THE IT'S SO HARD TO SAY GOODBYE ISSUE

Surf's down

City Council moves to regulate camps

BY KEVIN HERRERA | Editor in Chief

CITY HALL The beach figures to be less crowded this summer, following a move by the City Council on Tuesday to better regulate surf camps, which have increased in number over the last few years.

The steady increase has created conflicts with other surfers and swimmers while raising concerns about beach access and public safety.

Currently, surf instructors are allowed to teach any number of adults or less than 20 kids under the age of 18 without a city-issued permit. This liberal policy, along with the increased popularity of the sport, has led to the proliferation of surf camps along popular breaks where locals have long flocked to test their surfing skills, city staff and lifeguards said.

Complaints from lifeguards and local surfers led city staff to draft an ordinance requiring all surf instructors who accept some form of payment to apply for a license to operate, regardless of how many students they teach. A limited number of licenses would be issued under the new law and be given on a competitive basis, not first-come, first-serve, said Callie Hurd, open space manager for City Hall.

City considers spending more 'Creative Capital'

BY MELODY HANATANI | Daily Press Staff Writer

CITY HALL Santa Monicans sure love their artists.

Following the adoption of "Creative Capital," a long-range cultural plan for the city, last spring, the Community and Cultural Services Department released a report last month that looks into restructuring the various grants and funding programs to keep the city's vibrant artist community alive.

"These recommendations are intended to provide increased funding so that more Santa Monicans can participate in the rich experiences created by Santa Monica artists and arts organizations," according to the report, which was prepared by Jerry Yoshitomi of Meaning Matters.

The report, which will be presented to the City Council at the end of the month, essentially delves into how the various funding initiatives in the city can be restructured to keep in line with the goals of the Creative Capital plan, according to Jessica Cusick, the cultural affairs manager.

The report recommends the creation of several city-funded grant categories, including $35,000 a year to support youth arts and $10,000 a year to fund so-called "opportunities" programs such as festivals, installations

Governor proposes deep cuts

Schools could see 10 percent less cash

By the Associated Press

SACRAMENTO Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger's budget, released Thursday would close a projected $14 billion gap by giving schools 10 percent less money, releasing 22,000 inmates early and closing dozens of state parks.

Cuts or freezes in funding for children of welfare recipients and elderly, blind or disabled people also are contained in the proposed 2008-09 budget.

Economists have long said such measures are necessary to bring the state's revenue and expenditures in line unless Schwarzenegger reneges on his promise not to increase taxes. Trimming education and social programs, however, will be difficult if not impossible in the Democrat-controlled Legislature.

The governor proposes saving almost $10 billion by cutting almost all state agencies and programs by 10 percent. More than $4 billion of that would come from education, and those cuts would require the Legislature to suspend provisions a voter-approved initiative that guarantees a minimum funding level for schools.

Cuts to the prison system would come through the early release of inmates determined to be "low risk" who have less than 20 months remaining on their sentences. Only prisoners serving sentences on nonviolent, non-sex-offender crimes would be eligible.

The governor also proposes cutting 48 state parks, nearly one in five.

Schwarzenegger also will resubmit a proposal the Legislature rejected last year to cut benefits for the children of welfare recipients if their parents fail to get jobs. State subsidies for the elderly, blind and disabled also would be frozen through the end of the decade, while Medi-Cal would be cut by $1 billion.

The governor's plan is sure to reignite an intense partisan budget battle after several years in which tax windfalls prompted Schwarzenegger to increase spending on education and social programs.

Affording education

Prop. 92 has support of SMC administration

BY MELODY HANATANI

Daily Press Staff Writer

SMC Higher education could be attainable at a lower price if a statewide proposition that would slash tuition at California community colleges is approved by voters next month.

Proposition 92, which would decrease student fees from the current assessment of $20 per unit to $15 a unit, has been embraced by Santa Monica College officials, including the professors' union and the Board of Trustees, which passed a resolution in support of the initiative last spring. The proposition will be on the Feb. 5 presidential primary ballot.

SMC is among the 109 junior colleges in the state, educating a combined total of approximately 2.5 million students at an estimated cost of $8 billion each year.

While tuition at junior colleges is considerably less expensive than at four-year universities, student fees have been slowly on the rise the past few years, jumping from $11 a unit in the spring 2003 to $26 in fall 2004. Students got some relief last spring when a provision in an educational bill cut fees down to $20 per unit.

Susan Aminoff, an SMC trustee and past board chair, said the fee hikes had hurt enrollment at the college.

"When the fees went up in 2004, we lost students," Aminoff said. "Fees went down a little bit last year and that was helpful."

Under the new law, full-time students taking about 30 units would pay roughly $450 for the entire 2008-09 academic year, about $150 less than what they currently pay.

It would be a welcome change for Karla Orellana, a sophomore majoring in English at SMC. While tuition itself is manageable, it becomes a compounding financial issue when textbooks are taken

Columnist needs to hug a tree
Editor:

It is always with a feeling of distaste that I face reading (Bill) Bauer's columns. But I must read them, because I want to learn what he has against ficus trees. He only writes nasty things about the Treesavers, not the trees.

