About Together North Jersey

In November 2011, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) awarded TOGETHER NORTH JERSEY (aka, North Jersey Sustainable Communities Consortium) a $5 million Sustainable Communities Regional Planning Grant. The grant was matched with an additional $5 million in leveraged funds from project partners. Grant funds have been used to implement the Local Demonstration Project (LDP) Program, develop a Regional Plan for Sustainable Development (RPSD) for the 13-county planning Together North Jersey planning region in northern New Jersey, and provide technical assistance and offer education opportunities that build the capacity of jurisdictions, organizations and the public to advance sustainability projects and initiatives. For more information, visit togethernorthjersey.com

About The Local Demonstration Project Program

The purpose of the Together North Jersey Local Demonstration Project (LDP) Program was to advance sustainable community development projects and initiatives at the local level to identify or advance short-term, implementable projects that are consistent with Together North Jersey goals and desired long-term sustainability outcomes. The LDP Program provided technical assistance for strategic planning studies focused on designated areas or corridors associated with established or anticipated transit services and/or facilities. Eligible LDP projects were sponsored by municipalities, counties, non-governmental organizations, community development corporations, and other interested organizations.

Executive Summary

In conjunction with development of the Middlesex Greenway Access Plan, the New Jersey Health Impact Collaborative at Rutgers University conducted a Health Impact Assessment (HIA). By combining scientific data, health expertise and public input, HIAs identify and assess the potential positive and negative health effects of decisions related to policies, programs or projects. The HIA considers a range of social, environmental and economic influences on health and places an emphasis on identifying groups of people who might be particularly vulnerable or disproportionately impacted. HIA follows a 6step method that results in a set of recommendations and a monitoring plan.

The Middlesex Greenway HIA included reviewing background data and literature, engaging stakeholders, and conducting a survey of residents in surrounding communities, to both characterize the baseline health status and also project health impacts of increased use of the Greenway for nearby communities. The HIA focused on these six questions:

- 1. How will increased Greenway use affect physical activity?
- 2. How does increased use of the Greenway affect environmental exposures?
- 3. How will increased use of the Greenway affect security?
- 4. How will increased use of the Greenway affect safety? (crashes and injuries)
- 5. How will increased use of the Greenway affect social cohesion?
- 6. How will increased use of the Greenway affect the local economy?

Visions for a Healthy, Safe and Vibrant Greenway

The vision of a healthy Middlesex Greenway improves physical fitness and mental health for all ages and abilities, minimizes exposure to environmental hazards and pests.

Traversing densely populated semi-urban communities crisscrossed with a heavily travelled network of roads and highways, the relative safety and serenity of a flat, paved 3.5 miles path offers an ideal opportunity for nearby residents to walk, jog or bike without cars zooming past, enjoying the outdoors while also exercising. The greenway offers varied health benefits including improved fitness, reduction in obesity-related diseases and conditions, and stress reduction that results from both the natural beauty of the outdoors and from an enhanced sense of community. Results from the Health Impact Assessment (HIA) suggest that the greenway is an important asset for physical fitness, but also that residents have some concerns about health risks from animals, insects and allergens. Recommendations address how to maximize physical and mental health benefits for greenway users, and also minimize risks to health from environmental exposures.

The vision of a safe Middlesex Greenway has taken all reasonable steps to reduce crime and the perception of crime, and to minimize crashes, collisions and accidental injury risks. Feedback from the outreach process suggests that even without a single reported physical assault or attack, many women and elderly people have personal safety concerns and are fearful that the relative isolation of the greenway makes them vulnerable to physical attack or mugging. Likewise, accidental incidents pose injury risks for greenway users.

Either en route to the trail or at places where the trail intersects a roadway, street design and crosswalks should be as safe as possible. Along the trail itself, bicyclists, joggers, people pushing strollers and people in wheelchairs are moving at different speeds and at different levels of attention. Education for trail users about safety etiquette is important. Recommendations address how to reduce both perceived and real crime, and to minimize accidental collisions and falls.

The vision of a vibrant Greenway enhances a sense of community and helps to support local businesses, resulting in the stress-reducing and mental health benefits of positive social interaction and a healthy business climate. People are getting to know their neighbors while also bringing vibrancy to the local economy with purchases from businesses in the nearby downtown commercial districts and the adjacent shopping center.

SUMMARY OF HIA FINDINGS

The chart below summarizes the direction, extent, likelihood, distribution and strength of evidence of the health outcomes associated with the determinants studied in this HIA. If trail use is increased, the amount of social interaction and physical activity will increase, and lead to substantial improvement in the mental and physical health of trail users, with disproportionate positive impacts for lower income individuals who have limited options for fitness. The increase in exposure to green space will reduce stress, but allergens or animal/insect bites could also lead to negative health outcomes, particularly for children who may be more likely to touch flora and fauna and for those with allergies or asthma. With more people using the trail for walking, bicycling, skateboarding and rollerblading, there is a possibility of more collisions and thus more injuries. However, if the flow of movement is well-managed and users are educated about proper trail etiquette and crosswalk use, collisions can actually decrease. Perception of crime should decrease, as more people using the trail will reduce feelings of isolation for senior citizens and women alone, and more awareness and publicity about the Greenway will help to dispel rumors about crime events. An increase in pedestrians using nearby streets to access the trail or to make walking or biking loops will likely benefit the local economy, as survey respondents noted that they purchased refreshments and equipment from local businesses.

Table 1. HIA Analysis – Summary of Findings

The table below lists the key health factors examined in the study, along with a summary of the projected impacts of increased use of the Greenway for each. The table summarizes the direction of the expected impact, the likelihood that the impacts will occur, the magnitude of any expected impacts, and the distribution of those impacts to specific populations.

Introduction

Project Team

The New Jersey Health Impact Collaborative (NJHIC) at Rutgers University carried out the Middlesex Greenway Access Plan Health Impact Assessment (HIA) concurrently with a Together North Jersey Local Demonstration Project (LDP). Partners on the LDP team were Middlesex County, NJ Office of Parks and Recreation; Edison Greenways Group; Borough of Metuchen, NJ; Edison Township, NJ; Woodbridge Township, NJ; and the Middlesex County, NJ Office of Planning. The purpose of the LDP project was to create a Middlesex Greenway Access Plan (the Plan) to provide the Middlesex County Office of Parks and Recreation and the Edison Greenways Group with recommendations for improving access to Greenway and increasing usage of the Greenway by residents and visitors. The HIA was undertaken to expand knowledge and understanding of how increased use of the Greenway impacts public health and to inform decisionmakers as they weighed the benefits and costs of various options for increasing Greenway utilization. The Regional Plan Association managed the Access Plan project, quided by NJTRANSIT and a project steering committee comprised of project partners and others listed in Appendix A.

Organization of Report

After an introduction describing the Plan and the HIA process generally, the report details the phases of the HIA, summarizing the key steps and findings associated with each phase. The screening section describes the value of the HIA, and the scoping section describes the plan and framework for the HIA, including discussion of research questions, pathways and populations affected. The assessment section presents a baseline profile of population demographics and health, and then provides evidence to support recommendations and predicted impacts associated with increased use of the Greenway. The recommendations section lists a set of actions designed to promote health and the evaluation section describes impact and process evaluation and suggests a monitoring plan.

Background on Middlesex Greenway Access Plan

The Middlesex Greenway is a 3.5 mile long rails-to-trails project in Middlesex County, located in east-central New Jersey. From its western end in the borough of Metuchen, the linear path runs through the borough of Edison to its eastern end in Woodbridge Township. The trail is owned by Middlesex County. Situated on an abandoned portion of Lehigh Valley rail corridor, the currently completed portion of the Greenway, opened in 2012, is located within a 42-acre mostly wooded corridor that provides a 10-foot wide, flat, paved trail suitable for walking, biking and jogging. The trail runs directly adjacent or near to several parks, schools and other community assets and crosses through a variety of landscapes, from low density residential and commercial to industrial and institutional. A portion of the Middlesex Greenway is also part of the East Coast Greenway, a developing trail system spanning nearly 3,000 miles between Canada and Key West, FL.

The goal of the project, carried out from February through July of 2014, was to develop a plan for increased use and access of the Greenway by area residents and visitors. The "Middlesex Greenway Access Plan" provides recommendations to trail managers and decision-makers for promoting awareness, facilitating access and enhancing linkages to result in greater use of the Greenway.

Project partners identified several barriers to current use of the greenway, including the lack of safe pedestrian/bicycle access from surrounding streets and a lack of maps or signage (wayfinding) pointing to the Greenway from any of the commercial districts, activity centers or transit stops. In addition, the County would like the principles of Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design (CPTED) considered in future trail improvements.

Health Impact Assessment Process

As a complementary process to the development of the Plan and carried out simultaneously, the HIA adds a specific focus on health, investigating the potential health impacts associated with increasing utilization of the Greenway and putting forth recommendations for how Greenway use can best protect and promote health. By combining scientific data, health expertise and public input, HIAs identify and assess the potential positive and negative health effects of decisions related to policies, programs or projects. The HIA considers a range of social, environmental and economic influences on health and places an emphasis on identifying groups who might be particularly vulnerable or disproportionately impacted. HIA follows a 6-step method (screening, scoping, recommendations, reporting, assessment. monitoring/evaluation) that results in a set of recommendations and a monitoring plan.

Screening

The screening step determines whether an HIA is needed, likely to be useful, and feasible. Common questions asked during this step may include: What project or decision will the HIA address or inform? How important to health is the project or decision? Will the HIA provide new and important information to inform decision-makers? Is an HIA feasible given available resources?

Identification of Decision and Decision-makers

The decision to incorporate health into the content of the Plan was made by the study participants. At the conclusion of the study, the decision to be influenced is the adoption of the Plan as a guide for trail managers to invest in physical improvements or foster new programming to improve access and increase use of the Greenway. Middlesex County Office of Parks and Recreation is the owner and primary manager of the trail, and staff from this department will make final decisions regarding which Plan elements will be implemented. Nonprofit Edison Greenways Group, instrumental in acquiring the corridor, developing the trail and promoting its use, will also play a lead role in implementing some Plan elements.

Recommendations about how to maximize health and safety, developed from the HIA, are woven directly into the Access Plan, so that decision-makers can consider the direct and indirect health impacts of future trail enhancements. Project team members, including those who will make decisions based on the Plan, are open to considering the HIA recommendations to inform changes in design and alternative planning and programming. In fact, two of the stated objectives of the plan are to use the Greenway as an illustrative example of the public health benefits created by such multi-use paths, and to enhance public health in the Borough of Metuchen, Edison

Township and Woodbridge Township by increasing usage of the Greenway. It is anticipated that the results of the Local Demonstration Project will influence decision-makers toward adoption of the recommendations within the plan. Following the plan adoption, physical improvements to the trail facility and event and programmatic recommendations will be implemented.

All project partners (consultant, project leads, project steering committee) actively participated in the HIA process, including being available to be interviewed and help to obtain existing local data and information and to assist with collection of any new data. Because the project was designed to already include a number of stakeholder outreach events and processes, the HIA process could leverage this capacity and these opportunities to meet with stakeholders. HIA project staff were actively "at the table" to integrate health assessment steps within the project phases.

Determination of Value of HIA

As part of the Together North Jersey Local Demonstration Project selection process, representatives from NJ TRANSIT, Regional Plan Association (consultant team), and NJHIC conferred with Together North Jersey staff and met with representatives from Edison Greenways and Middlesex County's Office of Parks and Recreation in the Fall of 2013 to consider the added value of the HIA to the project. Based on those discussions, the project team determined that greater utilization of the Greenway has the potential to significantly impact determinants of health and health outcomes for Greenway users and others in the nearby community (both positively and perhaps negatively). With relatively large minority populations and a number of senior living facilities in close proximity to the Greenway, there is the potential for disproportionate impacts on and benefits for these vulnerable populations. An HIA would be a beneficial way to add explicit development health considerations to the recommendations regarding how best to increase Greenway utilization and future decisions. (See Screening Checklist in Appendix B).

It was further determined that an intermediate level HIA was feasible given available staff and budget resources and the timeline of the Local Demonstration Project. That is, it could involve more local data collection and stakeholder input than a "rapid" HIA, with the leverage of the overlay with the LDP steering committee and stakeholder process, but resources could not support a full comprehensive assessment with extensive new primary local data collection. The existing relationships formed by the municipal, county, state and nonprofit representatives on the steering community and their buy-in to the HIA would facilitate and enhance the HIA process, without slowing it down and adding controversy.

Finally, this HIA will have visibility and broader application to other communities in New Jersey and nationwide who are considering development or increased use of Greenways and linear trails – an important opportunistic issue. As the first Greenway HIA in New Jersey, project leaders hope to provide a replicable model for future HIAs and promote Health in All Policies for other efforts in New Jersey.

SCOPING

Scoping establishes the foundation for the design and conduct of the health impact assessment. During this phase, the HIA team identified key health issues, determinants and pathways that should be considered, affected population(s) and methods to be used in the assessment. Scoping included input from a range of technical experts and stakeholders.

Goals of HIA

The Middlesex Greenway Use Plan includes strategies for improving access to the Greenway, facilitating linkages and enhancing programming, with a goal to increase the number of people using the Greenway. The goals of the HIA, in relation to the stated goals of the Plan, are to:

- define research questions related to health determinants influenced by increased Greenway use
- determine and carry out methods to assess baseline conditions and projected health impacts
- develop recommendations intended to maximize health benefits and mitigate negative health impacts of increased Greenway use with a focus on increasing equity
- engage stakeholders throughout the entire HIA process

Study Boundaries

Geographic

The Greenway extends through the three municipalities of Edison Borough, Metuchen Borough and Woodbridge Township. The "community" under consideration for the HIA is at two different scales. One boundary includes the entire area of the three municipalities (area = 57.48 sq. mi.). The other is a subset of the three jurisdictions that consists of just the areas within easy walking or biking distance of the Greenway (.5 mile or 1 mile radius, 4.55 sq. mi. and 10.25 sq. mi.). These smaller areas that radiate several blocks from the Greenway are those most heavily impacted by most of the health determinants affected by increased use of the trail. That is, residents within this boundary are most likely to actually use the trail regularly for recreation, exercise, socializing or transit to shopping/work, and therefore subject to the direct impacts associated with physical fitness, mental health, social cohesion, safety, security and environmental exposures. Economic impacts related to local income and employment are more appropriately distributed to the larger community boundary that includes the three towns.

As the Asset Map shows (below), there are many nearby public assets and populations that will be affected by increased Greenway use. One public school (Herbert Hoover Middle School in Edison Twp.) is located directly adjacent to the Greenway, while 7 additional schools are within the .5 mile radius. Four local parks are located in close proximity to the Greenway, and three senior living facilities are within one block of the trail. Two Farmer's Markets that operate periodically, we within close walking distance of the trail, as well as a YMCA and a local business district.

Temporal

The HIA analysis is concerned with both immediate impacts and with long-term impacts that may only be realized in decades. Specifically, some health outcomes that could result from increased use of the Greenway are very immediate, both negative ones (an exposure, a crime, an injury) and positive (improved mental well-being from social interaction and being in nature). Others are more long-term and are in the positive direction, such as those brought about by improved physical fitness and better local economic conditions.

