Santa Monica Restaurant Week returns

BRENNON DIXSON
SMDP Staff Writer

Santa Monica Restaurant Week is set to make its return to the city Monday and it's bringing a record number of participating eateries along with it.

Santa Monica's Restaurant Week is held every year in conjunction with California Restaurant Month in an effort to highlight the many fine-dining options that are available in the area as well as the world-renowned Santa Monica Farmers Market, which is responsible for providing many of the tasteful and seasonal ingredients that are often used in local eateries.

Back for its eighth year, Santa Monica Travel & Tourism's signature culinary program will run from Monday, Jan. 6 through Sunday, Jan. 12, and is expected bring nearly 40 restaurants together to offer diners an opportunity to begin the new decade on a healthy note while they enjoy the city's vibrant food scene.

"We are blessed with an abundance of restaurant choices in Santa Monica and we like to use our restaurant week as a campaign to remind our residents of the wonderful dining opportunities that are available," said SMTT's Public Relations Manager Lauren Salisbury.

This year's festivities will feature Santa Monica's top restaurants, a new custom ingredient and a social media contest giveaway that encourages local residents to take indulge in healthy, kumquat-inspired culinary creations cultivated from Santa Monica Farmers Markets at restaurants throughout the city.

KUMQUAT: About 40 restaurants, including Azule and Massilia are participating in Restaurant Week.

Salisbury said those participating in the contest will have the chance to win a $500 dining certificate by simply sharing photos on social media using the hashtag #SMRestaurantWeek, but the real treat is the countless dishes that will be served at the 37 participating restaurants.

Organizations partner to tell local residents' stories

BRENNON DIXSON

Founded in 2003 by award-winning documentary producer and MacArthur Fellow Dave Isay, StoryCorps has traveled to every corner of the country to record interviews that will be passed down for generations to come.

Having collected more than 65,000 interviews from Americans in all 50 states, StoryCorps has gathered one of the largest single collections of human voices ever recorded in an effort to celebrate and archive the stories of everyday Americans.

"StoryCorps tells the true American story — that we are a people defined by small acts of courage, kindness and heroism," Isay said, describing how each interview reminds people that their lives matter and will not be forgotten. "By strengthening connections between people and building an archive that reflects the rich diversity of American voices, we hope to build StoryCorps into an enduring institution that will touch the lives of every American family."

SMC Photo Dept. to Offer Free Family Portraits Jan. 10-11 For Wildfire First Responders

The faculty and students of the Santa Monica College (SMC) Photography Department will offer free group portraits to families of first responders who helped save life and property during the recent California wildfires.

The photo sessions – to be scheduled on a first-come, first-served basis–will take place on Friday, Jan. 10 and Saturday, Jan. 11, 2020 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Those interested can book appointments through the reservation link available at smc.edu/photo.

Each family will receive a private 20-minute session in the photo studios at SMC's main campus at 1900 Pico Blvd. in Santa Monica. The package includes hair and makeup touch-up services to be provided by SMC Cosmetology students; SMC Fashion Design & Merchandising students will also be on hand to assist with last-minute wardrobe styling adjustments. Archival B&W matted prints and a flash drive with all the images from the session will be provided to families.

The SMC photo studios are located on the first floor of Drescher Hall. Free parking is available in adjacent lots on Pico Blvd. (Lots 3 and 4); a map of SMC's main campus is at: smc.edu/MapsDirections.

The student photographers participating in the project are enrolled in classes taught by the entire department's faculty under the guidance of Chair Josh Sanseri. In January 2019, the SMC Photo, Fashion and Cosmetolgy Departments offered free family portraits for those who had lost their homes in the Woolsey Fire.

"The overwhelming gratitude we and our students received from those who'd lost so much in the Woolsey Fire last year touched all of us deeply," said Craig Mohr, SMC Photography professor, "And when the devastating fires struck again this fall, we knew that we had to do something again - this time round, for the fire responders who worked tirelessly and in grave danger to save life and property. It's our way of saying, 'thank you' from the bottom of our hearts!"