I suggest he try to know some of us before getting any nastier. To do this, he would have to skip his dinner, give up an evening or several hours on a weekend, in order to meet us. (Can you imagine anyone doing this to get his name in a newspaper, Mr. Bauer?)

I, for example, first learned the importance of trees in the early '50s, when we owned a pine grove. On the hottest, most humid days, it was the only place to be comfortably cool. It became a haven for all the neighborhood children, to the delight of my son, the host. It also was home to all kinds of birds, including a fascinating owl and a magnificent family of cardinals. Now, like the other Treesavers, I have learned how necessary they are for a healthy future.

I would also like to chide Bauer on his choice of a Sammy for (Councilman Kevin) McKeown – only an acknowledgment of loss of weight for the one councilmember who listens to the people and votes for the people! For shame, Mr. Bauer!

I also think that Bauer deserved a Sammy. Is there anyone out there who can suggest an appropriate one? The only one that comes to my mind immediately is "Treesaver Hater" Sammy!

Stop pumping cash into schools
Editor:

Even beyond the total regressive nature of "parcel taxes" (my one-bedroom condominium is a "parcel" and a 40-acre spread in Malibu is a "parcel," both charged the same amount). Why are Santa Monicans willing to keep subsidizing Malibu's schools?

There should be a moratorium on school funding until this issue is addressed.

Hating on Hillary isn't so bad
Editor:

While (Ron) Lowe bemoans the fact that too many people hate Hillary ("Reader's in love with Clinton," Jan. 2), I bemoan the fact that not enough people hate her. As a woman's libber, I would like nothing better than to finally have a woman-president. As an anti-war fanatic, I certainly don't want one who not only voted to make it possible for Bush to attack Iraq (not knowing then what she knows now), but recently voted for a similar bill against Iran (knowing now what she knows now).

As a pro-abortion fanatic, I can't believe the promises of someone who admits to hating abortion as much as she. Actually, I think she would do just great on the Republican ticket!

What's religion got to do with it?
Editor:

No religious test shall be given for any public office job in the United States (U.S. Constitution AKT VI, 3).

For any segment of the media– radio, TV, or press – to give or facilitate this testing of any candidate by anyone is unconstitutional conduct and, therefore, un-American activity. So let such activity cease forthwith.

Enough already.

Ending the BCS mess for good

THE BOWL CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES/PLAY off/plus one controversy continues to plague our great football nation. Congratulations to the LSU Tigers, a worthy choice for national champion in 2008, but alas, by no means an undisputed one. It is simply not becoming of a true champion, or their opponent, to miraculously receive an invitation to the championship game. Such invitations must be earned in a clear, indisputable fashion.

Various constituencies tell us that a college football playoff is not realistic, and that the only change to our current format would be a "plus one" championship game played after completion of the bowl season. Unfortunately, for those of us who want a system that works, a plus one would not have given us a clear No. 1 this season, because who gets to play in the Plus One Bowl against LSU? Would that be Georgia or USC? Mizzou, maybe? There's no clear answer, and thus, we would still have uncertainty and controversy. It is clear that plus one is not the answer.

I consider myself relatively well informed on the details and business behind college football and have yet to hear a clear reason why a playoff is not possible. I conclude that it is possible, it's simply a matter of human will — the will of the major conferences and university presidents. To these power brokers I say you knew segregation was wrong and you now have the same uncomfortable feeling toward the BCS. Ladies and gentlemen of said good conferences and universities, the time has come to end the madness!

Explain to me how an eight-team playoff system is not the answer to our gridiron prayers. After playing 11 conference and non-conference games, the top eight BCS computer selected teams play for glory. You have the top tier of the football polls and no riff-raff. I'm sorry nine and 10, we love you, thanks for the memories, but there's always next season. You get sympathy, but no tears from me. The minor bowls will still happen, they just won't be part of the "All New & Improved Actual Championship Series" because all students and athletes know that an A is better than a B.

The ACS playoff games can and should be incorporated into weeks 12, 13, and 14 of the college football season, with each game retaining its traditional bowl name, sponsor, pomp and circumstance, with the championship game rotated as it currently is in the BCS. A handful of teams would simply enjoy up to three bowl weeks — how is that a bad thing? The playoff would begin after all Division I teams have played 11 games, which, like now, in most cases includes a full conference schedule and one or two non-conference games. Teams vying for a national championship would need to schedule quality non-conference games to influence the BCS system determining the eight playoff teams. You top conferences, keep your conference championship games. But please, I don't need or want to see UCLA-San Diego State ever again.

Teams from weaker conferences would be disadvantaged, true, but I submit that the eight spot in the playoffs could easily allow for a cinderella — Hawaii this season or Boise State last year. If you're as good as you say you are, then prove it in the first ACS game against the No. 1 seed. And if you pull off a miracle win, then you get all the glory of a winner but you need to prove it again, twice actually, to really convince us that you deserve the national championship.

TEAMS FROM WEAKER CONFERENCES WOULD BE DISADVANTAGED, TRUE, BUT I SUBMIT THAT THE EIGHT SPOT IN THE PLAYOFFS COULD EASILY ALLOW FOR A CINDERELLA – HAWAII THIS SEASON OR BOISE STATE LAST YEAR.

