sion, a feeling that "little St. John's" had, in the last 10 years, risen to a place of prominence among the educational institutions of the world.

All Groups Represented

Speaking of the overwhelming representation of all groups of St. John's alumni and all regions of the United States, Cleveland observed: "What I think happened today is that all these elements of geography and opinion have united to find the soil of St. John's College. . . . Today was a sacrament, and we must all find and make our spiritual contribution to St. John's."

Justice Levin C. Bailey expressed the new feeling toward the college on the part of the alumni, when he said "Many of us of the old regime who were not familiar with the intricacies of the new, were a bit suspicious. . . . Most, if not all those misgivings have been dispelled."

Brigadier General William Purnell, president of the association, opened the meeting and Francis Hill, class of 1914, acted as Master of Ceremonies.

Kieffer and State Senator Wilbur F. Dulin both spoke at the meeting, the latter declaring that the "people of Anne Arundel county have lived with John Kieffer since 1929 and will carry on with him."

Welcome From Seniors

Rogers Albritton extended a welcome to the alumni from the senior class of St. John's. "Some of us," he said, "have wondered what it is we welcome you back to. We ought to consider what the continuity of a college is. . . . It is not the architecture, not old friends, but the tradition of learning. Isn't that what connects us? It is all of the past that can be revisited."

The official conclusion of the homecoming ceremonies was a chorus of "St. John's Forever" and a rousing spelling yell.

Reinstating College

Kieffer said he and Dean Raymond N. Wilburn would appear at a meeting of the Middle Atlantic States Association of colleges and secondary schools to discuss the possibility of a committee's consideration of reinstating St. John's. He said the college lost its accreditation 12 years ago as a result of "near bankruptcy" not because of academic shortcomings.

The college is solvent and has operating funds to carry it through to the 1948-1949 academic year, Logan Morrill, treasurer, reported. He said that $150,000 a year will be needed after this year and the alumni instituted a fund for this purpose.

However, the money contributed to the fund the first year will be

ST. JOHN'S ALUMNI HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

The annual banquet of the St. John's Alumni Association on Saturday brought to a close one of the most successful homecoming days in the recent history of the college. Some 300 alumni, faculty and seniors jammed the main dining room of Carvel Hall to enjoy a hearty turkey dinner and observe the fact, as stated by chairman of the Board of Visitors and Governors Richard Cleveland that "today, in effect, if you please, Dr. Van Dusen made us respectable."

Cleveland was referring to the address by the head of Union Theological Seminary at the inauguration ceremony for President John S. Kieffer earlier in the day, an address which set the emotional theme for the occa-

St. John's Alumni To Discuss Resumption Of College Sports

St. John's College alumni will have a chance to express themselves Saturday on whether intercollegiate athletics should be revived at the institution.

A general meeting of graduates has been planned in connection with the inauguration of John S. Kieffer as president, and one subject certain to be discussed is a proposal of the reactivated Annapolis and Anne Arundel County chapter of the Alumni Association.

The chapter was on record today as favoring resumption of intercollegiate athletics "as soon as feasible." Members said they would offer a resolution to that effect when the association convenes.

Sports at the college now are limited to intramural contests. St. John's at one time engaged in intercollegiate lacrosse, football, baseball, basketball and tennis.
