Directories Help Students Find Work

Whether you're looking for an internship position to enhance your education and experience or a summer job to increase your bank account, help is now here in the form of two new directories—1981 Internships and 1981 Summer Employment Directory of the U.S. (Writer's Digest Books). Each of these books lists thousands of job opportunities for students and gives complete information on how to get those jobs.

1981 Internships lists more than 15,000 short-term positions which enable students to get on-the-job experience—a valuable addition to any resume—while trying out a career on a temporary basis. These internship positions are located throughout the United States and cover a wide range of careers, including those in business and industry, communications, the arts, government, law, political organizations, social service groups, museums, libraries, and more.

Each listing in 1981 Internships is up-to-date and packed with information that will help in the selection of the right internship, including: duties of the position; training offered; qualifications; availability of college an internship position, including tips on choosing the internship best suited to your needs and on applying for and interviewing for a position, plus advice from employers and those who have recently held internship positions.

1981 Summer Employment Directory lists more than 50,000 summer jobs, including such fascinating opportunities as teaching French to children on a private island, working as a research assistant for the United States government, and herding cattle on a ranch in Wyoming. There are also thousands of openings listed at camps, resorts, restaurants, parks, summer theaters, commercial attractions, and businesses. Whether you choose to work close to home or far away, you'll find all the information you need to make sure it's the job for you, including a description of the work, the number of jobs available, working conditions, hours, salary, contact name and address, and the duration of the job. There's also a "fringe benefits" section which lists any "hidden assets" of the job—everything from travel allowances to home-cooked meals. If college credit is available for a job, you'll find that information, too. In addition to the listings there are helpful articles on applying for a job (with sample cover letters and resumes), tips from employers, and information regarding working for the government.

No matter what you're looking for—income, travel, a unique experience, or valuable training and a head start up the career ladder—these books have something for everyone.

Both of the directories are available at your college book store, or send $7.95 for 1981 Internships, $6.95 for 1981 Summer Employment Directory plus $1.25 postage and handling, to: Writer's Digest Books, 9933 Alliance Road, Cincinnati, Ohio, 45242.

Boston Summer Project Teaches Students Solar Construction

If you are looking for a summer experience that is really different, the Homebuilding Resource Center of Cambridge, Mass. may have the answer. It offers the opportunity for students to participate in the building of a house this summer.

Those enrolled in this program will find themselves building foundations, raising walls and cutting rafters. Students from all over the country will spend three intensive weeks together in seminars and small work groups building a passive solar house from scratch in a suburban Boston location.

Guided by experienced teachers and builders, the rigorous program is only for students willing to dedicate themselves for three weeks to learning the essential skills of homebuilding and design.

According to Program Director Herb Ziegler, "The skills are not that difficult to learn and . . . it's an incredibly satisfying experience." Ziegler, a Harvard grad turned carpenter and builder, believes that having an exciting, physical, intellectual and spiritual experience is ". . . practically unavoidable."

Each of the five three-week sessions is limited to 30 students. Prior building experience is not required.

On The Program

Mr Ford K Brown long ago taught that while everyone remembers Lord Acton's first law ("Power tends to corrupt, absolute power corrupts absolutely.") very few remember the second, which I recalled him saying to be "once you find the truth, seek the countervailing truth." While struggling for either side recently I looked high and low for that exact statement and instead found aphorisms making more sense than most of the purported wisdom of the last few centuries:

JOHN E. E. DALBERY-ACTON

1834-1902

Lord Acton had this to say:

I shall never again enjoy the opportunity of speaking my thoughts to such an audience as this, and on so privileged an occasion a lecturer may well be tempted to bethink himself whether he knows of any neglected truth, any cardinal proposition, that might serve as his selected epigraph, as a last signal, perhaps even as a target. I am not thinking of those shining precepts which are the registered property of every school; that is to say—Learn as much by writing as by reading; be not content with the best book; seek sidelights from the others; have no favorites; keep men and things apart; guard against the prestige of great names; see that your judgments are your own, and do not shrink from disagreement; no trusting without testing; be more severe to ideas than to actions; do not overlook the strength of the bad cause or the weakness of the good; never be surprised by the crumbling of an idol or the disclosure of a skeleton; judge talent at its best and character at its worst; suspect power more than vice. and study problems in preference to periods; for instance: the derivation of Luther, the scientific influence of Bacon, the predecessors of Adam Smith, the mediaeval masters of Rousseau, the consistency of Burke, the identity of the first Whig. Most of this, I suppose, is undisputed, and calls for no enlargement. But the weight of opinion is against me when I exhort you never to debase the moral currency or to lower the standard of rectitude, but to try others by the final maxim that governs your own lives, and to suffer no man and no cause to escape the undying penalty which history has the power to inflict on wrong. The plea in extenuation of guilt and mitigation of punishment is perpetual. At every step we are met by arguments which go to excuse, to palliate, to confound right and wrong, and reduce the just man to the level of the reprobate. The men who plot to baffle and resist us are, first of all, those who made history what it has become. They set up the principle that only a foolish Conservative judges the present time with ideas of the Past; that only a foolish Liberal judges the Past with ideas of the Present.

"The world exhibits the hand of Providence ...not be being good, but by becoming better, not by its perfection but by its improvement."

This is why Albert Schweitzer said:

"In my judgment of the situation in which mankind finds itself at present, I am pessimistic. I cannot make myself believe that the situation is not as bad as it seems to be: I am inwardly conscious that we are on the road which, if we continue to tread it, will bring us into the 'Middle Ages' of a new kind . . . And yet I am optimistic . . . If men can be found who revolt against the spirit of thoughtlessness, and who are strong enough to let the ideals of ethical progress radiate from them as a force, there will start an activity of the spirit which will be great enough to rouse a new mental and spiritual disposition in mankind . . . To everyone, in whatever state of life he finds himself, the ethics of reverence for life do this. They force him without cessation to be concerned with all the other human destinies which are going through their life-course around him, and to give himself, as man, to the man who needs a fellow man. They will not allow the scholar to live only for his learning even if his learning makes him very useful, nor the artist only for his art, even if by means of it he gives something to many. They do not allow the busy man to think that with his professional activities he has fulfilled every demand upon him. They demand from all that they devote a portion of this life to their fellows."

And Mahatma Gandhi:

Love is the strongest force the world possesses and yet it is the humblest imaginable.<sup>39</sup>

. . . Who has not seen strong-bodied bullies surrendering helplessly to their mothers? Love conquers the brute in the son. . . .

[We] think it impossible to evoke the hidden powers of the soul. Well, I am engaged in trying to show, if I have any of these powers, that I am as frail a mortal as any of us and I never had anything extraordinary about me nor have any now. I claim to be a simple individual liable to err like any other fellow mortal. I own, however, that I have humility enough in me to confess my errors and to retrace my steps. I own that I have an immovable faith in God and His goodness and unconsumable passion for truth and love. But is that not what every person has latent in him? If we are to make progress, we must not repeat history but make new history. . . . If we may make new discoveries and inventions in the phenomenal world, must we declare our bankruptcy in the spiritual domain? Is it impossible to multiply the exceptions so as to make them the rule? Must man always be brute first and man after, if at all? <sup>40</sup>

So what is it that these great men have in common with the great teachers we have known here like Mr Klein, Mr Brown, Mr Rausch and company: not simply mind but spirit. And this can be said in praise of them all:

I THINK CONTINUALLY OF THOSE WHO WERE TRULY GREAT

I think continually of those who were truly great
 Who, from the womb, remembered the soul's history
 Through corridors of light where the hours are suns, Endless and singing. Whose lovely ambition
 Was that their lips, still touched with fire,
 Should tell of the spirit clothed from head to foot in song.
 And who hoarded from the spring branches
 The desires falling across their bodies like blossoms.