The Santa Monica College Foundation partnered with the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified District to raise over $51,000 for families of students and employees who lost homes and/or had their homes damaged in the Woolsey Fire. Donations may still be made at: santamonicacollegefoundation.org/malibufirerelief

SMC's Photography Department offers both an Associate of Arts degree as well as a Certificate of Achievement in Photography; see smc.edu/photo for more information. The SMC Cosmetology department offers a number of options–including an Associate Degree and Certificate of Achievement in Cosmetology, and department certificates in esthetician, nail care, and business/salon entrepreneurship. And SMC's Fashion Design & Merchandising department offers an Associate Degree and Certificate of Achievement in two areas: Fashion Design and Fashion Merchandising.

outfitted with a recording studio — will be parked on the Third Street Promenade at Wilshire Boulevard now through Feb. 7, and local residents are invited to stop by for an interview.

In StoryCorps' MobileBooth, two people are able to record a meaningful conversation with one another about who they are, what they've learned in life and how they want to be remembered while a trained StoryCorps facilitator guides them through the interview process, according to event organizers. At the end of each 40-minute recording session, participants receive a downloadable link to their conversation and with participant permission, a second copy is archived at the American Folklife Center at the Library of Congress for future generations to hear.

"The power the Third Street Promenade has to bring people together to engage and learn from one another is what makes it such a special place for our residents and visitors from around the world," said Kathleen Rawson, CEO of Downtown Santa Monica, Inc. "Downtowns and city centers have always been more about the people than the place," and StoryCorps offers a unique opportunity to learn these peoples' stories as they try to offer an enduring picture of what life was like in the local community.

Interview reservations can be made online at bit.ly/2syFEq5, event organizers said. This "stop" is made possible by a first-of-its-kind partnership between Santa Monica College and its Emeritus Program; the Corporation for Public Broadcasting; SMC's NPR station KCRW and Downtown Santa Monica, Inc.

"Santa Monica College is tremendously delighted to be part of StoryCorps' return to our beautiful city," said Dr. Kathryn E. Jeffery, SMC's Superintendent and President. "The ethos behind this project — that every individual life matters — dovetails in a singular way with the mission of our college, which is to inspire and guide human beings towards fulfilling their greatest potential through higher education."

Eco-friendly labels

DEAR EARTHTALK: THERE ARE SO MANY ECO-LABELS OUT THERE THESE DAYS. HOW CAN I TELL WHICH ONES ARE VALID AND NOT JUST "GREENWASHING"?

- Penny Rasmussen, Calumet, MN

With countless products now available labeled as "eco-friendly," "safe for the environment" or "organic," it's hard to know which ones are actually good for the planet. Many are legitimate, but lots of others feature deceptive or unsubstantiated claims. And even the legitimate labels vary a lot in meaning. Truly valid eco-labels are awarded by independent third parties, not the companies who sell products on which they're featured. These days many companies are placing misleading claims and nonsense labels on their products to create the illusion of environmental friendliness, a practice known as "greenwashing."

Third parties, on the other hand, require that products meet certain specific criteria before granting the right to display their eco-label. When we know they are trustworthy, eco-labels can serve as a potent means for altering consumer behavior in a way that benefits the environment.

There are some common eco-labels that we can vouch for given decades of trustworthy certifications. The U.S. government's ENERGY STAR label identifies products, devices and appliances that meet stringent energy efficiency standards. If you buy an ENERGY STAR certified dishwasher, you know you're saving energy (and money) versus other models that don't qualify.

Another trustworthy eco-label seen often on coffee, fruits, tea, paper or furniture is "Rainforest Alliance Certified," a designation for foods and building materials sustainably sourced from tropical rainforests. The non-profit Rainforest Alliance runs this program in part by vetting producers throughout the tropics.

