ABOUT ORBIS

Orbis – Restoring Sight

Globally, 285 million people are blind or visually impaired. Though 80% of visual disabilities can be avoided or cured, the lack of adequately trained human resources remains one of the most critical eye health deficits. Orbis addresses this acute need by developing eye health infrastructure, training staff, and providing technical resources to ensure sustainable, quality eye care in various settings, including our unique Flying Eye Hospital.

Invest in Eye Health

Preventing and treating blindness is one of the most effective, cost-efficient interventions. By empowering local eye care professionals with the proper skills and resources, you catalyse to unlock a lifetime of opportunities. When sight is restored, individuals can access education and work, reversing the cycle of poverty. When local eye care professionals are trained, they create an enduring impact and build self-sufficiency.

Orbis & ESG

Orbis incorporates ESG considerations into its work. Orbis provides eye care services, works with local partners to educate and train eye care professionals in underserved regions, and has a robust governance framework to ensure transparency and accountability.
