The First Weekly Supplement of the St. John's College COLLEGIAN

Vol. 1

28 October 1979

No. 1

It is all over, the sedition is quelled, and now THE COLLEGIAN is at peace and at one again.

We apologize for the theatre of the absurd, and we are quite embarrassed by the unfortunate and mysterious goings-on of the past few days. There is a very dark and puzzling and disturbing side to what happened, a vicious side. But it is not altogether without a certain charm and a silly, harmless humour: secret meetings, strategy sessions, phone calls in the dark of night--little boys fighting over lollipops. We have all learned from this experience, and this, I guess, is the signal value of rebellion. The opposing faction based their surge for power upon what they believed were principles in the best interests of the community, and to protect all students from the "flaky and spacey tyranny of Mr. Edozien." We thank them.

Now, to address a few points of concern to some important members of the community:

a) We are not a spacey, head-in-the-clouds, bi-weekly literary magazine; neither are we an exclusivistic, aristocratic cabal, even though we are determined to maintain a standard of taste and excellence.

b) We take our information-transfer service to the community very seriously. It is the ground on which any COLLEGIAN is built; therefore, there will be something informative out regularly every Sunday morning under the banner of COLLEGIAN.

c) We clearly recognize that the COLLEGIAN is a multifaceted endeavor, with readers of many kinds and levels of taste.

d) It is a magazine not only for students, but for the whole community--that is, faculty, students and staff.

e) Its relationship to the community is an organic one: of you, for you, by you.

May I now point out that the COLLEGIAN is starting anew, an era has just passed, and we are now embarking upon a new one. Under my editorship, the password is "creative evolution." Our specific role in the community will be continually defined and re-defined by you as much as by me. Learning is a process--that is, action through time; we will all learn by doing.

The St. John's COLLEGIAN as we envision it is basically these three things: newspaper/bulletin board, literary magazine, and open forum. We will insist upon a certain level of literacy and of rhetorical competence; but we will not edit away all spontaneity, superficiality, and controversy. Our main concern is to upgrade the overall quality of this magazine so that we can put in your hands, over a leisurely Sunday brunch, something that is worth the attention of intelligent, sophisticated and thoughtful readers. In other words, we are seriously concerned with the ideal of St. John's, the ideal of liberal artistry. This is why most of us are here--I think. As I said earlier, we will be out every week. On a biweekly basis we will integrate our newspaper/bulletin board, THE WEEKLY SUPPLEMENT OF THE ST. JOHN'S COLLEGIAN, with the full St. John's COLLEGIAN. This means that the newspaper/bulletin board will be fused with a literary magazine, open-forum format every two weeks.

Now that that has been said, let me say this. Each one of you who is concerned with the state and image of St. John's and the quality of communication and cooperative thinking at this college owes it to himself or herself to support this magazine vigorously. It will rise only as high as you raise it. You've heard this before, I know, but it is simply true. You owe yourself a gift, you owe yourself respectability, you owe yourselves yourselves, THE COLLEGIAN is you.

I sincerely hope that you will perceive us differently and that you will not feel embarrassed to submit your best efforts for publication. You will not be stooping to send to this COLLEGIAN.

The Editor

Suicide is a highly personal affair. As such, it is individual and embodies no universal reason. No conclusion can be drawn; and, thus, nothing can be said by THE COLLEGIAN, as a news reporting service, to illuminate an individual's decision. However, as a public forum, we respect and welcome the thoughts of the members of the community on this tragic event.

Reflections On A Statistic

Statistic. By the end of this year (according to my calculations), about 27,000 people will have committed suicide in the United States. One quarter of these will be women, and about 3,000 of those women will have died by poisoning themselves. I could have gone so far as to figure out how many Maryland women between the ages of 18 and 20 will have died from these same causes, but by this time I felt too sick to continue.

Many of us were touched by the tragedy of Mr. Sparrow's son earlier this year, and recently the Angel of Death has paid another visit to us. By the time you read this, Sherry Windt will be just another statistic to many people here, and eventually, to most.

My encounters with her were few. I went with her to Shul on Yom Kippur. I taught her how to polka before the first waltz party. Maybe I should have made an extra effort to become friends with her. The Washington Post article said she had had few friends. Maybe if

No. How could I have known? And now that I know how deep her still waters ran, I doubt if my chatting with her could have helped. I didn't get to dance with her at the party that night, but I didn't dance with a lot of people I wanted to.

