Dear Doctor Bousfield:

Some week or two ago I wrote Dr. Dowling, in accordance to his request, about Dr. Jerome Peterson, now a student at the Harvard School of Public Health. I think he sent you a copy of my letter.

I understand that someone else is being selected for the position in question, but I wish to suggest that you keep Dr. Peterson in mind, if any other opportunity for him presents itself. I am writing you this letter on my own initiative, because I think the public health field among negroes needs men who have had training like Dr. Peterson's and who are as intelligent as he is.

Sincerely yours,

Edward G. Huber
