Calendar/PIM

40. 30 Boxes

<http://30boxes.com/>

Web

This Web calendar actually looks 100-percent like the calendars of yore. You won't get confused using 30 Boxes, even on the months with 31 or 28 boxes.

41. Chandler 1.0

<http://chandlerproject.org>Windows | Mac | Linux

Though it looks like Outlook, Chandler is all about keeping track of the notes, to-do lists, and meetings in your future.

42. Google Calendar

<http://www.google.com/calendar/>

Web

One of the best of the many Google online apps, Calendar displays your schedule any way you want. It's imminently searchable, of course, and has its own Labs section, with experimental ideas from Google that you can implement, if you want.

43. Google Contacts

<http://www.google.com/contacts>

Web

Google's answer to keeping track of your friends and family might be a bit anemic—okay, it's more than a bit anemic—but it's a must have when your life is intertwined with Google Voice and Gmail.

44. Lightning

<http://www.mozilla.org/projects/calendar/lightning/>Windows | Mac | Linux | Portable

Another project of Mozilla Labs, Lightning is technically an extension for the Thunderbird e-mail software. And what an add-on it is, providing full calendaring support with a task list. You can even synch it with your Google Calendar.

45. Remember The Milk

<http://www.rememberthemilk.com/>

Web | Mobile

You don't want to forget the milk, or anything else, and this superior cloud-based task manager will make sure your to-do lists are easily managed and accessible via a variety of smartphones (iPhone, Android, Blackberry) and even through other Web services, such as Gmail.

46. Yahoo Calendar

<http://calendar.yahoo.com/>

Web

Not much has changed with Yahoo's online calendar or contacts in the last few years, but maybe it doesn't need to. This kind of simplicity is hard to come by. If you don't want all the extra bells and whistles of other apps, this might be the right PIM for you.