Are we our brother's keeper? William Mahoney ('79) last year said: "Every soul on this earth is bound together and is responsible to one another . . . we are really quite delicate creatures . . . and just as if we were aware that another person were in danger of losing his life and we were in a position to help him, our life, too, would be placed on the line before him, and, were we to walk away, something would die in us as well."

This statement (akin to Donne's "No man is an Island") agrees with me, and with everything I have been raised to believe. Yet, today, now, how can I touch someone? How shall I help?

It's so easy to convince yourself to say such noble things, but I'll be damned if I can think of a way to do them. Besides, who am I to offer the help I need myself?

The pain has passed. Sherry Windt is gone. My memories of her are now stored with those of my grandparents, long-lost friends, and others I am no longer with. No guilt, no tears. Statistic--damn.

MOVIE OF THE WEEK

PERSONA, directed by Ingmar Bergman
starring Liv Ullman and Bibi Anderson

This is Bergman's most intense and mystifying film. He presents us with an actress who apparently went mad and stopped speaking in the middle of a performance, and who hasn't spoken since. The head of the psychiatric ward where the actress is staying decides that the actress needs a change of scene, so she sends her, with a young nurse, to a vacant house near the sea. The two women are isolated and alone. As the film progresses, the nurse and the actress seem to exchange personalities.

If that doesn't strike you as mystifying, how about this: Bergman shows you again and again that you are watching a film. (The first image you see is the flame of an electric arc between two carbon rods. This was the light source in old-fashioned movie projectors.) Thus, you cannot simply be a passive observer; but you must admit over and over that you are being affected by a work of art.

The film is 90 minutes, in black and white, and it DOES have subtitles.

MOVIE OF THE SEMESTER

Because of an enormous amount of encouraging feedback from the college community, the SCI is pleased to announce that it has decided that the second semester's All-College Seminar will be on Marcel Carne's film, "Les Enfants du Paradis," if the SCI will be able to come up with the funds necessary to rent this film. The SCI is considering having this very special and experimental seminar in February during the middle of senior essay writing period and would like feedback from Seniors on this idea. Also, acting upon a suggestion from the community, the SCI is trying to locate copies of the film's script in French. English translations will definitely be made available.

The SCI would like any interested member of the college community to attend its next meeting on Wednesday evening at 8:15 in McDowell Hall, Rm 23.

Kevin Kraus, SCI member

Dean Sparrow had his annual meeting with the Junior class in the King William Room this past Monday, October 22nd. The Dean holds these annual meetings to keep himself informed of the general mood of each class.

Attendance at this meeting was limited to ten students, and the atmosphere was relaxed and informal. The Dean began the discussion by mentioning the importance of the differences in outlook between the authors of the first and last two years of the program. Mr. Sparrow was subsequently asked if students had any influence in the selection of preceptorial topics. He said yes, and suggested that any student interested in a particular topic should find a tutor willing to present it to the consideration of the Instruction Committee. Final decisions on the selections are made before spring vacation; therefore, any sophomores or juniors with specific ideas should begin early to find a supporting tutor and form a group. After this, Mr. Van Doren asked the Dean if he had any opinions on why there were so few juniors present. The Dean replied that it was a seminar evening, and they probably suspected that he had nothing new to report; he then returned the question to Mr. Van Doren, who answered that the probable cause was a general feeling of apathy on the part of students. The Dean supplied the meaning of the Greek root of the word apathy: "without passion." For most of the rest of the meeting, the conversation was dominated by this question of student apathy. Most agreed that there is much apathy at St. John's, and the possible causes of and solutions to this problem were discussed. The question of late papers, particularly annual essays, arose. Last year, several sophomores were allowed until as late as August 15th to complete their enabling essays. Some of the students present felt that such a lenient policy was unfair to those students who completed their essays on time. The question of grades briefly turned up and dissolved the meeting at the call of the damn old bell.

D.C. MEETS THE ADMINISTRATION

October 18, 1979

Attending: Bovender, Brintle, Coss, Cruciano, Hoffman, Maddocks, Miller, Roach, Rosen, Schoener & Sparrow.

Miss Leonard announced that the Administration is in the process of appointing a new Polity President. This action comes in the wake of Mr. Coss' absence from the 11 October meeting with the Administration. Miss Leonard promised that the new President would be appointed by 29 October.

