Beach memorial to honor late artist Warren Long

Friends and family caring for 15-year-old daughter

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

Warren Long couldn't get enough of the beach. He spent hours surfing waves, painting from a studio overlooking the water and meeting art lovers at his Ocean Avenue gallery in Santa Monica.

"I've never lived out of sight of the ocean," he once wrote, "and that's where I derive most of my inspiration."

Long, a local artist whose catalogue includes a fanciful depiction of the Santa Monica Pier, died of a heart attack earlier this month at the age of 62. A memorial is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday at Will Rogers State Beach at lifeguard station No. 17.

Long's brother-in-law, Todd Parker, said the death came as a "complete shock" to loved ones, who are planning to celebrate the life of the late beach aficionado with heartfelt tributes as well as singing and drumming.

Friends and family are now caring for Long's 15-year-old daughter, Tallulah, a student at New Roads School whose mother, Leigh Hamilton, died of cancer in 2012. A GoFundMe crowdfunding campaign to support her had raised nearly $25,000 as of Thursday afternoon.

"Warren was a special friend and every time I think of him my heart smiles with his memory,"

BOYS BASKETBALL: Mathews considered for McDonald's All American Game

Samohi star included on list of nominees from across the country

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

By almost any measure, Jonah Mathews was already having an outstanding senior season with the Santa Monica High boys basketball team.

He nailed a late 3-pointer as part of a 41-point performance in the Vikings' opener against Pasadena-La Salle, a thrilling 72-71 victory. He led them a title at the St. Monica tournament, where he showcased his offensive skills. And he carried Samohi through four wins in five days to capture a division crown at the MaxPreps Holiday Classic, where he was named most valuable player.

But perhaps his most impressive individual accolade came this month, when the USC-bound guard was nominated to play in the McDonald's All American Games.

Mathews is on a list of more

Council comments now posted online

BY JENNIFER MAAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

Residents submitting written comments to the City Council are being warned that a new system will post those messages online, including any personal information provided by the writer.

Starting with the Jan. 12 meeting, written comments including letters, emails and faxes are now being posted online. The material will not be redacted, and all email addresses and telephone numbers will appear online as they are submitted.

According to acting city clerk, Denise Anderson-Warren, the idea to implement this change started when Councilmember Sue Himmelrich asked if it would be possible for all letters to be posted online.

"We checked other cities to see what they were doing," Anderson-Warren said. "We checked with the city attorney's office. And after getting the all clear we decided we would start posting them online."

Anderson-Warren said that everything that is received, up until 12 p.m. on the day of a council meeting, is posted online.

"It is really just for transparency purposes. We want people to be

Preservation Resource Center Grand Opening and Ribbon Cutting

The Santa Monica Conservancy will host a Grand Opening and Ribbon-cutting Ceremony for its Preservation Resource Center in the newly rehabilitated shotgun house at 2520 Second Street in Santa Monica, Saturday, Jan. 23, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. The grand opening will include music, refreshments, tours of the house and nearby landmarks, as well as activities for children.

"This event marks the culmination of many years of effort to save an important part of Santa Monica history and give it a purpose that meets contemporary needs. Members of the Conservancy worked tirelessly, building on the efforts of concerned residents, the former Ocean Park Community Organization (OPCO), the Church in Ocean Park and City officials to prevent demolition the turn-of-the-20th-century shotgun house, said Carol Lemlein, Conservancy president. "The Conservancy developed an adaptive reuse plan, raised funds for its rehabilitation and oversaw its transformation into the Preservation Resource Center."

The Center will provide residents and visitors the opportunity to experience the kind of structures used by early tourists and settlers along with a wealth of information about other historic resources in Santa Monica and the methods and benefits of preserving older buildings. Docents will offer tours and assistance in using a library of preservation resources, and workshops will be held for home and business owners contemplating a preservation project.

The Preservation Resource Center will be open Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., and by appointment. For more information about the Center as well as other Conservancy programs and membership, see www.smconservancy.org.

The Grand Opening is free to the public. Reservations would be greatly appreciated and can be made by email to rsvp@smconservancy.org or by leaving a message at (310) 496-3146. In case of rain, the event will take place at the same time on Saturday, Jan. 30.

El Chapo is El Chumpo and Rams return

FOR THIS WEEK'S COLUMN, I WAS concerned that if I wrote about the record $1.5 billion Powerball Lottery somebody might win. Sure enough, somebody has. Actually, three very rich somebodies. As for me, I had all the right numbers, they were just spread out over ten tickets.

