Can SMMUSD eliminate pesticide use?

School board states new goal following recent flea infestation

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

Can Santa Monica-Malibu schools function without using any pesticides?

The district's policy on pest control now includes that stated goal, a lofty aspiration in the aftermath of a flea infestation at a local elementary campus that required an army of chemicals to eradicate.

SMMUSD is aiming to follow through on its commitment by focusing on long-term prevention efforts, including better monitoring and maintenance, although officials acknowledged the barriers to eliminating pesticide use altogether.

The district will consider using pesticides "only after careful monitoring indicates that they are needed" and will use chemicals "that pose the least possible hazard and are effective in a manner that minimizes risks to people, property and the environment," reads the updated SMMUSD policy, which the local Board of Education approved at its meeting Dec. 17.

The district has committed to a

2 PCH crashes cause multiple injuries, freeway closures over New Year's weekend

BY JENNIFER MAAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

Two separate car accidents involving the Pacific Coast Highway led to road closures and a total of six injured parties over the holiday weekend.

On Friday, Dec. 31 at 9:40 p.m., a car crashed into the tunnel that connects the westbound I-10 freeway to the PCH in Santa Monica. Two people were injured in the New Year's Eve crash and transported to the hospital. The westbound I-10 freeway was shut down at Fourth Street and traffic was diverted off the freeway while police conducted their investigation and the wreckage was removed from the scene. The freeway reopened in that location at 2:23 a.m. According to Sgt. Erika Aklufi of the Santa Monica Police Department, drunken driving was not reported as a factor in the crash.

The second crash, which closed both the PCH and the I-10, occurred on Sunday, Jan. 2 around 12 p.m. Six cars, travelling both

Boys basketball: Samohi wins holiday tournament

Mathews named division MVP at MaxPreps Holiday Classic

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

Maybe two weeks without a game was exactly what the Santa Monica High boys basketball team needed.

After a prolonged stretch with no scheduled competition, the Vikings engineered four wins in five days to capture the championship of their division at the MaxPreps Holiday Classic tournament at Rancho Mirage High School near Palm Springs.

Samohi sealed its title with a 53-43 victory over Mercer Island (Wash.) on Wednesday, when USC-bound senior guard Jonah Mathews was named most valuable player of the bracket and two of his teammates, senior forward Mikhail Brown and junior forward Daniel Schreier, earned all-tournament recognition.

Entering the tournament, which featured several teams from outside California, the Vikings had only played once since falling by two points to Pasadena-La Salle at the El Segundo tournament.

But they appeared to be in fine form at the MaxPreps event, holding their four opponents to an average of just 49.5 points per game as they closed out the calendar year.

Samohi started out by clobbering Las Vegas-Palo Verde 75-45 on Dec. 26 at Xavier College Preparatory High School in Palm Desert. Coach James Hecht's squad outscored Palo Verde by 13 in the first quarter and by nine in the third to pull away for an easy victory.

The win propelled the Vikings into a matchup against Portland-Franklin, whose roster features 6-foot-10 Joseph Smoyer. And Mathews was up for the challenge, pouring in 30 points to lead Samohi in a 73-59 triumph Dec. 28.

A day later, the Vikings entered the tournament semifinals against Rancho Cucamonga-Etiwanda and pulled off a 57-51 victory. Trailing by eight at the end of the first quarter, Samohi drew even at 40-40 entering the final period and showed poise down the stretch. Mathews hit a crucial 3-pointer early in the fourth as part of a 23-point performance that included five buckets from beyond the arc.

All that stood between the Vikings and a tournament championship was Mercer Island, which topped Bountiful (Utah), Riverside-North and Las Vegas-Desert Pines to reach the finals.

In the Dec. 30 title game, Samohi trailed by three at the end of the first quarter. But the team tightened its defense, giving up just three points in the second and eight points in the third as it slowly regained control. Mathews had 21 points in the win.

Dream Orchestra's 'I Have a Dream' concert honors Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. by raising funds for Samaritan's Purse

Top professional musicians, talented young students, opera singers and choir members from all over Los Angeles and Orange County are joining forces to give a memorable concert for a great cause.

