

The Honorable James W. Ziglar, OStJ, is Senior Counsel at the Washington, D.C. law firm of Van Ness Feldman, where he advises clients and colleagues on legal and public policy issues. Mr. Ziglar has over 50 years of experience in law, finance, management, government and education.

From 1998 to 2001, Mr. Ziglar was Sergeant at Arms of the United States Senate, a position in which he served as the Senate's chief operating officer, chief protocol officer and chief law enforcement officer. He left that post in 2001 when President George W. Bush nominated him, and he was confirmed unanimously by the U.S. Senate, as Commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, a position he held until December 2002 when the INS was dissolved and its missions transferred to the new Department of Homeland Security. Mr. Ziglar served as Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Water and Science during the Reagan Administration.

Mr. Ziglar has practiced law for a total of 18 years, beginning his legal career as a law clerk to U.S. Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun. He later was Distinguished Visiting Professor of Law at the George Washington University Law School, where he taught immigration law, and he was a Resident Fellow at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government Institute of Politics, focused on U.S. immigration policy. Mr. Ziglar worked on Wall Street for a total of 17 years as an investment banker in the public finance area. From 2005 to 2008, Mr. Ziglar was President and CEO of Cross Match Technologies, a leading global provider of biometric technologies and security solutions.

Mr. Ziglar presently serves as Chairman of the Board of the Migration Policy Institute, an international think tank on immigration and migration policy. He serves also as a Trustee of the Lost Tree Chapel in North Palm Beach, FL, and a member of the Board of Advisers of the Ellis Island Honor Society. He is a Director of Forward Industries, Inc. and of Integrated Biometrics, Inc.

Mr. Ziglar is a member of the bars of New York, Virginia, Arizona, and the District of Columbia. He and his wife, Linda, OStJ, have been married for 53 years, and have three sons and nine grandchildren.