There would always be controversy about which teams are selected for the play-off. But unlike the fictitious BCS No. 1 vs. No. 2 matchup, I am far more comfortable letting the computer tell us which teams get No. 7 and No. 8. As we all well know after beating this poor dead pigskin of a horse, controversy is inevitable. Given the inevitability, we are picking the lesser of two evils here, and it's the one that will not leave us asking the nearly perennial question of "Who's Really No. 1?", will still generate tremendous revenue for our great universities, one that remains true to the tradition of our bowl season, and one that requires two teams of student-athletes to miss one additional week of class at the beginning of the Spring semester.

I don't pretend to know it all, but if I'm mistaken here, can someone please give me a really good reason why? If not, then together let's end the madness — sports fans, alumni, and TV networks unite!

Iron your own shirt: Hillary's comeback

I HADN'T INTENDED TO WRITE ABOUT politics this morning, but it's unavoidable as history is being made. Last week in Iowa, Barack Obama became the first black to win a state caucus. And this week, Hillary Clinton became the first woman to win a presidential primary. Now, New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg is contemplating a third party candidacy. A black, a woman and a Jew? Under their sheets, the KKK must be having mass strokes.

Deservedly, Obama gets credit for breaking down barriers, but so should Hillary. The presidency has to be the ultimate glass ceiling. On Monday, she was attending a crowded Town Hall meeting in New Hampshire when suddenly some sloppy Hillary heckler shouted: "Iron my shirt!" Hillary tried to talk over him, but it was no use. Police quickly "escorted" the jerk out of the hall as women in the audience yelled: "Iron your own shirt!"

Invigorated, Hillary commented, "I see the remnants of sexism are still alive and well." The audience gave her a standing ovation. And the next night, Hillary pulled off one of the biggest political upsets in recent history, going from 13 points down to winning the primary in less than 48 hours. Why do I wonder if Bill put the guy up to it?

Personally, I like John Edwards, but even his former running mate, John Kerry, is endorsing Obama. As for Hillary, I've never been a fan. In fact, I would gladly make a deal: No more Clintons for no more Bushes. Hillary's always so icy and calculating. That is, until at another New Hampshire campaign venue, when a middle-aged woman asked Hillary how she keeps going in spite of all the personal attacks. (Oddly enough, the woman wound up voting for Obama.) Hillary confessed that it wasn't easy and moments later became teary-eyed.

The press had a field day saying Hillary suffered a meltdown. Being Jewish, I found it amusing when some said she was "verklemt." (Yiddish for choked with emotion.) Actually, Romney was verklemt on "Meet the Press," no less. He was asked how could he be in the Mormon Church that so many considered racist. (Send your angry e-mails to Tim Russert.)

As reported in the Washington Post, it wasn't until 1978 that the President of the Church, citing a revelation from God, decreed black males could participate in church rites. (What about black females? And why did God wait until 1978?) Romney got teary-eyed recalling when he first heard the news. He also said he saw his dad march with Martin Luther King, except it never happened. A few days later, Romney corrected himself, saying he used the word "saw" in a "figurative sense," which to me sounds a lot like Bill Clinton's "it depends on what is is."

Despite his near tears, the press didn't suggest Romney was having a meltdown. Double standard? Think about this. Can you imagine a female U.S. senator, halfway through her first term, running for the presidency? It's inconceivable. Barack Obama is the most inspirational speaker since JFK, but that doesn't negate that a few years ago he was an Illinois state senator, hardly a stepping stone to the White House.

Frankly, I'm exhausted by the endless campaigning. (And we still have 10 more months!) In England, they spend six weeks. We spend two years. And what great statesmen does this process produce? Among this year's crop is Mike Huckabee, who is charming and plays the guitar, but doesn't believe in evolution. Rudy is the terrorism expert who put New York's command center in the towers after the bombing in 1993.

When Ron Paul speaks he makes a lot of sense, but at other times he's, pardon the technical term, cuckoo. The same could be said of Democrat Mike Gravel. Dennis Kucinich has some great ideas (and an unbelievably hot wife) but he probably should have kept the UFO sighting to himself, witness New Hampshire, where he got 2 percent of the vote. Of course, Fred Thompson got 1 percent! (So far, Thompson's big contribution to the Republican debates is he appears to be able to sleep standing up.)

If it weren't for George Allen's "macaca" moment in 2006, he'd probably be the Republican nominee. Scary. Then again, if it weren't for the requirement a president has to be born in the U.S., it might be Arnold Schwarzenegger. And if it weren't for the 22nd Amendment, Bill Clinton would probably run against him. Bill Maher says it would be billed as "The Terminator against the Sperminator." (Send your angry e-mails to Maher.)

Lame jokes aside, whoever becomes president, 2008 figures to be a historic election. In the meantime, I'm tickled I was able to put Romney and verklemt in the same sentence.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Attack of the purse snatchers

Crime Watch is a weekly series culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

SATURDAY, JAN. 5, AT 7:15 P.M.