"All these talented musicians and singers are performing as volunteers. With these giving hearts, we will perform the most beautiful Beethoven 9th," says Daniel Suk, artistic director of Dream Orchestra.

"Join us in our vision and dream of feeding the hungry of the world. Join us to support Samaritan's Purse's work around the world! Join us and let's make our world a better place!"

The concert is part of the annual charity program by Dream Orchestra and Urth Caffé.

The "I Have a Dream to Give to Those Most in Need" concert will take place at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 16 at Barnum Hall of Santa Monica High School (600 Olympic Blvd.). A dessert reception by Urth Caffé follows the concert.

Admission is $5 per person and 100 percent of proceeds from tickets and donations made at the concert will be given to Samaritan's Purse. Tickets are available by calling (800) 838-3006, by visiting any Urth Caffé location or visiting brownpaperticket.com or www.dreamorchestra.org.

Celebrating its 45th anniversary this year, Samaritan's Purse (www.samaritanspurse.org) provides aid to people who are victims of war, poverty, natural disasters, disease, and famine around the world.

Among its efforts:

· It mobilizes staff and equipment and enlists thousands of volunteers to provide emergency aid to victims of tornadoes, hurricanes, wildfires, floods, and other natural disasters in the United States. They often stay behind after our initial response to rebuild or restore houses for needy families.

· Operation Christmas Child delivers more than 8 million shoebox gifts to poor children in more than 100 countries each year.

· World Medical Mission sends doctors, equipment, and supplies to underprivileged countries.

· Its programs for women fights human trafficking, provide vocational and literacy education, and health programs for mothers and children.

· Community development and vocational programs in impoverished villages and neighborhoods help people break the cycle of poverty.

· Vulnerable children are rescued, educated, fed, clothed and sheltered.

Samaritan's Purse has a top four-star rating from Charity Navigator, the nation's largest and most-utilized evaluator of charities (www.charitynavigator.org).

Looking into the crystal ball

AS WE SLIP INTO "SWEET 16," IT'S TIME to reflect on where we have been and where, as a community, we're heading.

We all have things we love about Santa Monica. Number one is climate and geography, the beach, the glorious sunsets over the Pacific and the Santa Monica Pier.

We share the cultural, educational and athletic opportunities by being next to one of the world's great cities. We benefit from the historical, recreational and lifestyle opportunities that Southern California provides.

We're fortunate that our city is low rise and relatively low-density compared to West Los Angeles or Century City. Despite the lack of dense high-rises, crowding and traffic resulting from City Hall's bungled transportation policy has turned this community into one of the most congested and unpleasant urban areas in the United States.

I've also never heard anybody say that one of the best thing about living in Santa Monica is its city government or public schools. One only has to look at traffic or the lingering achievement gap between various demographics of Santa Monica-Malibu Unified Scholl District (SMMUSD) students to see why.

This is an election year, so we can makes changes to make government more responsive to us as opposed to special interests and socialistic politicians hell-bent on forcing their impractical and failed agendas down our throats.

This year, we can replace four councilpersons whose terms expire. Current Mayor Tony Vazquez, Mayor Pro Tempore Ted Winterer, Gleam Davis and Terry O'Day will have to be re-elected if they want to stay in power another four years.

O'Day and Davis have been consistent pro-development votes on council and their allegiance to special interests has put them at odds with most voters. Their political demise could mean a more community-centered city council.

I'm not impressed with Vazquez or Ted Winterer. I'm disappointed in Vazquez's lack of support for residents and homeowners - especially when the zoning updates to the new Land Use and Circulation Element (LUCE) were being promulgated earlier this year. Winterer hasn't accomplished much since taking office. Both need to step up their games if they expect to be re-elected.

A couple of good folks are waiting in the wings. Recreation and Parks Chair Phil Brock, activist John Cyrus Smith, Residocracy founder Armen Melkonians Northeast Neighbors Chair Amy Aukstikalnis and Vice Chair Tricia Crane and a couple of other neighborhood activists have caught my eye.