Impacted Subpopulations

Users of the Greenway are the population affected most directly by its increased use. Users themselves will achieve benefits of physical activity or social cohesion associated with being on the Greenway, as well as health risks such as safety, security or other exposures. Residents of neighborhoods within walking or bicycling distance of the Greenway are the most likely to use the Greenway on a regular basis for exercise, socializing or fitness. Those who use the Greenway to commute to and from work are also directly impacted. If any subpopulations within these groups are unable to access or use the Greenway due to limited ADA access, perception of isolation or crime or other real or perceived barriers, the benefits of the Greenway will not be community-wide.

Health Determinants and Outcomes

Health determinants are personal, social, economic, and environmental factors that are influenced by societal decisions and ultimately affect the health of individuals or populations. Health determinants are linked through research to health outcomes, such as life-expectancy, disease and injury rates. Considering the health effects of decisions comprehensively requires employing a holistic definition of health and considering a broad set of health determinants, intermediate and final health outcomes and their pathways.

Research Questions

The six research questions that frame the Greenway Plan relate to health determinants under three broad categories healthy, safe and vibrant. That is, the first two determinants, physical activity and environmental exposures, are both about how use of the Greenway impacts the fitness and disease conditions of the individual and broader population. The second set of two determinants connect increased use of the Greenway with risks related to safety – that is, isolated criminal or accidental incidents that could occur and also the public's perception about the safety of using the trail. Finally, the last two questions explore how increased numbers of Greenway users can affect the vibrancy of the wider community through building social cohesion and stimulation of the local economy.

The indicators on the following page were selected because they are either data that are readily available through existing secondary sources, or information that could be collected at either an exact or approximate level through new primary data collection (interviews and surveys). Literature review is critical to make the connection between the indicators and the broader questions about health determinants and projected outcomes. HIA is a tool for applying evidence from the literature to local contexts.

For all health determinants, the analysis examines any disproportionate impacts on traditionally disadvantaged populations including seniors, youth, low-income, disabled and ethnic minorities. Some determinants were not selected for assessment in this study, either because there was little or no stakeholder interest or concern expressed throughout the scoping process, or because the research team had little or no basis for evaluating the impacts of the determinant. For example, even though air pollution could impact health negatively, particularly where the Greenway crosses a busy four-lane road and passes close to a major highway, we did not address this to any extent in the HIA because the issue was not raised by stakeholders and also because we did not have the technical capacity to gather any new data on the baseline or predicted impacts of this exposure. Likewise we did not explore the impact of possible reduced motor vehicle use (and hence impacts on individual transportation costs or on local air pollution), largely because it did not occur as an issue from early discussions with stakeholders in scoping and also because, as a relatively short trail with very little use as a workto-home or work-to-errands commuting path, the impact on air pollution or personal costs is likely to be very small. For the same reasons, the impact of the Greenway on access to healthy food was not examined. However, this is an aspect worth examining in more detail in future study (see Monitoring section).

Health Pathways

Causal models, or pathway diagrams, are used in HIAs to represent and visualize cause-and-effect relationships that potentially exist between environmental or social conditions and a variety of health outcomes. Pathway diagrams help organize existing knowledge and research, guide analyses, and communicate information in a clear and systematic manner.

In general terms, a pathway diagram shows how a change in an environmental or social condition (a health determinant) can lead to proximate effects and then to intermediate outcomes (e.g. stress) that can result in ultimate health effects (a disease condition, improved mental health, etc.). Figure 1 is an example of a health pathway diagram and Figure 2 on page 21 is the pathway diagram used for the Middlesex Greenway Use Plan.

Methods

Literature Review

To predict health impacts, the team reviewed empirical research from scholarly journals to find evidence related to physical activity, social interaction, increased access to green space, increased pedestrian exposure to traffic risks, and other areas defined as part of the scoping process. More weight was given to peer-reviewed studies where the scientific merit has been judged by experts in the field.

Secondary/Existing Data Collection

To conduct the baseline demographic and socioeconomic analysis, US Census data is the primary source. For health data, the research team conducted a broad search for national data including Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System (BRFSS) which collects data health-related risk behaviors, chronic health conditions, and use of preventive services and County Health Rankings and Roadmaps, which weighs and summarizes over twenty sources of public health data from national sources. In addition, we contacted local professionals to obtain any recent local health studies or data collection efforts.

Stakeholder Engagement

A variety of methods and formats for stakeholder engagement resulted in the collection of a rich set of local input to inform the assessment of local conditions and to support assessment of impacts and recommendations.

Steering Committee

A steering committee comprised of 21 members representing 15 organizations was assembled for the Access Plan project. Since the HIA was woven directly into the goals of the project, project team members attended every meeting (total of 4 meetings), and had many conversations with members about their major concerns and suggestions regarding health and the Greenway.

Public Open Houses

Two Open House events were conducted by the Access Plan team, one in March 2014 near the outset of the project and another in June 2014 near the conclusion of the research. At each event, HIA project team members staffed a table designed for public awareness and for public input into the HIA process. At the initial Open House, comments from the general public helped to inform the direction of the inquiry through "sticky notes" placed on a map of the Greenway that identified areas of concern or opportunity. The survey (described below) was also available to be taken either online or by paper copy. At the concluding Open House, the list of Health recommendations was presented for public feedback and prioritization. Very little input was received from the public on prioritization, however state agency representatives submitted input on the plan including recommendations for technical assistance and funding. Recommendations are included in a priority framework.

Middlesex Greenway Public Open House, March 18 Photo by Regional Planning Association

The HIA team also conducted a separate Open House event at the Olsen Towers senior living facility, after initial analysis and community input identified seniors as a particularly impacted population. Seniors provided input and filled out surveys.

Roundtables

The team invited health and safety officials and experts, as well as representatives from important subpopulations to attend a roundtable discussion to respond to questions about safety, security, physical activity and social/mental health aspects related to Greenway usage. The roundtable was attended by 15 people. In addition to this roundtable dedicated to health and safety issues, the HIA team also attended two roundtables organized by the Access Plan project team and devoted to issues of education and economics. Additional input was obtained from these roundtables that supported projected impacts and recommendations about health determinants. (See Appendix C for roundtable questions and notes.)

Expert/Informant Interviews

Frequent contact with members of the project steering committee served the function of providing expert and key informant input into the HIA information-gathering process. In addition to this contact, the team also conducted interviews with several additional health stakeholders including the County Health Department and local nonprofits with health missions.

Survey

The purpose of the Awareness, Use and Perception Survey was to collect data on Greenway awareness and utilization and understand better the health and safety concerns of residents. Answers to the questions would help to provide some evidence of baseline health, but primarily would help to support impact projections and recommendations.

The 40 questions on the survey asked about: how people became aware of the Greenway; how often and for what purposes people are using the Greenway; perceptions of Greenway safety; what can/should be done to improve and increase utilization of the Greenway. (See Appendix D for multiple choice survey questions.) A total of 565 surveys were completed, most through a web-based survey platform and some through paper copies. Respondents were recruited at the initial Open House event (see above), through email solicitation sent out by county, municipal and nonprofit partners, the TNJ website and other links posted on partner websites to drive people to a web-based survey. Survey respondents were not representative of the surrounding population in their place of residence or demographic and socioeconomic characteristics, so results cannot be generalized to the larger population. However, with over 550 completed surveys and many of them (407) trail users, the input is a good source of new primary local information, useful for understanding use patterns, preferences and concerns for those who responded.

Respondent Characteristics

Most respondents were from Metuchen, followed by Edison and Woodbridge (see Table 3). The respondent group is highly educated and fairly stable. Over 50% have lived in their neighborhoods more than 10 years, with more than 80% in single-family houses. About 80% have a college degree, with 40% having a graduate degree, and only 13% with only a high school education. More than 60% of respondents have household incomes over $100,000. In terms of demographics, the sample was 62% female, with about 80% in the young adult to middle-aged group. (See Table 4). More than three-quarters (77.5%) of the sample were white non-Hispanic and only about 1% black, with another indicating Hispanic 7.5% ethnicity, and more than 9% of Asian ethnicity. (See Table 5.)

Greenway Use Patterns

Of the 400 users who responded to the survey, almost one third (31%) reported using the Greenway at least two to three times per week, and another one third (33%) reported using it two to three times per month. More than two thirds (70%) typically go on the Greenway with other people. Most trail users reported being on the Greenway for half an hour to an hour (64%), but more than a guarter (26%) reported spending one to two hours on a typical visit.

Greenway users most often use the greenway for fitness and for pleasure (see Figure 3 on the following page). While most Greenway use is walking, 35 – 40% of users said that they most often jog or bicycle on the Greenway. (See Figure 4 on the following page).

Resources and Work Plan

Resources made available through Together North Jersey as a complement to the Local Demonstration Project supported the work of two senior researchers from NJHIC, along with a master's student, to conduct the HIA. Significant assistance also came from staff at RPA, whose work intersected with some of the HIA tasks, so that efficiencies were gained. For example, both projects needed to obtain basic demographic data and maps, and both projects required stakeholder meetings. These tasks were shared in both monetary and staff resources. With this leveraging available, the HIA was able to take on more breadth than a "rapid" HIA, but time and resources did not allow a full comprehensive HIA. After kicking off the project in late January of 2014, key milestones included:

- Agreement on preliminary research questions prior to first public Open House in March so that public and steering committee input could confirm the HIA scope
- Baseline data collection from February through March
- Conducting the online survey from mid-March through mid-May
- Stakeholder meetings and literature review from mid-March through Mid-May
- Prepare preliminary recommendations for the final Open House in early June so that feedback could shape final recommendations.

Process evaluation of the HIA process would be tracked by completion of these milestones, and of the final report by September of July 2014.

Baseline Assessment

This section includes a baseline assessment of the populations impacted by use of the Middlesex Greenway.

The research team prepared two profiles of the three study area municipalities (Edison, Metuchen, Woodbridge) and the smaller .5 mile radius "walking distance" and 1-mile radius "bicycling distance" neighborhoods immediately adjacent to the existing Greenway. Profile one captures demographic and socio-economic characteristics. Profile two captures available health statistics. Similar data for Middlesex County, the "Together North Jersey" region (13 counties of the North Jersey Transportation Authority) and/or the State of New Jersey will also be displayed for comparison purposes. As part of the analysis, the research team sought to identify and document any health disparities/inequalities that exist among population subgroups and/or places, making inferences where possible and appropriate from existing evidence-based research if local data does not exist.

Demographic Profile

The following demographic analysis utilizes data from the U.S. Census 2010, ACS 2010 5-year estimates, and ACS 2012 5-year estimates.

Collectively the three municipalities have a population of over 213,000, or approximately 26.3% of Middlesex County's total population. Edison and Woodbridge are both home to about 100,000 residents.

Nearly 82,000 people in approximately 29,900 households live within one mile of the Middlesex Greenway. Among residents living within one mile of the Middlesex Greenway, approximately 41% are non-White; 8.8% of the population is Black, 18.6% Asian, and 26.4% Hispanic. Meanwhile, approximately 29.1% of the total population living within one mile of the greenway is foreign-born. The majority of foreignborn residents originate from Latin America and South Central Asia. Racial composition varies across the three municipalities. At approximately 60.4%, non-White residents comprise a larger share of population in Edison than in Metuchen (26.7%) and Woodbridge (49.3%). The Asian population is the largest minority populations in all three communities, followed by the Hispanic population. The three municipalities, like Middlesex County, are very diverse communities.

Ownership rates vary across the three communities; in Metuchen, approximately 78.5% of households are owneroccupied, 69% in Woodbridge, and 65.4% in Edison. Homeownership rates in Woodbridge and Edison are comparable to those of the county and region.

Impacted Subpopulations

Populations most directly affected by the Greenway are those located in closest proximity to it. For this analysis, the demographic and health characteristics of people living within 1-mile radius, and the .5 mile radius of the trail (see maps) are considered the most impacted.

Elderly and Disabled

Both the elderly (over 75) and disabled populations (of any age) can be disproportionately impacted. Specifically, it can be more difficult for them to achieve the benefits of using the trail because of mobility constraints that can limit both access to the trail, and ability to stay on the trail for as long as someone without a mobility constraint. There is a higher concentration of population over 75 (more than twice as high), and disabled population (almost 50% higher) within the .5 mile "walking distance" radius of the trail than the concentration within the 1-mile radius or the three towns.

Although most access points are ADA accessible, the sidewalks getting to the entrance at Middlesex Ave. pass through the intersection of Middlesex, Central and Lake, generally considered to be one of the most dangerous for the borough's pedestrians. The entrance at Pierson Avenue in Edison, down the street from the 300-unit Redfield Village garden apartment complex that straddles the Metuchen-Edison border, has no sidewalks on one side and broken ones that are part of a parking lot on the other. These conditions can make it hard for those with mobility constraints, or who use canes or wheelchairs, to safely access the Greenway. A variety of other aspects of trail design and programming can also influence the degree of physical activity that an elderly or disabled person can obtain.

Hispanic

At over 26%, the concentration of Hispanic population within the 1-mile radius is significantly higher than the County average (18.4%), and while it is lower in the .5 mile radius at just under 17%, it is still a significant subpopulation with the potential to benefit disproportionately from the physical activity benefits of Greenway usage (see table 8 below for the details). The adult Hispanic population in New Jersey has overweight and obesity rates higher (66.3%) than either White (60.6%) or Asian (43%) ethnicities. ii

Health Profile

Statistics from Weight of the Nation (2012) indicate that over onethird of adults and 12.5 million children (ages 2 to 19 years) are obese. iii Health statistics show that Middlesex County residents are slightly less physically active and have access to fewer recreational resources compared with the average NJ County. On most other measures related to the health benefits or impacts of a Greenway, county residents rank the same or better than state metrics. Although obesity figures are lower than the state average, the percentage of obese adults has been trending generally upward in Middlesex County since 2004.

There were no current Community Health Assessments available to the research team to provide health data at a more local level that would clarify current health conditions of the population. Table 9 and Figures 1 and 2 compare health issues in Middlesex County to the State as a whole.

Baseline Health of Survey Respondents

Although not representative of the population, input from about 500 respondents who answered self-reported health questions on the survey can help to provide a snapshot of the health of the local community, particularly of those who are already use the trail (80% of them). It is important to keep in mind that those who completed the survey (very high education levels and higher incomes) could be generally healthier than the entire population of the impacted areas.

Almost three quarters of survey respondents reported that their personal health was very good to excellent. (See Table 10). Yet 42% have been told to increase physical activity by doctors (see Table 11), indicating that even some people reporting "very good" or "excellent" health are not in excellent physical condition and likely have some risk factors for obesity-related diseases. In fact, 10% of survey respondents reported obesity, but 20% said they have high blood pressure, which can be an obesity-related condition. Respondents are physically active, with 90% participating in exercise in the past month, and 70% of these people reporting that they exercise more than once a week. A quarter of respondents reported seasonal allergies and 13% indicated that they asthma – both conditions that can be exacerbated by exposure to pollens, grasses and air pollution. (See Table 12).

Projections and Recommendations

For each research question/health determinant, the research team conducted an assessment to result in predictions of potential health impacts resulting from increased use of the Greenway. The impact analysis is based in part on scientific or published evidence, and also on critical thinking and reasoned assessment based on experience and opinions of experts, interpretation of stakeholder concerns, and accepted principles of public health. The analysis includes consideration of any disproportionate impacts or inequities in the distribution of benefits and burdens among various population subgroups.

For each category of health impact, the connection of the health determinant to health outcomes is first discussed, based largely on literature. Then, a summary of what the research team gathered from community and stakeholder input is presented, followed by the impact projection. Finally, the related recommendations for maximizing the benefits and minimizing the negative aspects of the issue are presented and discussed.

