JULIUS ROSENWALD FUND FELLOWS

1937 - 1941

On the following pages are given brief statements and summaries concerning the 232 Rosenwald Fellows appointed under the present fellowship program, 1937-41.

The Fund offers fellowships under two categories; (1) to Negroes from any part of the United States, and (2) to white Southerners who wish to work on some problem distinctive to the South and who expect to make their careers in the South.

Both types of fellowships are intended to provide opportunities for special experience or advanced study to individuals who have already given evidence of exceptional ability and who wish to prepare themselves further.

The fellowships are not restricted to any special subject or activity. They are open not only to scholars and scientists but to persons in the fine arts, creative writing or journalism, education, agriculture, business or public service.

The fellowships are open to men and women. It is expected that candidates will be not younger than 22 years nor older than 35 years, though the Committee considers exceptional cases on their merits. Candidates must have completed their general college course or their general professional course before making application, or give evidence of maturity and preparation which may be regarded as the equivalent of a general education of at least collegiate standard. Persons in law, medicine, or the ministry are considered only for advanced work beyond the initial professional degree.

The term of a fellowship is normally one year and renewals are considered in exceptional cases. While $1,500 is regarded as the standard fellowship, the amount of the award is determined in each case by the Committee on the basis of the expected expenses and other factors which enter into the given application, including the length of time proposed.

Fellows have ranged in age from 20 to 55: the average age has been 30. The average original award to Negro Fellows ^{has} ~~have~~ been $1,463.81, and to white Fellows, $1,579.64. The average sum received by Fellows, including renewals and extensions, has been $2,024.82 to Negroes and $1,792.27 to whites. Second awards have been made to 41 Negroes at an average of $1,503.66, and to 14 white Southerners at an average of $1,500. Third awards to ⁵/~~4~~ Negroes have averaged $1,137.50. No third awards have been made to white Southerners. In addition, small extensions to original grants have been made to 22 Negroes, averaging $392.77, and to 6 white Southerners, averaging $345.83.

The fellowship program has been under the direction of Raymond Paty, now president of Birmingham-Southern College; George Reynolds, now of the United States Surplus Commodities Corporation; and (at present) William C. Haygood. Members of the Committee on Fellowships are Henry Allen Moe, director of the fellowship program of the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation; Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University; Raymond Paty, president of Birmingham-Southern; Robert C. Weaver of the Office of Production Management; Will W. Alexander; and Edwin R. Embree.

As an experiment in 1941 the Committee made eleven junior awards to Negro college seniors. These awards are listed separately at the back of this volume.

The following pages give:

1. Summaries of facts about the Fellows.
2. Complete list of Fellows, 1937-1941, grouped under Negro and white and subdivided by the subjects of their study.
3. List of scholarship-aid grants to Negro college seniors.
4. Alphabetical index of all Fellows.

NEGRO FELLOWS, 1937 - 1941ANTHROPOLOGY

Allison Davis: for studies in anthropology, at the University of Chicago.

1939 - $2,400

1940 - 2,000

Born 1903, Washington, D. C. Williams College, A. B., 1924; Harvard University, M. A., 1925, 1931-32; University of London, School of Economics and the Biometrical Institute, 1932-33. Professor of anthropology and head of the Division of Social Studies, Dillard University.

Mr. Davis continues his exceptional work. He writes extensively for professional journals and is co-author of the following books: Children of Bondage, with John Dollard, American Council on Education, 1940; Deep South, with Burleigh and Mary Gardner, University of Chicago Press, 1941. Mr. Davis served as a member of the Department of Education of the University of Chicago during the summer of 1941, and in the autumn of 1941 he accepted a post with the Division on Child Development of the Commission on Teacher Education of the American Council on Education.

Received Ph.D. Univ. of Chicago, March 1942.

J. G. St. Clair Drake: for studies in social anthropology, at the University of Chicago.

Born 1916, Fort Worth, Texas. New York University, B. S., 1937; Mwalimu School of African Music and Art, New York, 1932-40. Columbia University, 1940-41.

Mr. Smythe was unable to obtain visas and passage in time to make the trip to Honduras before the rainy season. He therefore accepted a post for one semester of the 1941-42 academic year in the Department of Sociology at Atlanta University, with the understanding that he would begin his field work sometime in February of 1942.

1/18/42 Mr. Smythe proposes to leave for Honduras toward the end of January to conduct field investigations there until September of 1942. He will then return to the United States and go directly to Northwestern University to complete his study with Doctor Herskovits. The Fund supplemented the $400 balance holding for him by $100 in order to make possible some of his travel by air. (delayed)

Born 1895, Woodville, Mississippi. Wilberforce University, 1911-15, M. Mus., 1936. Oberlin Conservatory of Music. Private study with George Chadwick and Edgar Varese.

Mr. Still is one of the important composers in America today. Unfortunately his work, however valuable, is not of a sort to attract financial reward. In the absence in modern society of those personal patrons who in an earlier era supported such artists, it is necessary for such agencies as the Rosenwald and the Guggenheim foundations to recognize and help support such exceptional talent.

During his fellowships Mr. Still finished the following compositions:

"Miss Sally's Party"

"A Bayou Legend", an opera in three acts

"And They Lynched Him on a Tree", cantata for orchestra, contralto soloist, narrator and double chorus. This was performed at the Lewisohn Stadium in 1940 and 1941, in Washington, D. C., during 1940, and was recently published by J. Fischer and Bro.

"Seven Traceries", for piano solo. Published by J. Fischer and Bro. and played in concert by several pianists on their tours.

"Here's One", an arrangement of a spiritual, published by the John Church Company.

"Pages from Negro History", a short suite of three movements to be published for school orchestras by the Eastman School of Music.

Mr. Still revised the following earlier compositions during his fellowship tenure:

"Symphony in G Minor", "Kaintuck'", "Song of a City". The latter was originally the theme music for the New York World's Fair, and is now a symphonic poem.

He also did considerable work on a new composition, "Plain Chant for America". This will be played during the 1941-42 season by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra under Mr. John Barbirolli.

in London, summer and fall of 1938.

Mrs. Berry continues her teaching and voice study in Washington.

William Grant Still: for creative work in musical composition.

Born 1895, Woodville, Mississippi. Wittenberg University, 1911-15, M. Mus., 1938. Opera in Conservatory of Music. Private study with George Chadwick and Edgar Vaess.

Mr. Still is one of the important composers in America today. Unfortunately his work, however valuable, is not of a sort to attract financial reward. In the absence of modern society of those personal patrons who in an earlier era supported such artists, it is necessary for such agencies as the Rosenwald and the Guggenheim Foundations

NEGRO SCHOLARSHIP-AID GRANTS

The following group of 1941 college graduates represents an experiment in scholarship awards initiated this year. It has been felt by the Committee on Fellowships that many of the most promising Negro college graduates are, because of their very excellence, drawn immediately into teaching positions or jobs and thus prevented from continuing their academic careers. For this reason the following persons have been given assistance in their first year of graduate work in the hope that they will continue advanced study. Nine students received grants covering tuition and $250 toward living expenses; two received total cash grants of $400.
