Dear Mr. Reynolds:

The next time you get within hailing distance of Cambridge, Massachusetts, I wish you would talk to Dr. Howard Mumford Jones whose office is in the Widener Library. Dr. Jones is a Professor of English at Harvard, in charge of the work in American Civilization. He has taught at Texas and at North Carolina and he knows the South. He is a very able, widely-ranging judge of men and projects, a square shooter and a good guy. I want you to tell him about the Rosenwald Fellowships for white southerners. He may have some candidates for you at the pre-doctoral level.

Meanwhile, will you please send Dr. Jones a list of the Fellowships granted last year?

Sincerely yours,

Henry Allen Moe