Miss Leonard wanted to know when she would receive the names of the Fire Marshalls of some dorms. She said the Assistant Deans will appoint them if necessary. Mr. Coss explained that the Polity Secretary, Mr. Stein (who has since resigned), has been wayward lately. Miss Leonard announced that a fire drill has been scheduled for some inconvenient time.

Mr. Coss reported that smokers are becoming restive, what with no smoking and all. He asked if one solution might be to segregate classes with respect to preference (to this humble scrivener's mind, the suggestion smacks of Jim Crow & court-ordered busing). Someone suggested that proper seating could solve the problem. Mr. Sparrow told us that there is no solid evidence proving second-hand smoke harmful to non-smokers; but that smokers owe it to non-smokers, out of courtesy, not to smoke if they find it offensive.

Miss Leonard and Mr. Milner have received some noise complaints, but they plan to give Mr. Bolle a chance before swinging into action themselves.

J. Roach

P.S. - Miss Leonard was only kidding about the new Pres.

D.C. MINUTES: OCTOBER 23, 1979

Present: Coss, Bolle, Dimartini, Bovender, Maddox, Schoener, Moek, Miller, Roach, Betor, Hoffman, Rosen, Elliot.

The meeting managed to start off rather calmly. Mr. Coss announced that two positions on the Polity Court will be vacant soon. Anyone wishing to be considered for one of these positions should contact Mike Coss soon (like within a week).

Mr. Stein has resigned as Polity Secretary. By some sort of rather nebulous consensus, Mr. Bolle (Hi, mom) was more or less appointed interim Secretary.

Someone submitted a charter for a Senior Class Prank Committee. Since it didn't involve us spending any more money, we approved it. The vote was 5 in favor, 4 against, 1 abstaining.

The D.C. is very concerned about the situation at THE COLLEGIAN. While THE COLLEGIAN is not a Polity organization, and therefore the D.C. has no authority over it, THE COLLEGIAN's "problems" do have some importance to the college community. The D.C., being the representative of the student body, felt that it should in some way represent the interests of the said student body.

So, anyway.

The meeting was, all-in-all, a rather confused affair. There were many questions and many answers, most of which merely confused things more.

Mr. Bovender wondered whether the college was going to absorb the rather large debt that THE COLLEGIAN has managed to acquire.

Mr. Roach suggested that the D.C. assume control of the paper.

"We are the people!" said Mr. Rosen passionately.

"I'm really getting confused," said Mr. Bovender.

Moi, aussi.

Mr. Coss gave forth ominous rumblings and grumblings about the staff of THE COLLEGIAN, and especially the editors, "not giving a damn about the opinion of the college community."

But I digress . . .

We decided, at the suggestion of Mr. Hartzell, that we should make up some sort of statement as to what we thought of the by-then-much-over-discussed situation. The opinion expressed below is not meant to be binding on anyone; it is meant to be the opinion of the D.C. qua representative body of the Polity.

Mr. Miller proposed that our opinion be expressed as follows:

RESOLVED, That the Delegate Council express its opinion on the resolution of the present problems of THE COLLEGIAN:

1) We ask that THE COLLEGIAN staff resolve its difficulties as soon as possible, either on their own, or through some form of arbitration.

2) That provision be made for continuation of weekly publication until the problems are finally resolved. THE COLLEGIAN provides an important service to the college community.

3) (a) That THE COLLEGIAN can best perform its function if it is published weekly, and (b) that it should be obliged to publish all notices submitted to it, particularly Polity ones.

4) That provision be made in whatever form of charter that is finally adopted for (a) editorial succession in some workable form, and (b) some form of continuing editorial policy.

It is also our opinion that the staff solicit public opinion regarding changes and formation of its policies as an aid to making changes.

This resolution was passed, 8 for, 2 against, 1 abstaining.

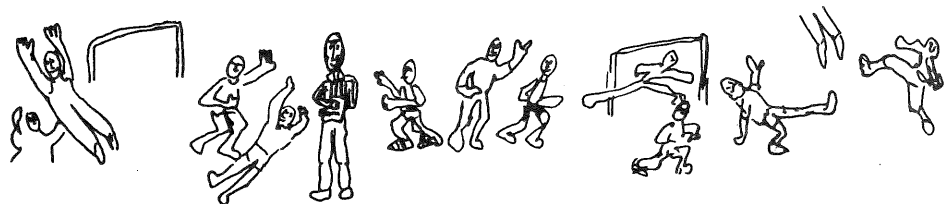

Mr. Schoener moved that we suggest that the editor of THE COLLEGIAN be made directly responsible in some way to the Polity.

