REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

TO THE VISITORS AND GOVERNORS OF ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE:

This my fifteenth annual report is being written in a spacious new office on the campus of St. John's College in Santa Fe. The window to the south commands a view of Monte Sol, the College's landmark in the southeast corner of the city. The window to the north affords a panorama of the Sangre de Cristo Mountains, twenty miles distant.

The quiet and beauty of the scene are rudely interrupted by the drill of a telephone installation crew, the roar of a bulldozer grading roads, and the ring of carpenters' hammers from the neighboring dormitories. All administrative offices and the college library moved from scattered temporary quarters and began functioning on the new campus on August 31st. Meanwhile, nearly 200 men are still working against time to complete the interiors of the various buildings before some seventy-five entering freshmen arrive on October 1st.

Remarkable progress has been made in construction since ground was broken eighteen months ago. Another month will see the completion of the classroom building to be known as Santa Fe Hall, the laboratory building, the student center, and nine small dormitory units, together with two tutor's apartments. The overall construction cost, including all utilities, roads, landscaping, equipment and furnishings, will amount to approximately four million dollars. An additional hundred thousand dollars will have been spent for interest on construction loans. I am confident that each of you as he visits the new campus will be impressed by the quality of the materials and workmanship, by the beauty and durability of the buildings and by the actual size of the physical plant as compared with the amount of the College's investment.

Simplicity of design will be the keynote within the several buildings. Alexander Girard, Architect, of Santa Fe, agreed to design the interiors with Frank Woods, AID, as Associate. The effects achieved so far have been most pleasing, particularly in the student center, where square brick has been used to advantage in certain walls and simple vertical paneling in others. Most of the furniture—executive and student desks, dining room and coffee shop tables, and common room furniture—has been designed by Mr. Girard and custom built for the College. Use of a laminated wood-block top throughout has resulted in significant economies and has produced a harmony of appearance. Appropriately enough there will be a tie with Annapolis tradition through the use of the same kind of seminar chair as has endured thousands of hours of dialectic over the years.

For landscaping and the development of the patio between the student center and the academic buildings, the firm of Eckbo, Dean, Austin and Williams of Los Angeles, California, was commissioned. The design for this area calls for broad paving on two levels separated by attractive stone walls and by a rocky slope at the base of which there will be a pool of water. Concrete walkways are being poured in a brownish hue to reduce the glare of the New Mexico sun. All of the stone for the walls has come from the College's hillsides; it possesses a unique beauty, much of it retaining the green lichen from its native resting place. The landscape architect's future plans call for various kinds of trees, shade trees, small pinon pines, and the tall ponderosas which normally grow at an elevation just higher than the 7300 feet of the new campus.

As the new campus has approached completion an ever-increasing number of visitors have crossed the causeway to see it. Much of this is a direct result of the many stories which, through the able efforts of Jack Wentworth, the College's Consultant on Development, have appeared in the Santa Fe New Mexican, in the Albuquerque papers and in other papers in the Southwest. The College has also been the subject of numerous radio and television programs and of articles in national journals and magazines. Interest appears to be great in this unique venture of establishing a second campus in the western part of the United States.

The principal item of unfinished business continues to be the problem of finance. With a few notable exceptions there has been a dearth of major new gifts and pledges during the year under review. Nearly $415,000 was received, most of it payments against pledges made in the earlier campaign. Fortunately, the Housing and Home Finance Agency increased the size of the dormitory loan from $700,000 to $900,000. At the same time the capacity of the proposed dormitories was increased from 106 to 146 students. Within the next fourteen months the College must raise two million dollars in order to pay off the major construction loan due on October 25, 1965, and in order to operate the new campus for the coming academic year without incurring a deficit.

Faculty

The scheduled opening of the Santa Fe campus compelled both the College and individual members of the Faculty to reach a number of crucial decisions. After careful search by a committee of tutors having tenure, Clarence J. Kramer, a graduate of the College in the Class of 1948 and for ten years a member of this faculty, was unanimously recommended for appointment as Dean of St. John's College in Santa Fe. This position carries with it the associate deanship of St. John's College. The Board made this appointment at its September meeting.