A thorough house cleaning is in order at the SMMUSD school board. I blame them for ongoing inept fiscal management and ineffectual educational equality policies that have victimized minority students.

The struggles with charitable funding, wherein all donations go into a central pot with the board deciding how your school contributions will be spent, contribute to the dysfunction.

With the eventual split of Malibu from the district, problems will get worse. A new board is "a must" if our schools are to improve.

Up for re-election to the school board this fall are Dr. Jose Escarce a champion of permit student funding, Maria Leon-Vazquez (Mrs. Tony Vazquez) whose inability to "bridge the gap" goes back as far as 2001 and Ralph Mechur a 2015 political appointee who failed to be elected in 2014. Contrary to a previous comment in this space, board member Oscar de la Torre's term doesn't expire until 2018.

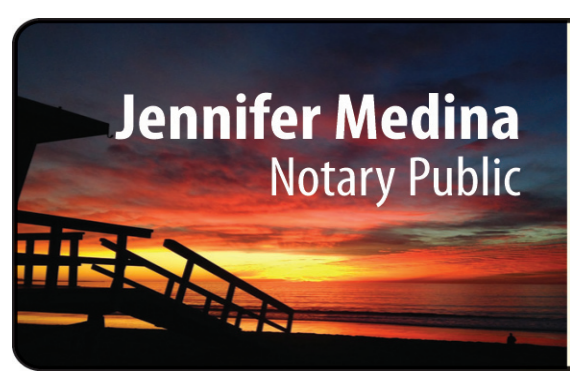

Events to look forward to in the coming months include the opening of the Expo Light Rail from Culver City to downtown Santa Monica in April or May. Expo will carry commuters from downtown Santa Monica to downtown Los Angeles when operational. While excited about the transportation advantages the trains will provide, there are some negative issues to deal with when Expo takes on paying passengers. I'm concerned about public safety both on the tracks and with the crowds Expo could bring. Many challenges are ahead.

Lastly, wages and labor issues are back in 2016. Most households have received numerous mailers from FairWageSantaMonica.Com (One Fair Wage Coalition.) The group is promoting a $15 per hour minimum wage for all workers in Santa Monica with no loopholes or exceptions including current union contracts that agree to a lower wage.

There's virtually no information on this deep-pocketed group. Identities and affiliations have been hidden, but the Coalition has to be spending about $100,000 on three, glossy citywide mailers with a fourth piece to come just before the citywide minimum wage will be under consideration by City Council on January 12.

Secret groups - especially those with enough lucre to do four fancy mailers to 38,000 households - raise red flags with me. Who really is the Fair Wage Coalition and what is their real agenda?

Council better be careful here or it'll find itself in a compact with the devil - and you know we'll all be paying for that mistake as time goes forward.

ban on anticoagulant rodenticides since early 2014, according to Jan Maez, the district's chief financial officer, but officials expressed interest in formalizing SMMUSD best practices more generally.

"It's something we believed we should put in policy," Maez said.

Acting facilities director Carey Upton urged the board to consider finding a new contractor for pest control, a process that could take several months. He said the district should expect to spend as much as $60,000 annually on thorough pest management, more than double the roughly $28,000 it currently spends each year. Prevention work across the district would also likely require a one-time expenditure of about $120,000, he said.

Board member Jose Escarce said he supported allocating money for more comprehensive solutions.

"It would be hypocritical to demand [integrated pest management] and not provide the resources," he said.

Upton said the district needs more help with environmental compliance and recommended the hiring of an additional staffer in the facilities division to work on related issues. But, he added, effective pest control also hinges on the actions of students and other members of SMMUSD school communities.

"We're not going to get even near this goal if, every day after lunch, the place is strewn with trash," Upton said. "As long as we're providing food and a great environment for the pest, we're going to have pests. We're going to have to work our way through how to get everyone on board with this idea ... that the food you just dropped on the ground might force us to use a pesticide that could end up back in your system."