What is precious is never to forget
 The delight of the blood drawn from ageless springs
 Breaking through rocks in worlds before our earth;
 Never to deny its pleasure in the simple morning light,
 Nor its grave evening demand for love;
 Never to allow gradually the traffic to smother
 With noise and fog the flowering of the spirit.

Near the snow, near the sun, in the highest fields
 See how these names are feted by the waving grass,
 And by the streamers of white cloud,

And whispers of wind in the listening sky;
 The names of those who in their lives fought for life,
 Who wore at their hearts the fire's center.
 Born of the sun they traveled a short while towards the sun,
 And left the vivid air signed with their honour.

P.S. Do you want to grow? Plant some roots.
 Learn to care for the earth. Become a builder not a destroyer, a producer as well as a consumer, a giver more than just a taker, to care more than to mainly use.

BELL TEMPORARILY FREEZES FEDERAL STUDENT AID APPLICATIONS

by Helen Cordes

WASHINGTON, DC (CPS)--In an attempt to make families contribute more to their offsprings' college education, the Reagan administration has imposed an unprecedented temporary freeze on processing federal financial aid applications.

Last week Secretary of Education Terrel Bell announced the government wanted to change certain eligibility requirements for Pell Grants (formerly BEOG), and would not process any more applications for the grants until Congress voted on the change in requirements.

Congress has until April 28 to react to the proposed rules changes, though Rep. Peter Peyser (D-NY) of the House Postsecondary Education Subcommittee hopes to debate the proposals sooner than that to minimize the freeze's impact.

If the requirements are changed as Bell requested, "maybe 100,000 students" would be knocked out of the Pell Grant program, estimates Skee Smith of the U.S. Department of Education's Student Special Services office.

In the meantime, the freeze effectively stops the awarding of all federal financial aid for the moment because Pell Grants are used to determine students' eligibility for other forms of financial aid, says Dallas Martin of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators.

Martic calls the freeze a "travesty. They are going through a process both questionable and illegal."

The freeze is "a new procedure," concedes a House education committee staffer. "Normally when final regulations are printed (as Pell Grant regulations were printed in January), they are not withdrawn for reconsideration."

"I am sure (the freeze) will be an inconvenience for many financial aid officers," Smith stated.

The House of Representatives is expected to conduct hearings into the legality of the administration's maneuver.

The administration's aim is to change the way families figure their eligibility for Pell Grants, and to make families contribute more toward their kids' education.

A DECEMBER, 1977 STUDY BY THE COLLEGE ENTRANCE EXAMINATION BOARD FOUND THAT THE WEALTHIER THE FAMILY, THE LESS WILLING IT IS TO PAY MORE THAN IS NEEDED FOR ITS OFFSPRING TO QUALIFY FOR STUDENT AID.

"We don't think we ought to be subsidizing the very wealthy in this country," Bell explained on the "Good Morning, America" television show.

At present, a family's eligibility for aid is calculated by subtracting certain living expenses from total family income. Regulations say families can increase their living expenses estimates by 12½ percent to cover inflation.

The administration, however, wants to scrap the 12½ percent increase, thus saving $183 million in the next fiscal year.

By figuring eligibility the administration's way, more families would show higher net incomes, and thus become ineligible for Pell Grants.

Secretary Bell also wants to set upper limits on how much a student can deduct from his or her income estimate. New regulations would set maximum amounts on how much a student could spend -- at least for purposes of determining eligibility for Pell Grants -- for housing, books and related school expenses.

Talk about changing the rules of getting Pell Grants, Martin says, is affecting other federal financial aid programs. Administration promises to reform the Guaranteed Student Loan program are "frightening" some banks, which are waiting to make student loans until the issues are settled.

SCHOLASTIC ALL-AMERICAN SEARCH

The Scholastic All-American Selection Committee is now accepting applications for the 1981 Spring Semester. Students who are active in scholastic organizations and who perform well in class are asked to join.

