Fees removed for library cards

BY MATTHEW HALL

Daily Press Editor

Library cards will be free for all who want them, residents and visitors alike, thanks to a decision by the City Council at their Jan. 26 meeting.

As part of their budget discussion last week, the City Council eliminated a $25 fee that had been imposed on non-residents applying for a Santa Monica Library card. The fee will disappear as of Feb. 1.

The fee had been in place for about two years. City Hall required each department to cut up to 5-percent of its budget, or suggest alternate revenue sources. The non-resident fee emerged as a means of meeting those goals while retaining the high level of service demanded by Santa Monica residents.

The fee succeeded in generating revenue. It brought in about $152,000 in the first year and about $144,000 in the second. However revenue was projected to decline with at 13-percent drop predicted this year. There were also costs associated with the system.

However, charging non-residents for a card put Santa Monica at odds with library best practices.

The Santa Monica library system was disqualified from membership in the Southern California

Library Consortium (SCLC) and local librarians were unable to receive professional development or other resources from the organization. The fee also prevented Santa Monica from receiving funding from the state that is used to recoup costs associated with inter-

Santa Monica key to local author's spy novel

'Stealth Gambit' penned by former RAND consultant

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN

Daily Press Staff Writer

The Cold War is at its height as graduate student Nick Butler, a CIA recruit, heads to the beach in Santa Monica. Operating as a spy in the military aircraft industry, he's been given fake stealth bomber designs by U.S. and allied intelligence officials. The beautiful girl he meets on the sand, a Russian spy, thinks they're real.

"What goes on in Santa Monica is very important," said Wes Truitt, the author of "Stealth Gambit," a spy novel recently released by Dorrance Publishing.

And the main character's encounter on the shore is one of numerous plot points in the book involving the beachside city.

"Stealth Gambit" marks a sharp departure in the writing career of Truitt, a longtime Marina del Rey resident. His four previously published works, which centered around business and politics, were all nonfiction.

Truitt, 76, drew extensively on his own life experiences to write "Stealth Gambit," which offers a fictional, but feasible, slice of life

Girls water polo: Samohi driven by semifinal slipup

Vikings trounce Torrance on quest for fourth-straight league title

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN

Daily Press Staff Writer

The ball launched forward by sophomore goalkeeper Emma Ware was controlled by senior Isabelle Lomonaco and quickly flicked to junior Kalen Lehmann, who found the back of the net on a powerful right-handed shot.

It happened so quickly, the third-period highlight effectively summarizing Wednesday afternoon at Drake Pool.

Showcasing its superior skill, speed and stamina, the Santa Monica High girls water polo team obliterated Torrance 14-4 in Ocean League play.

It was another convincing victory for the Vikings on their quest for a fourth consecutive conference title, another example of their regular-season dominance.

But what coach Matt Flanders and his squad are truly jonesing for is the postseason glory that eluded them last year, when they lost to Huntington Beach-Ocean View in the semifinals of the CIF Southern Section playoffs.

That experience has seemingly galvanized Samohi (23-3, 5-0 in the Ocean League), which is currently ranked No. 1 in Division 6 despite losing star goalkeeper Sierra Kelly, defensive stalwart Leah Duff-Gutentag and other key seniors to graduation.

WINNING IN THE WATER: The Samohi girls water polo team beat Torrance 14-4 in Ocean League play on Jan.27.

"We really thought we'd be in big trouble, but the girls have just stepped up," Flanders said. "Our top six are pretty darn good. We don't have a superstar, but they work really, really well together. They're just stoked to play water polo."

Since the Vikings face weaker competition in league play, they try to squeeze lessons and motivation out of their preseason matchups against top teams from throughout the region. In December they lost to Huntington Beach, which recently received votes to be in the top 10 of the Division 1 poll. They also fell by one to Palos Verdes, the ninth-ranked team in Division 3.

But it's not as if Samohi can't hold its own against elite opponents. Early in the season it defeated Manhattan Beach-Mira Costa, currently the No. 5 team in Division 3. And a couple weeks ago it handled Dana Point-Dana Hills, the No. 9 squad in Division 2.

"You need to have a lot of experience to compete, and the top teams all play year-round,"

Flanders said. "That's what the girls have done. They have a lot of water polo under their belts, and they're really reaping the benefits right now."

But staying sharp while beating inferior opponents during the conference slate isn't easy, Flanders said.

