

REMOTE LEARNING THAT KEEPS PEOPLE ENGAGED AND CONNECTED

Use smart social learning tools to get teams talking

Remote work is here to stay. And while being able to work from anywhere has created enormous benefits for both individuals and organizations, remote work comes with challenges, too. Namely: how can you engage learners and help them feel more connected in a virtual environment? And for team leaders, how can you contextualize learning material, adding comments you might have once offered in person?

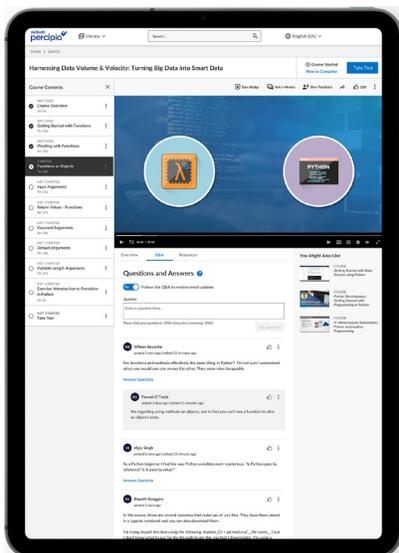

With Skillsoft Percipio's Q&A functionality at the course level, organizations now have a powerful new tool to enable social learning, creating a highly skilled and connected workforce while supporting retention. Learners can now share and discuss ideas about specific courses, follow discussions that spark their interest, and have an avenue for social learning and interaction outside of the traditional office setting. In other words, precisely the kind of engagement that unlocks skills and knowledge throughout the organization.

To ensure that Q&A offers a safe, positive environment for social learning in Percipio, learners can report inappropriate comments, questions, and answers, and admins have the power to delete them. And, of course, all conversations will only be visible within your organization.

When learners are engaged and inspired, it enables organizations to create a future-fit workforce, skilled and ready for the jobs of tomorrow.