Discussion of Assumptions, Data Gaps and Constraints

The literature cited includes only a subset of the literature available on each topic. The HIA Team selected references without bias toward positive or negative findings, though it is possible that sentinel studies are mistakenly absent due to time limitations. As mentioned above, the HIA Team collected some new non-random primary data, but relied also on secondary data, where available. The HIA Team did not have sufficient validated quantitative data to produce statistical models to predict specific numeric degrees of change (e.g. percent reductions in obesity), but did use some equations from published literature, together with locally gathered data, to extrapolate some specific quantitative predictions, with caveats and limitations transparent.

Also, it is important to note is that some of the health benefits and risks identified in this assessment may not materialize if the goals of the Plan are not realized – that is, if the Greenway is underutilized. Utilization may be influenced by: general awareness that the Greenway exists; ease of access; perceptions of safety (both crime and infrastructure conditions); connections/linkages to nearby trip generators, public transit and a larger trail/bikeway network; and presence of amenities and programming that encourages Greenway use. If resources are not harnessed to achieve increased use, obstacles emerge, or project strategies do not work, then the working assumption behind these predictions is no longer in effect.

PHYSICAL ACTIVITY

Connection to Health Outcomes

The health effects of physical activity have been studied extensively. Strong scientific evidence exists for the benefits of physical activity in reducing obesity and associated diseases (heart disease, stroke, diabetes, high blood pressure) and improved fitness. iv Moderate evidence exists for physical activity's role in lowering risk of hip fracture, increasing bone density and lowering risk of future disability in adults. For children and adolescents, physical activity is strongly connected to improved cardiovascular endurance, muscular fitness and more favorable body composition.

Access to public spaces for recreation is an important factor in the ability to exercise^{vi,viiviii} and this would be particularly important in densely populated neighborhoods with compact properties and little open space. One study found that thirty percent of people who are physically active exercise in public parks^{ix} and another found that people who live near trails are 50% more likely to meet physical activity guidelines.^x Individuals are more likely to utilize parks if they are close to where they live, are safe, and are regularly maintained.xi

Obesity continues to impose an economic burden on both public and private payers. Research shows that medical costs related to obesity account for almost 10% of annual medical costs, xii and could rise to 21% of health care spending by 2018 assuming current trendsxiii Recent studies calculated that use of greenway trails can provide per capita medical benefit of $564 and that medical spending for the obese was $1,429 higher than for someone of normal weight.xiv,xv

Vulnerable Populations

Although there is not a strong concentration of households in poverty in the immediate vicinity of the Greenway, for those who are of lower income, the presence of the trail helps to address common disparities in access to parks and trails for those in poor neighborhoods.xvi,xvii A study also showed that teens who live in poor or mostly minority neighborhoods are 50% less likely to have a recreational facility near home. xviii The nearby Greenway can help minority or poorer residents, who cannot afford paid membership at a health club, with the opportunity to meet daily recommended levels of physical activity and recreation.xix,xx, xxi Not surprisingly, our survey bears out that the presence of the Greenway makes more of a difference in increasing physical activity for people of lower incomes than those of higher income (See Table 13), and more for Hispanics and Asians than Whites (See Table 14). Further, those at most risk for obesity and related diseases include minority groups and low-income individuals. XXII,XXIII

Children are another subpopulation that can benefit disproportionately from easy access to a safe place to walk, run, and bike and there is moderate scientific evidence that physical activity is connected to reduced anxiety and depression in children. xxiv For senior citizens, there is a strong connection between increased levels of activity and improved cardiorespiratory and muscular fitness, prevention of falls, reduced depression, and better cognitive function. The minority groups surrounding the Greenway are predominantly Hispanic or Asian (26% of the over 80,000 population within one mile radius of the Greenway are Hispanic, 18.6% are Asian). A study of first, second and third generation Hispanic and Asian Americans found an increasing BMI associated with later generations.xxv Additionally, children of newly arrived immigrants are vulnerable to issues with obesity.xxvi These figures indicate a large potential for vulnerable subpopulations surrounding the Greenway.

Community and Stakeholder Input

Although survey data is not representative of the study area population, self-reported health of respondents was generally good, with 95% reporting personal health as "good" or better, and most reporting some regular exercise. However, more than four out of ten indicated that a physician had advised them to increase physical activity, and 10% reported suffering from obesity. The greenway can play a significant role in improving physical fitness for regular users. About two thirds of trail users surveyed reported that they use the trail most often for fitness.

Importantly, evidence from the survey and other stakeholder engagement suggests that the greenway is providing new physical fitness opportunities and increasing physical activity, not simply changing its location or venue. About two thirds of survey respondents reported that they are getting either a great deal (24% or somewhat (45%) more physical activity since the Greenway has been opened.

Impact Projection

The Greenway is the only linear path of its kind easily and freely accessible to the residents of the three towns. Because it can be safely used for exercise, it has the potential to make a significant positive impact on fitness of regular users. From our survey of over 560 people, mostly from the surrounding communities, 24% of Greenway users said that the Greenway has increased their level of physical activity "a great deal," and 45% said it increased it "somewhat." 57% of non-users said they would probably use the trail in the coming year, so if the same 24% of these might increase their physical activity a great deal, then we could extrapolate that about 14% (57% X 24%) of nearby residents (20,000 within .5 mile) that don't currently use the trail might gain significant health benefits. A rough estimate comes out to about 2,800 people who could gain health benefits from trail use.

In terms of medical costs, studies have estimated the medical cost savings of physical activity at anywhere from $615 to $823 per year. xxvii Even taking just the 90 people who reported in the survey that the Greenway has increased their level of activity "a great deal" and multiplying by the more conservative $615 yields a benefit of $55,350 per year in medical cost savings. Of survey respondents who have not yet used the Greenway, 77 (57%) said that they would "probably" or "definitely" use it in the next year. If the same 24% of these 77 new users increase their activity a great deal, another $47,355 in savings would be achieved, for a total of over $100,000 in medical cost savings just among known and predicted users from our sample. Although this is only a rough estimate and not a scientifically valid economic model, the potential exists for actual savings, including current and future users, to be many times this figure.

Related Recommendations

Enhance usability and expand physical fitness options.

To obtain maximum fitness and health benefits from the greenway, it should be designed and programmed to safely accommodate a full range of non-motorized use options. Stairs or at-grade entrances at access points currently allow non-disabled walkers, runners and joggers easy access, but all access points should also accommodate people with disabilities with ADA-accessible ramps. The presence of rental stations, even temporarily on weekend or heavy use days, would encourage those who don't own bikes or rollerblades to rent them for day use. Exercise benefits can also be enhanced by identifying and promoting activity loops that include but extend beyond the greenway, particularly for bicyclists who desire a longer ride. Well-signed and accessible connections between the greenway and other nearby local parks (like Dudash and Myrtle) and corridors (East Coat Greenway) will promote more possibilities for users to both lengthen and diversify their trips, and also to consider other outdoor activities like picnicking or playing sports. The three towns might consider installing exercise stations in close proximity to the trail and seeking local business sponsorship for the equipment. Edison Greenways and other local nonprofits can continue to encourage the formation of exercise groups and events to help to promote fitness and social interaction. Finally, use of the trail would be more conducive to varied uses with benches and picnic tables installed in strategic locations to allow a place to rest, or to put on roller blades, for example. Signs to indicate nearby restroom and refreshment locations may allow users to enjoy the trail for longer stretches of time, while supporting the local business district. While Middlesex County would need to oversee installation, the cost for benches, tables and signs could be underwritten by local sponsors. Results of public engagement supported the installation of benches and exercise stations, and more events as strategies for increasing use and benefits

Increase use and benefit by vulnerable subpopulations.

The greenway's health benefits should extend to users of all ages and abilities, including vulnerable and traditionally disadvantaged populations. Vulnerable populations include those with existing health conditions or disabilities, the young and the elderly, and others with more limited ability to access or use the greenway because of poverty, ethnic or linguistic isolation or other constraints. For those with diagnosed health conditions that would benefit from regular physical activity, local health providers could prescribe use of the greenway for weight reduction and overall health improvement. The use of physical activity prescriptions by physicians is an increasing practice to address inactivity and healthy behaviors. Assuring that all ramps are ADA-accessible will eliminate any barriers for use by those in wheelchairs or using other walking aids. For example, young adults from local colleges could provide companions for seniors who need extra physical help to access or use the greenway. Senior citizens in our survey and other stakeholder engagement suggest that adding benches and implementing chaperone programs would facilitate their use of the greenway. Benches would allow seniors and those with heart conditions to rest frequently.

Efforts should be made to assure that publicity about the trail is translated into Spanish, the largest local ethnic minority, so that those who are linguistically isolated in these communities are aware of its location and features. Also, there is a train station and over 45 NJ TRANSIT bus stops located within a block of the trail, many within walking distance of trail access points. Facilitating better access and awareness by bus and train riders of the trail, through signage or pamphlets, could lead to more transit riders adding a walk on the trail to their trips, or using the trail as a route to or from home. For youth populations in the area, nearby schools, particularly Herbert Hoover Middle School, could promote the greenway as both a safe route to school and also for fitness activities.

Enhance trail cleanliness and maintenance.

A trail that is clean, free of litter and well-maintained creates a healthy environment for residents seeking enjoyment and health benefits. If trash is strewn on or alongside the path, it can create odors or harbor insects or rodents that could aggravate users, in addition to being unsightly and thus discouraging use. There were no strong indications that garbage or lack of maintenance is a problem along this greenway, but members of the public suggested installation and regular emptying of additional trash and recycling cans, as well as dog refuse bags. More prominent "no littering" signs, with fees associated with non-compliance, are a low-cost way to minimize littering. Local groups could organize cleanup days, or a more formal "adopt-a-trail" cleanup program, to foster voluntary trash pickup. Working together with the County maintenance crew, these efforts should go a long way toward keeping the trail as trash-free as possible. Forms of vandalism including graffiti can also visually disrupt the trail experience and cause distress, as reported by some members of the public in the engagement process. Through signage or public announcements, the County and local police or health departments could facilitate easy ways to report signs of vandalism or graffiti to proper authorities so that they can remove it.

ENVIRONMENTAL EXPOSURES

Connection to Health Outcomes

Being on the Middlesex Greenway means being near to and surrounded by vegetation in the form of trees, some open fields with grasses, and some weeds alongside the trail. Vegetated paths that pass by backyards, parks and empty lots will expose users to potential hazards that can result in acute incidents (e.g. bites), diseases (Lyme diseases) or allergic reactions (e.g. poison ivy). People who already suffer from asthma or allergic reactions to pollens, trees and bushes, may suffer aggravated symptoms from these exposures. However, if asthma is well-managed, there is no associated between asthma symptoms and leisure-time physical activity in children. XXVIII It also means possible contact with plant or insect pests like poison ivy, ticks or mosquitoes. Bites or rashes can range from being nuisances to more serious conditions requiring hospitalization. Negative encounters with wildlife or stray pets that may live or wander near the trail can also be a concern to trail users. In this case, users risk encounters with an aggravated or rabid animal that could result in an acute incident. On the other hand, exposure to nature and open space has a positive effect on mood and improves symptoms of stress. There is a strong connection between exposure to the outdoors and improved mental health, particularly when it is shared as a social activity. The relative quiet and beauty of nature provides a refuge from everyday stressors, and social interaction combats loneliness.xxix Studies have shown decreased symptoms of depression and anxiety, and an overall improvement in well-being from physical activity and from access to green spaces.xxx,xxxi

Those who suffer allergies and asthma are more vulnerable to environmental exposures to pollen or pollution. Research has shown that children living in low-income families since birth have twice the rate of likelihood of developing asthma. XXXIII These populations could be advised to avoid greenway use and outdoor environments on days with high pollen or other trigger elements.

Exposure to greenspace has been shown specifically to assist the development of feelings of well-being in children, helping them to learn emotional and behavioral connections to nearby natural and social environments.xxxiii Exposure has also been shown to reduce symptoms of Attention Deficit Hyperactive Disorder in children. xxxiv

Community and Stakeholder Input

Survey results showed that close to one third of trail users are concerned about encounters with animals, whether wild or perhaps wandering pets. Public comments revealed concerns about mosquitoes, ticks and poison ivy, in particular. Although not a representative sample, 25% of those completing a survey reported suffering from allergies and 13% from asthma symptoms that could be aggravated by air pollution or allergens.

Impact Projection

Increased time outdoors will bring about more exposure to pollutants, pests and allergens, but there is no strong evidence from either literature or from local data collection that the increase in exposure would be significant or would outweigh the other stronger physical and mental health benefits. Little impact on rates of asthma or respiratory illness, poison ivy or animal and insect bites is expected from increased trail use.

Related Recommendation

Minimize exposure to animal and insect pests and noxious weeds.

County parks and public works personnel should make every effort to improve drainage to reduce standing water where mosquitoes can breed, and continue its mosquito control program, being sure to notify users when treatments occur. The County, along with local health departments, could also monitor for presence of poison ivy and other noxious weeds close to the trail, and add signage to educate users about mosquitoes, poison plants and ticks - how to identify them and guard against exposure. Continued periodic patrols for stray animals and quick response to reports of nuisance animals are also important strategies to prevent these negative impacts.

SECURITY

Studies have shown that concerns about lack of personal safety can prevent people from engaging in outdoor physical activity. xxxv A fear of crime is often more influenced by individual factors than social and physical factors, making it challenging for providers of an outdoor recreation amenity to combat. However, a study of crime perceptions along a linear park in Boston found that a narrower corridor with bordering houses and shops was more desirable than a wider, more open corridor. The more people walking on the trail also increased a sense of security. xxxvi

A well-used trail deters crime. The more people who use the Greenway for walking, bicycling, etc., the safer the Greenway will be. A study done by Rails to Trails investigated crime rates on 372 trails to find that only 3% of responding trails had experienced criminal incidents. xxvii Specifically, Charles R. Tennant, Chief of Police for Elizabeth Township in Buena Vista, PA notes:

"The trail has not caused any increase in the amount of crimes reported and the few reported incidents are minor in nature...We have found that the trail brings in so many people that it has actually led to a decrease in problems we formerly encountered such as underage drinking along the river banks. The increased presence of people on the trail has contributed to this problem being reduced"

Research has found that having good lighting and readable signs about crime prevention are effective tactics for reducing crime.xxxviii Also, natural surveillance is a way of keeping the environment well-maintained so that people can be easily be seen and there are few places for unwanted activities. xxxix These strategies would also reduce the perception of crime.

Vulnerable Populations

Fear, or lack of perceived safety, is associated with reduced levels of physical activity, especially in women over 65 years and non-white female population.xl Elderly and female populations are most vulnerable to crime and to fears of crime

Community and Stakeholder Input According to local officials and greenway advocates, there have not been any incidents of physical assault along the greenway since its opening.

Feedback from the outreach process suggests that even without a single reported physical assault or attack, many women and elderly people have personal safety concerns and are fearful that the relative isolation of the greenway makes them vulnerable to physical attack or mugging. Supporting the idea that women are more fearful of crime, our survey results showed that women were significantly less likely to feel safe from crime on the Greenway (53%) than men (83%) (see Table 16). Concerns about crime and security were the most frequently listed comments on the survey, among both users and non-users of the trail, and the highest number of suggestions for improvement had to do with issues of enhancing security.

