SMFD welcomes command system upgrades

TABLET: SMFD has a new system to help track vital resources in an emergency situation.

The Santa Monica Fire Department has new technology, Tablet Command, that will allow local firefighters to become more efficient in their future operations and, hopefully, save more lives in the process.

SMFD Deputy Chief Tom Clemo said in an interview this week the number of calls the department has received since the start of the pandemic has decreased, but with recent cuts to city budget and new

School Board supports continuing Samohi plan

Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District leaders joined local parents, staff and students for an hours-long study session Thursday that featured more than 50 public comments and detailed Santa Monica High School's construction plans.

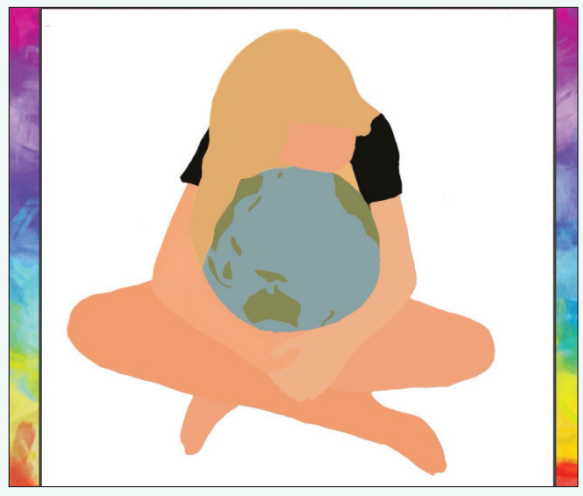

No vote was taken by SMMUSD's Board of Education after Thursday night's discussion since it was only on the agenda as a study session that sought to allow the district's facility team an opportunity to provide an update on the Discovery Building, History Building, and Campus Plan progress as a whole. However, by the end of the meeting, SMMUSD's board unanimously and passionately agreed that construction should continue as planned so students have all the tools they need when they return to classes in the future.

In total, 54 students, parents and SMMUSD staff members

ART: Local students have been making art to reflect their sense of self confidence.

CLARA HARTER
SMDP Staff Writer

Over 300 students from 13 SMMUSD schools created thought provoking artwork inspired by the prompt "I matter because" as part of the nationwide PTA Reflections Art Program.

The theme, which was chosen prior to the events of 2020, could not have been more timely. During a year of isolation, uprising, and calls for justice students channeled their experiences and emotions into dance choreography, creative writing, photography, film production, music composition, and the visual arts.

"The mission for the Reflections Art Program is to let children's creativity come out and to inspire them to express themselves and find joy in the different skills you need for different types of art," said Santa Monica-Malibu PTA Council President Gabrielle Cohen.

Every year PTAs across the District organize the art program at their school and encourage students to use critical thinking skills to interpret the theme and express themselves imaginatively.

PTA Council Reflections Chair April Fields initially worried that less students would be motivated to participate during remote learning this year, but was very impressed to see 323 submissions come in.

"I'm completely blown away by the talent of our kids and how they're able to express themselves through these different artistic categories," said Fields.

Inspired by the "I matter because" prompt, students' artwork grappled with a range of complex themes including isolation, sacrifice, social justice, and self-worth, no doubt drawing on experiences from an exceptionally challenging year.

Eloise Siegler, a 3rd grade student at Franklin Elementary, was selected as a winner for her black and white photography submission of a child dressed as a doctor.

"To me, that child represents a future generation of frontline workers. She is important because that child would be the one saving lives in a crisis like Covid-19," wrote Siegler in her artist's statement. "EVERY person matters, but I wanted to point out that healthcare workers save lives every day and they are essential in every way!"

Another particularly poignant submission came from Kayla Lewis-Koury, a senior at Samohi, who created a film from her experience at a Black Lives Matter protest.

"This is a video taken on May 30th in Downtown LA at a protest against the racist killings of black people and the police brutality in America. In this video, I was shot in the foot, tear gassed and pepper sprayed. Our lives matter and even more so, our lives are

SURF FORECASTS

WATER TEMP: 59.0°

MONDAY - POOR - SURF: 3-5ft Waist to head high
Long period WNW swell creeps up. Could see extra size from significant pop in shorter-period NW swell.