If you like to know the products you buy are sourced sustainably by workers who were not exploited and were paid a living wage, look for the "Fair Trade Certified" label. Almost a million workers across 45 different countries currently benefit from the sourcing or production of Fair Trade items.

Meanwhile, the "Certified Organic" label signifies that a food contains at least 95 percent organic ingredients. Plant-based foods bearing this label have not been treated with petroleum-based fertilizers or conventional pesticides, and have not been genetically modified. You can rest assured that any "Certified Organic" animal products you consume have not been treated with antibiotics or growth hormones and were fed organic feed and allowed access to the outdoors. And any products labeled "Made with Organic Ingredients" contain at least 70 percent organic ingredients.

Some other trustworthy labels include: LEED, GreenSeal, FSC-Certified, Salmon-Safe, WaterSense and Non-GMO Project Verified. If the label in question isn't mentioned above, it might be worth investigating. Sharing what you know about eco-labels, whether by word-of-mouth or via social networks, is a fantastic way of helping the environment. As awareness grows, those you have enlightened will be able to exert an ever-greater positive force upon the market.

event organizers said. Poker tournament and general admission tickets are available for purchase now online at one.bidpal.net/primetimecasinoclassic, and general admission tickets may be available at the door depending on availability.

Proceeds from the event will benefit Team Prime Time, a 501(c)(3) organization that has the mission to provide academic, athletic and arts programs for at-risk children from low-income areas of Los Angeles. The organization operates in 40 local schools and serves nearly 4,000 students each year.

"We are really excited about hosting the event for a second year," Tyler Heineman said Friday. "Last year's event was a huge success and it's been our goal to make it bigger and better every year."

In January 2019, the Heineman brothers hosted the inaugural Prime Time Casino Classic where they raised more than $50,000 for Team Prime Time and helped expand the Prime Time Games to 14 new schools.

This year, the brothers are aiming to donate even more as Scott said this year's event will help Team Prime Time implement the Prime Time Games in as many as 40 new schools across the country in 2020.

"Team Prime Time exemplifies everything we wanted to support in a non-profit organization (and) we believe that we had every opportunity to succeed because of our parents and the mentors we surrounded ourselves with," Heineman said, describing how his parents taught him and his brother the importance of philanthropy.

"We understand that a lot of kids don't have those luxuries growing up," Heineman added, which is why he and his brother want to help more people feel the same way they do. "That you can achieve your dreams if you work hard and surround yourself with like-minded individuals."

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (JANUARY 06)

Start thinking of the emotions and reactions you want to come away with when looking back at your year and reverse engineer this solar journey. Your new plan kicks in this month, and by May you'll have created a better and different flow for your finances. Family grows in numbers and in closeness. Aries and Gemini adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 3, 22, 17, 4 and 26.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). In preparation for the upcoming event, give yourself twice the time you think you'll need. Success will be determined by the setup. Think ahead – about not only the logistical aspects to a project but the emotional ones as well.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Some people don't recognize beauty outside of its frame. Some don't even see it when it's inside the frame. They let the frame itself dictate the value. It's sad, but it's happening often enough that you need to be aware of it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Don't give all of your attention to the ache and the ardor that will greedily submerge you. Head for shallow water, and plant your feet where the currents can rock but not drag you.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). There is a generation that listened to the bow drag the string, and one that touched needle to vinyl, and one that scrolled and tapped. They all sought the music. Whatever it is, find the commonality and dance to that.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You're a good friend, practically an entire support system in and of yourself. You'll somehow give double what you actually have. You'll explain it by saying more than you believe, with hope and love that didn't exist before you made them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You're not holding back out of trepidation, uncertainty or indecision. Quiet can be the most eloquent way to contribute. There's wonder in your understatement, profundity in your silence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Breakthroughs are emotional. The path to get there is paved with a mix of poetry and math, but the actual bridge between the old you and the new you is made of braided feelings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). People cope, but then afterward they can't tell you how. Some things you just have to go through to get through. You're as ready as you'll ever be to make a change. One small but brave step kicks it off.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Maybe you can change more than you think you can. What's holding you back is just a thought – a self-imposed limit. Ideas are plentiful and today's special is to try before you buy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). This is one of those days when the world just needs you more. It's good that you're ready to pitch in from exactly where you are. This couldn't happen without you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). This day is a visitor, and soon a ghost. In this light, do you want to do it differently? Probably not. All the same things you were going to do still apply; all that's changed is the feeling. Still, that could be everything.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Pain is confusing. Sometimes we try to avoid it, other times we seek it. So much can override the signal, change its meaning or even its nature. Seek a cordial relationship with pain, as it is merely a messenger.