This motion was passed, though I forget the exact vote.

Finally, I wish to apologize to the Health Committee for having represented its functions somewhat oddly in last week's minutes. It does have serious functions.

Scandals can be a pain.

Christopher Bolle
Polity Something-or-Other.

MEN'S SPORTS

It has been three weeks since we reported last . . . due to "many troubles" that THE COLLEGIAN experienced. We will try to catch up, as briefly as possible.

Soccer:

-Druids-1; Spartans-0. The second 1-0 win by the Druids. That is walking on pretty thin ice! Mr. Edozian saved their skins with a goal in the second half. The Spartans did very well.

Guardians-2; Greenwaves-0. Mr. Mulholland scored twice, once on a penalty kick. The Waves suffered another shut-out. They have scored one goal, now, in three games. Looks like the Guardians have come up with another good goalie in Mr. Hoff.

Hustlers-1; Spartans-0. A very close game, with the two defenses always equal to the task . . . ending in a scoreless tie. But in the overtime, the Hustlers had a throw-in deep in Spartan territory. The ball was thrown towards the goal, and it kept rolling . . . and rolling . . . and rolling . . . untouched. Finally, right in front of the goal, Mr. Maddocks punched it in. I guess the Spartans are still asking themselves, "What happened?" Or, more likely, "What the Hell happened?"

Guardians-1; Druids-0. The ice finally broke, and the Druids lost. It was a real squeaker. They had many shots at the Guardian goal, but the Guardian Angel of Mercy caused quite a few to hit the goal posts or to veer slightly awry. The others were all stopped by Mr. Hoff, who performed nobly in the goal. With time running out, Mr. Putnam, sorely pressed by some Druid fullbacks, made a beautiful center to Mr. Yamamura, the ubiquitous one, who deflected it into the goal. Looks like the Guardians, who won soccer last year, are headed that way again. They are the only undefeated team now.

SOCCER	WON	TIED	LOST	POINTS
Guardians	2	1	0	8
Druids	3	0	1	10
Hustlers	1	1	1	6
Spartans	1	0	2	5
Greenwaves	0	0	3	3

Football:

Druids-8; Greenwaves-0. Looked like another scoreless tie, until, on the next-to-last play, Mr. Dwyer passed to Mr. Ahrens, who passed (tossed? . . . propelled? . . . heaved? . . .) to Mr. Jennings, who then outran some Waves to score. The Waves have allowed only two TDs in their last three games . . . but scored nothing themselves!

Spartans-20; Druids-6. Mr. Ney engineered three TDs, with various helpers. The Druids broke open Mr. Edozien for a long TD run . . . but could nothing more.

Hustlers-9; Spartans-7. I forgot who did the scoring in this game (and I did not make a note of it). What I do remember is Mr. Hartzell kicking the winning field goal, on the next-to-last play of the game. A nice, dramatic finish, with a flourish.

Guardians-18; Druids-6. Nice going, Guardians. Too bad, Druids.

Hustlers-20; Greenwaves-0. The Hustlers have only two TDs scored against them in seven games! Holy Smokes! That's a lot of "tough D."

Guardians-14; Spartans-13. The poor Spartans have been "snake bit" lately . . . losing two football games in the waning moments on kicks, and two soccer games by 1-0, one in overtime. In this game, Messrs. Ney, Guaspari, Giordano and Spector managed two scores, but so did Messrs. Zenone, Weinstein, Whalen and Mulholland. But Mr. Hoff's soccer-style conversions were on the money, whereas one of Mr. Spector's went slightly astray.

Hustlers-13; Druids-0. The Hustlers finished their season with yet another shut-out of their opponents . . . quite an impressive record, that. Six games out of eight, the other guys got exactly nothing! Their final record was six wins and two ties, more than enough to clinch the title.

Those Hustlers who accomplished all this are: Adams, Coss, Edwards, Hartzell, Hom, Houston, Kates, Klipper, Maddocks, Moynihan, Nau, Newlin, Wall, Weitzel, Wise, Wright and Zolkower. The Hustlers have not won a league title for a long, long time . . . quite a few years, I believe. Mr. Kungle will know exactly when!