When lamenting my sudden lack of a column with "Curious City"'s Charles Andrews, I mentioned two other possible story ideas. As someone who often pushes the envelope, Andrews suggested I combine the two. But first, keep in mind each has a Santa Monica connection.

The first involves billionaire, Joaquin Guzman Loera, (a.k.a. El Chapo) the world's most notorious drug dealer. Nearly six months ago El Chapo (ingloriously translates to "Shorty") made a spectacular prison break through a tunnel in his cell floor in Mexico's most secure prison. It was captured on camera and immediately went viral.

Well, last Friday, El Chapo kind of became El Chumpo as he was apprehended at his compound in his hometown of Los Mochis. Ironically, he was immediately returned to the very same prison he had escaped. (What could go wrong there?)

His capture followed a bloody shootout with Mexican Marines in which five of his men were killed. Remarkably though, El Chapo almost got away. How? By tunneling down a storm drain! In fact, in traffic, he actually lifted off a manhole cover, and hijacked a car before being finally subdued.

As for the Santa Monica connection, last October, El Chapo gave his only known interview to Sean Penn. The often controversial and two-time Academy Award-winner was raised here and is a Samohi grad.

While a teenager, Penn began making short films with childhood buddies Emilio Estevez and Charlie Sheen who also attended Samohi. Santa Monica was also the locale for Penn's breakout role in "Fast Times at Ridgemont High."

Penn played surfer-stoner Jeff Spicoli. His portrayal was so iconic he's credited with immortalizing the word "dude" in popular culture. (A credit I'm sure he could do without.)

Slightly more noteworthy, in the past Penn has interviewed Cuba's Raul Castro, and the late Venezuelan president, Hugo Chavez. But for El Chapo, who had gained folklore status for evading authorities, Penn traveled in secret through the Mexican jungle.

It's possible it all came about because of Guzman's infatuation with Mexican soap opera actress, Kate del Castillo. Ironically, she once played the part of a drug lord. (Or should I say "lordette"?)

Details of their flirtatious phone chats have gripped Mexico. Apparently, Guzman was also intrigued with a movie being based on his life, which led del Castillo to reach out to Penn.

In the meantime, federal prosecutors in seven American cities, from Brooklyn to San Diego, are fighting over who's going to "get Shorty" extradited, though the process could take years. (Assuming El Chapo doesn't tunnel out first.)

Speaking of years, it's been 21 since Los Angeles had an NFL team. (Clumsy segue, anyone?) Well, as of this week, the wait is over.

For those too young to remember, the Rams were here long before the Dodgers or Lakers. They moved from Cleveland in 1946 where they had won an NFL Championship the previous season. In fact, the Rams are the only NFL team to win championships in three cities: Cleveland in '45, LA in '51 and St. Louis in '99.

For St. Louis this is the second time they've lost their NFL franchise. In 1988, the St. Louis Cardinals became the Arizona Cardinals. Of course St. Loo was only too happy to "take" our LA Rams in 1995. I suppose all's fair in love, war and NFL franchise jumping.

As a kid I was an avid Rams fan. In fact, for my bar mitzvah, my late Aunt Amelia generously bought us season tickets. Our seats at the LA Coliseum, however, were directly in front of a rowdy bunch from the nearby Ace in the Hole Bar. It seemed like every time something went right for the Rams these inebriated fans would jump up and down and inadvertently spill alcohol on my head. It got so, before every imminent touchdown, I would brace myself.

After the game one booze-soaked Sunday, I typed a complaint letter to none other than the president of the Rams. (Hey, I was thirteen.) A few weeks later I was stunned and my parents were impressed. Our seats were moved to the 50 yard-line! The power of the pen. Or in this case, typewriter.

As for the Rams' "Santa Monica connection," in 2019, it's unclear if the Chargers or Raiders will join them, but they'll be playing in a new stadium in Inglewood. The mayor is our former police chief, James T. Butts, whereas our current chief, Jacqueline Seabrooks, was previously Inglewood's chief. Go figure.

In closing, I apologize if this column has been rambling. I can only hope you'll blame it on Charles Andrews.

The Revenant is just about surviving a bear attack. The reason this film is nominated for so many awards is that it so much more than just that tale, although the true story it's based on is thrilling in itself. Real trapper/scout Hugh Glass conveyed a verbal account of his battle to survive in the early 1800's after being mauled by a bear. His comrades took his belongings and left him for dead. This account was handed down through the years by fellow frontiersmen. No matter what details or embellishments might have been added to the story of this man who pulled his broken body, alone, 250 miles to the nearest fort during the dead of winter, the ground zero version of the story must have encompassed horrific pain, loneliness, fear, sickness and an incredible will to survive.