Members of the Faculty were all canvassed for their interest in present or future assignment to the Santa Fe faculty. The initial roster as recommended by the two deans and the Instruction Committee consists of: Clarence J. Kramer, Dean; Robert E. Skeele, Assistant Dean; Ford K. Brown, Marcia Bullard, William A. Darkey, Mrs. Molly Gustin, Journet Kahn, Mrs. Ingeborg Lorenz, Donald Rauber, Thomas J. Slakey, and Curtis A. Wilson. Seven of these tutors have a total of 98 years of teaching experience in the St. John's Program, ranging from Mrs. Gustin's two years to Mr. Brown's 39 years. Mr. Kahn is himself an alumnus of the College and taught briefly after his graduation. Mrs. Lorenz, Miss Bullard and Mr. Rauber all present interesting experience in other institutions. These eleven initial appointments are a promising cadre around which to build the faculty in succeeding years.

Because of the program of preparation for Santa Fe, the College in Annapolis benefited during the year from a faculty of fifty tutors for the 319 students. This figure excludes tutors on leave. Both Mr. Kramer and Mr. Darkey had sabbatical leaves, which they spent for the most part in study in Mexico. Miss Beate Ruhm von Oppen was on leave to teach at Smith College. Thomas K. Simpson held a Danforth Fellowship and worked toward a Ph.D. in the History of Science Department at the Johns Hopkins University. Victor Zuckerkandl had leave for the first semester to work in Europe on Beethoven's notebooks under a grant from the Bollingen Foundation. Jacob Klein, having reached the age of 65 during the current academic year, retires as a tenure tutor. He will, however, continue full-time teaching for the coming year on one of the annual appointments provided for in the College Polity. Richard Kennington and Robert Neidorf resigned at the end of the year to accept appointments elsewhere. Both will be missed. Four other tutors will be absent on leave during the coming academic session, Mr. Simpson to complete his Ph.D. on a National Science Foundation fellowship, Mr. Sparrow to teach at St. Mary's College in California, Miss von Oppen to teach at the University of Massachusetts and to write, and Mr. Nathan to study at Harvard University in a special program for teachers of mathematics.

In addition to the new appointments for the Santa Fe campus, the following tutors have been appointed for 1964-65 in Annapolis: Ida Doraiswamy, mathematician from Lady Doak College, Madurai, India (concurrently to be resident head of Humphreys Hall); Mickey Gibson, anthropologist, from Goucher College; John R. Gump, former assistant minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Annapolis (concurrently to be Assistant Dean); David Jones, of the Class of 1959, who studied Philosophy in Australia and has satisfied all Ph.D. requirements but the dissertation at the University of Texas; Louis N. Kurs, geologist, from the University of Illinois; Roger Schmeeckle, former Benedictine novice; Earl Scott, chemical engineer and professor of theology, from the Austin Theological Seminary in Austin, Texas; Deborah Traynor, who studied English Literature at the University of Chicago; Arthur C. Reisz, of the Class of 1955, Classics (to be a part-time visiting tutor); and James I. Gilbert, retired professor of Art from the University of Chicago (to be Artist-in-Residence).

Instruction

A second successful year of the preceptorial program means that this can now be considered a permanent part of the curriculum. The resultant reduction in the number of books read in the junior and senior seminars has apparently not caused too serious a sacrifice of essential reading. The revised laboratory program for the freshman year functioned well. Measurement exercises in the first semester were later followed by a chemistry sequence. Next year all sophomores will have a full year of biology. After study of body chemistry the laboratory will proceed through anatomy and physiology to embryology and genetics.

A committee under the chairmanship of Mr. Douglas Allbrook has prepared a recommendation for revising the music tutorial. This will now be taught in the sophomore year. There will be three meetings weekly, with more attention paid at the beginning to the relation of music and poetry, especially through their common rhythmic qualities. Since this change will bring about a closer relationship between the music and language tutorials, the sophomore language tutorials will meet only three times weekly instead of four. They will be devoted more completely to the study of grammar and logic. More Greek will be read at the end of the year and a new logic textbook substituted for the present manual.