TUESDAY - POOR - SURF: 2-3ft+ Waist to stomach high occ. 4 ft
Long-period WNW swell tops out with less shorter-period energy in the mix. May see some improvement to conditions with less WNW wind, likely still on the messy side (especially for spots out west).

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (JANUARY 25)

You'll partner with two types: those as adventurous and daring as you, and those who have an entirely different view from yours who can show you sides of life and various options that you wouldn't have seen on your own. Life is not a game, but there are competitive aspects at play that you'll do well to embrace. Libra and Scorpio adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 24, 31, 1, 4 and 16.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The very nature of leadership is to head into the unknown while acting as though you do, in fact, know a lot. Were you to act otherwise, no one would follow. People are counting on you. Steel up. March forward.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The scene has become boring. Why? Is it because restraint was called for and is enacted? Or is it because no one has taken the initiative to face challenges with creativity? In the latter case, you're the one for the job.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). More is not better, and better is not more. You'll love how free and light you feel as life reflects this truth to you today. In one gesture, you will let go of several small burdens.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Every time you choose to do something without knowing how it will turn out, you're being brave. Joining the game, starting the project or investing in the venture are all possibilities that beckon your bravery.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Attraction causes you to say and do things you weren't expecting to. You'll make a commitment and keep it. The commitment doesn't seem that big. This is absolutely how big things start.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You will extend your tender heart outside yourself and empathize with those who need their pain to be seen and heard — more comfortable than focusing on your own feelings. You'll get around to that when you're ready.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You can be doing everything the others are doing, all that's expected and more, and still somehow feel like you're off track. Take this intuitive nudge as an opportunity for deeper noticing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). People say, "You remind me of..." out of a desire to make a connection that brings you into their understanding. Hopefully you will find the attempt endearing even though you are so unique that comparisons are absurd.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). There's no manual for what you're doing, but you'll go on anyway, solving one problem at a time. Eventually, the larger issues get solved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). We all have limited experience and perception. Your desire to see beyond what you could yesterday is more than most people will aspire to and will make all the difference in your experiences and soul growth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You have not been left out of the information loop; you just have your sources on mute so that you may keep some semblance of control over your environment. Smart! Otherwise, the distractions would be endless!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Assumptions are the enemy of learning. The assumed knowledge fills the slot, making it impossible for new possibilities to reside there. There's genius in the mental flexibility to upend knowledge and playfully move it around.

voiced their support for a need to continue forward with the campus plan that calls for the demolition of the school's 85-year-old History Building, which community members have called on the district to save.

Councilwoman Gleam Davis, who spoke in a personal capacity Thursday, said during public comment that she was shocked to see the vicious attacks on duly elected board members.

"As a city council member, I understand that this community is passionate about preserving our built history but you were elected to preserve education for our students. I implore you not to be distracted from your mission of education," Davis added.

Board Member Craig Foster agreed later when he said, "I am committed that this continues to evolve forward."

Foster summarized the district's construction efforts as an attempt to create engagement and relevance after hearing local teachers share how many of the building's classrooms are no longer suitable for learning.

"What if we said our plan was to teach kids in an unengaging, irrelevant way?" Foster said. "Well, guess what? That's what the public schools (and) that's what conventional schools have been doing for 150 years in this country. And it was never designed to be relevant or engaging. It was designed to turn farmers into factory workers and soldiers... so the whole thing is bankrupt."

Foster thanked Carey Upton, the district's COO, and the facilities team for their efforts because he sees there is power in providing students with classrooms that are fit for the 21st century.

"I think we shouldn't make a mistake in thinking this is optional," Foster added, "because what schools have done for 200 years has been growing obsolete at a ferocious pace. You know, they did research in the 1990s to see how much education has changed since the 1890s... And the conclusion was shocking, not because they said it hadn't changed much from 1890 to 1990 — the shocking conclusion was it hadn't changed at all — even though the world has changed a hell of a lot since 1990."

