanoke, Va., present owner of the ranch, had his cowhands reconstruct the two cabins, observing details of their original appearance as outlined by Joseph Ferris, who was a partner of Roosevelt, and George W. Myers, former cowhand of the rough-rider.

Frank Fowle, 85-year-old resident of Clarence, Iowa, worked through the "thrashing season" pitching grain bundles.

Cinderella Wins Her Prince

Fate must have had a hand in naming Cinderella Williamson, Tennessee mountain beauty, for the Cinderella story came true for her. Here, on her honeymoon, the blue-eyed blond who hoed corn with her brothers and sisters and then as a model won the heart of Fuller Potter, New York broker's son, is shown with her husband.

BEAD EMBROIDERIES FOR BOUDOIR SWANK

PARIS, Aug. 15. — (P) — New mules for boudoir elegance go in for bead embroideries. Bentivenga shows white crepe mules with beads fairly covered with tiny beads in floral design. Red, blue and yellow flowers all get along amiably together, with a few green bead leaves to tone them up.

CAMEOS ARE COPIED ON LEATHER CLIPS

PARIS, Aug. 15. — (P) — Even cameos may be copied in versatile leathers. Some new oval shaped clips and brooches are leather covered and decorated with the finest of leather flowers in multi-color, clustered together in true cameo arrangement.

PARISIAN DESIGNS A BPOC-FIGURED BELT

PARIS, Aug. 15. — (P) — For those who like animals, a Paris designer has created a green suede belt which ends in a large pond lily leaf or green suede. Centered on the leaf in an attitude of watchful waiting is a green jade frog.

Senate Hall Is Revived

Restoration of Once Famous Office is Romans Aim

ROME, Aug. 15. — (P) — Restoration of the ancient Roman curia or hall of the senate has been resumed under the impetus of fascist enthusiasm for revival of the historic empire.

De Vecchi di Val Cismon, minister of education, has ordered workmen to brace the old structure preparatory to demolition of a mediaeval building which has covered the original. The work has commenced on the side which fronts the new Empire Way.

Fascist architects say they will be able to restore the original building entirely.

The brick curia was built by Julius Caesar and first was restored in 303 by Diocletian. About 625 Pope Honorius I converted it into the church of St. Hadrian. Modern tourists have visited the church of Santa Martina, built into a hall of the curia which was used in ancient times for secret meetings.

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 15. — (P) — Princeton University mathematicians have evolved several games of their own. Although very popular in professional circles here, the games probably never will attain universal appeal.

The colleagues of Professor Albert Einstein are turning to games that appeal to the mind steeped in the complexities of figures and space.

Among the first products of mathematical ingenuity was chess in three dimensions. The ordinary board with 64 squares was supplanted with a system of eight boards superimposed in the form of a cube through which chessmen pass according to their regularly assigned moves. The added dimension prolongs a contest to five hours.

After devising cylindrical chess, and "anchor ring" chess, the figure experts turned to the Japanese game of "Go," invented by the Nipponese emperor Yao in 250 B. C.

This is played on a square board with 19 parallel lines drawn in each direction. The two series of lines intersect 361 times. Around the intersections white and black stone counters are moved, 400 of each color. The object is to surround with one's men as many unoccupied intersections as possible.

NEW PAINTED RIBBON SPORTS RED POLKAS

PARIS, Aug. 15. — (P) — Among wide new painted ribbons is a white lacquered satin painted with rouge red polka dots, and a green taffeta ribbon paint splashed with Chinese letters in black and white. Wide, washable sarah ribbons, very soft and easy to drape, are being featured for scarfs and sash tied girdles.

Indian girl scouts will have a permanent camp near Tahihina, Okla., under plans being carried out now.

The remainder of his address consisted of anecdotes pertaining to Mormons and to promises that he would not accept retention fees from corporations if elected senator.

Giving his audience the opportunity of asking questions, to some he replied unequivocally, avoiding others completely when his supporters shouted, "Aw, he's crazy."

He pointed out the fact that the most influential citizens of his own county are opposed to his candidacy.
