RiverGate RSS Reader

Be the First to Know Everything, Every Time!

RSS feeds can be extremely useful as they deliver automatically updated information directly to your desktop. This allows you to stay well informed about any subject, topic, issue that interests you – whether news, job listings, personals, and classifieds, you'll always know what's going on.

In order to be able to use/read feeds (which an increasing number of sites offer – it's that small icon that reads either RSS or XML) you need a utility, an RSS reader which is exactly what we offer you here.

RiverGate Rss Reader is a FREE news aggregator or feed reader that uses web feed to retrieve syndicated web content such as weblogs, podcasts, vlogs, and mainstream media websites, or in the case of a search aggregator, a customized set of search results.

Installing RiverGate Rss Reader will only take a few seconds. Then, when launching RiverGate Rss Reader you will have a left panel displaying RSS feeds (or channels) to which you are subscribed. On the right you will have another panel listing articles within the channel selected at that moment with the publish date also showing, and further to the right the description of the articles together with their source. Beneath the list and right in the middle the actual article you want to read will be displayed. You can click a channel to show its articles and then click an article to show its content. If you want to switch between channel groups, simply click the drop-down box at the upper left under the menus.

RiverGate Rss Reader really helps you save valuable time and effort you would otherwise employ to regularly check websites for updates, creating a unique information space. It's like having your "personal newspaper".

This tool provides consolidated view of the content in a built-in browser. To make it as easy as possible for anyone willing to use such a program RiverGate Rss Reader has a very simple, clean interface without any redundant buttons just for the visual sake. You will instantly learn to manage this program!