Santa Monica police officers received a call regarding a strong arm robbery that had just occurred in the 500 block of Alley Seven. The victim told police that she was waiting in the alley to pick up a friend when she was approached by two men who demanded her purse. When the victim refused, the men allegedly grabbed the purse and jumped into a four-door Honda and sped off. The victim and her friend called police and gave a description of the vehicle and the two suspects to officers. Officers on patrol spotted the car driving eastbound on Interstate 10. Officers conducted a traffic stop and found the victim's purse in the car, police said. Officers placed the suspects under arrest, as well as three passengers in the car, two of which were juveniles. Officers said the Marc Jacobs purse contained a Louis Vuitton wallet with $165 inside. The purse also contained a camera and makeup bag. The adults arrested were identified as Luis Miguel Carrera, 20, from Los Angeles; Domingo Alexander Alvarado, 27, from Culver City; and Luis Antonio Catalan, 21, also from Culver City. Bail was set at $50,000 for Carrera and Catalan, who were booked for robbery. Bail for Alvarado was set at $65,000. He had an outstanding warrant. Alvarado was also charged with robbery, police said.

SATURDAY, JAN. 5, AT 6:10 P.M.

Officers responded to the 1900 block of 11th Street regarding an assault with a deadly weapon. When officers arrived, they spoke with the alleged victim who said he was drinking alcohol with a friend when the friend, for an unknown reason, began to hit him in the face with a metal object. The suspect also kicked the victim several times in the upper torso, police said. The suspect was arrested for assault with a deadly weapon. The victim refused medical treatment. The suspect was identified as Phillippe Quinones, 39, from Santa Monica. His bail was set at $70,000. He had outstanding warrants, police said.

FRIDAY, JAN. 4, AT 4:30 P.M.

Police responded to the 2900 block of Pico Boulevard – 99¢ Only Store – regarding a burglary that just occurred. When officers arrived, they made contact with store security who said an employee was processing fake returns and pocketing the money. Security said the employee made $185 in bogus returns. The employee was arrested for burglary and embezzlement. He was identified as Edgar Vasquez Gonzales, 19, from Los Angeles. His bail was set at $20,000.

MONDAY, DEC. 31, AT 7:30 P.M.

Police responded to the 1300 block of Fourth Street, Parking Structure No. 3, regarding an auto burglary that just occurred. Officers said they were contacted by a witness who was walking past the parking garage when he noticed a man walking in between parked cars, randomly trying to open the doors. The witness told police that the suspect gained access to one car and removed what looked like a purse. The witness gave a description of the suspect to officers. The suspect was arrested a block away and identified by the witness. The owner of the car identified the purse that was recovered as hers, police said. The suspect was placed under arrest for burglary. He was identified as Hugh Vernon Patillo, 38, a transient. His bail was set at $20,000.

SUNDAY, DEC. 30 AT 2:55 P.M.

Officers responded to the corner of Cloverfield Boulevard and Colorado Avenue regarding an assault with a deadly weapon that had just occurred. When officers arrived, they spoke with the alleged victim who said she was lying down on a bench at the corner of 26th Street and Olympic Boulevard when a male acquaintance began to strike her repeatedly with his fists. A taxi driver was passing by and opened up a car door long enough for the victim to jump in. The cab driver drove a few blocks and then called police. Armed with a description of the suspect, officers were able to locate him a few blocks away and placed him under arrest for assault with a deadly weapon. The victim was treated by paramedics at the scene and she was transported to a local hospital for further observation. The suspect was identified as Michael Bruce Riblet, 51, a transient. His bail was set at $30,500. The suspect had outstanding warrants, police said.

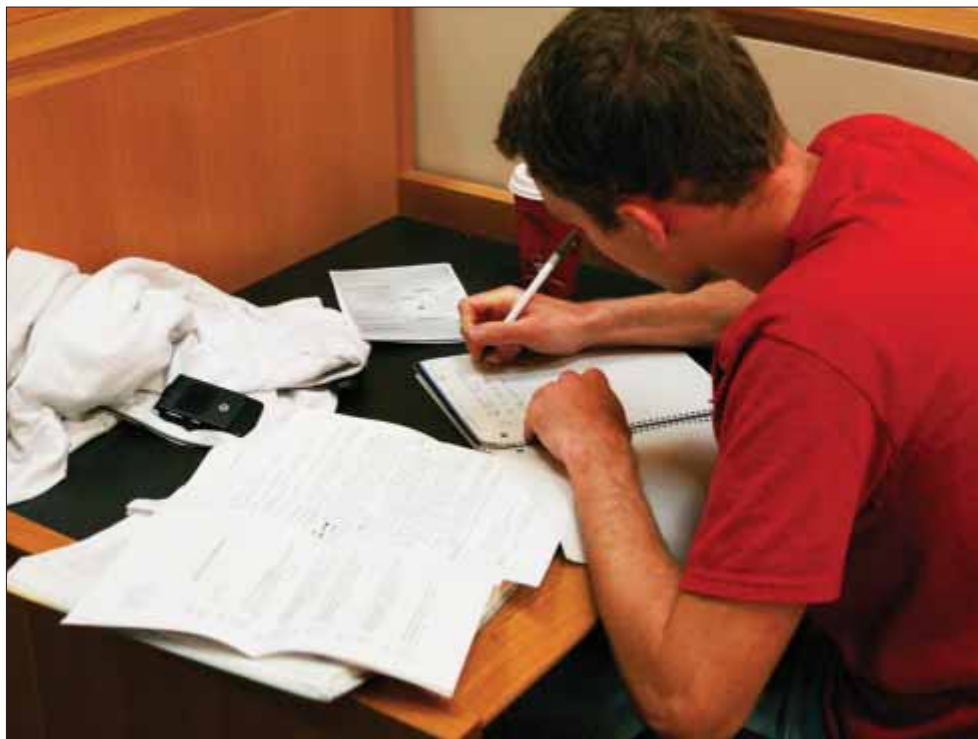

FRIDAY, DEC. 28, AT 5:30 P.M.

