

John Dombrosky, CEO

LEADER BIO

Mr. Dombrosky has more than 25 years of business building experience, including 13 years of experience within the agricultural technology sector. Based on the idea that our common human dignity depends upon daily access to nutritious food, Mr. Dombrosky's professional focus is to unlock, develop, and bring to market high-impact agricultural technologies.

Prior to joining Oerth Bio, Mr. Dombrosky served as Chief Executive Officer of AgTech Accelerator. Built with a syndicate of leading venture and industry strategic capital, the AgTech Accelerator team identified and launched ag-tech startups designed to address major food system gaps.

Prior to joining AgTech Accelerator, he served in multiple executive roles at Syngenta, where his responsibilities spanned licensing, M&A, strategic planning, and general management across seeds and crop protection businesses. In addition to experience in the agriculture sector, he held M&A, strategy, business development, FP&A and roles at Thomson Reuters; and began his career in corporate planning and operational analysis at Northwest Airlines.

Mr. Dombrosky earned a Bachelor of Arts in Financial Management from the University of St. Thomas and an M.B.A. from the University of Notre Dame.