When pest control came up for discussion in October, board members sought to update the district's policy with a stated goal of not using pesticides, insecticides or rodenticides. Their conversations were fueled in part by a flea infestation at Roosevelt Elementary School, where many classrooms were treated with a variety of pesticides when non-toxic alternatives were deemed ineffective.

"When we sent out the first notice [about the infestation], we received emails from parents who were very concerned about us using any form of pesticide," Upton said. But as the severity of the problem escalated, "we got more than a dozen emails from people asking us why we haven't closed the school, tented the entire thing and nuked the fleas out of existence."

The district has seen a rise in ants, spiders, roaches and fleas since it stopped regular perimeter spraying of pesticides about two years, according to Upton. He said the district doesn't have a strong command of non-toxic pesticide options and added that preventive pesticide treatments are "a pretty good idea."

Upton noted that Pepperdine University has stopped using most rodenticides but that it regularly treats cafeterias, dormitories and other areas with food waste.

"It is a very good aspirational goal," he said of the new SMMUSD language on pest control. "But we're not yet at a place, and products are not at a place, to go to non-use of pesticides."

northbound and southbound, were involved in what Aklufi called a "chain reaction crash."

There were a total of four people transported to the hospital following the crash, and authorities initially believed that one of the patients was critically injured. However, Aklufi reported that all of the injuries resulting from the crash ended up being fairly moderate.

The crash forced a shut down of the PCH in both directions. The southbound stretch was shut down for around four hours at Entrada Drive in Los Angeles, according to Aklufi. The westbound I-10 was also shut down at 20th Street. Drunk driving was not reported as a factor in this crash either. The cause of the collision is still under investigation.

California lawmakers return with full plate of heady issues

XBY JULIET WILLIAMS
Associated Press

Sacramento California lawmakers return to the Capitol Monday facing two of the most vexing problems from last year: a looming $1 billion hole in funding for the state's health care program for the poor and a $59 billion backlog in road repairs needed over the next decade.

Gov. Jerry Brown called special sessions last year to address both issues, but he and lawmakers never came close to a deal on either, adding to the urgency this year.

Lawmakers are also eager to make big moves on signature issues such as climate change, higher education, income inequality and gun control. Ensuring a steady water supply to California's 39 million residents is also a priority after four years of drought.

"We'll remain focused on pursuing big and bold ideas, tackle important issues facing Californians and the nation," Senate President Pro Tem Kevin de Leon, D-Los Angeles, said.

The state's revenues are finally surging, potentially coming in $3.6 billion ahead of forecasts for fiscal 2015 with $12 billion in the state rainy day fund, according to the independent state legislative analyst.

That leaves both Democrats and Republicans with wiggle room to push for spending on social programs that were scaled back during the recession. The wish list includes paying more to doctors who treat patients in Medi-Cal, the state's health care program for the poor, boosting funding for the developmentally disabled and building more affordable housing.

But lawmakers will again be confronted with the Democratic governor's "less is more" spending approach when he releases his budget proposal, due by Jan. 10.

Lawmakers finished in August without coming up with a replacement for a major health care tax that will expire in June — money needed to pay for the Medi-Cal program that has seen a surge in enrollees under the Affordable Care Act.

"We must hammer out a deal because we run the risk of a $1 billion hole in our general fund budget that has very real consequences, especially to the most vulnerable," de Leon said.

The governor's chief adviser, Nancy McFadden, has cautioned against relying on the extra tax money coming in, telling a Public Policy Institute of California panel in December that "just saying the general fund can pick this up doesn't cut it."

Even as more people enroll, the program faces a shortage of doctors since reimbursement payments were slashed by 10 percent during the recession.

"We've overpromised in California," said Senate Minority Leader Jean Fuller, R-Bakersfield. "We've promised that they'd have services but we're paying such a low rate that doctors are opting out."

Members of both parties also appear to agree that the state should boost funding for services to help the developmentally disabled, another group that absorbed cuts during the recession. Hundreds of disabled people rallied outside the Capitol last session but the final budget deal did not include more money for the program.