Officers responded to the 1400 block of Third Street – Urban Outfitters – regarding a shoplifting suspect in custody. When officers arrived, they made contact with store security, who said the suspect walked into the store, took several items of clothing into a changing room and then tried to return the items as if she had purchased them. Employees noticed the items were damaged, as if someone had tried to remove sensors and had cut the fabric. Employees refused to accept the items. The suspect then allegedly walked around the store and purchased $200 worth of items. She also placed two purses in a bag and walked out of the store, failing to pay for them. That set off an alarm. Store security detained the suspect and recovered the purses as well as other items valued at $150. The suspect was arrested for shoplifting. She was identified as Kaitlin Ashley Pynes, 18, from Los Angeles. Bail was set at $1,000.

DOING THE MATH: An SMC student studies at the school's library on the main campus before taking a test on Thursday. If passed, Prop. 92 would reduce fees at the state's community colleges.

Prop. 92 would change formula

into account, which cost more than $300 a semester for Orellana.

"If you lower tuition, then I'll have money left over for books," Orellana said on Thursday at the SMC campus, taking a break from reading a copy of Jane Austen's "Emma" for her winter English course.

The lower fees are just one aspect of Prop. 92 that SMC officials say will encourage more students to attend junior colleges.

THE STATE CAMP SHOULDN'T BE ABLE TO BUDGET ON THE BACKS OF THE VARIOUS EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS."

Rob Rader,

Santa Monica College Board of Trustees Chair

The proposed legislation would alter the funding formula to public education as set forth under Prop. 98, which passed in 1988 and requires a certain level of funding for K-14 education as a group. The level of funding changes every year depending on the nature of the economy and K-12 attendance. If passed, the new law would change the funding formula by splitting K-12 education and community colleges, the latter of which would be determined by the general adult population growth in the state and would not be affected by the continuing declining enrollment in K-12 schools.

"What Prop. 92 does is it separates us off from the Prop. 98 formula for growth and allows us to grow even though the K-12 population is declining," said SMC Trustee Andrew Walzer.

It is estimated by the state Legislative Analyst's Office that the new law would require the state to spend more than $300 million more a year on K-14 education. While K-12 attendance is expected to decline in the next few years, the young adult population — defined as between the ages of 17-25 years of age, the demographic for junior colleges — is believed to grow between 2 to 3 percent in the coming years.

Proponents say the proposition would make state funding to the schools more stable, necessary in light of Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger's budget proposal that would cut education funding by $4.4 billion.

"As the current budget crisis demonstrates, one of the first things that ends up being cut, unfortunately, is education," said SMC board Chairman Rob Rader. "The state camp shouldn't be able to budget on the backs of the various educational institutions."

SMC's budget is normally in excess of $100 million a year, Aminoff said.

"Currently, the community colleges and K-12 share Prop. 98 money and the community colleges are supposed to get a little over 11 percent ... but in most years we don't get that," she said.

The proposed measure has been criticized by various business and taxpayer groups and the California Teachers Association, all arguing that while they support community colleges, Prop. 92 would result in increased taxes or cuts to programs like health care and public safety, forcing expenditures in a state budget that might not have room for it.

The Santa Monica-Malibu Classroom Teachers Association (SMMCTA) is among those that have aligned with the anti-Prop. 92 camp.

"Unfortunately, Prop. 92 would (take) resources from other educational needs," said Harry Keiley, president of the SMMCTA. "Our hope is that we can find a way to work with our community college brothers and sisters to work with the legislature to ensure the community colleges receive the funding that they need and deserve."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING SECOND AMENDMENT TO THE FY 2007-08 ACTION PLAN ALLOCATING FEDERAL CDBG AND HOME FUNDS

The City Council of the City of Santa Monica will hold a public hearing to receive public comment on the Second Amendment to the FY 2007-08 One-Year Action Plan. The One-Year Action Plan, which is a component of the Consolidated Plan, is submitted annually to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). It delineates the City's specific projects and activities for one-year use of CDBG and HOME funds in order to meet the City's overall housing and community development needs as specified in the Consolidated Plan (FY 2005-10) adopted by City Council and submitted to HUD in June 2005. Copies of the Proposed FY 2007-08 Amended One-Year Action Plan are now available to the public for a 30-day community review period ending February 12, 2008. Copies are available at City Hall, the Santa Monica Public Library (main and branch libraries), and on the web at smgov.net, or you may contact the Human Services Division, 1685 Main Street, Room 212, Santa Monica, CA 90401, telephone (310) 458-8701; TDD (310) 458-8696. Please send your written comments to the above address by February 12, 2008, or you may present your comments verbally at the City Council public hearing on that date.