On Friday, Board President Jon Kean thanked the students, parents and educators who attended the 5-hour meeting to share their opinions.

"The residents of Santa Monica and Malibu had their voices heard loud and clear by the board at the Thursday board meeting, and over 90% of the comments supported the important work that SMMUSD is doing to upgrade campuses and curriculum with an eye toward engagement, equity, and achievement for all," Kean said. "The board serves our community and our community made it crystal clear that they truly believe in education as the greatest path toward a better future for our world."

sacred," wrote Lewis-Koury in her artist's statement.

Of the 323 students that submitted art pieces, 24 were selected as District winners by a group of judges that are experts in each art genre. These winners go forward to regional selections and potentially to the state and national levels.

The PTA Reflections Art Program has been running since 1969 and involved more than 10 million students across the country. While the program is a competition, its mission is to inspire students to delve deeper into the art world and use it as a tool for self reflection and expression.

health protocols, calls have certainly become more complicated.

"It's not just COVID. It's been civil unrest. It's been multiple deployments to brush fires up-and-down the state that started in July and ended around Halloween. So, you have months of being gone for long, long periods of time... and then we completed some emergency response analysis work, so when we lump all that together it was a pretty unbelievable year for the entire department and city," Clemo said.

Even prior to these events though, SMFD leaders have needed a system that would allow the department to keep track of personnel during times of chaos and confusion or during the first moments of an emergency, because determining what resources are where has been a challenge for emergency managers for decades — and that hasn't changed in the times of COVID-19.

"The city is a very busy place, but thanks to Tablet Command the department knows who is on what apparatus. From an iPad we can see all of the calls for service that are going on in the city," Clemo said. "So, we know what units are available and when units are not available, and that lets our on-duty Battalion Chief have a very good assessment of all the calls that are going on in the fire department. And that is a pretty critical piece when you're trying to manage a limited amount of resources on those busy days."

Clemo added, "Incident command and accountability are the most important things we do at the department because we want to make sure our people go home in the morning."

This is why he and department leaders have consistently sought to update the tenets of SMFD's technology strategic plan.

"We are updating it as we speak, literally, so we'll be rolling out a 2021 update for the next three years," Clemo said as he detailed more of the department's technological efforts that are possible alongside Tablet Command.

"It's revolutionized the situational awareness component of the job, and an inability to access that can kill people — and it has. So having this just aids us and allows us to make really good decision making by our officers," Clemo said. "Because you can tell when you have multiple apparatuses assigned to a fire or a large incident; you can see their rig on a map and you know where that rig has been assigned on the incident; and therefore you know which the members are in that company and you'll have certainly a good idea on if they're in the back of the building or in front of the building or roof or wherever we assign them."

Reflections About Being a Rotarian

By Bill Chillingworth
Rotary Club of Santa Monica

I walked 6.5 miles today. That may not seem like a significant effort. But, it was everything "significant" to me.

You see, my life has been one built on achieving goals and importance. And, probably by most measures, it has been a runaway success. During the early climb to the top of the corporate ladder, I moved to a completely foreign U.S. market as managing director of a large corporation, but I knew no one in that market. One of my employees suggested I join an organization of well-connected (that caught my attention) and well-intended business leaders. I was open to the idea and game. It was in 1989 that I joined Rotary International.

Rotary is best known for its recognizable cog-wheel logo, but few know it is an international service organization made up of over 1.2 million members from around the world, committed to bringing lasting change in our local communities and around the world.

Rotary's people of action have used their passion, their energy, their resources, and their intelligence to take action on sustainable projects from literacy and peace, to health and clean water. We simply want to make this world a better place. Rotary's largest global public endeavor is to end polio. Bill Gates and his foundation, and many others, have joined forces with us towards this significant goal.

I have now served proudly in five Rotary Clubs, including being the President of the Rotary Club of Sydney – Australia's largest. Today, I am a board member of the Rotary Club of Santa Monica – an elected position I serve proudly. So, when a fellow board member came to the Club seeking support for the "Movember Movement" – an organization formed to bring awareness to men's mental health and suicide prevention – I jumped in with both feet, so to speak.