"We try to stay focused on what our goals are and keep working hard," he said. "If you go in cocky and complacent, you'll end up los-

EDITORIAL

Reports of our demise have been greatly exaggerated

The annual State of the City is usually a chance for City Hall to praise the business community responsible for much of Santa Monica's tax revenue. It's also a chance for City officials to promote their own policies and tout their own achievements.

Both happened during the 2016 event, but aside from the self-congratulatory backslapping was an interesting note by City Manager Rick Cole. When discussing new technology, Cole took a swipe at the newspaper industry for what he described as a lack of innovation.

Cole's comments can best be described as coming from a place of ignorance. And if that were the end of it, we'd probably just move on. However, these comments were part of a hypocritical pattern Cole is developing that needs to be publicly addressed.

First and foremost, yes, newspapers have had a difficult time recently. The industry has seen significant change, and that change continues. But to say the problems are due to a lack of innovation is remarkably obtuse, and to make those comments without any knowledge of the local industry is recklessly ignorant.

There are at least seven newspapers covering the 8.4 square miles of Santa Monica and four of those are based in the City. If the industry were on its deathbed, the economy wouldn't support all of us and, as we'll get to in a moment, the Daily Press isn't just limping along, but actively growing.

But first, to Cole's "innovation" crack. We continue to print a physical paper, not out of thoughtless habit, but because it's what our readers demand. Print circulation far exceeds online readership, and the geography of Santa Monica makes it a uniquely walkable city and therefore a place where readers prefer to pick up a physical paper rather than read on their smartphones.

That's not to say we don't have a digital presence, we offer several online options, but our adherence to the print edition is simply good business. Print also continues to be a favorite among our non-newspaper clients.

The Daily Press has expanded its business to include custom publications. We produce publications for local realtors, the Los Angeles Marathon, Downtown Santa Monica, SMMUSD and the Twilight Concert Series. All of those customers (including the City of Santa Monica) actively want print publications because they have a reach, power and focus that digital communication still can't match.

In a point of apparently unrecognized irony, even the City of Santa Monica sees newspapers as powerful communication tools. At the same event as Cole's speech, the City of Santa Monica was eager to show the importance of its recent minimum wage increase. The illustration they chose to show the relevance of that action was to display newspaper clippings.

It's also worth mentioning that Cole's enthusiastic praise of disruptive innovation failed to mention the City's recent restrictions on Airbnb or government sponsored efforts to protect the taxi industry.

Our business model has evolved, and like any successful business, we have innovated our way toward growth.

In 2015, the Daily Press made more money than it has in over a decade. Our year-over-year growth is in the double digits, and predictions of our demise would be laughable if they weren't being made repeatedly by a public figure who has a vested interest in our failure.

Cole has attacked newspapers before and done so in a public setting. It seems that he has a communication strategy that is based in part on undermining independent reporting. At the same time, Cole is building his own communications department and perhaps Cole would prefer that information is limited to the facts preapproved and distributed by the government. We disagree and feel the role we play in the community is vital, if perhaps inconvenient to authorities at times.

Aside from the quality reporting we produce, our op-ed page provides a vibrant, diverse and pointed discussion of local issues. At the same time, we spend significant editorial resources to support local events, causes, people and charities. Our employees also sit on numerous boards, volunteer throughout Santa Monica and the same can be said of the other local publications.

If Cole were part of any of those local groups, or involved in any of those causes, perhaps he would have some experience with the local impact of our industry. But coming from his perch at City Hall, to dismiss that work is, quite frankly, insulting.

We would have happily discussed our business, industry and plans for growth with Cole had he chosen to make a call before attacking our efforts. Instead, he chose to rely on faulty opinions and personal bias. Fortunately for Cole, we will continue to apply a higher standard to the kind of debate published in our paper during this election year and for many years to come.

Hypocrisy drives City's traffic

THE PHRASE, "DO AS I SAY, NOT AS I do," comes to mind. No, I haven't started reading the bible (although it may do me some good), just my e-mail. Diana Gordon, co-chair of the Santa Monica Coalition for a Livable City (SMCLC), emailed me a press release last week.

It stated, "It turns out that all employees who work for the City government are given free parking in Santa Monica and the majority drive to and park in the downtown area. This is at the very time that City Hall is waging a campaign to limit driving and parking for residents everywhere in the City, especially downtown."