The Public Hearing is scheduled for Tuesday, February 12, 2008 at 5:45 p.m. in the City Council Chambers located at 1685 Main Street, Santa Monica and parades. The latter is intended to support one-time events that are not otherwise available in Santa Monica.

The Creative Capital plan found that approximately 89 percent of Santa Monicans believe the arts are essential to making the city an ideal place to raise children. The youth arts grant would pay for artists and art programs that engage students, according to the report.

One of the beneficiaries of grants awarded by Community and Cultural Services Department every year is the 18th Street Arts Center, a non-profit organization that provides housing and studio space for low-income artists and various organizations.

"Santa Monica is a very forward-looking liberal city," said Clayton Campbell, the artistic director at 18th Street Arts Center.

Because real estate is expensive in Santa Monica, making it hard to retain low-income artists in the city, grants, like the ones proposed in the report, are necessary in order to fuel the artist community, Campbell said.

PEOPLE WANT TO MAKE SURE OUR EXISTING ARTISTS AND ART ORGANIZATIONS ARE SUPPORTED AND ARE ABLE TO CONTINUE."

Jessica Cusick, Cultural Affairs Manager

The arts center houses about 23 artists and art organizations and those that reside in the apartments at the center's location on 18th Street pay a subsidized rent, which is roughly 60 percent below market value.

One of the tenants is post production house EZTV Media, which doesn't directly apply for grants, but depends on artists and groups that receive city funding.

"Santa Monica is instrumental in keeping a place like this alive," said Michael Masucci, the studio's director.

One recommendation of the report that Campbell said he found particularly interesting was funding for individual artists, something that was eliminated by the National Endowment for the Arts years ago, he said.

The art fellowships would be available to a "self-defined professional, generative artist" who has lived or worked in the city of Santa Monica for at least five years. The report proposes two different fellowships — a $7,500 "Lifetime Artist Innovator" grant and a $5,000 "Cutting Edge/Recent Artist Innovator" grant. Any one artist can only receive up to one of each award during their lifetime.

The report also recommends that the Cultural Arts Division follow the grantees and measure the effect of funding on public participation in the arts, something that the Creative Capital plan aims to increase in the city.

If adopted by the City Council, the youth arts grant would be the first implemented, along with the artist fellowship program.

"The main goal of the cultural plan is to increase participation in the arts because that is what residents said they wanted," Cusick said. "People want to make sure our existing artists and art organizations are supported and are able to continue."

Lifeguards fear overcrowding

ing instruction and novice surfers to their own areas on the beach where they can learn without having conflict with other recreational activities," Hurd said. "This will greatly increase public safety and it will establish minimum qualifications for operating a surf camp."

A major complaint from the community was that City Hall has no way of knowing if surf instructors can perform or are qualified to teach CPR. The law would ensure that those issued licenses are certified.

Anyone caught violating the law would be subject to a $250 fine or a misdemeanor, which would be punishable by a fine of $1,000 and/or six months in jail.

Hurd said surf instructors and members of the city's Recreation and Parks Commission were against jail time, but the penalty is consistent with other health and safety code laws.

"We are talking about a potentially dangerous situation and if you have someone who is unqualified teaching illegally, that could be a potentially lethal situation," Hurd said, justifying the penalty. "You may also have someone dealing with children that is not supposed to be around them because of some criminal past, so it seems to me that we should keep the ability to enforce such a penalty, which would only be applied in the most extreme circumstances."

The council is expected to give final approval of the ordinance later on this month, Hurd said.

During public comment Tuesday, lifeguards spoke in favor of more oversight.

Mickey Gallagher, captain of Los Angeles County Lifeguards, said it has become increasingly difficult to maintain safety at the beach because of the increase of surfing camps. He said swimmers and surfers often find themselves drifting into each other's areas. Fights have also broken out between rival surf instructors as they compete for business.

Areas of the beach have been "black-balled" by lifeguards because of the excessive number of surfers.

City staff has recommended that the number of licenses issued vary by season based on recommendations from lifeguards, demand for lessons and other beach activities and uses.

Permits would be issued first to camps contracting with the city's community programs division and then to accredited educational institutions offering surf instruction, such as Santa Monica College.

Last year, 23 applications were received from youth surf camp operators for three locations identified by lifeguards and city staff. Four applications were received for other types of youth groups conducting water activities and three permits were granted, according to a city staff report.

Surfer Jennifer Argenti has experienced the overcrowding firsthand and believes regulation is needed, however, she encourages surf camps because it is a "great activity for kids."

"It has gotten very overpopulated ...," Argenti said. "I would use the word dangerous."

MANY SURF SCHOOLS AND INSTRUCTORS MAY NOT BE ABLE TO EARN A LIVING."

Allen King, Aqua Surf School

For the summer of 2008, city staff estimates that permits would be issued for the city's community programs around Tower 29 and north of the Santa Monica Pier, and for accredited institutions and individual and walk-up instruction around Tower 18.

She suggested moving the camps to areas that are less popular, such as Towers 26 and 27.

Some instructors were concerned that the proposed ordinance would help larger surf camps create a monopoly, forcing others out of business.

"Many surf schools and instructors may not be able to earn a living," said Allen King. "Our livelihood depends on the decision you make here today."

Others said regulation goes against the true spirit of surfing.