Impact Projection

There is no support to project whether the actual number of crimes that occur on the trail might increase with more people on the trail or not. But strong evidence suggests that the more people that are using a walking trail, and the less isolated people feel, the more the feeling of isolation and the resultant fears of crime are reduced. If elements of the trail are designed for additional "eyes on the trail" through strategic vegetation maintenance and use of security cameras, crime can be deterred.

Related Recommendation

Despite a lack of reported crime, the fear of crime can deter some users from using the trail. Six out of ten survey respondents said they would use the trail more if they felt safer from crime. People also expressed concerns about being unable to quickly report their whereabouts for emergency response. If the Access Plan is successful in bringing more people to the Greenway, the feelings of isolation should decrease and with more "eyes" on the Greenway, any potential risk of criminal activity should also decrease.

Improve feeling of security for Greenway users.

Continued local police patrol and response networks should assure that every effort is being made to minimize or prevent any future incidents. Additional police patrol rounds timed to specific user activity periods (i.e., after school dismissal or during seniors group walks on the trail) may improve the safety perceptions of greenway users. Trail managers could consider additional locations for surveillance cameras and/or "mock" cameras that are marked by signs, and improved lighting at some darker locations (e.g. tunnels), or near more vulnerable populations like the senior centers or schools. In places with dense vegetation, pruning to create openings in the foliage may help reduce feelings of isolation. The exercise groups encouraged by local civic groups or employers to foster increased physical fitness also have the benefit of bringing safety in numbers. A "greenway watch" program, modeled after successful "neighborhood watch" programs, could also bring additional "eyes" on the trail. Finally, additional "where are you?" signs to indicate proximity to nearby intersections or landmarks would improve both the quality of response to any emergency calls, and trail users' knowledge of their location and feelings of being prepared.

SAFETY

On a trail, there are numerous ways that accidental injuries could occur. On the trail itself, people are moving in different ways and at different speeds, and some may be stopped. On a 10-ft. wide path, collisions between users could occur, causing falls, cuts, bruises, or broken bones. Bicycles could collide with walkers, or skateboarders could collide with people pushing strollers. An individual using the trail could also suffer an injury from a fall not caused by a collision. Some residents may live near the park, but busy roads or a lack of signs and signals could create physical access barriers to traveling to the Greenway. Providing a safe entrance to the park, ample signage and involving the community in park development are critical to its utilization. Decreasing the route distance to the park and creating safe bike paths and sidewalks increases access to parks. A welldesigned bike lane or bike path can be a safe place for people to cycle.xli An individual using the trail could also suffer an injury from a fall not caused by a collision. Collisions and resulting injuries are a potential of all travel, however there are ways to minimize potential for crashes through design and education. For example, in a study of 19 US cycling lanes, it was determined that the risk of bicycle-vehicle crashes is lower on separated lanes than published crashes rates on roadways. Additionally, where the greenway crosses two-lane or four-lane roads, collisions with motor vehicles could occur. Likewise, some residents may live near the Greenway, but busy roads or a lack of signs and signals could create physical access barriers to traveling safely to the Greenway. xlii

Though the risk of a collision can never be eliminated, literature likelihood shows that the that given person walking or bicycling will be struck by a motorist varies inversely with the amount of walking or bicycling normally present in the community. If the increased trail traffic is well-managed, and both trail users and drivers become accustomed to the volume and flow, evidence shows that the proportion of injuries and crashes can actually decrease with more usersxliii xliv Providing safe walking and biking routes to the Greenway is critical to increasing utilization.

Vulnerable Populations

Safety concerns are the most disproportionate for the elderly and disabled and for children. Senior pedestrians have slower walking speeds and increased reaction time. This coupled with increased frailty puts older adults at greater risk of pedestrian injury. xlv For children ages 5 to 9 years, recreational injuries are most likely to occur on the playground and while riding bicycles. Likewise, for older children, cycling injuries are among the most common. xlvi Programming and events that are specific to seniors like chaperoned walks, and those specific to children, like walk to school events, will help to address safety concerns of these groups.

Community and Stakeholder Input

About one in four trail users in our survey expressed concerns about collisions and crashes, both on the trail and accessing the trail from nearby locations. Feedback from public engagement revealed that some residents need to travel on dangerous routes to access the trail.

There has been a significant increase in public concern regarding pedestrian and bike safety issues in Metuchen in 2013-2014. In response, the Borough of Metuchen began a pilot program involving pedestrian safety flags at two intersections. In addition, a citizen advocacy group, Bike Walk Metuchen (part of NJ Bike & Walk Coalition), formed in 2012, provides a forum for borough residents and officials to consider ways to improve and promote biking and walking in the borough. With these concerns in mind, the Metuchen has adopted a Complete Streets policy that can support pedestrian and bike safety objectives.

Impact Projection

Improving the pedestrian and bicycle infrastructure at intersections and along road segments that lead to the trail will result in more people using the trail. Although there is not a justifiable way to put a number on it, it is highly likely that the rate of crashes and injuries will go down with increased trail use, particularly at intersections, as motor vehicle traffic becomes accustomed to pedestrian crossing patterns and crosswalks are improved. Collisions between users may increase slightly, but will be mitigated by better user education and trail use habits, so the effect is likely to be small

Related Recommendation

Minimize crashes and injuries along the Greenway.

Accidental incidents pose injury risks for greenway users. Either en route to the trail or at places where the trail intersects a roadway, street design and crosswalks should be as safe as possible. Along the trail itself, bicyclists, joggers, people pushing strollers and people in wheelchairs are moving at different speeds and at different levels of attention.

An assessment of the safety of road intersections would help to prioritize locations for crosswalk improvements. Crosswalk safety at intersections near trail access points and protected bicycle facilities should also be considered. Reducing potential collisions and injuries along the greenway path will require education and awareness of proper trail use (following the trail etiquette, staying to the right, yielding to pedestrians, etc.). For cyclists, defensive riding (giving the person warning you are passing, slowing speeds, obeying rules of the road, etc.) goes a long way toward making a trail ride a safe activity. Since the Greenway will attract inexperienced trail users of all ages, trail quidelines are especially important.

SOCIAL COHESION

Connection to Health Outcomes

When many members of a community are at the same place enjoying the same resource or activity, it can create a sense of social cohesion. xlvii More positive social interaction can create a healthier community and decrease feelings of loneliness and increase lifespan for individuals. xlviii A common green space can provide that desirable place to form strong social ties and interact with other residents.xlix Activities like walking for exercise with other people have been shown to reduce depression symptoms. In fact, research suggests that open spaces offer opportunities for peace, relaxation, and social activities that, for many, is the primary purpose for visiting, with physical activity as a secondary benefit.1i

Vulnerable Populations

Social connectivity may be most important for those who live alone and are more isolated from other community activities due to mobility, time or monetary constraints. These could include lower-income individuals and seniors or disabled living alone in apartments or homes. In addition, a person's income level greatly affects their available opportunities for physical activity, people with lower incomes have fewer opportunities ranging from access to walkable streets to proximity to schools, parks, and open space. lii

Community and Stakeholder Input

Almost one guarter of survey respondents indicated that they would use the Greenway more if there were more events (see Figure 9). Also, a majority of users reported using the Greenway with one to two other people. Clearly, gathering with others who are walking, jogging or biking along the Greenway is preferred by many users. Strong evidence from literature links increased social interaction with a reduction in loneliness and increase in community cohesion that leads to improved mental health.

Impact Projection

There is strong evidence that social events and activities that bring people together doing the same activities will build a more cohesive community, and that this feeling of community will improve both mental and physical health of individuals in the community. With increased use of the Greenway, social cohesion in the three towns and other nearby areas should improve.

Related Recommendation

Encourage local groups to use Greenway for events and exercise.

Social events help improve the Greenway in many ways. Group events help people who may not feel comfortable using the Greenway alone or may not know where to access the entry points gain a comfort level with using the facility. People are more likely to use the Greenway in the future if they know where and how to access the facility. Group events also create motivation and socialization. Both are proven strategies for sticking to fitness goals.

LOCAL ECONOMY

Connection to Health Outcomes

Use of the Middlesex Greenway can affect the local economy in several ways. When people leave their homes to access the Greenway for exercise, strolling, or to get somewhere, they may combine their visit to the Greenway with a purchase of food or drink from a local store as refreshment. Several studies have showed that increased foot-traffic from installation of bicycle and pedestrian friendly improvements have equated to increased business. III They may also purchase equipment related to their use of the Greenway that they would not have purchased without the opportunity to use it on the Greenway, such as bicycles, roller blades and accessories. In one study of a much longer trail (Virginia Creeper Trail) that draws users from outside the local region, it was estimated that each visitor to the trail spent between $23-$38 per trip. liv A non-random survey of 862 Delaware & Lehigh Trail users showed that an annual average of $425 per user was spent on hard goods such as bicycles and running gear. The same survey indicates that $33 in soft goods such as food or beverages was purchased per trail user.lv

Research has also shown that areas for recreation, such as trails, increase property values for the surrounding residential properties, and ultimately increase tax revenues for the municipalities. lvi The increased home prices have been documented in many studies in many parts of the country. |Viii, |Viii The downside of increasing land values is that if gentrification occurs, some lower income individuals and renters may face housing cost increases that drive them from the area.

Vulnerable Populations

If property values increase more around the Greenway than in the rest of the region, it is possible that higher income households will move into neighborhoods and lower-income families may not be able to higher taxes. Displacement can have a strong effect on health disparities, especially for the poor, women, children, the elderly, and racial minorities. lix However, new jobs created in the service sector (shops and restaurants) near the Greenway might disproportionately benefit lower-income individuals and youth.

Community and Stakeholder Input

Both downtown Metuchen and downtown Clara Barton section of Edison have improved their downtowns over the past decade or two with zoning changes, improvements in street-scaping and pedestrian safety measures and other grant-funded work. Businesses tend to be small, unique, and independent. In addition, the Tano Mall shopping center is directly adjacent to the Greenway.

Evidence from the survey suggests that about one third of trail users buy drinks in conjunction with trail use, and 80% of these purchases are from local stores. Further, trail users reported making 244 purchases of equipment, with about half of the purchases from local stores (see Figures 10 and 11 for details on community and stakeholder survey input).

Impact Projection

Some of the increased number of greenway users will purchase food or drink from local businesses as part of their trip and/or from the Greenway. Some may also purchase equipment (bicycle and related accessories, jogging shoes, etc.) from local businesses. A study calculated the economic value of an average trail user ranging $23-38 per visit.¹ Even if this value is high for a shorter and more localized trail like the Middlesex Greenway and we deflate this number to $5 per visit, on average, the impact to the local economy can be significant. Our survey respondents reported making an estimated 23,777 trips on the Greenway in a year, which could amount to a boost of $118,885 to local businesses. Assuming that our survey captured only a fraction of actual current users, and that the future will bring more users, the total annual economic value can reach easily into the millions.

Related Recommendation

Encourage increased purchases from and patronization of local businesses by Greenway users.

This study finds that increased use of the Greenway will lead to more people patronizing local businesses, helping to support and stimulate the local economy and leading to improved health outcomes. Trail promoters, local municipalities and local chambers of commerce can promote this connection by assuring that local hotels and conference centers, including the adjacent Courtyard Hotel and nearby Raritan Center, distribute information about the Greenway to guests and visitors. Likewise, the Greenway can be promoted through nearby shops and restaurants, who can hand out flyers about the Greenway, or participate in contests or incentives to encourage both Greenway use and business patronage. For instance, a local eatery could offer a free drink to someone who shows a picture of themselves on the Greenway. The creation of "loops," already mentioned as a recommendation to enhance physical fitness benefits, will also bring more Greenway users through parts of downtowns and directly past local businesses, increasing exposure and foot traffic. Finally, the broader and longer-term economic impacts of the Greenway on the local economy (jobs, income) and on real estate values, cannot be determined until several years after the Access Plan goes into effect. These are areas for monitoring and future analysis.

Table 17. HIA Analysis — Summary of Findings

Reporting

The success of the HIA will depend in part on communicating and disseminating the findings of the analysis and the ultimate recommendations. Toward this end, the research team prepared a set of nested reporting documents that includes this narrative final report with technical documentation; a set of briefing slides targeted for public presentation; and a highlevel executive summary designed in an infographics style.

As part of the reporting process, the research team disseminated a draft HIA report and offered decision-makers, stakeholders and the public a meaningful opportunity to critically review evidence, methods, findings, conclusions, and recommendations prior to finalizing the HIA report. The final HIA report, presentation slide deck and executive summary will be made publicly accessible.

The research team conducted both a process and impact evaluation. The process evaluation gauged the quality of the HIA process and technical analyses according to established practice standards, the original work plan for the HIA and the goals for the HIA identified during the screening and scoping phases. The impact evaluation assessed the HIA's impact on decision-making. In addition, the research team recommends a follow-up HIA monitoring plan to track decision outcomes and assess changes in health status and health determinants as decisions are implemented. The monitoring plan suggests goals for short- and long-term monitoring; recommended indicators that can be used to track progress; suggests which parties can/should be responsible for carrying out the monitoring plan; proposes a mechanism for reporting monitoring results to decision-makers, HIA stakeholders and the public (e.g., bi-annual health report); and identifies resources that may be available to carry out the monitoring plan.

Evaluation and Monitoring Plan

Process Evaluation

The process of conducting this HIA proceeded very smoothly. The team of two senior researchers (working at 25% effort over five months) and a graduate student (250 hours) worked closely with the Access Plan (LDP) project team, sharing ideas, data and resources where possible. The project steering committee provided a ready-made forum for stakeholder review of every step of the process. Planned HIA outputs were exceeded because of the extra resources available to the HIA team through this relationship.

Some members of vulnerable groups were integrated into the process, while others were not as accessible to the team. Input from school children was integrated through middle school students who attended project committee meetings. Senior citizens and some disabled people were represented by attendance at our Health/Safety roundtable and in the dedicated outreach to a senior living facility. The team was less able to reach members of ethnic communities, although the online survey was translated into Spanish. Only 7% of survey respondents were Hispanic, and 9% were Asian. Our assessment was not able to clearly identify differential distribution of impacts across every different population because of lack of any existing data or ability to collect new data, but recommendations do include some actions to address impacts on vulnerable populations.

Impact/Outcome Evaluation

Because of the unique relationship of this HIA project as an integrated part of the Greenway Access Plan, a good deal of the assessment and resulting recommendations are already built into the Plan presented to the County for adoption. Decision-makers at the County level will be selecting design and programming modifications incrementally through time, so the recommendations of the HIA will help to shape these decisions so that as more people use the Greenway, public health and safety are maximized. It is impossible to know which recommendations will be implemented, but putting forth possible funding sources and partners in our implementation strategy chart should help to promote and facilitate actions to be taken. The monitoring plan (below), if followed by the County and Edison Greenways, will then assess whether the anticipated positive effects on health, wellbeing and equity were enhanced and the negative effects minimized.

Monitoring Plan

The indicators shown in Table 1 identify appropriate health outcomes related to increased Greenway use. This table can be considered the basis for a monitoring plan to track changes in health outcomes over time. Official data sources could be scanned for changes in some of the indicators (disease, crime, social and behavioral indicators), while others such as use profiles and perceptions could be monitored through repeating a resident or Greenway user survey at periodic intervals. Local economy measures can tracked through a local business survey. This monitoring could be undertaken by the County and local health departments, Edison Greenways, or other local nonprofits.

