SUMMER COLLOQUIA 1995

Instead of the usual summer lectures, there will be a series of six colloquia this summer, on Wednesday evenings at 7:30. Posters will go up in advance of each colloquium as reminders. Most of them will take place in the King William Room of the library.

A colloquium is less formal than a lecture. A member of the faculty will give a short presentation, and the remainder of the evening will be spent in open conversation.

This summer's colloquia will be:

- |          |   |
|----------|---|
| June 28  | Thomas MayChristopher Wren and the Church of St. Stephen'sWalbrook: Grandeur, Grace, and Geometry |
