Mr. Moe thinks project a bit wide for scientific exploration.

Johnson: What Maddox needs is a broadening of contact with other countries to break provincialism. He is going places in the Department of Agriculture.

Go to London, settle down at the London School of Economics and clean up a piece of work. He would get more out of the year than by just going for a while and making the grand tour. He can do all of the touring necessary during vacations. Should get his teeth into something. He can talk to Abram Harris and to Mordecai Ezekiel about this. Mr. Paty will talk with him about it.

Felix Morley, editor of the Washington Post, would also be good man to talk with.