The goal is simple: grow a mustache (which I already had as part of my beard), or walk 60 miles in the month. This was significant because every 60 seconds, an American male takes his own life. So, I let my beard grow, and I walked. And walked. And walked. I walked for the son of my Best Man who took his life at 14. I walked for my sister-in-law's sister who took her life in her mid-fifties. I walked for my aunt who took her life leaving my two cousins without a mother. And, I walked for my fellow board member's son whose college roommate took his life.

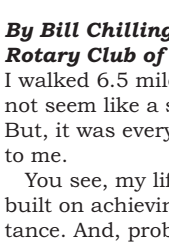

By my measurement, that meant growing a mustache and walking 60 miles, three times, for 180 miles in November – representing all four tragic human losses. It took me all of the month, a few aching muscles, a blister or two, and a swelling heart. I crossed the finish line today, November 30, 2020 at 9:15 a.m., with my fellow board member at my side – wearing a mask, a full face of hair and 181 miles walked.

There lies within me the need to move away from being important to being the emotional force that is significance. Significance resides at the apex of the created order. Within this space is the belief that there is meaningful existence beyond the material.

I hope I am significant enough.

Holidays with The Santa Monica Lions

By Linda Levee

The Lions Club had a great virtual meeting with the Salvation Army. Everyone had a good time. We sang Christmas Carols and traditional songs while the brass band played for us.

We are getting used to these Zoom meetings, and by experience know that you have to mute if you all want to sing with the band. Lts. Chris and Erin Wikle entertained us with a game and information on how the Salvation Army is surviving this COVID-19 Pandemic.

Imagine if we personally had to deal with all of those families needing assistance with their children, food, school supplies, online Chrome Books, and places that are safe, if you are homeless.

They do a wonderful job, and deserve everyone's support. We had our bell ringing support requests online and our own account to send in donations.

Thanks to all of our Lions who participated. This was our last regular meeting until February 2021.

Hope everyone had a great holiday season, although it was very different. Many found that being isolated and not rushing around gave us time for reflection. Hopefully, we will return to regular life in 2021 and have a greater appreciation for our freedom and democratic way of life.

Contact me at levelheadedlinda@yahoo.com if you are interested in learning more about our Santa Monica Lions Club.

SMBWC Endows SMC Scholarships

By Patricia Webber

The Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club has always advocated the importance of education, especially for girls and women. In 2019, the Club established The Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club Endowed Scholarship at Santa Monica College. Based on merit and financial need, the awards are specifically to benefit women returning to college after five years or more.

We recognized there are many challenges facing women returning to school. Statistically, about 22 percent of all undergraduate students are raising dependent children, The Institute for Women's Policy Research reports that women make up 70 percent of all student-parents. And, roughly 43 percent of the student-parent population consists of single women.

The first SMBWC Endowed Scholarship was awarded this past spring. I will not share her name here, for her privacy, but she is 38 years old and attending SMC to earn a certificate in Technical Theater. In Spring 2021, she will begin undergraduate courses at Cal State Long Beach to earn a degree in Theater Arts. She has two dogs and helps to take care of her nephew, who is struggling with depression.

She is an impressive woman who has overcome years of personal struggle. She was put into foster care from the ages of 13 to 17. Until the fall of 2017, she had an alcohol addiction, then became sober and started attending SMC. She says that the theater department at SMC saved her life and helped her to realize her purpose in the theater. She is an excellent student, and I am sure she will continue to be so at Cal State Long Beach. She has expressed her gratitude to the SMBWC members, stating that she is "very grateful for their kindness and generosity" to help her realize her dreams.

When Are Dogs Most Affected by Ticks?

By Dr. Frank Lavac MS, DVM

Q: In Southern California, when are ticks mostly likely to affect dogs, and what are effective flea and tick products?

A: In SoCal, tick prevalence peaks in the winter during the rainy season. Dogs will usually pick up ticks during hikes into brush and wooded areas.