The main reason The Revenant deserves accolades as an important film, however, is the ability of the movie to effectively draw the audience into the world that not long ago existed in our country's Midwest: a world beautiful and bleak, stupendous and painful/ a world inhabited for thousands of years by peoples who innately understood its nature and respected it, who knew how to navigate it. Hugh Glass's tale of hardship and perseverance took place on a much bigger stage, which The Revenant presents to us. On this stage, people from a "sophisticated" civilization infiltrated the land, seeking quick riches, claiming its beauty for their own purposes. This is the real story of revenge in The Revenant. As one character says, "You came all the way to get your revenge, and for what? You can never bring back your son." In the same way, we can never bring back the land to the state in which it existed for so many eons.

Leonardo DiCaprio handles one of the most intense roles in film history with skill and believability. With little dialogue, he brings Hugh Glass to life. However, Tom Hardy delivers the "piece de resistance" as the evil Fitzgerald. Hardy is so skilled and gifted at embracing a wide spectrum of characters, that he is often unrecognizable from film to film.

Director Alejandro Gonzalez Inarritu has intimate experience being a stranger in a strange land, which he brings to this project. At age 17, he traveled across the Atlantic from his native Mexico by cargo ship and worked his way through Europe and Africa. Later, from 1987 to 1989 he composed music for feature films - hence the incredible sound track in The Revenant. The cornucopia of natural sounds, spells of silence, and simple emotional music work with the visuals to pull you into the landscape and feel the hardship and the magnificence that it offers up. The film's brilliant cinematographer Emmanuel Lubezki created what supervising sound designer/sound editor Randy Thom called "a playground for sound".

The Revenant is not just a movie - it's an experience. Watch it with that in mind. Immerse yourself. The film's message, "As long as you can still grab a breath, you fight. You breathe...keep breathing," applies to Hugh Glass in the same way it applies on a larger scale to the Native Americans whose land and way of life were taken away.

KATHRYN WHITNEY BOOLE was drawn into the entertainment industry as a kid and never left. It has been the backdrop for many awesome adventures with crazy creative people. She now works as a Talent Manager with Studio Talent Group in Santa Monica. kwboole@gmail.com. For previously published reviews see <https://kwboole.wordpress.com>.

Samohi alumna, 30, dies of cancer

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

A Santa Monica High School graduate died early Thursday morning after a 26-month battle with cancer.

Lily Meza, 30, was surrounded by family and friends at her home in Inglewood when she passed away, according to childhood friend Cynthia Juarez.

"Remember Lily as the beautiful girl with a glowing smile, kind heart and caring soul," wrote Juarez, a fellow Samohi alumna.

Meza, who was diagnosed with angiosarcoma of the breast in late 2013, was receiving hospice care this week after recently being hospitalized and learning that cancer cells had spread into her bones.

The front page of Thursday's edition of the Daily Press included an article about Meza's worsening condition and a GoFundMe crowdfunding campaign that Juarez launched on Monday. The article was prepared for publication on Wednesday, before Meza died.

Born in 1953 in Albuquerque, Long was raised in the San Francisco Bay Area and graduated from San Francisco State University with a degree in biology.

But Long eschewed a career in medicine, working as a chef in Marin County before moving to Southern California to take a cooking job at an area resort.

"He just loved the weather and the ocean and the whole ambiance of the area," Parker said.

Long made his move into art by designing sculpted furniture for the former Tops Gallery in Malibu, and he found a calling as a muralist and painter. In the mid-1990s he and Hamilton opened Hamilton Galleries, which has been in its current location on Ocean Avenue in Santa Monica since 2001.

The gallery remains open but its future has not been determined, according to Parker. Family members are planning to keep some of Long's favorite pieces and sell the rest of his art.

Long's artwork included everything from landscapes and seascapes to portraits featuring pigs and mermaids. In "Angeles a Pier," dozens of small angels fly over Santa Monica Pier, whose neon colors are reflected in the ocean water. In "Paddle Out," Long depicted a surfer's memorial.

On Jan. 2, Long arrived at Los Angeles International Airport to pick up Tallulah, who had been visiting family from her mother's side in New Zealand. Long suffered a heart attack in the terminal, Parker said. The responding LAX police officer realized Long was there to retrieve someone and soon located Tallulah, who learned that her father had been taken to an area hospital. He was pronounced dead shortly thereafter.