In the end, though, members of the council felt it was best to have some oversight to protect the public and ensure access to the water.

"I strongly support giving young people more access and appreciation of Santa Monica Bay," said Councilman Kevin McKeown. "We need to accommodate learning surfers. The problem ... is two-fold — concentration and commercialization. That is why we're stepping in now, to figure out some way to get a handle on the concentration and commercialization of the most wonderful, free-spirited sport there is here in the beach community — surfing."

Odd Man Out

By Mark Marchillo

Friends and lovers

THE SPACE BETWEEN FRIENDS AND lovers. In gay society this can be a very delicate balance. I like myself a little of everyone. Some old. Some young. Some my age. Some pre-pubescent. Girls. Boys. Men. Ladies. But how do you keep the music playing that old familiar, “Friendship,” when they want something else?

WHEN YOU'RE A FEW-AND-FAR-BETWEEN KIND OF GUY, THERE'S A LOT OF ROOM FOR REFLECTION.

I met a man the other day. A wonderful man, in his 50's, successful, funny, sweet. Not my type at all. He wants to date. I'm big with the 50-plus crowd. As much as I enjoy his company (and the company of the celebrities he keeps), there's just no dice. I learned a long time ago I could settle for sacrifice, where my pocketbook is concerned, and there's no turning back once you've happened on that conclusion. The Girls. Girls are just fun. When they like you, it's a nice compliment. Then you have to tell them (or in some cases, remind them) that you're gay. Yikes! At least it's a different kind of let-down than “Sorry, you're too old.” Speaking of which, the older ladies don't usually get that far. They seem to get it quicker, or are just resigned to the old-age factor. They seem to care less whether you like them or not; they just want a companion regardless. But it's the ones you want to keep as friends. They're the ones that always seem to teeter that totter of all or nothing. Love me or leave me (and let me be lonely). I'm a friend person. I have a lot of friends. And very few have turned that corner onto Lover's Lane. When you're a few-and-far-between kind of guy, there's a lot of room for reflection. That is, a lot of time and solitude for reflection. And I like to keep people around, regardless of whether they want anything torrid or not. I guess I just hate to see people go. Fall out of your life. Naturally some are only in your life for a short time – that's just how it works. But it hurts when you try to let them down easy and try to hold onto them at the same time, and they walk. Sounds confusing. It is, to them. But some just want one thing. If those aren't the wares you're selling, they want no part of you. And if that's the case, they were never the right fit in your life to begin with. The good ones will stay ... or at least come back someday.

'Zodiac' Two-Disc Director's Cut (Special Collector's Edition)

David Fincher ("The Game" and "Se7en") directs this thriller which is based on the Robert Graysmith books about the real life notorious Zodiac, a serial killer who terrorized San Francisco with a string of seemingly random murders during the 1960s and 1970s. The story garnered a Jack the Ripper feel with the killer sending twisted letters to newspapers and daring readers to solve coded messages. Fincher's focus however is not on the killer, but rather the reporters and detectives whose lives are taken over by the case, notably an addictive crime writer (Robert Downey Jr.), an offbeat editorial cartoonist (Jake Gyllenhaal), and a dedicated cop (Mark Ruffalo). In addition to cast and crew commentary, a look at the film's visual effects, and a making-of documentary, are all new features covering every aspect of the investigation (This Is the Zodiac Speaking) and a profile of the prime suspect (His Name Was Arthur Leigh Allen). NEW DVD RELEASES

BY RANDY WILLIAMS

'The Jason Bourne Collection'

Smart, suspenseful, spectacular – this tremendous trilogy features Matt Damon as Jason Bourne, an elite government agent outwitting and outmaneuvering anyone preventing him from learning about the secrets of his mysterious past. This collection includes all three films – "The Bourne Identity," "The Bourne Supremacy," and "The Bourne Ultimatum." The slick package also features an oversize Bourne passport that includes a fourth disc of bonus material. Hours of extras include a look at the pyrotechnical sequences done without digital effects; how the exotic locations affected the filmmaking; Damon's fight training; a diagnosis of Bourne's amnesia by a renowned psychologist; a profile of author Robert Ludlum and the origins of the characters as well as deleted scenes. (Universal)

'MI-5' Vol.5

One of television history's best spy series continues into a fifth season. "Spooks" (as it is known in the UK) is riveting drama smartly paralleling the nature of the espionage game with revolving agents presented in realistic speed and complexity. Here in season five, MI-5, the British equivalent to the FBI, deals with timely storylines involving religious fundamentalists, secret deals with the Saudis, conspirators driving the country to anarchy, and environmental terrorists. Cast and crew interviews and a preview of season six are included. (BBC Warner)

'The Bronx is Burning'

Based on Jonathan Mahler's book "Ladies and Gentlemen, the Bronx Is Burning," this is the dramatic story of how in the summer of 1977 the New York Yankees' helped bring hope to the multiple ills heaped upon the urban landscape. Amidst political strife, a city-wide blackout, and the Son of Sam killing spree creating chaos in the Big Apple, the Yankees' hard-won success lifted the spirits of a city in a time of darkness and uncertainty. Starring John Turturro and Oliver Platt, this five-disc package comes with a dugout full of bonus material. Over seven hours of extra features include: outtakes, deleted and extended scenes; archival news features from that year; a making-of documentary; extended interviews with real Yankees and cast; even complete stats and highlights from the 1977 World Series plus the complete Game 6. (ESPN)

