The Best Free Software of 2010

File Transfer/Sharing

64. BitTorrent 6.2

<http://www.bittorrent.com/>

Windows | Mac | Linux

The client software for the BitTorrent protocol, which makes sharing a breeze, is not as good as its competition, but it still sports fast performance across all OSes.

• Read PCMag's review of BitTorrent 6.2.

65. FileZilla 3.3.2.1

<http://filezilla-project.org>

Windows | Mac | Linux | Portable

We once mistakenly called this a Mozilla project because of its name. It's not. This free FTP client software started as a computer science project in 2001 and blossomed into an open-source staple.

66. LimeWire 5.5.7

<http://www.limewire.com/download>

Windows | Mac

In the days of Napster, instant file sharing was all the rage. The closest you can come to that today—and still be legal—is LimeWire. The client can access the Gnutella sharing network, as well as BitTorrent downloads and uploads. If you're willing to pay for a subscription, you get extras like anti-virus protection.

• Read more about LimeWire at PCMag.com.

67. net2ftp 0.98

<http://www.net2ftp.com>

Web

You may not want to start up an FTP client just to transfer one file. In fact, why use a client at all? Net2ftp is a Web app that can handle the transfer. All you have to do is give it the server, username, and password.

68. RightLoad 1.9

<http://rightload.org/>

Windows

This tiny FTP client does one thing: It sends files directly to pre-configured servers, with a simple right-click. It even lets you quickly throw images onto Facebook and Flickr.

69. uTorrent 2.0

<http://www.utorrent.com/downloads/>

Windows | Mac | Portable

Our favorite BitTorrent client (it's our Editors' Choice) is also yours, since half the protocol's users prefer it. No wonder: It's super small, super fast, and gives you all the controls you need to manage the bandwidth it uses.

• Read PCMag's review of uTorrent 1.8.4.

70. Vuze

<http://www.vuze.com/>

Windows | Mac

This BitTorrent client does more than BitTorrent. It's also a media player that works not just on your computer, but it serves video on a variety of other devices, including all three major game consoles, TiVo Series 3, Apple TV, iPods, and the iPhone. Yet, it remains an open platform.