"And it gets worse. As the City has ratcheted up its campaign aimed at driving, each year even fewer City employees are taking public transit, biking and carpooling. That's right - for every year since 2008, City employees' use of alternatives to single occupancy cars, such as public transportation, bicycling and car-pooling (which was already low) has 'experienced a steady decline.'"

City employee use of alternative transportation has declined 22-percent since 2008 while use of private vehicles has increased. Some 2,200 City employees aren't the only folks getting free parking. So do consultants, contractors, temporary hires, volunteers, freelancers and others working for the City or in town on City business.

The South Coast Air Quality Management District (SCAQMD) requires the City to meet an average vehicle ridership (AVR) of 1.5 employees per vehicle. If the AVR were to fall below 1.5 next year, charging employees for parking or increasing incentives to use alternate modes of transportation could be deployed.

As part of the development agreement approval process, City Hall requires a Traffic Management Demand (TDM) Plan to reduce a project's potential traffic impacts. These programs, aimed primarily at single-occupancy private vehicles, promise to mitigate any traffic increases generated by the new development.

If the City can't even regulate its own employee traffic, how can it regulate private development? It can't. As past history has revealed, staff frequently fails to follow up and see if approved private developer TDMs and other requirements have been implemented or are even effective.

Don't get me wrong. I have no problem with the City picking up the parking tab for those who work for it. But, what I find to be infuriating and the height of hypocrisy is while the City issues parking passes like they were penny candies, policymakers and politicians alike are insisting that the rest of us "Don't drive our car," and instead, "walk, take the bus, get on a bicycle."

And, they're not just telling us not to drive, they've been deliberately making it more difficult and frustrating for us to use personal vehicles by physically altering the roadway - reducing traffic lanes and lane width, placing medians and islands down the center of major streets and boulevards that make it harder to see what's on the road, installing curb bump-outs that impair turns onto side streets (for cars and bicycles alike), installing roundabouts, removing dedicated turn lanes to obtain space for rarely used bicycle lanes, ad infinitum.

Add to that the deliberate mis-coordination of traffic signals to slow and congest traffic instead of keeping it moving, installing "stop" signs in an attempt to control speeding, increasing parking meter rates and operating times and reducing parking requirements for certain types of new developments and it's easy to see why Santa Monica has some of the most congested traffic in the country.

SMCLC hit the nail directly on the head when they declared that it was not blaming City employees who work hard. They were calling out the rank hypocrisy in City Hall's planning process.

"But when the City tells us that 'getting people out of their single occupancy vehicles is key,' when they reduce driving lanes; refuse to provide parking at Expo stops; make street parking more expensive and difficult to find, then residents are being treated one way while the City treats itself differently," their release states.

"If City staff cannot find and use realistic transit alternatives, the City should acknowledge the same truth for residents." SMCLC urged that traffic planners, politicians and policymakers "get its house in order." Amen.

Tomorrow night, Feb. 2, The Wilshire/Montana (Wilmont) Neighborhood Coalition will hold its monthly public meeting at the Montana Avenue Branch Library (17th St. and Montana Ave.) from 6:45 - 9 p.m.

The guest presenter will be Beth Rolandson, principal transportation planner with the Planning and Community Development Division. She'll present the new Pedestrian Action Plan (PAP) for the City.

On Nov. 16, 2015, I wrote about the 219 page (Is nothing ever short and concise in City Hall?) draft PAP, and was sharply critical of it. Since then, it's being revised to better address traffic enforcement and other issues glossed over in the original draft.

This is a great opportunity to ask questions. I'd be especially interested in hearing the City's excuses for decades of bad planning, traffic mismanagement and putting social engineering (rainbow chasing) before progress and common sense.

Last November I opined, "It's obvious this is another attempt to further slow traffic speeds, increase congestion, make motorists more frustrated and further diminish the ability for most of us to get around in a timely manner. But, hasn't City Hall been trying to force us out of our cars since the 'Traffic Calming' days of the 1980's - without success?"

A lesson in endocrine disruptors

Dear EarthTalk:

What are endocrine disruptors, how do they make their way into my body and what can I do to avoid them?