The Scholastic All-American is an honor society founded to recognize this country's top undergraduate and graduate students. Students are selected from over 1,280 schools covering all 50 states. Members participate in various nationally organized service projects each year.

Students are selected for consideration based on the extent of their academic and scholastic performance both in and out of the classroom. No one factor is weighed heaviest when a new member is considered. A student's best asset must be his or hers "well-roundedness."

Interested students are asked to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Application," Scholastic All-American, Administrative Offices, P.O. Box 237, Clinton, New York, 13323.

All students are encouraged to submit an application regardless of their grade-point average.

Reality

DREAMS OF REALITY

The rough outline of Reality is pretty well set. There remains one big question mark, and it will be erased when I find out how many students really support the affair by coming through with their six dollar direct donation. What follows is a presentation of the schedule that you should try to read all the way through because even if you find it slow, there are important announcements at the end.

May 8 is the last day of full classes. The following week is a Don Rag week, with the last two seminars of the year. The seniors get their the following weekend. Reality begins that evening with a one-man marionette production of The Bacchae. The producer-director-translator-performer is Peter Arnot, from Ipswich, England. His performances, in general, get rave reviews, and this one in particular should be a perfect apropos way to start the weekend. There will be a gathering in the lobby afterwards, with greek food and perhaps a light dance or two. The parade will break up around midnight, and all will go home to rest up for the big day ahead.

The Snowsled and Brass Ensemble will tour the dorms starting at 8:15 Saturday morning. People will spring from their beds and skip down to breakfast. There will be bloody Marys there to get things moving, and you will mix them as spicy as you like. Why is everybody getting up at 8:15? The Parade!

The Reality Parade can be a marvelous experience. My freshman year it consisted of forty people, half of whom had costumes. It was a mediocre affair, and no way to start off the big day. Last year, though, everybody got juiced up, and we had a whale of a parade, with about 300 people and everybody with a costume of some sort. It was so vibrant and colorful we deviated from the prescribed route and walked all the way up Main St. to Church Circle, over to State, onto Maryland Ave. and then up Prince George. If you were not there, ask someone who was and they will tell you that the parade is something to see. Miles Beckwith is Parade Poohbah this year, and he may have more to say about it as the time grows near. For now, just remember to be there.

The procession gathers around the beautiful Planetarium Reflecting Pool for the Miss Sophrosune Contest and The Real Olympic Opening Ceremonies. Miss Sophrosune will be chosen from among the parade participants. She must be strikingly dressed, a freshman, and male. The winner is presented by last year's beauty queen with the coveted Miss Sophrosune Trophy, and will have other ceremonial duties throughout the day. The Real Olympics are then officially welcomed and blessed with a zealous oration in Greek by our Rev. Winifree Smith. With that, the torch is lit, the beer truck arrives, the charcoal is fired up and the Games begin.

I will not go into detail here concerning the Real Olympics. It is sufficient to say that we spend the afternoon running around doing silly things. William Hill is Games Master, and will fill in the details as they appear.

Food and beer are a big part of the afternoon. Depending, of course, on the money available, we will have the usual picnic salads, steamers, corn on the cob, watermelon, and, John Schiavo hopes, a roast bull. This last is still one of the "dreams of Reality". Whether or not it fades into ideality depends on how many people go to our benefit movies and parties, and how many people make their contribution.

Saturday night is the slot set aside for the Variety Show. This is composed of skits, films, readings, songs, dances, anything anybody wants to do in front of a crowd (I shouldn't have said that--I can see it now: Ficco, Wise, and President Johnny au naturel avec fromage). Just about anything goes. Get some friends and put something together. There is a fairly substantial piece being put together by the seniors, but it may not get off the ground, and even if it does we need more. It's a Variety Show. It will be as good or bad as you make it. If you do nothing, it may not be at all, and that would be a shame because there is no other forum and audience like the stage at the Reality Variety Show. If we stay lazy and let it die...ah, it's like being too lazy to do anything and watching TV instead. Find an idea. We will have enough technical help and encouragement to get you by the rough spots. Your act can be of any length and of any form. Contact me or my soon-to-be announced (and appointed) Show Manager.

