May 8, 2024		Tidied up Websense flags

May 8, 2024		Tidied up Windows Defender flags
May 15, 2024	9.3	Remove reference to a McAfee article
June 11, 2024		New processes for Tanium
June 21, 2024	9.4	Critical updates to Trend Micro
June 27, 2024		Tidied up Tanium flags for Mac
July 1, 2024		Added F-Secure flags for Mac
July 16, 2024	9.5	Tidied up process names that would not be matched once Agent version 8.2 is released. Impacts: Cisco AMP Trellix Sophos
July 31, 2024		Removed reg.exe from ARES examples
October 24, 2024		New process for Checkpoint

SECURITY APPLICATION EXCLUSIONS

To reduce the likelihood of an impact or incompatibility between your organizations existing security applications and antivirus (AV) products and the Digital Guardian (DG) Agent running on machines, Digital Guardian requires the following exclusions be incorporated into your security applications configurations to prevent them from scanning or injecting the DG files and folders. Impacts vary from overall slowness, hangs through BSODs.

Care should be taken though with web security products that need to inspect traffic after DG Web Inspection Proxy (DG WIP) are not set to ignore that traffic. This may mean that while an AV should not inspect dgwip.exe, this does not mean that the web inspection agent should ignore network traffic coming from dgwip.exe.

Note that while we use drive letter "C:" below, other drive letters could be used, and it is possible that other products are using physical address paths when detecting DG Agent processes. See the explanation about physical address paths below.

Windows

Folder level exclusions:

%programfiles%\dgagent\ (for example C:\Program Files\DGAgent)
%SYSTEMROOT%\Temp\acit\ (for example C:\Windows\TEMP\acit) (Up to version 7.8.0)
%programdata%\dgagent\ (for example C:\ProgramData\DGAgent)

Services to exclude:

Usage History Monitor
Usage History Scanning Monitor

Note that the C:\Program Files\DGAgent\plugins\F4B0439E-E8E0-452F-95B6-06BBFAC8C668 is only present if the Investigation Module feature is deployed.

Physical Address Paths

On Windows 10 and 11 some security products may also access and block files via physical device paths, e.g.

\Device\HarddiskVolume2\Windows\SysWOW64\DgApi.dll
\Device\HarddiskVolume2\Windows\System32\DgApi64.dll

If a problem persists after applying the exceptions based on the system drive (usually C:) then apply exclusions to the security application based on the drive path format also.

Using MD5 and SHA Hashes

If you prefer to use the MD5 hash or the SHA-1 hash of the executables, these will depend on the version or build of the Agent actually deployed. You can calculate the hashes with each separate deployed build using the certutil command from a command prompt:
certutil -hashfile <file path> <digest>
e.g.
certutil -hashfile “c:\Program Files\dgagent\dgwip.exe” SHA1

Note that when upgrading Agents from one build to another or testing a specific build you need to have the hashes for all deployed versions excluded by your Anti-Virus or security application.

Using Company Name in Windows Process Flags

When configuring the process flags to stop the Agent from monitoring other security products it is a good idea to include the company name, to avoid that the Agent inadvertently also ignores processes of the same name that are part of another application that could be a potential risk.
In some of the example process flags for Windows below we have provided the company name, in others we have not, because we do not have the exact values available. The value used must be an exact match to how Windows sees the company name, including special characters. Also note that these names can change without warning. So if the value already exists in an example then check it matches the value that you see on your system. If there is no value then you can add it.
The value used will normally be shown as the Copywrite attribute when you look at the properties of the executable under the Details tab. You can also see it in a Sysinternals procmon trace that can see the process running.

MIP Integration and WIP Configuration

The process flag examples that follow assume that you are not using MIP integration with Agent version 7.7.0 or above and that you have not configured the wipThirdPartyProxyExec setting with one of the executables of the other security product.

Note: You can only use EPM or Digital Guardian to protect against DLL injection attacks separately, but not both at the same time. To turn off DLL protection in the EPM console, go to Advanced -> Agent Configuration -> Extended Protection -> Anti-tampering protection and set it to off. Turning off the anti-tampering option in EPM means that EPM will not protect against DLL injection attacks and you will need to rely solely on Digital Guardian for that protection.