Jo McGovern
Albany, NY

THE ENDOCRINE SYSTEM CONTROLS THE various functions of cells, tissues and organs in our bodies through the secretion of hormones. The major glands that regulate the flow of these hormones include the pituitary, thyroid, parathyroid, and adrenal glands, as well as the pancreas and reproductive glands (ovaries in women, testicles in men). A properly functioning system ensures optimum mood, growth, development, metabolism, sexual function and reproduction.

Endocrine disruptors are chemicals that mimic or block the action of natural hormones. According to the Environmental Working Group (EWG), there is no end to the tricks that endocrine disruptors can play on our bodies. These chemicals can increase the production of certain hormones, decrease the production of others, turn one hormone into another, compete with essential nutrients and more.

Some 80 million pounds of atrazine, an herbicide named on EWG's Dirty Dozen List of Endocrine Disruptors, are applied in the U.S. each year. A 2010 University of California (UC) Berkeley study found that atrazine-exposed male amphibians were feminized as a result. Ten percent of those exposed developed into females that copulated with unexposed males and produced viable eggs. "Given the overwhelming evidence of unacceptable risk, I'm quite frankly surprised that atrazine is even still in use," said Dr. Tyrone Hayes, professor of Integrative Biology at UC Berkeley and the study's lead author.

Monsanto's Roundup, a trade name for glyphosate and the most widely used herbicide in the U.S. with 250 million pounds sprayed each year, was also recently found to have hormone disrupting capabilities. Studies released in 2015 determined that Roundup decreased levels of progesterone and corticosterone, a steroid hormone produced in the adrenal glands. An earlier study determined that even at lower, "non-toxic" exposure levels, Roundup reduced testosterone levels. Recently it was announced that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will analyze the impacts of atrazine and glyphosate on 1,500 endangered plants and animals under the terms of a settlement reached with the Center for Biological Diversity (CBD). "This settlement is the first step to reining in the widespread use of dangerous pesticides that are harming both wildlife and people," said Brett Hartl, CBD's endangered species policy director.

Buying organic produce and drinking filtered water can reduce your exposure to hormone-disrupting herbicides and pesticides. Another good reason to install a water filter is to remove perchlorate, a chemical that is also named on EWG's Dirty Dozen list. A 2010 study found that, in pharmacologic doses, perchlorate inhibits iodine uptake, an element needed for the production of thyroid hormones. The findings were alarming as adequate iodine intake is essential for normal neurodevelopment in infancy and childhood. While further research is needed to determine the impacts of perchlorate in the environment, the American Thyroid Association recommends that women who are planning a pregnancy or who are pregnant ingest 150 mg of iodine daily to ensure adequate iodine nutrition and to overcome the potential adverse effects of perchlorate exposure.

While it may be frightening to think about all the potential exposures to endocrine disruptors around us today, purchasing environmentally-conscious, natural-based products for you, your family and your home; eating organic, fresh, unpackaged foods and drinking filtered water from a glass container are simple ways to help keep your hormones and endocrine system in balance.

BBB outreach to explain fare increases
BY MATTHEW HALL
Santa Monica Daily Press
The Santa Monica Board of Transportation (SBOT) is currently reviewing the proposed fare increases for the Santa Monica Transit System. The board is holding public hearings to gather input from residents. The proposed fare increases are as follows: 15% for the 15-minute fare, 10% for the 30-minute fare, and 5% for the 60-minute fare. The board is also considering a new fare structure for the 15-minute fare, which would be $1.50. The board is also considering a new fare structure for the 30-minute fare, which would be $2.00. The board is also considering a new fare structure for the 60-minute fare, which would be $2.50. The board is also considering a new fare structure for the 90-minute fare, which would be $3.00. Marijuana dispensaries that are fair to patients, safe for children

Editor:

The Santa Monica Malibu Unified School District Health and Safety District Advisory Committee is a group of parents and community members that includes several physicians and other healthcare professionals. Our group supports in principle the resolution recently passed by the Santa Monica High School Parent Teacher Student Association (PTSA) regarding the permitting process for up to two medical marijuana dispensaries that were approved in a June City of Santa Monica zoning ordinance. While we certainly need to protect the availability of medical marijuana for those patients that it is appropriate for, we need to ensure that the marijuana dispensaries do not have a negative effect on our community's children.