Fuller said taking care of this vulnerable population "is very clearly the state's responsibility."

And then there is the crumbling infrastructure. Brown's administration proposed a package of fees and taxes to fund a portion of the repairs in the final weeks of last year's session, but he has not been a public force in offering solutions.

Republicans have rejected the idea of taxes and fees, arguing that the state should return diverted transportation money and make major cuts to Caltrans before asking for more.

"We've done the new taxes over and over and over, and here we are again," Fuller said.

De Leon said he's optimistic about reaching a compromise, adding, "everyone needs to stretch a little bit."

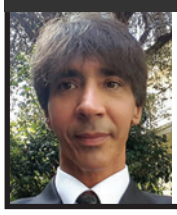

Many of the lawmakers returning for the second year of a two-year session face re-election. Looming over the work of the Legislature are dozens of initiatives that could appear alongside them on the ballot in November.

Major proposals so far include a $2-a-pack tax on cigarettes for health care, extending voter-approved Proposition 30 income taxes on the wealthy, boosting the minimum wage to $15 an hour, legalizing recreational marijuana and a package of gun control measures proposed by Lt. Gov. Gavin Newsom.

Democrats in both houses are also expected to propose a gun control package in the wake of the San Bernardino shootings, including how to address so-called ghost guns built at home from parts, making them difficult to trace.

With so many issues up for grabs, only one thing is certain: Whatever tasks the Legislature is unable or unwilling to finish could be in voters' hands come November.

4 shot dead including man, wife in suburban Los Angeles home

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rowland Heights - A man shot and killed his wife and two others in his home on New Year's Eve before his son wrestled the gun away and fatally shot him in a chain of events apparently set off by a dispute over a washing machine, authorities said.

Michael John Morey, 54, shot and killed his bedridden wife, Betty Jean Morey; his son's 48-year-old girlfriend, Linda Patricia Merrell, who also lives at the house in Rowland Heights; and a 27-year-old house guest, Ernesto Calzadilla, Los Angeles County coroner and sheriff's officials said.

The father was a heavy drinker with a large gun collection, and authorities had made dozens of previous trips to the home, the sheriff's department said.

Investigators were talking to surviving witnesses to figure out what led to the father pulling out a semi-automatic pistol and opening fire Thursday night.

"It looks like it was a dispute between the dad and the son's girlfriend, probably over using the washing machine," Sheriff's Lt. John Corina told the San Gabriel Valley Tribune. "For some reason, this set the dad off."

The son, 33-year-old Christopher Morey, eventually recovered the gun from his father and shot him, authorities said. Morey is being held on suspicion of murder on $1 million bail, authorities said. Deputies reached by phone did not know if he has an attorney who could comment.

Prosecutors will review the evidence to determine whether to file charges against him. Corina said the potential case will consider whether the father still posed a threat when his son shot him.

Christopher Morey and his girlfriend were living in the home with the 54-year-old mother, who had recently had a stroke.

"They had been taking care of her," Corina said. "She was in a hospital bed there in the middle of the living room."

The mother and brother of Calzadilla were outside the home Friday and told the Tribune that he was the father of an 8-month-old daughter.

The mother, Maria Cruz, said the family was nice to Calzadilla and he liked being at the house.

But Wilfred Calzadilla, said his brother had generally stopped going to the house because of worries about the father, making an exception on New Year's Eve.

"Mixing alcohol and guns never ends good," Wilfred Calzadilla said.

Workers return to site where San Bernardino attackers killed

BY JUSTIN PRITCHARD
Associated Press

San Bernardino - In the offices of the Inland Regional Center, Christmas did not come.

Tinsel still festoons cubicles. A small tree with presents sits undisturbed. A sign-up sheet to bring in food remains empty of names.

The staff was still gearing up for the holidays on Dec. 2, the day 14 people were massacred on the center's gleaming campus.

Few of its 600 employees have gone to the office since, other than a brief visit to gather personal belongings a week after the terror attack.