In March the College was visited by an evaluation team from the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. This was a periodic visit, eleven years having elapsed since the previous visit. The team, under the chairmanship of Dean Ruth Adams of Douglass College, submitted a favorable recommendation. In June the Commission on Higher Education of the Middle States Association reaffirmed the College's accreditation for a further ten-year period. This accreditation automatically extends to St. John's College in Santa Fe for a period of two years. At that time a joint visit will be conducted by a team from the Middle States Association and the North Central Association to appraise the new college and to evaluate both campuses after two years of operation.

The Students

St. John's College in Annapolis opened in September of 1963 with an enrollment of 310 students. Nine former students re-enrolled at midyear, making the total enrollment for the year 319. There were 38 withdrawals during the year, as compared with 51 in 1962-63. The tabulation on total enrollment follows:

	Men	Women	Total
Freshmen	78	53	131
Sophomores	41	41	82
Juniors	47	17	64
Seniors	28	14	42
Grand Total	194	125	319

Like all colleges, St. John's has experienced a steadily rising number of applicants over the last several years. For this fall, a total of 420 formal applications for admission were received, as compared with 215 in 1962 and 262 in 1963. These developed from 2,447 inquiries as compared with 1,589 in 1962 and 1,719 in 1963. A total of 200 entering freshmen will arrive on the two campuses later this month, 120 registering at Annapolis on September 17th and 80 at Santa Fe on October 1st. Of these new students, 115 are men and 85 are women; they come from 25 states, the District of Columbia and three foreign countries, Germany, Mexico, and Spain. James Tolbert, the Director of Admissions, is continuing to follow an extensive program of school visits. He is assisted by Frank Hoback, of the Class of 1964, Admissions Officer in Santa Fe, and by Mrs. Patricia Grady Bassine, of the Class of 1958, who has been visiting schools in the New England area.

A lower rate of attrition in all classes, itself a most desirable development, caused the College to institute an advance-payment plan for returning upperclassmen. The purpose of this was to predict with greater accuracy the size of the upper classes so that a maximum number of entering freshmen could be admitted within the limits of the College's facilities. Deposits were received from 90 sophomores, 55 juniors and 55 seniors. This will permit the College to enroll approximately 120 freshmen.

The session began with the enforcement of the Rules of Residence in the hands of the Dean, after three years of experimentation with their administration by students. After a number of early violations had resulted in individual suspensions, the student body appeared to understand and accept the situation. The rules appeared to be better enforced than in preceding years. In other areas of student activity, the Student Polity functioned well under capable leadership. A movement to revise the Polity in the direction of a community government proved abortive. The Dean will continue to welcome any serious proposal looking toward responsible student self-government.

The Library

Over the past twelve months the Librarian and the Library Committee had the simultaneous tasks of compiling the basic list of books for the new college in Santa Fe, bringing the Annapolis collection up to date, and at the same time planning renovation of and an addition to Woodward Hall. On December 1st much of the responsibility for Santa Fe was shifted to John Knego, the new Librarian, who spent two months in Annapolis before setting up temporary headquarters in Santa Fe. The most helpful source of titles for book purchase for the western campus was found to be the Annapolis shelf list.

The architectural firm of Rogers, Taliaferro, Kostitsky & Lamb was chosen to execute the preliminary plans for the addition to Woodward Hall and for its general renovation. Specifications had been drafted by the Librarian, the Library Committee and the Treasurer of the College over a period of years. A first proposal based on these specifications was submitted by the architect in May. It is hoped that final plans can be drawn this fall at the same time that monies are being sought to execute the project.

Another task accomplished during the year was the reorganization of the music library under the capable administration of Mrs. June Main. A re-cataloguing of the collection was completed and an inventory taken. Circulation of records and scores was greater than in any preceding year, as was the circulation of books both among students and tutors. The Library benefited by the return from leave of Mrs. Candida Allanbrook to her position as circulation librarian and inter-library-loan assistant.