It was beyond the scope of this HIA to examine all health aspects of increased use of the Greenway, or to go into great depth on the aspects selected to study. Additional study would help to broaden knowledge and provide more basis for understanding the full range of impacts. Some ideas for further study include:

- Study locations/types of pedestrian/bicyclist accidents
- Survey area residents on existing park use and demand for recreational resources
- Survey area residents on barriers to use of Greenway and potential amenities, conditions, and programs that would encourage use
- Study of use of Greenway for increased access to health food access (farmer's markets)
- Increased study of differential impacts to Hispanic population located primarily in neighborhood east of current trail.

What are the most common activities on the trail? Most common activity is walking, biking, dog walking.

Students said they walk. Families coming from the trail to the farmers market – they stop at the market, eat, and go back to the trail.

Participant said he wouldn't let his 14-year old daughter walk home alone, regardless of where, but feels comfortable if she is in a group.

Are motor vehicles allowed on the trail? ATVs, etc. are not allowed. Motorized wheelchairs are allowed, the trail is ADA compliant. This is an issue not only with the greenway but with all other trails.

As you walk through the trails you see beer cans and litter – evidence of kids coming out at night and drinking. Maybe this is not a problem, but there is a lot of litter. Litter and graffiti is mainly under the underpass of the turnpike where people congregate. DOT has a plan to prevent graffiti – possibly use a specific pattern or texture that does not allow paint to stick. There aren't picnic tables but there are pillars.

Is graffiti a teen issue? Graffiti is a problem from teens only, not homeless. A lot of the litter may be from construction. They are going to put cameras and lights under the walkway (under the lake Ave bridge). Edison was in discussion with the Turnpike Authority - they are going to put in chainlink fencing that will wrap around the fence that surrounds the turnpike. They want to clean up, paint and then fence. Edison township and police want to partner to get a vandal proof nighttime vision camera linked to Edison police. There is funding available and will happen eventually. Police caught graffiti artists, publicized them and they weren't even from the area. King George Post Road, Lake Ave and turnpike.

Have there been violent incidents on the trail? There was a burglary at 10am at a bank after opening while the security guards were making their pickup. The violators had a shootout right there in the bank; the man went to county avenue bridge. There have been 2 incidents of lewdness. Women together witnessed a man stepping out of the woods – sounds like the same description.

Is there a perception of isolation? If something is called in, the EMS may find it a little difficult to respond to the incident. The police may not know where the incident is and may not be able to respond to the incident. There are quarter mile markers but they are not frequent enough. People may need to just be aware of their location as it relates to the surrounding street network. You may be able to track via cell phone. There was an incident on the Henry Hudson trail. The cycling death was possibly due to the fact that the police couldn't find him.

Has the community culture changed since the trail opened?

We do have seniors take the walkway, it is very close to the Olsen towers. People don't feel safe there. Maybe install cameras – seniors don't have the muscle mass of youth. The seniors would feel safer in town because it isn't as secluded. They enjoy the walk.

Since the trail opened there has been a growing amount of concern over ped/bike issues. Metuchen has issues, being a donut hole town, causes traffic congestion as people pass through. Pedestrian flags, decoy peds, huge police signs to prevent cars from going through crosswalks. When manpower allows, a bike police are sent out on the walk at any time during the day, rush hour primarily. In the mornings, officers are tied up with school crossings. The Metuchen fire department has a small EMS ATV that can respond to crashes/issues on the trail.

Are employed in the area using it during lunch breaks? Heard that along May St in Edison there are med facilities and offices; the nurses are walking along the street rather than on the trail. Maybe they need to be informed of the trail whether by word of mouth, printing signs, etc.

Is there anything that may be added to the trail to increase physical activity? How many access points are ADA accessible? If you want to rollerblade, you need a place to sit. There are also ramps. Middlesex county parks and recreation site has a map of all of the access points, etc.

If there were benches, the seniors would sit and rest. Seniors could take longer walks if they had benches to rest on. Signage can be added about the native plants. There are Historical placards – 5 – the corridor was an industrial corridor through PA to NJ coal docks. Corridor is very historical. There is no other literature to discuss history – only placards.

What are your thoughts on how to get employers to encourage employees to use the trail?

Through wellness programs?

Pierson Ave – Board of Education and Tanno mall. Weight Watchers, Drs in the area can give prescription to walk the trail.

What are street crossing concerns?

There is always a concern that a car or truck will not stop. On Parsonage there are speed bumps - it would be nice to see that in other areas. On Liddle Ave, there is visibility concern. On Pierson, the bump was requested by the township, and then removed by the township. Liddle may have been a space issue; it seems too small, like an alley. Maybe put flashing lights or other traffic calming measures – or maybe a sign in the middle of the road.

Liddle ave - there is a business there and there are large trucks that go up and down the road. It is a private road, not town owned. 100 units of housing down the greenway – even though they were originally encouraged to use a different access road but they will use the shortest way possible.

The most common complaint from families is the safety in accessing the greenway – particularly on Pierson Ave. The issue is getting to and from the trail safely.

Middlesex County has jurisdiction on the 5 road intersection and there is a design plan to add a turning lane a little clearer for turning. There is a countdown light on the trail that lights up. There is also a median refuge. If everyone does what they are supposed to do at this intersection, nothing bad happens. Illegal u turns etc are safety concern. (Pedestrian bridge)

Are there any areas in particular that are issues for access? Pierson Avenue Trailhead by the hardware store is slated for commercial development and will turn into a nightmare. Amboy Avenue to Green Street can also be tricky.

People would walk or bike to the trail if only...

If we had bike rental at the trail.

If the Woodbridge section is improved – extend the trail to pocket park change of contour from the ramp to the sidewalks. Looking into a vacant lot across from the park to add parking.

In order to bike to the trail in Metuchen you have to bike down some heavily commercial avenues. Initially we will have to deal with people driving there, but once we get people using it we will have leverage for improved access. There are some limited parking areas – Town Hall, Dudash Park.

NJ transit bus route: can people take these buses or go by train to get to the trail? In some areas they promote connections to the trail from bus. Europeans visiting the area discovered the trail from Marriott.

What are other concerns?

Wildlife is a concern on the trail – because it produces ticks.

There have been rabies incidents in Metuchen. Board of Health inspector noticed a litter of stray cats. Another friend saw a cat or raccoon acting very strangely but Edison animal control wouldn't do anything unless it was more severe.

As for health and wellness benefits, hopefully this project will blossom into the population seeing the light. Rails to Trails website has a link about the health benefits of trails. When you have a multi-use trail, it benefits the communities.

Would it be helpful if EMS is alerted when seniors are walking the trail? Or notify the public? Yes. Police could also train volunteers and when an opportunity arises they send out the volunteer staff.

How is the trail maintained?

County staff from three different County parks maintain it. People call Edison Greenways to alert them to hazards and they contacts the Parks and Rec guy. An area to notify of issues with safety/litter is not highlighted on the website. Parks and Rec number is noted on entry posts.

Mosquitoes can be a problem. The greenway is a drainage basin for many towns, more stagnant water means more places for mosquitoes to breed. Since the trail has gone up, the County mosquito commission staff can go treat the stagnant water with more ease. Mosquito issue has been improved.

As for dumping in the area, before the greenway was put in there it was used for a lot of garbage dumping – TVs, mattress, sofa. Now it has gone down. People are taking more ownership because it is part of their community.

Turnpike Underpasses will get lighting to keep it visible as a deterrent to criminal activity.

Has there been a bump in house price? A couple of real estate advertisements mention the trail. Maybe the tax assessor is able to note an increase in property value? Is there an issue with people walking through the trail in their backyard? No.

ilt should be noted that the data for the mile radius figures were calculated differently from the half mile figures. The mile figures include total number of population lall census blocks or tracts that lie inside of the mile radius (even if a majority of the geographic unit is located outside the radius). The .5 mile intersect data takes the portion of the population as indicated by the area covered in the half mile boundaries

Carborundum was very active in the civic life of Keasbey. In 1996, the plant was acquired by Saint-Gobain Industrial Ceramics, who closed the factory in 1999. Legacy Trail	Lexington, KY	The Legacy Trail is a paved 12 mile walking and biking trail (8.5 miles off road) leading from the Issac Murphy Memorial Art Garden in the East End and other areas downtown, to the Kentucky Horse Park. The trail threads through a cross-section of Lexington - historic neighborhoods, suburban office parks, riparian areas, open spaces, and agricultural and equestrian lands.	to explore how the community's culture, history and environmental character could be incorporated into the Trail. Scott & Hella McVay Poetry Trail	Princeton, NJ	This is part of the D&R Greenway system. The Poetry Trail is a 1.5 mile network of paths that wind among the grassland of the 55-acre Greenway Meadows Park off Rosedale Road in Princeton. The Trail begins at an allée of century-old hybrid sycamore trees, moves up the hill past newly planted American chestnuts and loops down through a meadow.	Forty-eight poems feature the work of poets from fourteen countries and cultures. The common thread is the poet's close read of some aspect of the natural world. There is also a documentary, 'Transplanted Trees' which follows native American poet, storyteller, and author Joseph Bruchac as he leads a large group of Princeton area residents, poetry aficionados, and nature lovers along the trail, stopping at 23 of the 48 poetry markers.	http://www.drgreenway.org/walks.htm#PoetryTrail
Beluga Slough Trail	Homer, AK	Beluga Slough Trail is approximately .25 mile. The trail winds along the tidelands offering opportunities for wildlife viewing and connects to the Islands and Ocean Visitors Center.	This is more interesting in terms of process. The City issued an RFP for artists to submit concept proposals. A project site visit was held with interested artists. The budget for art is estimated to be between $2,500 and $3,500 per site (4 sites available). The proposals were evaluated by a review committee comprised of US Fish & Wildlife and Homer Public Works personnel. The city is going through a similar process to incorporate art into the 4 mile long Homer Spit trail.	http://www.cityofhomer-ak.gov/cityclerk/rfp-incorporating-art-beluga-slough-trail http://www.cityofhomer-ak.gov/cityclerk/incorporating-art-homer-spit-trail-phase-ii-project

Re: Economic and Real Estate Impacts of Greenways

To better understand the economic and real estate impacts of greenways, nine case examples were selected by referencing a Wikipedia listing of greenways and determining the availability of web-based information. They are the following: Brooklyn Waterfront Greenway (NY), Delaware Greenways, The Rose F. Kennedy Greenway (Boston, MA), Mountains to Sound Greenway (WA), Monadnock-Sunapee Greenway (NH), Midtown Greenway (Minneapolis, MN), East Coast Greenway (ME to FL), Cardinal Greenway (IN), and Capital Area Greenbelt (PA).

The greenways vary in size from 1.5 miles (The Rose F. Kennedy Greenway) to 3,000 miles (planned for East Coast Greenway). For the most part, the greenways were either located in or passed through an urban area. The larger greenways incorporated urban, suburban, and rural areas. Only two of the greenways researched did not pass through an urban area and, instead, connected with suburban towns (Monadnock-Sunapee Greenway and Cardinal Greenway).

All the greenways incorporated surrounding neighborhoods and the land uses. The greenways located solely in urban areas—Brooklyn Waterfront Greenway, The Rose F. Kennedy Greenway, and Midtown Greenway—highlighted natural features, such as parks and bodies of water, found within each city. The Brooklyn Waterfront Greenway and the Rose F. Kennedy Greenway also incorporated the commercial corridors of the city whereas the Midtown Greenway runs parallel. For those greenways that integrate cities into a larger greenway, not much detail is provided on what the course looks like in the urban area. The same is true for those that pass through suburban towns. The Mountains to Sound Greenway seems to incorporate the most undeveloped land.

Beneficial economic impacts result from either bringing businesses or points of interest to the greenway or highlighting existing assets. Examples of income-generating businesses added to a greenway include a food truck area in the Brooklyn Waterfront Greenway and a carousel, seasonal farmers markets, and pop-up stores in The Rose F. Kennedy Greenway. Non-income generating points of interest include a train depot placed on the National Registry of Historic sites along the Cardinal Greenway and the Five Senses garden in the Capital Area Greenbelt. Existing commercial attractions of note include working farms along the Mountains to Sound Greenway and a ski resort along the Monadnock-Sunapee Greenway. The Mountains to Sound Greenway Trust is the only organization that includes detailed information on its website about providing assistance to improve local communities. It is helping the Snoqualmie Valley face population growth, development pressures, high farm land prices, lack of infrastructure for recreation, and threatened wildlife populations.

Real estate impacts are largely not mentioned on the greenway organization websites; however, several groups note instances of encouraging greenway-friendly development. The Midtown Greenway Coalition opposes development that would negatively change the character of their greenway and the Capital Area Greenbelt Association successfully stopped construction of a McDonald's along their greenway. The Rose F. Kennedy Greenway Conservancy objectively comments on the construction of an apartment building near one of the parks in the greenway. Seeing as the East Coast Greenway connects locally owned greenways, the real estate impacts of this trail vary by municipality. No specific examples of initiatives undertaken by municipalities were listed on their website.

Based on the above information, the economic and real estate impacts of greenways seem to vary based on the greenway route, number of users, and activity level of the stewardship organization.

Re: Greenway Stewardship Organizations

Nine greenway stewardship organizations were researched with a focus on formation, structure, fundraising, and responsibilities. The organizations correspond to the greenways identified in the memo on economic and real estate impacts. They are the following: Brooklyn Greenway Initiative (NY), Delaware Greenways, The Rose F. Kennedy Greenway Conservancy (Boston, MA), Mountains to Sound Greenway Trust (WA), Monadnock-Sunapee Greenway Trail Club (NH), Midtown Greenway Coalition (Minneapolis, MN), East Coast Greenway Alliance (ME to FL), Cardinal Greenways (IN), and Capital Area Greenbelt Association (PA).

Most of the stewardship organizations were formed by a small group of residents concerned with preserving open space. Brooklyn Greenway Initiative, The Rose F. Kennedy Greenway Conservancy, and Midtown Greenway Coalition set out to guide the creation of a proposed or nascent trail system. Monadnock-Sunapee Greenway Trail Club and Capital Area Greenbelt Association sought to improve established greenways. Organizations that appear to have formed to construct a greenway include Delaware Greenways, Mountains to Sound Greenway Trust, and East Coast Greenway Alliance. There was no information on why Cardinal Greenways was formed.

The number of board members and employees for each organization varies with no discernible pattern. All of the organizations have an advisory board with most calling it a board of directors. These boards tend to provide technical assistance to the organizations. The number of members ranges from eight (Capital Area Greenbelt Association) to 54 (Mountains to Sound Greenway Trust). Logically, the largest greenway in terms of land mass has the highest number of board members. However, Capital Area Greenbelt Association represents the sixth largest greenway and, instead, the smallest greenway has a board of directors that is more than double in size (19). Surprisingly, the stewardship organizations for the shortest greenway (The Rose F. Kennedy Greenway) and the longest greenway (Mountains to Sound Greenway) have the same number of employees (22). The Rose F. Kennedy Greenway Conservancy may have many employees because it is located within a city, but the other similar greenways have a lot less (Brooklyn Greenway Initiative) or no (Midtown Greenway Coalition) staff. Most of the organizations have less than ten employees (Brooklyn Greenway Initiative, Delaware Greenways, East Coast Greenway Alliance, and Cardinal Greenways) with three organizations having none (Monadnock-Sunapee Greenway Trail Club, Midtown Greenway Coalition, and Capital Area Greenbelt Association).