At present, the most effective flea and tick products contain the class of drugs known as Isoxazolines. They are very effective against flea and ticks. They have no repellent effect and require the parasite to bite the pet before they are eliminated. They also kill mites that commonly affect dogs, including demodectic mange, sarcoptic mange, cheyletiella, and ear mites.

Mammals have a much lower sensitivity to Isoxazolines. Therefore, this drug is considered safe for dogs and cats. There are topical as well as oral preparations. The most common side effects are vomiting, diarrhea, decreased appetite, and lethargy. In 2018, The FDA issued a warning that in rare circumstances tremors, ataxia, and seizures can occur. However, the FDA still classifies this drug as safe and effective.

Examples of products that contain this class of medication include Bravecto, Nexgard, Credelio, Revolution Plus, and Simparica.

Dr. Frank Lavac can be reached by calling 310-828-4587.

Gloria Jaroff Still Stylish at 91

By Jack Neworth

My Santa Monica neighbor and very cool friend, Gloria Jaroff, is a "Renaissance woman." Before I elaborate, I want to describe Gloria's 90th birthday party last year. Her entire remarkable family, spanning four generations and numbering more than 50, honored her in grand style. All consider Gloria a role model for staying young and keeping fit by swimming every day and having a great sense of humor.

Since Gloria has played piano for most of her life, it was only fitting that the party included a jazz combo. (Bass player, drummer and Gloria's good friends, Bob Boreman on sax, and Mike Saul on piano.) At the party, Gloria and her granddaughter, Regan, an actress and artist, sang their own version of the song, "Young at Heart."

A retired architect, Gloria remains active in her other careers as an interior designer, published author, public speaker, and jazz piano musician. (She's also been a scuba diver for 40 years.)

Gloria spent 55 years designing homes, Disney theme parks, Wells Fargo banks and their corporate center renovations. Keep in mind that when Gloria first began her design career, a female architect was not exactly commonplace. She's also passionate about the arts, film making, and medicine, fields many of her relatives are in.

For example, her son Joe has designed and fabricated monumental installations for high-visibility clients, such as Jazz at Lincoln Center and a 9/11 memorial for the City of Hoboken in New Jersey. And, her daughter-in-law, Bhavani, who owns an organic garden catering company, also hosts a radio show. Her nephew Richard is a fellow of the American Institute of Architects, and his wife, Helen, is a renowned eye surgeon. (Talk about an "accomplished" group. Wow.) Richard is also the editor of Gloria's book, The Nature of Color in Interior Design.

Gloria Jaroff

In fact, Gloria's working on a sequel of sorts, all about "color" in the architectural sense, and also her autobiography. The first I fear might be over my head, but the autobiography sounds terrific and is right up my alley. I can't wait to review it.

Mar Vista: Neighbor to Neighbor

What's Up in Mar Vista?

By Tesi Treuenfels

Our Mar Vista neighbors, Mark Presky and Marsha Saltman, tied the knot this past October 24, "five years to the day from the day we met" offered Marsha enthusiastically.

Both 70, neither Marsha nor Mark had previously been married. They met on their way into a Social Circle dance at the Steven S. Weiss Temple complex. The two were immediately attracted to each other and spent the evening talking, laughing, and later trying out steps to the Lindy Hop that Mark had recently learned.

This was the beginning of a long line of firsts for both Mark and Marsha. Mark taught Marsha how to drive at age 67. Mark, an avid scuba diver since 1971, watched his new love jump in with abandon, completing her scuba diving certification in the warm waters of Belize at age 68. Mark proposed to Marsha in Belize by inserting a "Will you be my marshmallow forever" proposal into a box of Cracker Jacks. She accepted after some confusion. Just after opening the box of Cracker Jacks, Mark was called out of the room by the concierge to address some zip-lining plans for the next day.

They had a beautiful backyard wedding here in Mar Vista surrounded by their edible landscaping. Mark is an enthusiastic member of the California Rare Fruit Growers. It's a fascinating club. Watch for details to come in next month's column.