Long's early marriage to actress Kathleen Quinlan ended in divorce. He is survived by Tallulah and his mother, Jane Russell, of Mendocino, Calif.

than 700 male and female high school seniors from across the country considered for participation in the prestigious annual basketball showcase. The final male and female rosters will be revealed Sunday night on ESPN, according to a news release.

The games will be played March 30 at the United Center in Chicago.

The list of nominees will be whittled down to 24 boys and 24 girls by a selection committee, which is spearheaded by chairman Morgan Wooten, a Hall of Fame high school basketball coach.

"The 755 high school seniors nominated for the McDonald's All American Games are the best representation of high school basketball talent in the country," Wooten said in the release. "From Hawaii to Alaska to Maine, we are thrilled to celebrate their accomplishments."

The boys McDonald's All American Game has become a rite of passage for elite basketball players. Its list of alumni features numerous NBA stars, including Kobe Bryant, LeBron James, Kevin Durant, James Harden, Chris Paul and Blake Griffin.

Being selected to play is a rare accomplishment, as the exhibition has hosted just three former local stars in its nearly 40-year history: Samohi's Montel Hatcher (1982), St. Monica Catholic's Brian Williams (1987) and Crossroads' Baron Davis (1997).

Other standout Southern California athletes who have been invited over the years include Santa Ana-Mater Dei's Cedric Bozeman (2001), Los Angeles-Westchester's Hassan Adams (2002), Compton-Centennial's Arron Afflalo and Woodland Hills-Taft's Jordan Farmar (2004) and Compton's Demar DeRozan (2008).

DeRozan and O.J. Mayo (2007) are among the McDonald's All American Game alumni who continued their basketball careers at USC, where Mathews is headed next year.

The Trojans, whose roster includes an Ocean League product in former Lawndale star Chimezie Metu, are off to a phenomenal start in their third season under coach Andy Enfield.

USC is a perfect 11-0 at home so far, a mark that includes the team's wild 103-101 triumph over No. 7 Arizona in quadruple overtime Jan. 9. It defeated rival UCLA 89-75 in a conference showdown Wednesday.

As Mathews keeps track of the Trojans (15-3, 4-1 in the Pac-12), he's putting his talent on display in his final season with the Vikings. He scored 30 points in their 68-58 win over Palisades at home Jan. 6, and he had 14 points in the first quarter of their 66-51 victory against Long Beach-Millikan three days later.

Mathews and Samohi (14-2, 1-0 in the Ocean League) host Lawndale tonight in their conference home opener. Tipoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

able to see what the comments are," she said. "We want to give the public the opportunity to see the same thing the council is seeing."

The acting city clerk said it was important to her office that people know that anything that is submitted will become part of the public record, as it always has been, but now it will be posted online as well.

"So with their names and contact information, they can either leave it in or take it out. But redacting things is not an option."

Whether this has affected the habits of those who submit comments regarding council items, Anderson-Warren said it is too soon to tell.

"As a result of us advertising the change on the website people have requested that we retract things from a couple of years ago. I think that's fine. It's still part of the public record either way."

Anderson-Warren said that, apart from the message on the council website, people will also be informed of the change by a bounce back message they will receive from the new email box letting them know that their comment will be posted online and cannot be redacted.

The acting city clerk said that since the new system went into effect the planning commission has shown interest in posting written comments submitted to them as well.

Anderson said the city wants people to be aware that they should be careful when submitting their information.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON JANUARY 4, AT ABOUT 9 A.M.

A Public Services Officer (PSO) conducting a periodic check of Parking Structure 1 (1234 4th Street), located a subject sleeping on the 3rd Level, a violation of the city's Municipal Code. The subject initially identified himself to the PSO as "John Joe Thomas" and gave a date of birth in May of 1983. When a police officer responded to assist the PSO, the subject provided the same identifying information as before. A wants and warrants check using that information was negative for any matches. The officer again asked for the subject's name and date of birth. The subject insisted Thomas was his real name and claimed he had a driver license out of Texas and was not on probation or parole. After a few additional unsuccessful tries to confirm the subject's identity, the officer pulled out his mobile fingerprint device. As he was removing the device from its storage box, the subject told the officer his real name and date of birth. He also admitted to being on Parole. The officer arrested the subject for the municipal code violation and for providing false identification information to a police officer. The officer also contacted the subject's parole agent and obtained a hold. The subject was transported to the Santa Monica Jail for booking. David Ryan Eha, 32, homeless, was denied bail.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★★★★★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Though New York City's waiting list for subsidized housing stands at over 300,000, the agency still has only nominal ability to evict a tenant who once qualified but subsequently became wealthier, and the latest "beneficiary" of those rules, according to a November WPIX-TV report, is a household that reported earning $497,911 in a recent year. Initially, one housing authority official declared it beneficial that such a mixture of income levels occupy subsidized housing -- so that struggling families would not have only other struggling families for neighbors - but public pressure has made the authority reconsider.

