SecuritySpy works with a wide variety of cameras to suit every need, from traditional analogue cameras to the latest high-resolution network cameras, offering unsurpassed video quality at megapixel resolutions.

SecuritySpy's motion-detection feature will intelligently detect and capture events, while the remote monitoring feature allows you to view your cameras over the Internet from anywhere in the world.

If you are building a video surveillance system from scratch, we can help you choose the right cameras to suit your needs. If you have an existing system using analogue cameras, SecuritySpy will enable you to upgrade to a computer-based digital system whilst still retaining your existing cameras and cabling.