On Monday, they return.

While many have continued to work, visiting the homes of autistic children and mentally disabled adults, they haven't been together in the place where everything froze once law enforcement officers whisked them away.

Amid the investigation and cleanup, the campus has been locked behind a chain link fence wrapped in green mesh. Within that perimeter, in one corner, is a second fence.

It seals the conference center that San Bernardino County's health department was renting for a holiday luncheon when the two attackers began their assault. A county restaurant inspector targeting his co-workers was joined by his wife in killing 14 and injuring dozens.

The conference building will not reopen Monday, and it's not clear when it might.

For now, the act of reuniting elsewhere on campus will be a huge step forward for Inland Regional Center staff. They miss the friendly faces, the hallway chit chat. They yearn to renew a sense of stability at an institution unmoored by violence.

"That's what I'm hearing from them: 'We want to be together again. We want to be back at work,'" said Lavinia Johnson, the center's executive director.

Sitting for an interview in a tidy courtyard shaded by two of the center's large, red stone buildings, Johnson and associate executive director Kevin Urtz reflected on the reopening. Johnson apologized for tree debris that has collected in the absence of caretakers. Several Japanese maples still clung to the last of their red leaves.

The plan for Monday morning is, after a welcome and some food in the lounges, to do what social workers and counselors do best — sit and talk.

"Just be together again," Johnson said, "share where they're at."

After that, it's back to work. Professional counselors will be available for employees who want them.

"Our goal is to help people help themselves. And that's pretty much the same strategy that we want to take with our staff," Urtz said. "You know, help them through this."

Both have worked more than 25 years at the Inland Regional Center, which with nearly 31,000 disabled clients in the working-class sprawl east of Los Angeles is the largest of 21 in California. It is a vital community resource in a place where about one-third of households live below the poverty line.

Johnson and Urtz expect staff to be resilient, in the spirit of the #SBStrong phrase that has become a community rallying cry. They thanked law enforcement and expressed condolences for the families of the slain.

While people want to move ahead, Urtz doesn't expect ever to put that day behind fully.

"I don't think we're ever going to just, you know," he said, with his voice trailing off. "No, it's too big."

At the same time, with strengthened security, both said they are confident that the site is safe. After all, center employees or clients were not the focus of the attackers, whom the FBI says were motivated by radical Islamist beliefs.