Administration

There were a number of changes in the administrative staff during the year under review. In January the College appointed David Tucker as Superintendent of the physical plant. Mr. Tucker had supervised the renovation of Chase-Stone House. His technical knowledge and managerial ability will greatly strengthen the College's entire maintenance program. Marion Catterton, who had served loyally as Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds for some years, resigned in June to accept a position in the Engineer's Office of the City of Annapolis.

James E. Grant replaced William E. Thomas as Assistant Business Manager at the beginning of the fiscal year. At the same time

Mrs. Jorie Hopkins became Bookstore Manager, since Mrs. Rozanne Kramer accompanied her husband on sabbatical leave. Mrs. Louise McCarthy was appointed secretary to the Assistant Deans in the place of Mrs. Audrey Kempton, who assumed the responsibility for the mimeograph room. Mr. Gerald Fitzgerald was appointed Director of the International Labor Center when the College undertook a new one-year contract for the United States Department of Labor to conduct an orientation program for Japanese and other nationals visiting the United States. Mrs. Mary Frizzell served as secretary in this office until May, when she replaced Mrs. Barbara Simpson in the Alumni office. Mrs. Virginia Cade resigned as secretary to the Dean in June, when she was replaced by Mrs. McCarthy. Other secretarial appointments included Mrs. Thyrrice Lewis, secretary to the Assistant to the President and Mrs. Georgina Koval, additional secretary in the Admissions Office.

In Santa Fe, William Hooton, as Treasurer and Assistant to the President, did yeoman service in discovering and recommending appointment of able staff assistants. John Dendahl was named Business Manager of the new college and undertook his duties in December. In April, Maurice Howell joined the staff as Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds after considerable experience in the Army and at the State Hospital in Las Vegas. Both Mr. Dendahl and Mr. Howell followed closely the progress of construction to familiarize themselves with the developing buildings. Mention should also be made of the temporary office space provided for the young college in downtown buildings during the construction period. The College is grateful for helpful contributions of space by Harvey Durand of La Posada Inn and by Seth, Montgomery, Federici and Andrews, and of office furniture by John Dillon, Jr., of Santa Fe Book and Stationery Company.

Mrs. Marie Winterhaler was appointed secretary to the President and the Assistant to the President; Miss Carol German, secretary to the Dean; and Mrs. Grace Evans, secretary in the admissions and adult education office. In the Library the following appointments were made: Mrs. Florence van Dresser, secretary; Mrs. Margaret Frazier, library assistant; Mrs. Diana Chaffee, library assistant; and Miss Ruby Rubidoeaux, cataloguer.

Maintenance Program

Great strides were made in improving the general condition of the buildings and enhancing the attractiveness of the common rooms on the Annapolis campus. McDowell and Pinkney halls underwent major exterior repairs. The ivy was removed and the brickwork cleaned, pointed and siliconed. Interestingly enough, this face-lifting revealed the names of many former St. Johnnies etched in the sandstone of McDowell and the brickwork surrounding the Pinkney doorways. One such name, still quite legible, was carefully etched by a member of the Class of 1800, some 164 years ago!

The major construction project of the year was the renovation of Chase-Stone House, completed in November. From sagging timbers and cracked walls there was created a superb building providing accommodation for 27 men. The basement is a complex of four small common rooms, each with fireplace. The College is indebted to James W. Burch, architect, for his imaginative design and careful supervision. Baltimore Contractors, Inc., executed the project with skill and precision at a total cost of $250,000. As of the end of the year a bank loan of $134,000, payable over a six-year period, was still outstanding on this project.

In other campus developments women students relinquished Randall Hall to the men in exchange for Humphreys Hall. Ultimately it is planned that Paca-Carroll House will likewise be converted into a women's dormitory, thus housing all women on the south half of the campus. A mimeograph room was set up in the small wing appended to Pinkney Hall. An intra-campus telephone system was installed which greatly facilitated communications. Unfortunately, a considerable section of underground pipeline gave way from corrosion. This necessitated replacing some 600 feet of pipe. Fortunately, the project was completed before the arrival of cold weather.