FOOTBALL	WON	TIED	LOST	POINTS
Hustlers	6	2	0	22
Guardians	4	0	3	15
Spartans	3	1	3	14
Druids	2	0	5	11
Greenwaves	0	1	4	6

THIS WEEK'S SCHEDULE:

Football . . . Mon. 4:00 Greenwaves-Druids
 Wed. 4:00 Greenwaves-Guardians
 Soccer . . . Sat. 1:30 Hustlers-Guardians

COLLEGIAN GAME OF THE WEEK:

Highlights of the Greenwave-Spartan Football Match

by Abe Schoener

In a game remarkable for predictable surprises last Thursday afternoon, a bouncy Spartan team threw the strong Greenwaves for, in the words of one Wave, an "ignominious" loss.

The Spartans bounced to the lead over the strong Greenwaves on the first play from scrimmage on an "alley oop, jump-Paul-jump, pass to down-and-out Paul Giordano." The strong Greenwaves shrugged off the stunning ease of the score and came back to mount their most aggressive drive of the game, staunchly refusing to give up any interceptions. It was not long, though, (4 plays) before the Spartans got the ball on downs and did something unusual: they didn't score. On their second possession the Waves completed their first pass and also tackled the man who caught it--before he could score against them. Mr. Jacobsen, an official, pointed out: "The Greenwaves have a high completion record this game." Left unmentioned was their low reception record. The story of the rest of the half was the inflexible Greenwave defense's determination not to leave the field, no matter what the cost. The cost was Green quarterback Tim Ficco. In telling the story of their first half, Mr. Ficco might mention the blocking of his offensive line, the supple fingers of his receivers, the speedy penetration of the Spartans, the sharp judgements of his mature linebacking corps.

The story of the second half is dominated by Trick Play, born to the Spartans late in the first half. He was surely the key to the Spartan victory, overwhelming the inflexible Greenwave defense (still determined not to leave the field) with his unerring intuition for the right reverse. The first such reverse came in the second quarter with sly Ney going right to hand off to steaming Giordano, himself running left. Hot pursuit was given by Wave defender Schoener, who somehow failed to see speedy Guaspari trotting in from the left to take Giordano's ever-so-casual hand-off. With Guaspari facing him wide-eyed, Schoener went for the fake and Guaspari trotted into the end-zone.

Outstanding individual plays included Evan Canter's sack of substitute QB, Warren Spector, for 7 yards and two pairs of glasses; Dave Neumann's interception of a Spartan pass, which he politely returned; and any one of Dave Guaspari's end runs. As Mr. White, another official, pointed out: "He sure is spry for a tutor."

Interesting statistics include:

Greenwave offensive plays: 7

Spartan touchdowns: 5

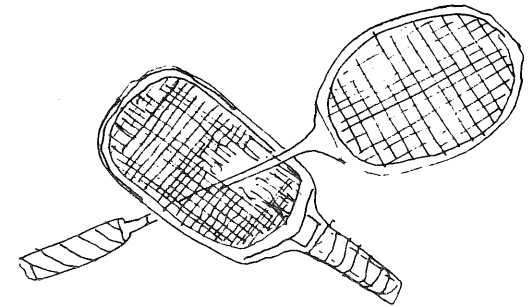

One might think from these statistics that the strong Greenwaves pulled off the win.

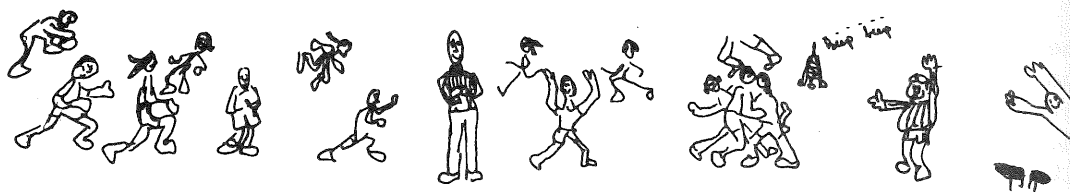

In fact, in this week's commentary, "they didn't."

The highlight of this week's Highlights was the incisively perceptive remark of Spartan lineman Evan Joachim: "Football sure is a game of inches."

Look next week for Bill Ney's "Spartan Playbook" in Sports Notebook, including several secret trick plays.

The Bookstore is now carrying badminton & racquet-ball rackets for the convenience of our students.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

(More Highlights by Abe Schoener)

Women's sports were very interesting last week. Reports selected from news media around the world glitter with such vague reflections as:

"All the right teams won this week." - Moscow.