If and when the show comes ends, the party begins. It goes all-night long. There will be a 2:30 food break, and, I think, a sound stage set up backstage for those who want to play and those who want to listen. I believe Rob Crutchfield did in fact consent to be in charge of the backstage, and as the time grows near he should have some information for those interested in playing. I guess we'll have a schedule drawn up and posted...it's hard to figure out how many people are going to be in shape to perform, but isn't that always the big question?

The party officially winds up at 6:00 AM. I then go to sleep. I don't know what other people do. I wake up around one in the afternoon. Sunday is a slow day. Last year there was alcohol and backgammon down at the boathouse, softball, and swimming. There will be all of those this year, and perhaps a bit more organization down at the boathouse. I am going to float around the creek in a tire-tube most of the afternoon. There may be a band. But the big question for Sunday is the Boat. I want to get the Harbor Queen for a cruise up the Severn. The last such ride was in 1979, and most people thought it was very nice. We ride up the Severn for about an hour and a half, then turn around and come back. The sun sets sometime during the ride. We would have refreshments, music (canned), and, perhaps, a piano on board. The boat ride is a big "if" however, because it costs over $700. Yipes. It would take an extraordinary response by students (evidenced in dollars) to pull it off. After the boat ride (yes, I'm the optimist), the last of Reality is projected onto the big screen in FSK. This year we have two films, one of which is an obscure, minor cult classic called Silent Running. It's about gardening, trees, love and space (outer). I've seen it once and loved it. It is true I was fourteen at the time, but others corroborate my opinion. It will be good. The last scene sticks in my mind as...well, the whole thing can mean as much or as little as you please. The person or persons who have control of the rights to the film offer a 30% discount on the rental fees if the film is to be shown during December (prior to Christmas) or Lent.

The other film is...I'm not going to tell. Come and see. I will start leaking false rumors at the Junior-Senior Cocktail Party.

The diehards party on down the boathouse after the films. I go to sleep. And that's Reality.

To give you a rough idea of where the money is spent, take a look over here:

Food.....	$1800
Beer.....	500

Wow	$4550

This is an optimist's budget. Not all the items here will necessarily become Real, and I've probably forgotten a few things. But this should be enough to give you an idea. Or would you rather not have seen it at all. It is vulgar, in a way.

The Reality Auction is scheduled for April 17. Starting next week, after essays, dorm collections will start. Try to be in at the announced times, and give away whatever you might otherwise throw away. Who has the little Reality Satyr? This fellow gets auctioned every year. Whoever bought him last year has the privilege of escorting him to the auction block. Off-campus people may drop off donations in the Coffee Shop or, can contact me, who will drive out to your house to pick up heavy stuff. As usual, there will be a keg of beer out on the quad to loosen your tongues.

Visitors and Parents. Visitors should pay the six dollar admission price. This is good for any and all segments of the weekend. No entirely foreign visitors will be given an admission ticket, i.e., a member of the community must register visitors as guests. This can be done before the weekend and would help us with cash flow if it were. But tickets can also be bought throughout the weekend. The guards will bounce any stranger without a ticket, and, any stranger too unruly for the common peace to bear. Last year an inebriated fellow crashed into one of the FSK Lobby windows and broke it. There were also several nasty confrontations. Anyway, the fallout is that members of the community shall buy guest tickets for visitors. These will soon be available through your friendly Reality Collector, or through me.

Parents are different visitors, in that they all have by now received a humble request through the mails for money to help defray the cost of this singular R and R we partake of here. Because of this and a certain amount of respect, parents do not need tickets and will not be accosted by the guards or the private Reality Enforcers. We will assume that the folks did contribute in response to the mail plea, or that their philosophic young son or daughter saw to it that The Reality Fund was properly compensated.