It is significant that nearly $50,000 was expended on various maintenance projects during the year. A like sum was projected for the summer of 1964. Charles T. Elzey, the Treasurer of the College, deserves high praise for the way in which he has handled the property of the College. His report wisely states that his goals will continue to be the protection of the investment in plant, increased utilization of the College's existing facilities, and the general enhancement of the attractiveness of the campus.

Finances

Once again, I am pleased to report that the College operated with a slight excess of income over expenditure. Expenses of $1,273,387 exceeded the budget by $22,000, but income of $1,274,288 was some $23,000 greater than had been anticipated. Included in both sets of figures is the sum of $55,473 covering the salaries of tutors in training for the Santa Fe campus.

As of June 30, 1964, the principal of the endowment fund had reached a new high of $6,678,772, representing an increase of approximately $180,000 during the year. The market value of the endowment fund on the same date was $7,660,978. The total income earned by the endowment fund for the year was $293,625, representing a return of 4.4% on book value or 3.8% on market value.

In Annapolis, $51,136 was received for current purposes: $18,582 from alumni, $12,255 from business and industry through the Association of Independent Colleges in Maryland, $4,189 from Board members, $8,351 from corporations and $7,579 from other friends of the College. In addition, $42,832 was received for endowment purposes. For the Santa Fe campus, a total of $414,762 from 168 donors was received, most of it designated for the construction program and the general purposes of the College.

Gifts for the Library Building Fund from Mr. and Mrs. Philip J. Levin and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence R. Fink.

Alumni

In assessing these fifteen years as President of St. John's College, I confess to a feeling of some disappointment in failing to stimulate more active interest among the alumni of the College. It would seem that St. John's graduates and non-graduates as well would have a keen appreciation of the value of the liberal education for which St. John's stands and that, even given their small numbers, they would demonstrate determined and generous support of the College.

There are hopeful signs for the future: the promise of more vigorous leadership under the alumni presidency of John C. Donohue, of the Class of 1935, the general interest in and approbation of the College in Santa Fe, as evidenced by letters from the alumni, and the response to the back-to-college program which was announced for this fall. Under this program, being developed by Thomas Parran, Jr., the Alumni Secretary, alumni and their wives will be invited to spend three days on the campus this fall, immediately prior to Homecoming on October 24th. They will attend classes, seminars and laboratories, participate in special alumni seminars and generally re-acquaint themselves with the College. It is my hope that some rejuvenation of alumni interest in St. John's will follow.

A new era lies ahead for St. John's College. The Board and the Faculty have committed themselves to a bold venture in Santa Fe, one that has never before been undertaken by another college. It gives promise of an interesting and exciting dialogue between two campuses, two faculties and two student bodies. It should broaden the horizons of the College in Annapolis and free it from any insularity of the past twenty-seven years. Its future success depends upon every person who is committed to the St. John's concept of education—board member, tutor, student, alumnus, and friend. I look forward with quiet confidence to the opening on October 1st and the dedication ceremony on October 10th and beyond that to many future college generations in St. John's College in Santa Fe. A new tradition is being born.

GIFTS AND BEQUESTS

St. John's College is a non-sectarian, independent liberal arts college deriving its income from student fees, from a limited appropriation by the Maryland General Assembly, and the gifts of its friends and alumni and from permanent endowment funds. The College's permanent endowment now exceeds $6,000,000, but increasing educational costs will require future additions to these funds.

The College invites gifts and bequests to its current budget, to its building program, and to its permanent endowment funds. Inquiries may be addressed to the President or the Treasurer. Bequests may be made in a form similar to the following:

"I hereby give and bequeath to St. John's College
in Annapolis, Maryland or
in Santa Fe, New Mexico
the sum of.....dollars."

The College would prefer gifts and bequests to be applied in the discretion of the College, but gifts and bequests may be made for specially stated purposes.