"Goalies make the difference." - Madrid.

"Halfbacks make the difference." - Zurich.

"Penalty shots are disturbing for both teams." - Sidney.

"Soccer weather is improving." - Tangiers.

Next week, news from reporters closer to home.

COME ON ALL YOU BIG STRONG MEN,

ANNAPOLIS NEEDS YOUR HELP AGAIN

When job notices from the Student Employment Office appear in THE COLLEGIAN, the job is already two weeks old. This means that no one has responded to the employer's needs and that they are still looking for a worker. Give them a call. You may find them willing to adjust their demands (and maybe even their pay rates) because of the fact that they have been looking for someone for over two weeks, with no success.

Mr. Chamberlain is looking for an odd-jobsman. He lives near Edgewater, so you will need transportation--borrow a bike if you have no way to get there on your own. Or, hire a driver! We have people at the SEO who have signed up as drivers. There's a way around everything! You can call Mr. Chamberlain at 956-2835.

Mrs. Compton has been looking for a good yardworker since September. She is still very interested in getting someone. She pays $3.50/hr. Again, she lives four miles from campus, so you would need a bike or some other transportation. She has had a Johnnie working at her place for eight years, and this is the first time she has had any trouble getting someone. Come on, you're making us look bad. Give her a call at 268-2849.

Mrs. Patton (266-5804) has been looking for someone to help with outdoor work since September, and is still looking, and still would rather have a Johnnie. Give her a call.

If you are looking for regular housework (about five hours a week), call Mrs. Mitchell on Friday afternoons or on the weekends. She, too, is rather desperate. Call at 757-2000.

Bennett Curtis, who will be a student here next year, wants a piano moved. The actual job will be done late in November, but he would like to arrange it now. If interested, contact him at 224-9881, or at 32 Defense Street, Annapolis, 21401.

If anyone is interested in doing some housecleaning, gardening, and other domestic duties during Thanksgiving or Christmas vacation, please contact Peter Griggs via campus mail or by calling extension 46.