As announced last week, the T-Shirt operation is gearing up. There is a prize offered for the design chosen to emblazon the Reality souvenirs. Draw something up and submit it to either Amy Oosterhout or Joni Cook.

Coming up this weekend are two Benefit films. Great. Junior and Freshman essays are due and I've got two benefit films. Eh bien. Try to get out and see them. The Friday nighter is Mr. Roberts, starring Henry Fonda, James Cagney, and Jack Lemmon. This won the Academy's Best Picture award and about four or five others. The weekend film is A Clockwork Orange. Gads. Shivers up and down the spine and I've never seen it or even heard anything much about it. I know it from a novel by Anthony Burgess, who writes good novels. I know it's directed by Stanley Kubrick who does an okay job most of the time. I think it's probably worth seeing.

I'll end this with just another reminder that we need acts for the Variety Show. Think about it once you've finished your essay. I think I'll go start mine.

Yours,

Letters

The February 23rd and March 2nd issues of THE GADFLY have just reached us, so my remarks may seem a little late. I was very interested in the responses in the March 2nd issue to Mr Campbell's remarks in the Feb 23rd issue. Miss Oppenheim's response was especially "on target." Indeed, is it really true that military service is synonymous with servng one's country?

I would also submit, Mr Campbell, that your sentence - "If Mr Reagan's plan works, then there will be more money available from the private sector" - is resting on quicksand. There's much question if it can work, and even if it does, it certainly doesn't follow that the private sector can be counted on to more generously support colleges or anything else of social and humanitarian importance.

Mrs Burton W. Dempster

Polity Elections

Fellow Polity Members,

I'm running for polity president. My reasons are many, but the primary one is the challenge to reach good political decisions that will benefit all of us and stir each of us to act considerately. It would be good to review the already existing guidelines and projects as well as the options for the future. Along these lines, I'd like to winterize the boathouse, make the dining-hall open for talk and study during the day, see what can be done to further improve the quality of our food, and build a sauna. I am amenable to suggestions and hope everyone will give some time to thinking about ways we can improve our community. Thanks.

Scott Buchanan

Ladies and Gentlemen of the Student Polity and College Community,

My purpose in writing to you is my strong and personal endorsement of John Schiavo for the position of Polity President. I am writing of my own accord and solely from the belief that Mr. Schiavo is a good man, fit for the job. He is a man of intelligence and strong character and possesses a finely tuned knowledge of the joys and travails of on-and-off campus living. John Dryden tells us that, "Good sense and good nature are never separated; and good nature is the product of right reason.--It makes allowance for the failings of others by considering that there is nothing perfect in mankind; and by distinguishing that which comes nearest to excellence, though not absolutely free from faults, will certainly produce candor in judging." I do not intend my notes to make Mr. Schiavo sound perfect, just slightly above normal in character and very capable and willing to act rightly in the office of President. My closing statement has been borrowed from John Casper Lavater, who I think speaks directly to Mr. Schiavo's request to be elected to the office of Polity President. Lavater writes, "I am prejudiced in favor of him who, without impudence, can ask boldly.--He has faith in humanity, and faith in himself.--No one who is accustomed to give grandly can ask nobly and with boldness."

Dr. Oscar Brilliant
Dr. Jo Anne Brilliant

15 Parole Plaza

I'm writing to announce my candidacy for Polity President; however, I realize that most of you do not know why anyone would want to be president or even, for that matter, know who I am. Well, as for the latter, my name is John Schiavo and I am presently a junior who lives off-campus. I am a member of the Student Committee on Instruction, President of the Croquet Club, and one of the off-campus members of the Delegate Council. I'm also head of the Reality food committee, a member of the Garden Club, and bartend a lot of the parties. I also go to school. So much for the easy stuff, now to explain why I would like to be your president. It's not that there are any overwhelming issues that are driving me. I just feel that the polity president is responsible for the quality of student life and I'd like to do what I can to improve it.