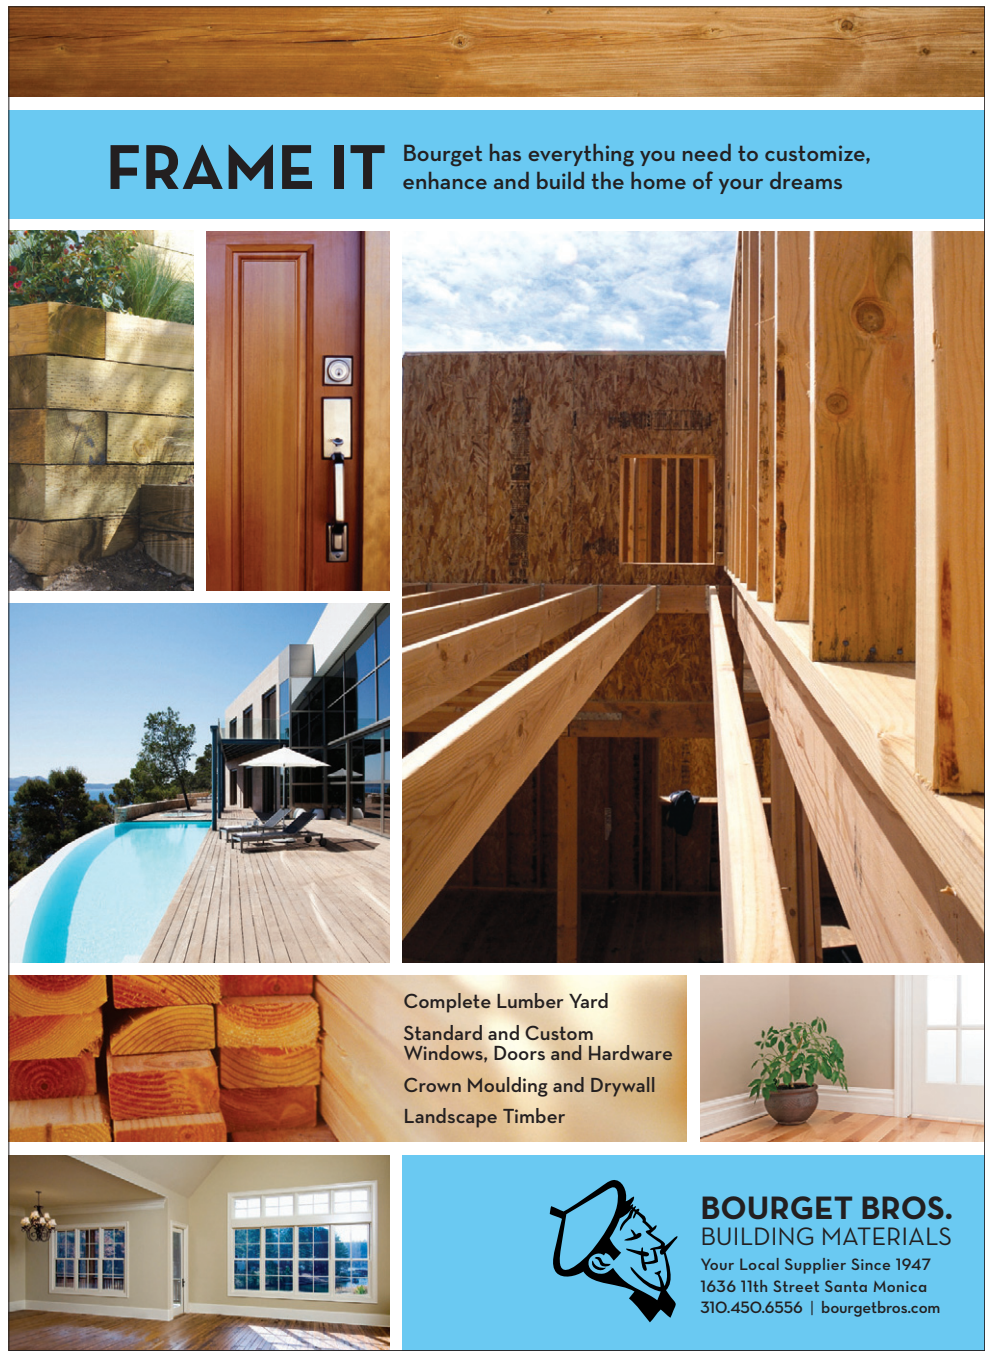

Last week, Johnson was preparing for the reopening when she stopped by her office.

While there, she put away her Christmas decorations. And she thought how, this year, she didn't get to enjoy them.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ In December, Canada's supportive organization The Transgender Project released a biographical video of the former Paul Wolscht, 46 and the father of seven children with his ex-wife, Marie, describing his new life as not only a female but a 6-year-old female, Stephoknee Wolscht. She told the Daily Xtra (gay and lesbian news site) that not acting her real age (even while doing "adult" things like working a job and driving a car) enables her to escape "depression and suicidal thoughts." Among the trans-age's favorite activities are (coloring-book) coloring, creating a play-like "kingdom," and wearing "really pretty clothes." Stephoknee now lives with the couple who adopted her. [The Independent (London), 12-16-2015]

■ Thee, Not Me: American "millennials" (those aged 18 to 29) continue a "long-standing tradition," The Washington Post wrote in December, describing a Harvard Institute of Politics poll on their views on war. Following the recent Paris terrorist attacks, about 60 percent of U.S. millennials said additional American troops would be needed to fight the Islamic State, but 85 percent answered, in the next question, that no, they themselves were "probably" or "definitely" not joining the military. Gather bills tonight, Libra