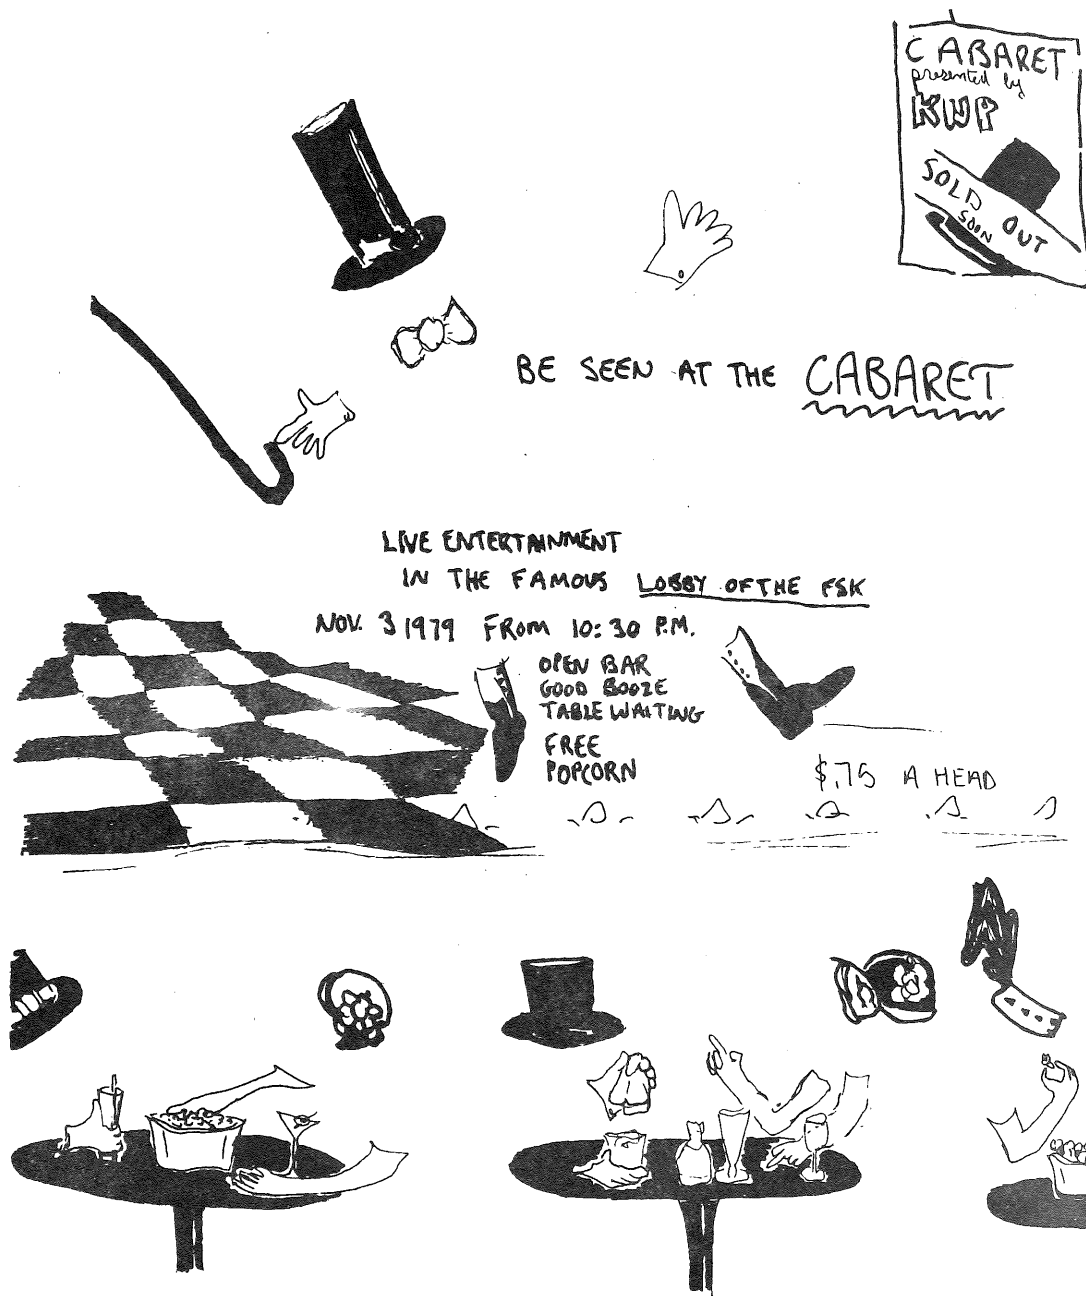

Finally, our own Mr. Stephenson wants some help with painting and other interior work. Drop him a line in campus mail if you would like to help him out and pick up a few dollars.

URGENT: from Marilyn Mylander, College Nurse

Our Annual Blood Drive will be held on Thursday, November 1, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in F.S.K. Lobby. Your blood donations are urgently needed at this time. Our local Red Cross representative, Ms. Ricki Taylor, told me that there is a critical shortage in Type-O blood locally and nationally. Call Ext. 53 for an appointment.

Quaker Meeting: each Sun., 11:30 at the YMCA. Everyone invited.

DIRECTORY CHANGE, Oct. 23, 1979:
Therissa Libby-Campbell Common Rm.

ANNOUNCEMENT:

Kit Bolle was engaged Monday, Oct. 22 to Jeff Hume, Class of '79. Ms. Hume is currently studying Theology at Drew University in New Jersey. Mr. Bolle's plans after graduation are to attend Law School in New England. The wedding will be on June 14, 1980, in Lynchburg, Va.

The following is something I guess I should put in because a few people accosted me and called me a thief, plagiarizer, etc. So I guess I should label it.

Last week's cover was drawn from a photograph on a Southside Johnny album, and was submitted with a note saying so. Note was lost. Here's another, saying so.

Bill Ney

The new Financial Aid Officer, Caroline Taylor, will take over her responsibilities November 1, 1979. Ms. Taylor is coming from Goucher College, where she worked under Judy Monicker, who was St. John's Financial Aid Director before Phil Aaronson.

RADIOACTIVE RIVER?

The folks at Three-Mile-Island are planning to dump a million gal. of radioactive water into the Susquehanna River, i.e., the Chesapeake Bay. The seafood industry of the Bay is justifiably alarmed: its livelihood is gravely threatened. Residents who enjoy seafood, swimming and boating are also alarmed. Hazardous effects to the environment and general health are innumerable. Students here who are interested in affecting a change of plans are meeting at 7 PM tonight (Oct. 28), McDowell 24. For addresses of people to write to (&/or more info.) contact E. Renno through campus mail or at the meeting.