■ Almost No Longer Weird: (1) When a woman leaped to her death on Dec. 12 from an apartment building in New York City, she of course landed on top of another woman, 71, who was left in critical condition. (2) In December, Russia's independent RT news site, culling a story from the country's rural far eastern coast, reported the most recent case of a "declared dead" man awakening in a morgue. After a harrowing few hours, the man returned to the site of the party -- to find his friends "still drinking but (by) this time commemorating him."

1. the state of being dull; lethargy.

PUT YOUR FEET UP TONIGHT, SCORPIO

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You have an element of conservative practicality running through your plans and actions. Others could be taken aback by your new stance. You are full of energy, and are willing to take a leap of faith. Your impulsiveness seems to be in check. Tonight: Dance the night away!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ You might want to be in charge, but the smart decision would be to let someone else have the final say. You could be far too worried about the ramifications. A conversation with a partner will help you zero in on what you want. Tonight: Keep it relaxed and quiet at home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Zero in on what you want. Don't be too tough on a special person in your life. You'll be heard, as long as you don't become too crazy. Listen to someone who is very controlling and difficult. You can't bypass this person, as much as you might want to. Tonight: Where the action is.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ You could be off-kilter and trying to get past a problem. You might not feel up to snuff, but you have to deal with some issues. A sense of having too much ground to cover is very likely to weigh you down. Understand what is motivating you right now. Tonight: A must appearance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Reach out to someone at a distance. You might feel as if there is a problem with a creative process. You will wonder which direction it is best to head in. Someone could be pushing you down a certain path. There is a lot of tension around you. Tonight: Initiate the weekend properly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You could be on top of a personal matter and might want some time with a family member. Still, a conversation is necessary, and this person might be holding you back. Understand what is happening around a key relationship. You need the other party's support. Tonight: Make nice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Defer to others, and stay in touch with what you want. Be willing to discuss an issue with someone, even if it makes you uncomfortable. Once you get past a problem, you'll feel more in sync with this person. Make exciting plans for the weekend. Tonight: Hang out with your pals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Pace yourself, and take your time with a financial matter. Listen to what is suggested, and know it is coming down the pike. Listen to news more openly, and be willing to pitch in. You could be overtired and not make the most appropriate judgments. Tonight: Put up your feet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You could be overly serious and determined. Tap into your creativity, and you will fly past a problem quickly and with efficiency. Be careful with your spending, and don't allow a pressured situation to get the best of you. Tonight: Get into weekend mode quickly!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ You can push and prod as much as you want, but you won't get as far as you would like to. A difficult situation is likely to emerge if you keep pressuring yourself. Instead, make the most of the moment. You might need some time away from others. Tonight: Head home for a nap.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ You could be in a position where you can't seem to satisfy a friend or get an issue resolved. You are likely to try different approaches to the same issue. Be more forthright in your dealings with others. Don't take anything too seriously. Tonight: Hightail it out the door.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★ Be aware of the importance of handling your finances a certain way. Think in terms of making a change that might feel somewhat difficult or unpleasant, at best. Consider your options with an eye to lightening the mood. A parent or boss could be touchy. Tonight: Indulge a little.

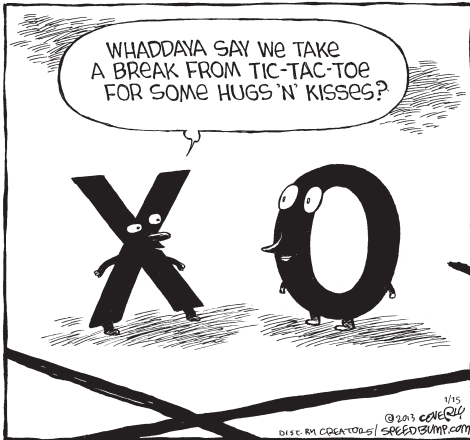

Friday, January 15, 2016

This year you will want to steer a steadier course than you have in the past. Often, you don't have the right words to describe various issues and solutions. Take your time, because what you have to share is valuable. If you are single, romance knocks on your door and could become a dominant factor this year. The romantic relationship that evolves will be memorable and significant to your life's history. If you are attached, the two of you enjoy each other much more than you do any other person. You also might be eyeing a major change in your domestic life. ARIES can be unusually pushy with you.