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Touch base with your dreams early in the day. You will be able to move with certainty on a plan that you have long thought about. Indulge a higher-up, but still express your views. You are in a position where you can clear up snafus. Tonight: Make time for a loved one.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Defer to a friend. Detach some when speaking to others, as they are likely to come up with some controversial plans. Know that nuggets of wisdom could be embedded in this discussion. You will need to sort through what you hear. Tonight: Play devil's advocate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Though you certainly don't approve of sloppiness or incomplete work, you inadvertently might have created exactly that. Let a trusted critic go over what you are doing and point out problem areas. Be grateful rather than defensive. Tonight: Walk off some stress.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ Evaluate a different point of view. Observe what is happening behind the scenes before coming to a conclusion. Others might be challenging, yet you could see them as being negative and controlling. Walk away from defensiveness. Tonight: Express an ability to identify with others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ A partner will present an option that could have you pinching yourself. Evaluate a change and its effectiveness. You still might nix it because of some of the implications involved. You would prefer to wait, mull over what you hear and find another path. Tonight: Say "yes."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ You are coming from a grounded perspective, but your views could differ from those of the majority of people. Controversy might result in a plethora of ideas and solutions. You might find some ideas more ethical or positive than others. Tonight: Return calls and emails.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Realize what is happening behind the scenes between you and a loved one. Your personal life could be controversial on some level, but you refuse to be open enough to receive comments or criticism. Before you sink more money into a project, listen. Tonight: Gather bills.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Seize the moment, and don't create a problem where there is none. If you adjust your thinking and open up some, you'll empower your own ideas. Know that you don't always need to be right. Use your intuition when sorting through suggestions. Tonight: Others seek you out.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ As difficult as it might be, take a step back and listen to suggestions. In fact, you might not even want to take the lead. If that's the case, you will see a true learning experience evolve for some of the people involved. Tonight: Take some much-needed personal time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ You have always aimed high, but you need to know when you have pushed yourself too hard. When you use your talents, you add dimension to what is happening. Be willing to support a friend or group in a project. Tonight: Act as if you don't have a care in the world.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ You will attempt to do something in a new way. You might experience a certain amount of fatigue, as you notice others becoming more controlling. Consider how many times friends or loved ones have seen you in the same light. Be less critical. Tonight: A must show.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ While others might push you too hard for your taste, you'll come to the conclusion that you need to get more information, seek out more opinions and detach a bit. Understand that there is a whole set of new ideas and possibilities that you are missing. Tonight: Follow your sixth sense.

Monday, January 4, 2016

This year your ideas come from a strong sense of direction and intuition. You often might dress them up as being logical, but on some level they are not. Your creativity soars, and the people around you are naturally positive. A new group of friends who reflect your most dynamic self evolves. If you are single, don't even consider a commitment until you can accept someone completely. Don't be critical of this person's unique qualities and limitations. If you are attached, travel plays a significant role in your relationship. As a couple, you open up more because of your exposure to different cultures. SCORPIO sticks to you like glue.

WINDOW REPLACEMENT
an Andersen Company

= Our Los Angeles Area Customers

Why have 26,200 Southern California homeowners chosen us to replace their windows?

No pressure. During your Free Window Diagnosis, we'll give you an exact, down-to-the-penny price that's good for an entire year.

112 years of window expertise. We're the replacement division of Andersen, the window and door brand that your dad told you to trust.

No middleman to deal with. There's no runaround between the installer and the manufacturer because we handle it all, from custom-building to installing to warranting all our products.

We won't sell you vinyl. We've replaced thousands of poor-quality vinyl windows and patio doors, so we made our window's Fibrex composite material two times stronger than vinyl.

Must call before January 31st!

UCLA pediatrics — the right start for kids

What's the only thing more important than your health? If you're like most people, it's your child's. At UCLA, we understand. We offer complete pediatric care for infants, children and teens at our hospitals and offices throughout the area. It's the world-renowned care UCLA is known for, right in your neighborhood — for the ones you care about most.