As our City staff studies the implementation of these dispensaries, we want to emphasize our particular support for a few aspects of the PTSA's resolution. These include:

- 1) The dispensary shall be located at least 1,000 feet away from any school, daycare, nursery, playground, library, or youth-oriented establishment.
- 2) The dispensary must have a store security plan approved by the Santa Monica Police Department prior to opening.
- 3) No person under 18 be permitted on the premises. The dispensary will be required to display prominent signs and verify ID of all purchases.
- 4) Dispensary must verify and document that patients are residents of the city of Santa Monica. This is to prevent abuse of dispensaries by tourists.
- 5) No use of marijuana on premises or in associated parking lot.

Our committee looks forward to the report for the City staff and look forward to the opening of marijuana dispensaries in our community in a manner that is both just for our patients and safest for our children.

The Vikings looked focused from the get-go against Torrance, scoring the first six goals of the game. Lehmann logged a hat trick, and twin juniors Alissa and Audrey Hattori also put away multiple goals.

Flanders also noted the standout play of Olivia Allen, one of five seniors on the team, junior goalkeeper Amalie Luneng-Solli and freshman Lauren Gaudry.

Samohi, which is scheduled to face El Segundo and Culver City on the road this week, will host Beverly Hills in its league finale Feb. 9. What happens in the playoffs remains to be seen.

"Ever since we lost in the semis last year," Flanders said, "they've been working really hard to get back to that stage, or better."

agency operations.

"The City's current practice of assessing a non-resident fee is broadly perceived as exclusionary, especially by neighboring library systems such as Los Angeles Public Library and the County of Los Angeles Public Library, who both offer Santa Monica residents free cards to access their large library networks," said the staff report.

Prior to Tuesday's Council vote the Santa Monica Public Library Board had recommended eliminating the non-resident library card fee and keeping the budget at its current level. Organizations including the Santa Monica Public Library Board, the Innovation Technology Task Force and the Friends of the Santa Monica Public Library Board also advocated for dropping the fee.

According to Erica Cuyugan, acting assistant city librarian, the system has cut more than $200,000 from its budget, and while those funds are unlikely to return, the organization is pleased to be offering free cards again.

"90-percent of libraries provide free cards," she said. "We want to be more aligned with that. Just in general, the idea of sharing with our neighbors in L.A. and Los Angeles County, where our Santa Monica residents could get cards for free."

Cuyugan said the fee had also become a topic of discussion among library users and removal of the fee had been discussed during recent the strategic planning process.

"There had been a lot of community feedback and with the move to be more inclusive and fit with other libraries we're looking forward to welcoming new visitors," she said.

amid the political and military tensions brewing between the United States and the Soviet Union in the mid-1970s.

"The best way to communicate with people is through stories," he said. "I have wanted people to get a realistic appreciation for what the Cold War was like. Younger people have no knowledge of it. It's something their moms and dads might tell them about. It was a dark and strange era."

Truitt worked for about 25 years at Northrop Grumman, a large aerospace and defense technology company. He was a consultant to the RAND Corporation, a think tank based in Santa Monica. And he has shared his knowledge of defense and foreign policy issues with numerous policy groups and government associations.

Truitt, who holds a doctorate in political science from Columbia University, has served as an adjunct professor at Pepperdine University, UCLA and Loyola Marymount.

Readers of "Stealth Gambit" will uncover numerous parallels between the agencies in the book and the ones they're meant to represent. Northrop Grumman's name is changed to Century Aerospace, Wilshire Aerospace is a stand-in for Lockheed Martin and the National Defense Analysis Center (NDAC) is a fictional substitution for RAND.

Paul Hammond, the inspiration behind one of the book's characters, David Hammond, was a real RAND expert in aviation and foreign policy. He's the official who tells Butler to head to the beach in Santa Monica, leading to his climactic affair with a Russian spy.

"She gets, through him, a copy of the stealth bomber design from Century Aerospace, and that design is taken by a courier to Washington and put in a secret dropbox," Truitt said. "Nick figures out that there are KGB operatives in Washington."

The sequel, which has already been written, delves into the lives of Butler's sons, who were birthed using semen captured by seductive Russian spies. It has not yet been published.

In the meantime, Westside residents will likely find familiar numerous settings in "Stealth Gambit," including the beach, Ocean Avenue, the former Holiday Inn hotel (now the Wyndham Santa Monica) and The Warehouse Restaurant in Marina del Rey.

"I lived it," Truitt said. "I was there."