The majority of fundraising efforts include soliciting donations from individuals and businesses and receiving government and/or foundation support. Donations above a certain amount are almost always branded as membership in or partnership with the organization. Most organizations have membership levels, but they are based solely on the amounts contributed. Only several organizations provide benefits for membership. Members of Midtown Greenway Coalition receive discounts at local businesses. Supporters of Cardinal Greenways can buy a brick along the trail. Monadnock-Sunapee Greenway Trail Club and East Coast Greenway Alliance have options to sponsor a portion of the trail. East Coast Greenway Alliance and Cardinal Greenways hold bike tours and races with entry fees for both members and non-members. Business sponsors provide financial support and/or in-kind donations. Their contributions are often listed on the stewardship organization's website. Three organizations note they are government supported. The Brooklyn Greenway Initiative receives capital and program funding, The Rose F. Kennedy Greenway Conservancy is 40% state financed, and 44% of Mountains to Sound Greenway Trust's total revenue is government grants and contracts. Cardinal Greenways explicitly states that they receive little government funding. Four organizations (Mountains to Sound Greenway Trust, Midtown Greenway Coalition, East Coast Greenway Alliance, and Capital Area Greenbelt Association) mention receiving foundation support.

The stewardship organizations researched have a range of responsibilities. The list includes: coordinating partners, fundraising, trail maintaining/wayfaring, ensuring continued stewardship, mobilizing volunteers, educating, promoting recreation, encouraging greenway-friendly development, buying and/or exchanging land, and assisting with community economic development. The organizations for the longer greenways (Delaware Greenways and Mountains to Sound Greenway Trust) look at the economic vitality of the communities located within the greenway. Organizations for the shorter greenways are mostly charged with coordination, fundraising, and maintenance.

As seen above, there was a great deal of variation among stewardship organizations in their formation, structure, fundraising, and responsibilities and there was little correlation between these factors and size of the greenways.

Re: Environmental Education Opportunities for Middlesex Greenway

To better understand how the Middlesex Greenway can be incorporated into school curriculums, the following areas were researched: 1) the process by which the adjacent school districts propose new curriculum, 2) past precedents adding outdoor resources into the classroom, and 3) potential partners in Middlesex County to develop the curriculum.

New curriculum must conform to state guidelines and be approved by local school district boards. The New Jersey Core Curriculum Content Standards provide a framework for teaching the following subjects: visual and performing arts, comprehensive health and physical education, science, social studies, world languages, technology, and 21st century life and careers. Math and language arts literacy are incorporated into the national Common Core State Standards Initiative. Changes necessary for conforming to these standards are undertaken by local school district boards. Schools seem to have committees based on subject area and propose recommendations for vote by the board. In my preliminary research, I only came across instances where proposed changes were made in relation to the above guidelines.

Unfortunately, there are not many examples of schools in New Jersey systematically incorporating outdoor resources into the classroom curriculum. The Township of Woodbridge was the most relevant example found. They received an EPA grant in 2011 to conduct field seminars for high school students on wetlands and brownfield sites (the Edison Wetlands Association provided supplemental sessions). However, only a select group of students participated in the program, it is unclear if it took place during school hours and for what period of time. The students taught their new skills to elementary school children, but this occurred during the evening. As another example, The Barack Obama Green Charter High School is focused on environmental sustainability; however, there is no information on their website about incorporating outdoor resources into their classrooms.

Organizations in the area provide environmental education opportunities and curriculum development support. The Edison Wetlands Association uses their Triple C Ranch as an outdoor education classroom by providing half hour to one and a half hour tours to schools, churches, adult education groups, scout troops, and more. The focus is mostly on the animal and plant life at the Ranch. The Greater Newark Conservancy offers programs at the Judith L. Shipley Urban Environmental Center or school classrooms that meet the state and national curriculum standards while using the environment as a means for multi-disciplinary learning. Programs include: creating a garden at the school, monthly day-long outreach lessons, and day-long themed programs. Teachers can take advantage of workshops and discovery boxes containing a month's worth of lessons and lesson materials. The New Jersey 4-H (a program of Rutgers Cooperative Extension) includes healthy living as one of its priority areas. They incorporate this goal into their monthly meetings and hold infrequent events. The Metropolitan YMCA of the Oranges offers in-school programs and teacher trainings focused on environmental studies. The NJ Sustainable Schools Consortium (a program of the Educational Information and Resource Center) informs educators and schools on best practices, technology, and curriculum to decrease costs, create healthy learning environments, and promote academic achievement. The Alliance for New Jersey Environmental Education advocates for environmental education opportunities for people of all ages.

MIDDLESEX GREENWAY ACCESS PLAN And Health Impact Assessment

APPENDIX E

VIDEO MATERIALS

A Local Demonstration Project

Green Access

Green Access is one of two promotional videos produced in conjunction with the Middlesex Greenway Access Plan project, a Together North Jersey Local Demonstration Project to improve access to the 3.5-mile rail-to-trail greenway, improve public health, promote economic development around the greenway and better promote the greenway.

Description: Green Access provides basic information about the greenway, including: its history and development, location, number and ADA accessibility of access points, proximity to community amenities, and online resources. Local stakeholders and greenway users describe what they like about the greenway.

Purpose: The purpose of Green Access is to get the word out about the greenway.

Targeted Audience: The targeted audience is the general public, and in particular, people who are unaware of or would like to learn more about the greenway and nearby amenities.

Distribution: Green Access should be distributed widely by all local demonstration project steering committee members, greenway partners, users, etc.

Online: The video is currently hosted on Vimeo. It is recommended that Middlesex County Parks and Recreation and Edison Greenways Group embed this video directly on their websites or provide a highly visible URL/hyperlink to the video on Vimeo. Municipal partners (Metuchen, Edison and Woodbridge) should also consider embedding the video on their parks and recreation webpages or providing highly visible URLs/hyperlinks. The county and Edison Greenways Group should also post the video on YouTube and promote it on social media outlets like Facebook and Twitter. Local businesses, health advocates, environmental groups, educators and other partners are also strongly encouraged to post the video or URL/hyperlink on their websites. When seeking to introduce or share basic information about the greenway, stakeholders and local partners can distribute the URL/hyperlink.

Public Access: If financially feasible, it is recommended that the video be hosted on public access television by the three municipalities.

Schools: It is recommended that the video be distributed electronically to nearby schools.

Senior Centers: It is recommended that the video be distributed electronically to nearby senior or assisted living centers.

A Local Demonstration Project

Use: Green Access can be utilized for a variety of purposes, but is perhaps most useful to provide an introduction to and basic information about the trail. The video can be used:

- At meetings or events about the greenway that are attended by new potential users or members of the general public. For example, the short clip could be played at a beginning of a meeting, or could run on a loop during an open house or community event.
- Strategically on social media. For example, greenway partners can re-post the video URL/hyperlink on social media pages of similar initiatives and partner groups such as the East Coast Greenway and the Edison Wetlands Association or post on event pages, such as for an upcoming farmers market or community festival.
- Via email. For example, e-newsletters can describe the greenway and include the URL/hyperlink.

A Local Demonstration Project

Green Future

Green Future is one of two promotional videos produced in conjunction with the Middlesex Greenway Access Plan project, a Together North Jersey Local Demonstration Project to improve access to the 3.5-mile rail-to-trail greenway, improve public health, promote economic development around the greenway and better promote the greenway.

Description: Green Future provides a brief introduction to the greenway as well as proposed initiatives to enhance the greenway. Local stakeholders and greenway users describe how they would like the greenway to be improved in the short and long term.

Purpose: The purpose of Green Future is to provide background to potential supporters, advocates and funders on ways to enhance the greenway.

Targeted Audience: The targeted audience includes potential supporters, advocates, sponsors and funders of the greenway, ranging from groups who can advocate for the greenway (such as non-profit organizations, educators, environmental groups, health representatives, transit providers, etc.) to groups that can sponsor or fund greenway improvements (such as grantmaking foundations, corporate sponsors, local businesses, etc.).

Distribution: Green Future should be distributed by partners who are charged with implementing improvements to the Middlesex Greenway (particularly capital improvements). This primarily includes, but is not limited to, Middlesex County Department of Parks of Recreation, Edison Greenways Group and the municipal partners (Metuchen, Edison and Woodbridge).

Online: The video is currently hosted on Vimeo. It is recommended that Middlesex County Parks and Recreation and Edison Greenways Group embed this video directly on their websites or provide a URL/hyperlink to Green Future on Vimeo, though should ensure that the video does not "compete" with Green Access. The county and Edison Greenways Group should consider including on their websites a short description of the local demonstration project and proposed greenway enhancements to provide greater context for the video. Other partners should similarly share this video in context of "what could be".

Use: Green Future is most useful in conveying how the greenway can be improved in the future. The video can be used:

- At meetings or events about the greenway that are attended by current greenway users or potential greenway supporters, advocates or funders who have some familiarity with the greenway. For example, the short clip could be played at the beginning of a meeting.

A Local Demonstration Project

- Via email. For example, when communicating with potential supporters, use this video to provide background on local aspirations for the greenway.
- To introduce the Middlesex Greenway Access Plan. The video provides a great segue to describe the in-depth recommendations that resulted from collaborative planning efforts conducted as part of the local demonstration project.

GREEN ACCESS

Welcome to the Middlesex greenway. This three and a half mile paved Rail Trail is ideal for walking biking or even jogging.

The Middlesex greenway connects the municipalities of Metuchen, Edison and Woodbridge along the old Lehigh Valley railroad corridor.

The Greenway is an amazing opportunity to improve community health and to connect the people of the community.

What I like about the Middlesex Greenway is just being out here and having it as a source to come walk, run, ride my bike, and come here with friends, with family.

It's connecting me to the community with other parents that are around my son's age. It's a nice way to exercise without all the cars passing by and having to worry about my son possibly running into the street.

The purpose a bike patrol is for the public to feel safe. They can come out here with their kids, ya know, enjoy the Greenway and what it's meant to be. We are getting out, being proactive, being out on the trail making sure the people are safe.

The Middlesex Greenway currently extends from Middlesex Avenue in the borough of Metuchen all the way down to just past Crows Mill Road in the Ford's section of Woodbridge Township. Plans are underway to further extend the Greenway all the way to East William Street Park in Woodbridge.

It's important to us that the Greenway be connected to shopping opportunities, the downtowns in the area, the transit, the train station, the bus stop. Its an easy way to get to downtown without going over major roadways and I know people have used the Greenway to stop at the farmers market and pick up some fresh vegetables.

Last week we walked over to Edison and went to their farmers market, today we're down here in Metuchen's farmers market. It's really, it's a nice community path that everyone uses. (it) gets me actually to South Amboy YMCA 'cause I cut through all the way. Sometimes we'll take our dogs there. Access is right down the road there. Access is on Main Street by where we live.

You can currently get on the Greenway at one at 12 different access points spread throughout the three municipalities with many of the access points being fully accessible.

It's been important to us that we have good accessibility as far as "ADA". As you can see here with the ramp, we go up and down this all the time.

We like that we can just go for a walk in the evening and so it's nice alone time.

I liked it so much the first time I came, I shared it with people even in my home country - Dominican Republic. I'm like "Look, look where I'm running."

I like the Greenway not only because it brings member to the community down to our businesses and establishments but also it's a great quality of life to get people off the road into a traffic-free setting and environment.

It's an asset. It's made living here more enjoyable and, you know, it has those recreational and health benefits that hopefully more and more people will take advantage of.

In August I'm going to be 88 and I come up and I walk up and down in here...So you have the whole spectrum is here, from children all the way up to senior citizens.

It's such an amazing part of the community... It's a great way to meet people, to exercise...

Well here it is. The Greenway is here enjoy it!

A GREEN FUTURE

Welcome to the Middlesex greenway. This three and a half mile paved rail trail is ideal for walking biking or even jogging.

The Middlesex greenway connects the municipalities of Metuchen, Edison and Woodbridge along the old Lehigh Valley Railroad corridor.

The Middlesex Greenway currently extends from Middlesex Avenue in the borough of Metuchen all the way down to just past Crows Mill Road in the Ford's section of Woodbridge Township. Plans are underway to further extend the Greenway all the way to East William Street Park in Woodbridge.

You can currently get on the Greenway at one of 12 different access points spread throughout the three municipalities with many of the access points being fully accessible.

The access ways are neat too. That was one of the surprises; all those wooden entryways that were kind of elaborate and steps over there on Main Street. It's a really nice feature.

Construction of the Greenway began in November of 2010 and the Greenway was dedicated in September 2012.

A coalition of community organizations, local officials and regional agencies worked together to build the Middlesex Greenway and continue to work together to make your Middlesex Greenway even better. We're being guided by a series of meetings, surveys and research that were conducted as a part of the Middlesex Greenway access plan.

We never thought of the Greenway as being finished. It's always a project that is continuing. One of the ways we are looking to improve the Greenway is by having wayfinding signs that better direct people to the Greenway from the surrounding neighborhoods.

Not just wayfinding, but you really build a system to better interconnect to the greenways.

A great improvement to the trail would be to add bike racks. I would like to be able to leave my bike, as I walk into the town for lunch or for dinner.

I like to run at night and that limits me from using the trail past six o'clock because there are no lights.

We're also looking for improvements of access points and parking for the trail.

The other thing is extending it. Getting, ahh, It's only three and a half miles long. We are looking to get the push into Perth Amboy and a push out into South Plainfield.

The purpose of bike patrol is for the public to feel safe. We are getting out, being proactive, being out on the trail making sure the people are safe.

We've done several graffiti clean-ups and litter cleanups along the Greenway. The Edison police department has spearheaded this effort and enlisting community support to assist us in walking the Greenway, picking up litter and covering over graffiti as well.

It's important to us that the Greenway be connected to shopping opportunities, the downtowns in the area, the transit, the, the train station, the bus stop.

Also by having it as like a transportation source to get to school, to go to town.

To maximize the Greenway in the communities and the areas around, we need to find a way to promote it, whether it be with signs, whether it be with community awareness projects, whether it just be to people in the town...but getting them to be aware of not only that the Greenway is there but also what's off the Greenway.

So if people knew that literally two or three blocks from here, there's a cafe or a restaurant or a drug store, or whatever, that's gonna increase their use and appreciation of the Greenway.

The Greenway is an amazing opportunity to improve community health and to connect the people of the community.

When you walk through here, if you can just sit on a bench...its the greatest aspirin you'll ever get.

We know a lot of people do not know about the Greenway in our communities. So we're developing websites, social media and other forms to connect the Greenway to the public.

There should be more people out here and I think it's because a lot of people don't realize how very nice it really is. Its, its just wonderful. It's an atmosphere where you can relax.

What would really help the Greenway is to be part of the regional trail network that would connect us with other communities in the area.

If you have a Greenway and you get people on and they get to go places, it'll be a great thing.

Thanks to community input, local groups and public officials now have a clear blueprint for preserving and maintaining and improving the Greenway into the future.

But you can walk, ride or bicycle the Greenway today.

A Local Demonstration Project

OPEN HOUSE SUMMARY OF FEEDBACK

March 18, 2014 5:00 - 7:30PM

Metuchen Senior Center 15 Center Street Metuchen, NJ

Participation

Sign-in sheets indicate that 48 attendees participated in the open house; however, this number understates actual participation. A number of steering committee members, young children, and a few other participants did not fill out the sign-in sheet, suggesting that upwards of 60 people attended the open house. Of those who signed in, 13 were from Edison, 26 from Metuchen, 3 from Woodbridge, and 6 from other locations.

Opportunities and Concerns Activity

Participants identified greenway-related opportunities and concerns on a map. The following are results from this activity.

