Economics

Found interesting chap, interested in Negro + labor.

I don't see what T. V. Smith would give him except an even more flowery style than he now has.

Jess Carr (a fully paid friend of human nature) is decidedly non committed

Field: Race Relations

Plan of Work An inquiry into the racial factor in industrial relations and policies in the shipbuilding industry in the states of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, and North Carolina during the period 1940-1945. An analysis and review of the respective roles of trade unions, management, the several Federal Agencies, and local and national minority group organizations with reference to the training, employment, compensation and upgrading of Negro men and women in the shipbuilding industry. A comparative evaluation of prior policies and a measurement of changes in such policies during the indicated period.

Requests grant for one year beginning June 1946. Will not return to present position. Seeks an opening as a consultant on race relations within industry or as a researcher in that field.