Thank you,
John Schiavo '82

John Schiavo asked me to write this endorsement. "Just write a couple of lines," he said, "tell them I'm an *#?!&$%, but that you think they should vote for me." So here goes: John Schiavo is an *#?!&$%, but I think you should vote for him. I guess he asked me to write this because I was President a year ago and before that I was the Treasurer and therefore my recommendation would not be taken lightly by anyone. But to tell the truth the best recommendation John Schiavo has comes from himself. If you know him, you will obviously vote for him. If you don't know him, what's wrong with you? Do yourself a favor and meet him. While you're at it, do yourself another favor and vote for him for President.

Martin Miller '81

As a dedicated member of the croquet team (which would have no balls, mallets, or wickets without him) John Schiavo is an excellent candidate for Polity President.

1. The meeting rambled on, but where was the secretary? No doubt diligently struggling with his personal tome of fascination, his essay. Ms Connors dragged him unwillingly away from the worship machine (the service was Gone with the Wind) and led him to the meeting. Where did all these people come from? Anyway,

2. The Council approved sending some letter to somebody of importance in favor of closing institutes of education on poll days.

3. The vacancies on the Grounds Crew Staff have been filled (like two little holes) by Ms Swinford and Mr Blyler. We approved these nominations unanimously.

4. Then, it was Mr Gold's turn to receive his long awaited nomination to the Judges' Guild. If you will remember, we appointed him when the Council was full (fool?) earlier in the year. Anyway, he and Ms Barnham have been unanimously approved to be on the Judges' Bench.

5. Randall Cleaning Day will be two Fridays from now. Mr Ellingston will inform the residents of said dorm of said obligations and supply said cleaning utensils.

6. Lucie Mayeux came in and asked for a monster sum of money for the Student Activities Committee. We talked her down to $100. The money will go towards reducing the price of tickets to Love's Labors Lost, (Hoover Two Speed), so that they will be more affordable to students (prospective vacuum buyers). Ms Mayeux will get to you about this, I'm sure.

7. Also, the Student Activities Committee has received a car as a gift from some anonymous donor. It's a station wagon (with a Hoover Two Speed under the hood) and will be available for excursions next year (like to the Hoover outlet) if we play our cards right. More will be announced as it becomes known.

8. Lisa Eckstrom is the Febbie Phonnie, so she can call any Hoover dealer in the US this weekend and talk about her favorite model.

Your Friendly Hoover Dealer,
Ricky Le Vacuum Miller

AIKIDO

Away (do) for harmony (ai) of the Spirit (ki). Aikido is a martial art. It can be used as an effective form for self-defense. It may be studied as a means for strengthening the coordination between mind and body. It has been called meditation in motion.

At the heart of Aikido is a desire to harmonize or coordinate with the world through use of personal spiritual energy. Your attacker is your partner in this enterprise. There are no attacks in Aikido. Most techniques employ minimal resistance combined with a re-direction of energy. Circular movements are an important part of Aikido strategy. Great physical strength is not an advantage in Aikido.

I have studied Aikido for several years. I am unranked. I would be happy to share my experience with beginning and/or advanced students on Wednesday afternoons in the gym. Beginning classes will cover basic "static" techniques, rolling, falling, and exercises for improving flexibility. When students are more experienced, they will be asked to participate in "dynamic" classes. Wear comfortable, sturdy clothing for the first classes. If you have any questions please contact me.

Beginning Classes - Wed 4:30-5:30
Advanced Classes - Wed 5:30-6:15

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE COLLEGE COMMUNITY

The KWP production of Arms and the Man needs the following furniture and props:

dresser	sabers
revolvers	ottomans
samovar	feather duster
carpet bag	hookah
cast iron stove wrought iron garden furniture

If you have any of these things, please contact Jonathan Baumgarten (x37) or John Tracey (x31). We promise to take good care of anything lent to us.

TO FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORE'S AND JUNIORS

The Registrar's Office is now composing the lists of students who will be registering as Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors next fall.

