

JULIUS ROSENWALD FUND
4901 Ellis Avenue
Chicago

FELLOWSHIP AWARDS - 1938

To Negroes

FRED W. ALSUP, head of the Science Department, Morristown College, Morristown, Tennessee: zoological studies at the University of Pennsylvania.

FANNIN S. BELCHER, assistant professor of English and director of dramatics, West Virginia State College: studies in drama at Yale University.

ARNA BONTEMPS, writer, Chicago, Illinois: creative writing.

BRAILSFORD R. BRAZEAL, Dean of Men, Morehouse College, Atlanta: studies in economics at Columbia University.

HORACE CAYTON, Chicago, Illinois: continuation of studies in sociology and statistics at the University of Chicago. (Renewal).

SCHIEFFELIN CLAYTOR, Washington, D. C.: continuation of research in theoretical mathematics. (Renewal).

ANNE COOKE, director of dramatics, Spelman College, Atlanta: studies in the drama and related arts at the Yale School of Fine Arts.

JOHN A. DAVIS, assistant professor of political science, Lincoln University, Pennsylvania: a study of the Negro in politics in New York, at Columbia University.

WILLIAM H. DEAN, instructor in economics, Atlanta University: continuation at Harvard University of an analysis of the location of economic activities. (Renewal).

E. HORACE FITCHETT, dean of Claflin College, South Carolina: a study of the traditions of the free Negro in Charleston, South Carolina, at the University of Chicago.

JOHN H. FRANKLIN, instructor in history, Fisk University: a study of the free Negro in the ante bellum South, at Harvard University. (Renewal).

SHIRLEY GRAHAM, supervisor of the Negro Unit of the Chicago Federal Theatre: for studies in the theatre and music at the Yale School of Fine Arts.

VIOLA GOIN of New Haven, Connecticut: studies in bacteriology at the University of Michigan.

LEILA GREEN of Canton, Ohio: studies in organic chemistry at Radcliffe College.

DEWEY JONES of Chicago, Illinois: sociological studies in relation to the Hull House community, Chicago.

LEWIS W. JONES, research assistant in sociology at Fisk University: studies in sociology and anthropology at Columbia University.

MELVIN D. KENNEDY, teacher, Atlanta University Laboratory School: studies in the history of the French slavery question, 1800-1850; at the University of Chicago and in France.

CLINTON E. KNOX, instructor in history, Morgan College, Maryland: studies in French history at Harvard University and in France. (Renewal).

E. A. LANIER, assistant professor of English, Fisk University: studies in American literature at Harvard University.

JAMES R. LAWSON, St. Augustine's College, North Carolina: continuation of investigations in infra-red spectroscopy at the University of Michigan. (Renewal).

BIRTILL A. LLOYD, professor of physics, Philander Smith College, Arkansas: studies in physical chemistry at the University of Illinois.

JAMES LuVALLE, graduate assistant in chemistry, California Institute of Technology: studies in physical chemistry at California Institute of Technology.

BOOKER T. McGRAW, teacher of economics, Lincoln University, Missouri: continuation of studies in economics at Harvard University. (Renewal).

GUICHARD B. PARRIS of New York City: studies in French history and literature, specifically the life of Henri Baptiste Grégoire, at Columbia University and the Sorbonne.

REED E. PEGGRAM of Dorchester, Massachusetts: studies in comparative literature at Harvard University.

IRA DeA. REID, professor of sociology, Atlanta University: studies in race and population problems, at the London School of Economics.

RUTH M. SMITH of Washington, D. C.: studies in anatomy and endocrinology at Western Reserve University.

FRANK M. SNOWDEN, Jr., instructor in the classics, Spelman College, Atlanta: studies in the classical languages, literature and archaeology, at Harvard University.

HOWARD SWANSON, Cleveland, Ohio: studies and creative work in musical composition, in Paris.

JOSEPH T. TAYLOR, East St. Louis, Illinois: studies at the University of Illinois in the field of criminology.

MYRON B. TOWNS, professor of chemistry, North Carolina Agricultural and Technical College: studies in electrochemistry at the University of Michigan.

HARRY J. WALKER, instructor in sociology, Fisk University: continuation of studies in sociology at the University of Chicago. (Renewal).

CHARLES E. WEIR, assistant in chemistry at Howard University: research in nuclear chemistry and quantum mechanics at the California Institute of Technology. (Renewal).

STANTON L. WORMLEY, professor of German, Virginia State College: studies in comparative literature at Cornell University.

JULIUS ROSENWALD FUND
4901 Ellis Avenue
Chicago, Illinois

FELLOWSHIP AWARDS - 1938

To White Southerners

CHARLES R. ANDERSON, assistant professor of English, Duke University:
creative writing in the cultural history of the South.

JOHN D. BLACK, instructor in zoology, University of Arkansas: studies in zoology, specifically directed toward the conservation of southern fish.

INA C. BROWN of Gatesville, Texas: continuation of studies in social anthropology. (Renewal).

JOHN T. CALDWELL of Yazoo City, Mississippi: continuation of studies in public administration (especially in the field of taxation) at Princeton University. (Renewal).

LEWIS S. COPELAND of Houston, Texas: continuation of studies in sociology at Duke University. (Renewal).

HARRY W. CULBRETH of Dillwyn, Virginia: a study of the present methods of supplying life insurance and of the possibility of meeting the needs of low-income groups through cooperative insurance societies.

J. H. EASTERBY, professor of history, College of Charleston: studies in southern history at the University of Chicago.

PAUL B. FOREMAN, associate professor of sociology, University of Mississippi: a study of population trends in Mississippi, 1880-1930, at Vanderbilt University.

MITCHELL FRANKLIN, professor of law, Tulane University: a study of French influences in American jurisprudence with special reference to Louisiana.

RUFUS C. HARRIS, President of Tulane University: studies of university developments in Europe.

THOMAS A. HART, assistant professor of biology, West Georgia College: studies in science with special emphasis on the teaching of biology in normal schools and teachers colleges.

GEORGE D. HUMPHREY, President, Mississippi State College; a study of regional culture in Mississippi.

MORTON B. KING, Shelbyville, Tennessee: field studies in rural sociology in a Tennessee county, under the auspices of the University of Wisconsin.

FRED B. KNIFFEN, associate professor of cultural geography, Louisiana State University: studies in the cultural geography of southern regions.

LEROY E. LOEMKER, professor of philosophy, Emory University, Georgia: research and creative writing in philosophy.

CHASE C. MOONEY, Nashville, Tennessee: a study of agriculture in Tennessee involving a comparison and contrast of slavery and tenancy, under the auspices of Vanderbilt University.

DORIS M. PORTER, associate state director, Farm Security Administration, Jackson, Mississippi: a study of the methods of rehabilitating stranded farm populations in America and Europe.

CHARLES E. SHANNON, Montgomery, Alabama: creative work in the painting of southern types.

- - - - -

Awards are made once a year by a committee consisting of Dr. Will Alexander, Director of the Farm Security Administration, Dr. Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University, Mr. Henry Allen Moe, Secretary of the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation, Mr. Edwin R. Embree, President of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, and Mr. Raymond R. Paty, Director for Fellowships of the Fund.