There's no slowing these two down, what with their night hiking group taking on trails in the Santa Monica Mountains with headlamps and hiking poles, and sharing knowledge about selling items online. Mark writes the computer advice column for The Santa Monica Star. Marsha is a powerhouse. Our discussion turned to music – Doo Wop to Mozart, another common interest they share. La Cenerentola (Cinderella), an opera by Rossini was mentioned. "So did you meet your prince? I asked Marsha. "Oh yes" she replied with a big smile in her voice. Congratulations to them both!

Building Children's Emotional Resilience Amid Uncertainty

Family Features - For parents facing uncertain school schedules, new ways of working and concerns about the health and safety of their families, life in a pandemic is stressful enough. Add in the potential for children to feel overwhelmed or unable to cope with the unfamiliar and many families feel they are in no-win situations.

Keeping children home can help minimize potential exposure to COVID-19, but limits their contacts with friends and teachers. On the other hand, sending kids to a center or school to learn and socialize with others can lead to concerns about exposusre to COVID-19.

Building Children's Resilience

Parents can create a check list ahead of choosing a childcare center.

"Families have much to consider when it comes to making a decision about what is best for them," said Dr. Elanna Yalow, chief academic officer of the KinderCare Learning Centers.

Keep these considerations in mind when selecting the best option for your family:

• Put safety first. When considering a center or school, make sure it is not only following Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and local health department guidelines when it comes to masks and social distancing, but look for additional safety measures such as restricted access to classrooms, health screenings upon entry, handwashing throughout the day and frequent cleaning and sanitizing.

• The social and emotional benefits to returning to school or child care.

Children typically thrive with social stimulation and outlets for strong emotions, two things that are challenging for many families to offer right now. School can provide children with a safe place to continue their social, emotional and academic development, enhanced by the opportunity for social interaction with people outside of their immediate families.

• Making the transition easier. "Routines can be comforting to children," Dr. Yalow said. "Just think about how excited they are to rejoin their friends and teachers after a typical summer break. We have seen that enthusiasm magnified this year as children have returned to our programs."

Once children settle into a more typical routine, parents can feel a sense of relief seeing them engaged in learning and interacting with their peers and teachers.

Every family has to make the decision that feels is best for it. When you're ready, there are safe and engaging programs available for your child.

A Letter to the Editor:

Dear Editor:

Admittedly, COVID-19 will forever be emblazoned in our minds when we think of the year 2020. May I point to two wonderful events that I hope will also be remembered for having occurred in 2020 – two events in which we should take much pride.

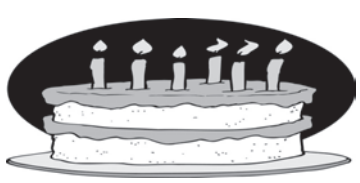

The year 2020 was the year of our presidential election. In the election that took place four years earlier, only 58.1% of eligible voters had voted. In 2020, Americans proved that they had learned that we cannot take our freedoms for granted – that we must be active, participating citizens. Approximately 66.7% of eligible voters voted in 2020. That was the highest turnout in 120 years!

COVID-19 did not stop us. Those who feared going to the polls to vote made the effort to obtain absentee ballots, and voted!

Democracy also prevailed after the election. When asked to overturn settled, certified election results, the majority of our states' highest courts ruled not to overthrow the votes of its citizens, not to reverse its voters' decisions. And, in a decision made in one day, the Supreme Court justices rejected the request to reverse Pennsylvania's certification of its election's winner.

Americans can proudly point to 2020 as a year in which we proved that we are a nation of laws, abiding by the rule of law, the cornerstone of all democratic societies.

Sincerely,
Harriet Wertman

From Me to You...

By Diane Margolin

One of my favorite memories of the holidays in 2020 is seeing photos of families whose members are all wearing matching pajamas, even the dog! Big checked patterns were most popular with black and white and then red and black being worn the most.

I did find out from Lisa at Ye Olde Kingshead Pub in Santa Monica that it is possible to order Tea in a Box to go so you can serve high tea in your home. Their afternoon teas include finger sandwiches, a sausage roll or quiche, freshly baked scones with Devonshire cream and preserves, plus a red velvet cupcake, mince pie and specialty tea or coffee. Think about what a treat it would be for your family. Call 310-451-1402 and tell Lisa I suggested you explore their English menu.