Opportunities

- 1. Participants would like the greenway to be extended in both directions, and in particular, to Perth Amboy.
 - Extend the greenway both ways
 - New greenway in North Edison
 - Extend greenway to Dismal Swamp and have a park there with woods trails as a destination
 - Access to fishing on greenway, extension behind St. Joseph's
 - Keep it going to Perth Amboy
 - Extend greenway east to Perth Amboy waterfront (it is more passable but it's muddy and weedy)
 - Need more greenway to Perth Amboy
 - Extension along Raritan River
- 2. In addition to improved ADA accessibility, participants would like to see enhanced access or connections to the greenway at the following areas.
 - Develop corridor heading north of Metuchen Trailhead
 - Increase the length of the turn for coming 514 near diner
 - Build access to Myrtle and Charles Field
 - Available parking where you won't get towed

A Local Demonstration Project

- Make paved access path from Pierson Ave to Greenway
- Make a wide path from Greenway to Myrtle//Charles Field on other side of cemetery
- Pedestrian cycle ramp access near Woodbridge end of greenway
- Better access from Douglas/William Street in Fords
- Pedestrian access from Woodbridge side
- Make entries more ADA-friendly
- 3. There are opportunities to link the greenway with redevelopment in the study area in particular, Main Street and Pearl Street in Metuchen.
 - New redevelopment in Metuchen could place a restaurant or café facing the greenway
 - Awesome great artsy link, greenway to Pearl Street development and Main Street
 - Incorporate Greenway into redevelopment plans as NYC did with the High Line
 - Link to Pearl Street development and Main Street in a clear, fun way
- 4. Wayfinding to the greenway from nearby streets, retail districts, and points of interest should be improved. Similarly, there should be more signage along the greenway indicating the mileage as well as nearby streets, businesses and attractions.
 - Signs to Greenway from train station
 - Additional signs letting people know where they are on the greenway, foliage (?) signs where possible
 - Highlight connection to and from the YMCA or High Street
 - Signs noting stores/shops just off the trail
 - Put up more signs along streets showing direction to greenway
 - Signs on greenway telling users of local attractions and businesses
 - Signs on nearby streets with direction to greenway
 - Distance in minutes to Metuchen station from points on the trail
 - Show where parking is
 - Better signs and access to riverfront, park and roads
 - Friends of Greenway retail signposts at appropriate crossings
- 5. There should be greater general awareness of the greenway.
 - Increase awareness and advertise greenway
 - Greenway sign on bridge at Route 1
 - Outreach to community groups, senior centers, churches and synagogues, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts
 - Encourage people to work out and exercise on greenway; let the Y, (?) senior centers, etc. know
 - Need info access via lower power AM radio to inform users of events

A Local Demonstration Project

- 6. Greenway users could benefit from added seating, exercise and safety amenities.
 - Bridge over Middlesex Ave, safety and increase use
 - Benches for disabled or challenged walkers
 - Would like to see benches installed at intervals along the greenway
 - Would like to see some lights along the way for safety
 - Random patrolling for graffiti and troublemakers
 - Parcours stations (parkour?)
 - Exercise stations, gardens, flowers
- 7. There are opportunities to incorporate greater programming on the greenway, including links to arts, culture, exercise/recreation, and education.
 - Organized nature walks and runs
 - Place some old railroad stuff along greenway or in open spaces, old trail cars, or wheels, or signals, etc.
 - Art work (murals) on the back of buildings facing the greenway, also under the bridges
 - 5K run
 - Group rides for all ages on the greenway
 - Since the greenway has a unique ecosystem, maybe a local botanist could identify the plants with a summary of (?) and small markers could be placed along the side fun school trip
 - There are a variety of birds and butterflies, we could have a field trip photographing and identifying a nature trip. Maybe even some (?)/photos put up
 - Have Boy Scouts get merit badges by cleaning up greenway, landscaping or planting inexpensive sustainable greenery
 - Could the sports complex rent out equipment like bikes, roller blades to use on greenway, and rent kayaks to use in the Dismal Swamp
- 8. There are opportunities to leverage and improve bike and transit usage along the greenway.
 - We need a bike shop to rent and repair bikes for use on Greenway and everyday
 - Bicycle maintenance stations
 - Bike connections, protected bike lanes, cycle racks for access to transit and downtown
 - Bike safety week
 - Do a bike safety event
 - Easy bike link to local businesses in Metuchen
 - Need link to NJ Transit to list bus times via smart phones to GW users 810/813

A Local Demonstration Project

Concerns

- 1. General safety remains a concern among some greenway users.
 - Safety
 - Safety concerns light? Cameras? Call boxes?
 - Vandals under Turnpike bridge
 - Need lights along the way for safety
 - It's lonely
 - Some elderly folks have expressed concern about safety walking on the greenway; solution includes walking buddy system at high schools and senior centers
- 2. Prevalence of mosquitos is a concern.
 - Keep mosquito free
 - Might need mosquito control along trail in swampy sections in summer
 - Still water in the summer breeds mosquitos
- 3. There are drainage issues along the greenway.
 - The sewage drains next to the greenway in Metuchen;
 - Overpass next to Tano Mall ends in a big dip which collects lot of surplus water from the swap on the other side. Tough for people on foot
- 4. The greenway could be cleaner.
 - Improve the cleanliness of the trail especially in Edison/Fords (?)
 - Trash accumulation
- 5. And there are a number of remaining concerns, including lack of protected bike lanes, lack of access to the Rose Street entrance, risk of falling tree branches, and limited restroom availability for greenway users.
 - Bike concerns protected bike lanes, cycle racks for access to transit and downtown
 - Access to Rose Street entrance, when will it be open again?
 - Check trees for trimming and risk of falling
 - Bathroom availability?

Typical Trips Activity

Participants traced on a map their "typical trip" along the Middlesex Greenway, identifying where they start, where they access the greenway, where they take the greenway to, where they leave the greenway, where they go afterwards, and how the travel to/from the

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ROUND TABLE DISCUSSION

April 11, 2014 8:30 – 9:30am

Clara Barton First Aid Squad Meeting Room 1079 Amboy Avenue Edison, NJ

Participants

Joe Cascio, NJ Convention Center; Nicole Chinchar, Metuchen Area Chamber of Commerce; Rob DeFilippis, Runner's High on Main Street; Rob Freudenberg, Regional Plan Association; Audrey Hausser, Metuchen PT Council; Greg Ingrassia, Geico local agency; Allison Inserro, Metuchen Council; Megan Kelly, NJTPA; Rick Lear, Middlesex County Parks and Recreation; Jan Margolis, Applied Research Corp; Alan Miller, NJ OPA; Don Newman, NJ BAC; Sebastian Russo, Villa Borghese; Joann Sabatino-Falkenstein, Metuchen Development Commission; Janani Shankaran, Regional Plan Association; Kathaleen Shaw, Middlesex County Economic Development; Laurie Sobel, Middlesex County Planning; Bob Takash, Edison Greenways Group; Leigh Ann Von Hagen, Rutgers; Cyrenthia Ward, NJ Transit

Key Takeaways

The following takeaways are based on discussion and descriptive feedback from participants.

- 1) Wayfinding along the greenway needs to be improved. Increased signage along the greenway, indicating nearby streets, could help users better orient themselves.
- 2) Safe pedestrian access, including access at major intersections and roadways, needs to be improved. Greenway crossings at the Pierson Avenue and Woodbridge Avenue access points were identified as particularly dangerous.
- 3) A Middlesex Greenway phone app or website could be an efficient way to circulate information and encourage people to interact with the trail. As people increasingly use mobile devices and bring these devices on the greenway, there is an opportunity to create an application about the greenway, or enhance the greenway's web presence. A phone app could have interactive mapping and indicate places of interest nearby the trail.
- 4) There is an opportunity to link the greenway to events in the three communities. Events like June Bug in Metuchen, the Edison Fall Spectacular in Clara Barton, and

A Together North Jersey Local Demonstration Project

- seasonal farmers markets are great opportunities to link to the greenway. There should be an inventory or schedule of community events in the three municipalities.
- 5) Increased bike parking may be required in central business districts and at greenway access points. A bicyclist may be discouraged from visiting a central business district or traveling via bike because of a lack of bike racks. Casual observation and feedback suggests that there is very limited bike parking at trail access points and in central business districts; however, a more complete bike rack inventory will need to be completed. Business owners may be disinclined to have a bike rack in front of their store a shortage in bike parking could be resolved by piloting a car parking space, or placing bike racks in pocket parks.
- 6) Parking along the greenway is a challenge. There is interest in holding a greenway-focused event, such as a 5k. However, a lack of large designated parking areas near the greenway presents a challenge to hosting such an event. One option is to encourage people to park in a central location and use shuttles to travel between the parking location and the greenway.
- 7) Downtown signage or day-trip itineraries could be creative ways to promote the greenway and nearby businesses as a local destination.

 Local businesses or chambers could partner with Middlesex Greenway stakeholders to create a day-trip itinerary that highlights family-friendly activities. This itinerary could be circulated by store owners as well as advertised online.

What are the most common activities on the trail?

The most common activities are walking, biking, and dog walking. The students at the Steering Committee Meeting said that they walk I noticed this past season that there was a family coming from the trail to the farmers market – they stopped at the market, ate, and went back to the trail. He saw this several times – people using the trail to get to the farmers market

Daughter and group of students walk home from school (Herbert Hoover) together – ages 12 to 14. He wouldn't let his 14-year old daughter walk home alone, regardless of where, but he feels comfortable if she is in a group

People sometimes picnic at Pierson (just over Rt. 1)

Are motor vehicles allowed on the trail?

ATVs, etc. are not allowed. Motorized wheelchairs are allowed, the trail is ADA compliant. This is an issue not only with the greenway but with all other trails.

As you walk through the trails you see beer cans and litter — evidence of kids coming out at night and drinking. Maybe this is not a problem, but there is a lot of litter —, which can take away from the beauty of the trail. Litter and graffiti is mainly under the underpass of the turnpike where people congregate _____, and at Lake Ave. Bridge and Rt. 1 walkway overpass. The Department of Transportation has a plan to prevent graffiti – possibly use a specific pattern or texture that does not allow paint to stick. There aren't picnic tables but there are pillars _____.

Is graffiti a teen issue?

Have there been violent incidents on the trail?

There was a burglary at 10am at a bank after opening while the security guards were making their pickup. The violators had a shootout right there in the bank; the man went to the bridge over Route 1

There have been 2 incidents of lewdness. Women together witnessed a man stepping out of the woods – sounds like it was the same man in both cases.

Is there a perception of isolation?

If something is called in the response from the EMS may find it a little difficult to respond to the incident. The police may not know where the incident is and may not be able to respond to the incident. There are quarter mile markers but they are not frequent enough. People may need to just be aware of their location as it relates to the surrounding street network. You may be able to track via cell phone.

There was an incident on the Henry Hudson trail in which a biker ruptured his femoral artery. The death was possibly due to the fact that the police couldn't find him.

Do all 3 police departments consider it part of their turf to keep an eye on it? As a woman I wouldn't walk alone there because it is so isolated, but I think that is an individual decision. Perhaps a sign that says "for emergency call 911" even though that's a given

Has the community culture changed since the trail opened?

We do have seniors take the walkway, it is very close to the Olsen towers. Vicki doesn't feel safe there. Maybe install cameras – seniors don't have the muscle mass of youth. The seniors would feel safer in town because it isn't as secluded. They enjoy the walk seriors. Is the issue the safety from potential crime or safety from potential falls?

Since the trail opened there has been a growing amount of concern over pedestrian/bike issues. Metuchen has issues, being a donut hole town causes traffic congestion as people pass through.

Pedestrian flags, decoy pedestrians, huge police signs to prevent cars from going through crosswalks When manpower allows a bike police are sent out on the walk at any time during the day, rush hour primarily. In the mornings officers are tied up with school crossings.

The Metuchen fire department has a small EMS ATV that can respond to crashes/issues on the trail.

Are employed in the area using it during lunch breaks?

I heard that along May St in Edison there are med facilities and offices; the nurses are walking along the street rather than on the trail. Maybe they need to be informed of the trail whether by word of mouth, printing signs, etc.

Is there anything that may be added to the trail to increase physical activity – maybe exercise stations?

How many access points are ADA accessible ? If you want to rollerblade you need a place to sit. There are also ramps. Middlesex county parks and recreation site has a map of all of the access points, etc. If there were benches, the seniors would sit and rest Seniors could take longer walks if they had benches to rest on. Signage can be added about the native plants There are Historical placards – 5 – the corridor was an industrial corridor through PA to NJ coal docks. Corridor is very historical. There is no other literature to discuss history – only placards

Have we reached out to local and or statewide walking clubs (I used to belong to Rutgers) to kindle interest?

What are your thoughts on how to get employers to encourage employees to use the trail? Employers could assist with greenway awareness through wellness programs. Weight Watchers and doctors in the area can give prescription to walk the trail.

Do the businesses that surround the Greenway know it's there? Are they allowed to purchase / post any advertisement to help with upkeep costs? To get them more business? Are all 3 Chambers of Commerce involved?

What do people feel about the areas where the trail crosses the streets?

There is always a concern that a car or truck will not stop. On Parsonage there are speed bumps, it would be nice to see that in other areas. Liddle Ave there is visibility concern On Pierson the bump was requested by the township, and then they were removed by the township. Liddle may have been a space issue; it seems too small, like an alley. Is it a private road? Maybe put flashing lights or other traffic calming measures — or maybe a sign in the middle of the road.

There is a business around Liddle Avenue in Edison with large trucks that go up and down the road. It is a private road, not town owned so there is little we can do about this issue. 100 units of housing down the greenway – even though they were originally encouraged to use a different access road, they will use the shortest way possible The most common complaint from families is the safety in accessing the greenway – particularly on Pierson Ave. The issue is getting to and from the trail safely

Middlesex County has jurisdiction on the 5 road intersection and there is a design plan to add a turning lane a little clearer for turning. There is a countdown light on the trail that lights up. There is also a median refuge. If everyone does what they are supposed to do at this intersection nothing bad happens. Illegal 'U' turns and other car behaviors are of safety concern. (Pedestrian bridge)

Are there any areas in particular that are issues for access Pierson Avenue Trailhead by the hardware store is slated for commercial development and will turn into a nightmare. Amboy Avenue to Green Street can also be tricky.

People would walk or bike to the trail if only...

If we had bike rental at the trail. If the Woodbridge section is improved – extend the trail to pocket park change of contour from the ramp to the sidewalks Looking into a vacant lot across from the park to add parking.

In order to bike to the trail in Metuchen you have to bike down some heavily commercial avenues. In Middletown, the Henry Hudson Trail runs parallel to Route 36, and no one wants to cross Route 36 to get to Henry Hudson trail. Initially we will have to deal with people driving there, but once we get people using it we will have leverage for improved access. There are some parking areas – Town Hall, Dudash park

NJ transit bus route: can people take these buses or go by train to get to the trail?

In some areas they promote connections to the trail from bus. Europeans visiting the area 'discovered' the trail from Marriott. When I walked the trail there is an access point at Marriott Hotel are there pamphlets at hotels?).

Chronic disease coalition is regional and covers Middlesex and Union counties. They have a Facebook page.

Is wildlife a concern on the trail?