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ In January, the upscale Italian fashion house Dolce & Gabbana introduced stylish hijabs and abayas aimed at Muslim women unafraid to call attention to themselves as they exercise their obliged modesty. D&G's marketing effort even accessorized models' headscarves and cloaks with stilettos and oversized, gaudily framed sunglasses. It was clear from the suggested retail prices that D&G would be pitching the line mainly in the wealthy Persian Gulf countries like United Arab Emirates.

■ Awkward Signals in New Jersey: (1) The government watchdog MuckRock requested records on the cause of death of a dolphin in New Jersey's South River last year (to investigate larger dangers to the animal), but in January 2016 the state's Department of Agriculture initially declined to release them -- citing "medical privacy" (usually requested, for autopsies, by "the deceased's family"). (2) At the same time, Maria Vaccarella is facing a $500 fine in Howell, New Jersey, for violating a state law because she illegally rendered "care" to two apparently orphaned baby squirrels when their mother abandoned them. She was due in court as News of the Weird went to press.

GET SOME EXTRA R AND R TONIGHT, SAG

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ People to whom you relate today will appreciate your thoroughness and attentiveness. Communication flourishes, and you will receive positive feedback. You might decide that it's time for a checkup before you start a new diet. Tonight: Be with a favorite person.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ No one likes to be pushed around, and you are no exception. Knowing when to back away or defer might be very important right now. Communication will flourish once you put the kibosh on a power play. The only way to win is not to play. Tonight: Check out your options.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ Focus on getting the job done. You might need to have a discussion with a key party in order to complete this task well. Goodwill will flourish once you complete this particular project. No one can do it as well as you can. Tonight: Put your feet up; you need some time off.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ Your playfulness comes through, no matter how serious you decide to be. You know when enough is enough. Don't allow others to push you around. You usually are easygoing, but right now you need to say "no." Tonight: Make some phone calls, then decide.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ You seem to be focused on domestic issues or on a personal relationship. Getting yourself to focus on anything else might be close to impossible. Handle what is brewing in your mind, and then you'll be free to deal with everything else that needs attention. Tonight: Head home early.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ You will choose the right words to move a loved one to your side of an issue. You also will recognize that you have the ability to understand both opinions and then assess what you have in common with them. Processing in this way works well for you. Tonight: Be lovable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Sometimes it might seem impossible to find your way out of a maze. In this case, you're looking at a financial matter. Don't hesitate to ask for help; it can make all the difference in the outcome. Communication flourishes once others know of your intentions. Tonight: Overindulge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ It is nearly impossible to imagine someone saying "no" to you today. Should someone verbalize the word "no" and direct it toward you, know that it took a lot of courage. Be open to hearing opinions that are very different from yours. Tonight: Enjoy the moment with friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 22)
★★ You might want to pull back and do some hard thinking about your alternatives. You will see that you have many other paths to follow, even if you don't like what is happening at the moment. You can bypass a problem. Why let this get to you? Tonight: Get some extra R and R.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Don't forget your objectives. You could feel challenged by various groups of people. They might be more liberal, and you might be more conservative, but there is a midpoint where you all can meet. Willingly find it together. Tonight: You will earn the reputation of being a wild thing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ You are on top of your game. You have unique leadership qualities that will emerge. You also have a strong partnership that you can rely on. You'll get to play devil's advocate for someone. As a result, you will come up with even better ideas. Tonight: Celebrate a partnership.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Keep reaching out for more information. A friend or associate could be very difficult and cantankerous. You will need to take the high road with this person. Understand that you will need to decide how to handle your responses. Tonight: Music helps brighten your mood.

Monday, February 1, 2016

This year you experience additional popularity and the responsibilities that go along with it. Within your community, you will be noticed and commended for years of work and commitment. If you are single, you meet people with ease. You will know whom to choose when you look at the type of relationship you want to have. If you are attached, your sweetie might have an issue with you being out on the town so much and not at home. Make a point of bringing him or her more into your social life. SCORPIO can be very controlling.

Farewell from Elizabeth
My last day with CNPA will be February 4, 2016. February 17, 2016 would have marked my 12 years in the service of CNPA and I have enjoyed my time here. This is bittersweet for me because it truly has been a pleasure working with all of you over the years. However, I am very excited to be moving back home to Ontario Canada to be closer to family. Until a replacement can be found your contact will be Cecelia 916-288-6011 or Cecelia@cnpa.com