One of the treats I accidentally discovered on the Internet were walking tours of cities the world over. I've been missing the holiday season in Manhattan, and soon I was looking at the animated store windows in Macy's and Saks Fifth Avenue. Then, I went to London and Paris to see their holiday decorations. It was so much fun!

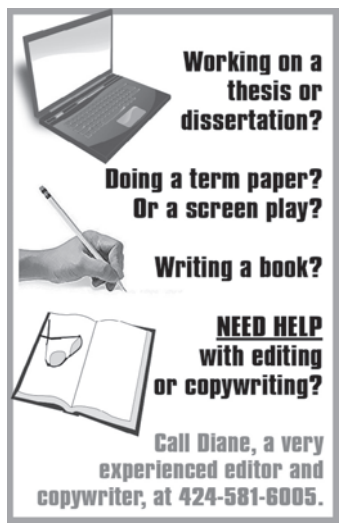

Be sure to watch for our pages within the Monday issues of the Santa Monica Daily Press.

Beth Shir Shalom Temple invites potential families to tour their Early Childhood Center on Sunday, January 10 and February 7. Contact robin@bethshirshalom.org to RSVP.

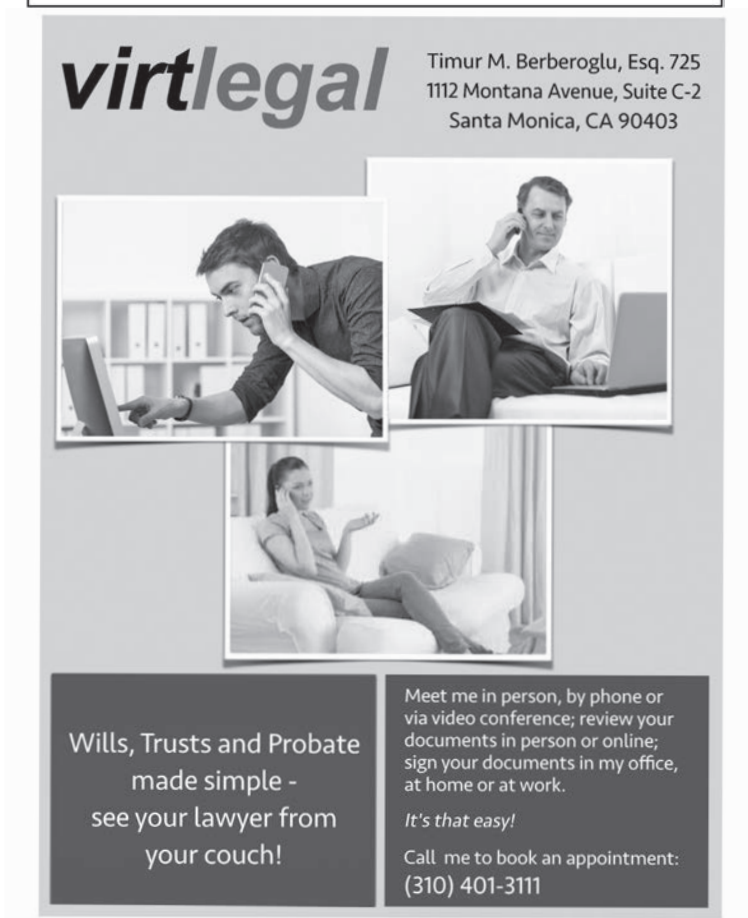

Plan ahead to start the Chinese Lunar New Year on February 12, the year of the Ox. It ends with the Lantern Festival on February 26.

We are sad to report that our dear friend Florence Kinney, who would have been 109 on March 12 this year, passed away at 3 a.m. on New Years Day. She was the oldest living Samohi graduate.

So many of us are looking forward to next year and hoping for better news health wise. We wish all of our readers inner peace, good health, and happiness in 2021.