Alison remembers three rabies incidents in Metuchen. Board of Health inspector noticed a litter of stray cats. Another friend saw a cat or raccoon acting very strangely but Edison animal control wouldn't do anything unless it was more severe

Mosquitoes can be a problem. The greenway is a drainage basin for many towns, more stagnant water means more places for mosquitoes to breed. Since the trail has gone up, the County mosquito commission staff can go treat the stagnant water with more ease. Mosquito issue has been improved

Turnpike Underpasses will get lighting to keep it visible as a deterrent to criminal activity.

As for health and wellness benefits, hopefully this project will blossom into the population seeing the light – the Rails to Trails website has a link about the health benefits of trails. When you have a multiuse trail it benefits the communities.

If there are problems – animal issues, standing water or insect problems, trash – who should be contacted? Can this be posted along with "this is your greenway – keep it clean" etc.?

Is there anywhere we can find local community health data?

County Health Ranking. Health of Middlesex County 2020 initial data is available Eagleton also has data, but it covers New Brunswick more than the surrounding areas. JFK Hospital is producing Community Needs Assessments They may have previously done a Community Needs Assessments. Public Health Interns could run a survey. What about the County Office of Aging?

Is there a Recreation Director at Olsen center?

No but they do have chair exercise leaders. There has not been organized trail walks, but now there will be. this meeting encouraging. An idea to encourage more seniors using the trail is to have volunteers to escort them on the trail – "path to good health" program?

Would it be helpful if we alert EMS that seniors are walking the trail? Or notify the public?

Police could also train volunteers and when an opportunity arises they send out the volunteer staff.

How is the trail maintained?

County staff from 3 different County parks maintain it. People like to call all the contacts the Parks and Rec guy. An area to notify of issues with safety/litter is not highlighted on the website. Parks and Rec number is noted on entry posts.

As for dumping in the area, before the greenway was put in there it was used for a lot of garbage dumping – TVs, mattress, sofa. Now it has gone down. People are taking more ownership because it is part of their community.

Has there been a bump in house price?

A couple of real estate advertisements mention the trail Is there an issue with people walking through the trail in their backyard? No. Maybe the tax assessor is able to note an increase in property value?

Middlesex Greenway Access Plan

A Together North Jersey Local Demonstration Project

EDUCATION ROUND TABLE DISCUSSION

April 11, 2014 1:30 – 3:00pm

Clara Barton First Aid Squad Meeting Room 1079 Amboy Avenue Edison, NJ

Participants

Morteza Ansari, Keep Middlesex Moving; Mirah Becker, Middlesex County Planning; Rob Freudenberg, Regional Plan Association; Audrey Hausser, Metuchen PT Council; Eric Gehring, Middlesex County Parks and Recreation; Kathy Glutz, Edgar Middle School; Rohan Hublikar, Herbert Hoover MS; Bruce McCracken, Middlesex County Planning; Brian McGrath, Herbert Hoover MS; Alan Miller, NJ OPA; Joann Sabatino-Falkenstein, Metuchen Development Commission; Gerry Scharfenberger, NJ OPA; Simran Shamith, Herbert Hoover MS; Janani Shankaran, Regional Plan Association; Chris Smith, Herbert Hoover MS; Jerry Smith, Saint Joseph High School; Laurie Sobel, Middlesex County Planning; Bob Takash, Edison Greenways Group; Leigh Ann Von Hagen, Rutgers; Cyrenthia Ward, NJ Transit

Key Takeaways

The following takeaways are based on discussion and descriptive feedback from participants.

- 1) Schools must be cautious in promoting the greenway as a means of transportation to and from school. Schools can inform parents of all of the available transportation options from home to school, but cannot necessarily advocate for use of the greenway due to potential liability issues. Additionally, because students draw from a large geographic area, the greenway may not necessarily be the most convenient way to link origin and destination. Nevertheless, some Herbert Hoover students walk or bike the Middlesex Greenway to travel to and from school.
- 2) Most school classes and programs leverage the greenway for its environmental and fitness benefits; however, there is an opportunity to leverage the greenway for its historical connection. As a rails-to-trails project, the greenway was previously the Lehigh Valley rail line right-of-way. School classes and after-school programs could use the greenway as a case study of the Industrial Revolution.

Middlesex Greenway Access Plan

A Together North Jersey Local Demonstration Project

- 3) There is an opportunity to better integrate the Middlesex Greenway into curriculum. Given the potential for interactive education and hands-on experience, educators and students alike are interested in taking greater advantage of the greenway in school curriculum. Doing so would require writing a new curriculum at the district level; however, educators would prefer a curriculum that is packaged and readymade.
- 4) On the state level, educators would like to see greater links between educational classes and natural/outdoor resources, and use of these resources in teacher training. The Common Core should incorporate programs and curriculum that take greater advantage of outdoor spaces and natural resources. At the same time, these resources can be incorporated into professional development and teacher training. Examples include offering grants that support incorporating outdoor resources into curriculum, or implementing teacher training on ways to conduct educational classes in an outdoor setting.
- 5) There are opportunities to promote safer usage of the trail by children. Although there have been few incidents along the greenway, perception of safety will continue to influence whether parents allow their children to use the trail. The trail is viewed by some as a relatively unsupervised area with limited line of sight from nearby residential areas; however, greater use of the greenway could ensure greater safety along it. By encouraging students to walk in groups, increasing wayfinding signage along the greenway and promoting neighbor "safe havens" near the trail, parents may feel more comfortable allowing their children to use the greenway without adult supervision.
- 6) The greenway could be used for a fundraiser or school event. A philanthropic walk, for example, would be great to host along the greenway.
- 7) If schools are to use the Middlesex Greenway for in-school or after school programming, there should be increased coordination between the county and schools. Middlesex County Office of Parks and Recreation prefers that schools and students sign release forms for liability purposes. As a relatively narrow trail, the schools and county understand that the trail is not necessarily well-designed to conduct a class. However, increased coordination between the county and schools could ensure that there is maximized usage of the trail at both peak and off-peak hours.

In order to promote the greenway and local tourism, one of the strategies being considered is to create a series of bike and pedestrian-friendly activity loops that connect the greenway to nearby community places - such as schools, parks, downtown businesses, shopping centers, etc. - through wayfinding, signage, and a marketing campaign. On the map, please draw the activity loops you would like to see in the future.

A Local Demonstration Project

Topic: Health

- What We've Learned
 - The typical trail user, according to survey: uses trail 2-3 times a month to 2-3 times per week, uses trail for fitness or pleasure walking, walks or jogs, goes out with 1-2 other people, uses trail for half hour to an hour
 - Survey participants are likely to use trail within the coming year
 - Greenway has contributed to increased physical activity
- Vision
 - HEALTHY Greenway: The Middlesex Greenway improves physical fitness for all ages and abilities.
- Draft Strategies
 - Provide benches in strategic locations
 - o Consider ways to further enhance accessibility at popular access points
 - o Involve local health providers (e.g. Greenway Rx)
- Discussion
 - Realizing that the trail is narrow, benches could be placed at strategic locations
 - Benches could also be useful not only for elderly, but others with mobility issues
 - Need more trash receptacles

Topic: Safety

- What We've Learned
 - Survey respondents find the trail to be isolated and unsafe, despite the fact that very little crime is associated with the greenway
 - o Reduced crime, more entry points, more events would increase greenway use
 - Survey participants want to see a safer, expanded trail
- Vision
 - SAFE Greenway: The Middlesex Greenway provides a safe corridor that is free from crime and traffic dangers.
- Draft Strategies
 - Improve trail lighting in strategic locations
 - Add signage about location on trail within community

A Local Demonstration Project

OPEN HOUSE SUMMARY OF FEEDBACK

June 9, 2014 5:00 – 8:00PM

Herbert Hoover Middle School Library 174 Jackson Avenue Edison, NJ

Participation

Sign-in sheets reflect that 38 attendees participated in the open house; however, this number understates actual participation. A number of steering committee members and other participants did not fill out the sign-in sheet, suggesting that nearly 50 people attended the open house.

Station: Walking Tour

Due to rain and wet conditions along the Middlesex Greenway, walking tours were not conducted.

Station: Draft Recommendations

Participants prioritized objectives across the six vision topic areas: healthy greenway, safe greenway, accessible greenway, smart greenway, destination greenway, and future greenway. Green dots represented highest priorities and were weighted x3, yellow dots represented medium priorities and were weighted x2, and blue dots represented lower priorities, with no additional weighting. Using this formula, the chart on the following page contains the total points associated with each objective; comments follow.

Healthy Greenway

- Provide access for child/baby/dog/jogging strollers; would be same as wheelchair ramp
- Water fountains
- Stolen signs i.e. Spring Street protection
- Provide more flowing water on sides of trail to decrease stagnant pools that breed mosquitos

Safe Greenway

- I don't feel insecure. More users is good security
- Sufficient night lighting. More access points to feel safer and enter and exit easily
- Use Cert (?) and neighborhood watch to patrol during times of need
- Not too much security, not a prison yard
- Wireless webcams especially by Dudash Park and points east

A Local Demonstration Project

- Can security camera be tied to local police
- Cops on bikes- once in a while, we don't need a military presence
- Make it easier to cross Amboy Ave at Pierson

Accessible Greenway

- More signage for access points + more access points
- ADA/stroller accessibility at bridge
- Amboy access point bush whacking
- Add ramps for baby strollers to access
- Need more access points
- Improve access at Pierson at PSEG to east side of greenway
- Future greenway include a trolley, like San Fran cable car, also for handicap use
- Have designated parking at each parking point
- Use existing parking, make people walk
- Increase parking at Lake Ave access point
- Need better signage to know where when you get off greenway
- Girl Scouts idea is excellent. Do put signs about plans, trees, including origin
- Signs or maps on plant/animal identification could be Girl Scout project
- Signage of economic and environmental history of trail
- Signage about birds on trail
- Use tie-ins with stores to promote use
- Encourage sports stores to promote greenway
- Promote heavily via social media and wearables people as walking ads

Smart Greenway

Ask local garden clubs to beautify the entrances to greenway

Destination Greenway

- Have into kiosks by Woodbridge Ave and electronic sign there
- Post signs on trail indicating where to buy Gatorade for long distance runners
- Have art fence by school, hotels and restaurants; festival?
- Include more info about local points of interest and historic points
- Love the idea but vandalism would be a factor

Future Greenway

- Expand into Perth Amboy
- Extend greenway into Raritan Center and Perth Amboy
- Expand from South Plainfield to Perth Amboy waterfront with connections to other trails
- Extend to Perth Amboy Raritan Bay waterfront
- Mark paths and trails that are user created by schools and apartments

A Local Demonstration Project

Station: Illustrative Plan

Participants suggested the following to the draft illustrative plan with activity loops:

- Bike/ped improvements to Rose Street
- Connection to YMCA in Metuchen
- Connection to library in Clara Barton
- Connection to library in Metuchen
- Better entrance at Phoenix Avenue
- Connection to Clara Barton farmers market
- Better bike access east toward Carlton

Station: Video Recording

Participants offered their insights on why they love the greenway and how they use it.

MIDDLESEX GREENWAY ACCESS PLAN And Health Impact Assessment

APPENDIX M

SURVEY RESULTS

YOUR FEEDBACK NEEDED.

WE NEED YOUR INPUT - COMMUNITY SURVEY

Do you use the Middlesex Greenway? Have you heard of this 3.5-mile trail that runs through Metuchen, Edison and Woodbridge in Middlesex County? The Middlesex Greenway is a 3.5mile long rails-to-trails initiative that opened in 2012 to transform the old Lehigh Valley Railroad line into a paved recreational trail suitable for walking, bicycling and jogging. The trail is also part of the East Coast Greenway, which spans nearly 3,000 miles between Canada and Florida.

We encourage you to take our survey so we can understand the level of awareness, use and impact it has on the community. Survey results will be important to creating an access plan to enhance usage of the greenway. The survey takes less than ten minutes to complete and can be accessed here:

PSEG Joint Use Guidelines

- Right-of-way access roads and points of ingress and egress must be kept clear of obstructions so as to accommodate 80,000 pound vehicles, with a gross vehicle weight (GVW) requiring wide turning radii and the ability to set up stabilizers.
- Refueling activities are prohibited on the all rights-of-way.
- No attachments are permitted to any PSE&G facilities.
- In the event PSE&G explicitly approves cross fencing, it shall be non-conductive and have a minimum of sixteen (16) foot wide gate(s). If locks are to be used on gate(s), than they must be interlocked with a PSE&G lock and the name and contact information for the owner of the non-PSE&G lock must be engraved on the lock.
- No parking or other obstruction at any time shall be allowed within seventy five (75) foot radius of any Transmission Structure.
- All parking surfaces shall be paved to New Jersey Asphalt Pavement
 Association; Fourth Edition; Low Volume, Residential or Light Duty; Hot Mix

 Asphalt Pavement Design Guide, for poor subgrade conditions.
- Vehicles and equipment over twelve (12) feet in height, or those that can extend over twelve (12) feet in height (I.e. cranes, boom trucks, forklifts, etc.) are not permitted on nor allowed to work on or from the PSE&G rights-of-way.
- Lighting facilities and sign's design, layout and elevations shall be approved in advance by PSE&G.
- Runoff from parking lot drainage shall not be retained within PSE&G rights-of-way. Existing wetlands on PSE&G rights-of-way shall not be enlarged nor shall new wetlands be created by parking lot construction.
- Ingress and egress to, and access along, PSE&G rights-of-way shall not be impeded by parking lot construction or operation. An unobstructed travel way shall be maintained through, or shall bypass, parking areas for around-the-clock, all weather access to the parts of the rights-of-way. The traveled way shall accommodate turning radii of large vehicles.
- PSE&G must have unimpeded, round the clock, all weather access to all parts of the right-of-way.
- No dirt, spoils or debris shall be stored or deposited, even temporarily, on the right-of-way for any reason.
- One hundred and fifty (150) foot radius (up to the edge of the right-of-way) around the outside face of each transmission line supporting structure is to be maintained clear at all times to permit grounding and the set-up and operations of

- large vehicles and equipment necessary for construction, inspection, maintenance, and repair of structures.
- No structures, equipment or storage are permissible unless they are easily and immediately removable by the owner at the owner's expense.
- The encroachment facilities cannot be located under the or within twenty five (25) feet of being under the any power line conductor on the right-of-way and do not exceed eight (8) feet in height.

LOW VOLUME, RESIDENTIAL OR LIGHT DUTY STREETS, PARKING LOTS STORAGE AREAS

SUBGRADE

Subgrade soils must be evaluated to determine the loadsupporting characteristics. Refer to page 6.

The subgrade must be properly shaped to the desired section and elevation and shall be compacted. Refer to page 5.

DRAINAGE

Good subsurface and surface drainage is essential to quality hot mix asphalt pavements. Refer to page 5.

HOT MIX ASPHALT CONSTRUCTION

Hot mix asphalt shall be designed, mixed and constructed in accordance with New Jersey Department of Transportation Standard Specifications for Road and Bridge Construction, 2007 including revisions and additions.

The hot mix asphalt base may be placed in a single course. A total thickness of up to 4.5" of base mix may be placed in one lift. If several courses are desired or if job specifications require several courses, it is recommended that the first base course be 3" minimum depth.

An intermediate course of 9.5mm should be added to reduce permeability and increase durability during construction if the final surface is not scheduled until subdivision build out.

POROUS PAVEMENTS

To assist municipalities with the restrictive storm water regulations, the NJAPA recommends that a porous pavement be utilized as special designs will be necessary. The NJDOT's Modified Open Graded Friction Course (MOGFC) specification is a recommended guideline.