'Two and a Half Men' The Complete Second Season

After a year of living together, swinging bachelor Charlie (Charlie Sheen) and his divorced, uptight brother Alan (Jon Cryer) along with his indolent pre-pubescent son Jake (Angus Jones), kind of figure out how two and a half men sort of equal a family, albeit a new twist as an example of a dysfunctional one. Twenty four episodes are spread over four discs. (Warner Bros)

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS
The stars show the kind of day you'll have:
★★★★ Dynamic ★★★★★ Positive ★★★ Average ★★ So-So ★ Difficult

Play it low-key, Aries

Happy Birthday!

You have unusual insight. Your confidence builds this year. You have energy and Lady Luck on your team. Is there anything else you might like to ask for? You are in the beginning of a new 11-year life cycle. If you are single, it will be your choice to remain alone. If you are attached, add your newfound spunk and happiness to your bond. PISCES loves to visit with you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ Use the morning for what you are vested in and feel must happen. Still, there are no guarantees. You find that an extra bit of effort pays off, but perhaps not as quickly as you originally thought. Tonight: Play it low-key.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ Take a strong stand this morning. Rethink a plan, as you seem to be bound for success in the afternoon. A fact-gathering mission works well. Know what you want and create much more of that. Tonight: Where people are.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ You might not be seeing the whole picture this afternoon. Let a dear friend take charge, just for a while. This person's input adds strength to your leadership. You'll gain a renewed sense of direction as a result. Tonight: Work as late as need be.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★★ A partner is stern or demanding. Let this person have his or her way. Greater understanding occurs in the afternoon, when you are able to imagine what it's like to walk in this person's shoes. Express your personality in whatever you do. Tonight: New vistas.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★★ The smart move is to let others take the lead. You might not have as much control, but you'll certainly discover the pleasure of freedom. Schedule a late lunch and don't hesitate to call it a day, if you can. Tonight: Say yes to another's request.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★ Dive into errands, work or a project early this morning. You'll find that the sooner you get done, the happier you will be. Someone quite close to you might want more time. Network and finish up any work-related issues. Tonight: Sort through the possibilities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You might have many ideas. How you funnel your creativity makes a big difference. Why not infuse your life with more fun and vitality? Examine alternatives carefully with an eye to greater success and well-being. Tonight: Easy does it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Don't minimize the importance of your personal/domestic life on your work and outside relationships. Indulge someone close, and you might succeed better everywhere else. Your imagination knows no limits. Tonight: Christen the weekend in style.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Return calls and have key discussions in the morning. By the afternoon, a need to close down or do some thinking dominates. Let your imagination emerge, especially when working out a financial or security-related matter. Tonight: Happy at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Handle a money question this morning. Focus on what needs to be done in order to make you feel comfortable. You might need to rethink plans because of an opportunity that intrigues you. Tonight: Visit over munchies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★★ You could be set back by someone's insights. Don't make a big deal out of anything; view information while keeping in mind who is delivering these jewels of knowledge. Tonight: Treat yourself to a belated Christmas present.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ You might have difficulty getting into the swing of the day. You'll get a second wind this afternoon. Let no one and nothing stop you. A friend helps point you toward success. Don't hesitate. You deserve only the best. Tonight: Whatever makes you happy.

Janric Classic Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from Bronze (easiest) to Silver to Gold (hardest).

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Update: What was an edgy, unconventional treatment of a severe diarrhea when News of the Weird mentioned it in 2000 is now catching on as a remedy for the potentially deadly C. difficile bacteria infection, according to a November report by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. "Good" bacteria in the stomach are often depleted by the antibiotics that work on (but may not remove entirely) C. difficile, leaving the patient with violent or chronic diarrhea. Some doctors now recommend controlling C. difficile by re-establishing the patient's "good" bacteria via a stool transplant from a close blood relative, who should have similar intestinal conditions. The donated stool (providing that a loving, straight-faced relative is found) is mixed with saline and administered by enema.

■ A 32-year-old man was found dead, stuck in the cat door of his girlfriend's St. Augustine, Fla., house after she had kicked him out. Said a friend, "(H)is head was caught ... like he was (trying) to reach up and unlock the door ..."

TODAY IN HISTORY

1861 Florida seceded from the Union.

1870 John D. Rockefeller incorporated Standard Oil.

1920 The League of Nations was established as the Treaty of Versailles went into effect.

1946 The first manmade contact with the moon was made as radar signals transmitted by the U.S. Army Signal Corps were bounced off the lunar surface.

1946 The first General Assembly of the United Nations convened in London.

1947 The musical fantasy "Finian's Rainbow," with music by Burton Lane and lyrics by E.Y. Harburg, opened on Broadway.

1957 Harold Macmillan became prime minister of Britain, following the resignation of Anthony Eden.

1967 Massachusetts Republican Edward W. Brooke, the first black elected to the U.S. Senate by popular vote, took his seat.

1978 The Soviet Union launched two cosmonauts aboard the Soyuz 27 capsule for a rendezvous with the Salyut 6 space laboratory.