Mixed-Moon Monday

On a Monday rich in lunar aspects and changes, whatever you put in the top priority of your life will thrive. You'll find yourself making decisions in support of your No. 1 thing and taking risks you wouldn't take for anything else. It won't even be hard because the No. 1 spot comes with all sorts of self-sustaining energy.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTION

"She's a Taurus, and I'm starting to think that she's not a good friend for me. She always wants to see new places, travel, go to parties, try new restaurants and the like. I thought that I was broadening my horizons by doing those things with her. But I always wind up spending way too much money and time. Honestly, I don't have that much fun. It's like she's on a constant mission of pleasure, but it seems so brief. I'm thinking of distancing myself, but part of me worries that I'm just being a stick in the mud. What do you think? Signed, Virgo workaholic

We each have our own set point for pleasure tolerance, and it sounds like yours is considerably lower than your friend's, which is typical of your respective signs. Honor who you are. If so-called pleasure is making you bored or irritated, doesn't that defeat the point? Consider this quote from 18th-century writer Oliver Goldsmith: "None has more frequent conversations with a disagreeable self than the man of pleasure; his enthusiasms are but few and transient; his appetites, like angry creditors, are continually making fruitless demands for what he is unable to pay; and the greater his former pleasures, the stronger his regret, the more impatient his expectations. A life of pleasure is, therefore, the most unpleasing life."

CELEBRITY PROFILES

Comic Capricorn Rowan Atkinson is among Great Britain's national treasures and a favorite of humor lovers worldwide. Atkinson's character, Mr. Bean, is a nearly silent individual, challenged by the rigors of daily life. In contrast, Atkins was born under a chatty Gemini moon. His natal sun and Mercury in Capricorn show instincts for power, business and the mastery of difficult tasks. Write Holiday Mathis at HolidayMathis.com.

Santa Monicans want to shore up those healthy habits, so our restaurant week always tries to highlight produce that can be found in season at the local farmers market," Salisbury said, mentioning this year's signature ingredient is the golden-orange kumquat that's always readily available at Santa Monica Farmers Markets during the winter months.

"We hope residents get inspired by the treats they enjoy during Restaurant Week," Salisbury said, "so that way they can easily find some in the farmers market and use them in dishes they can craft at home."

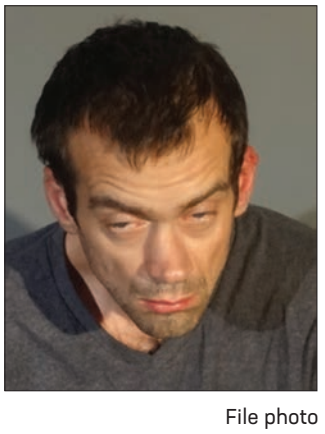

Misti Kerns, president and CEO of Santa Monica Travel & Tourism, added, "We are fortunate to have a city that boasts a proclivity of world-class restaurants, fueled by the fresh, local ingredients found at our four weekly Farmers Markets and bold practices of our beloved chefs. As a long-time resident of the beach city, Santa Monica Restaurant Week is one of my favorite times to enjoy our restaurant scene with friends and family, and I hope many of my neighbors do the same this year."