The lists will be composed of students who have confirmed their intention to return by depositing $100 in the Treasurer's Office before April 6, except for January Freshmen, for whom the date will be in the middle of July. If, accordingly, you want to return next year, please see to it that appropriate arrangements have been made with the Treasurer before April 6.

The Treasurer will refund the deposit in case of withdrawal due to ill health, academic dismissal, or failure to enable. It will not be carried over in case you decide not to enroll next year but to return the year after.

Nancy R. Winter,
Registrar

MEN'S by Bryce Jacobsen

Our annual MARATHON is coming up this Saturday. It has become the highlight of the spring social season...well, maybe second to the Real Olympics. You only have a few more days to prepare for it.

Softball:

Mar. 23...Druids-23, Spartans-8. The Druids looked strong again, and the Spartans looked otherwise. People who scored two or more runs were, for the Druids: Costa, Berkowitz, Dwyer, Stevenson, Warner, Wolf, Brunner and Christensen; and for the Spartans, Hill and Guaspari.

Mar. 25...Spartans-8, Guardians-1. The Spartans looked sharp in this game, and the Guardians looked anemic. Mr. Ney's two home runs highlighted the Spartan scoring.

The Guardians only batted 23 batters in six innings...a very low average, by our standards.

Mar. 26...Hustlers-9, Druids-7. This was probably an important game, and, as usual, the Hustlers managed to win it. They put together a big 3rd. inning, with Messrs. Zolkower, Klipper, Kapakian, Wall, Hartzell and Maddocks all scoring.

The Druids kept pecking away, but ultimately fell short.

Mar. 28...Hustlers-20, Greenwaves-9. The first five batters of the game(Hustlers) all scored...and we suspected we were in for a long afternoon. The scorebook reveals the following data, under "runs total": Vincent-4, Kapikian-3, Maddocks-3, Moynihan-3, Cabral-2, and Ficco-2.

The Waves created some excitement in the third inning, pushing across five runs. But the Hustlers already had fifteen, so it didn't mean so much.

Mar. 28...Guardians-23, Druids-5. The Druid scoring, per game, has gone 29-23-7-5. Will this trend continue? Or is this rock bottom?

The Guardians rebounded from their dismal first game with a veritable explosion of runs. Every place in the batting order scored at least once, capped by Mr. Whalen's four runs. It turned out to be a laugher for the Guardians.

The Guardian-Hustler game this Thursday will either put the Hustlers well ahead in the league...or will put them tied with the Guardians. Should be a good game.

SOFTBALL STANDINGS:

	Won	Lost	Points
Hustlers	3	0	9
Druids	2	2	8
Guardians	1	1	4
Spartans	1	2	5
Greenwaves	0	2	2

THIS WEEK'S SCHEDULE:

Softball...Wed. 4:15 Greenwaves-Spartans
Thurs. 4:00 Guardians-Hustlers
Marathon...Sat. 1:30(Men)
3:30(Women)

WOMEN'S by Lisa Cobb

March 24 Maenads 13 Nymphs 6

I didn't see the game but I know for a fact that Miss Benedict scored a home run!

March 26 Furies 14 Nymphs 8

The Furies are already off to a nice start on the softball season. They took the lead in the very first inning 5-0 and continued to hold the Nymphs down to no more than 3 runs an inning.

As usual Miss Leonard took her place of honor on the mound doling out consistent pitches and good humor.

Let it be noted that Miss Krafft scored her first runof the season in the last inning with Miss Gowdy luckily already on second base!

March 27 Amazons 13 Maenads 5

After their victory over the Nymphs the Maenads were particularly dissapointed at this unexpected defeat. The outs came too quickly for the runners to get far enough around the bases; however, their fielding isn't bad at all. Miss Hahn is a fine pitcher and Miss Brockway has a strong arm that served her well in putting batters out at first.

The Amazons had their best moment in the fourth inning in which a nice string of single hits brought Litwin, Smith, Sach, Nogales and Sandek over the homeplate like clockwork, putting them decisively ahead of the Maenads at 11-4.
