Council pushing for off-ramp realignment

BY DAVID MARK SIMPSON
Daily Press Staff Writer

FOURTH ST City officials are exploring expediting a realignment of Interstate 10 that would change how vehicles are brought onto Fourth Street.

The new exit would bring traffic over the freeway and tie into the recently-built Olympic Drive. If completed, the exit and entrance to Interstate 10 would be adjacent, rather than separated by the freeway.

City officials told council at their last meeting that the plan, referred to as the Olympic crossover, freeway flyover, or freeway realignment, has been discussed briefly with Caltrans, the state agency in charge of the freeways, but is still in its early phases.

The crossover is included in the draft of the Downtown Specific Plan, which, once approved, will provide a framework for land-use Downtown.

The plan would include the removal of the current Fourth Street off-ramp — eliminating the associated traffic light.

Councilmember Terry O'Day asked city officials what it would

SURVEY: Farmers' Market attendees like pony rides

BY DAVID MARK SIMPSON
Daily Press Staff Writer

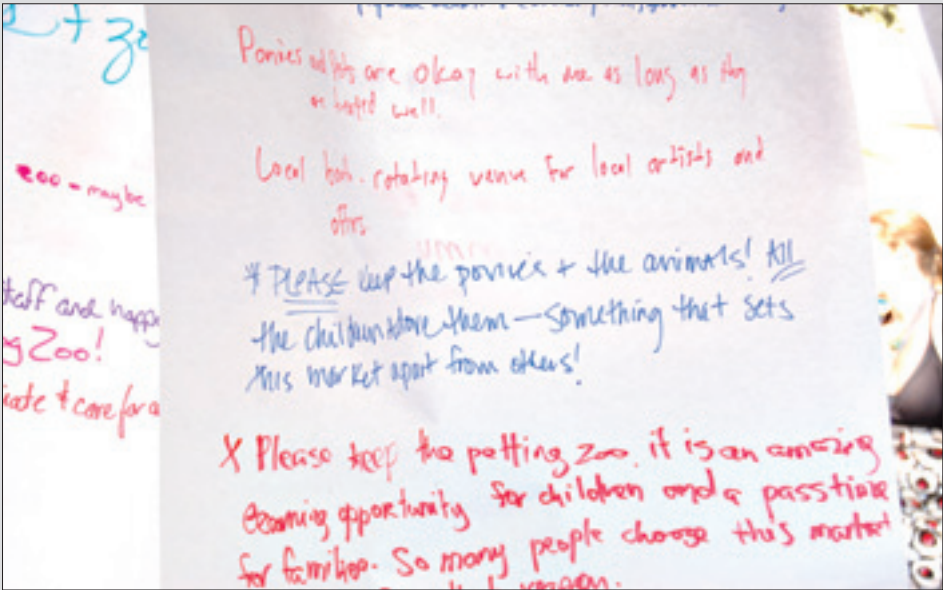

MAIN STREET Farmers' Market visitors expressed opposition to the impending ousting of pony rides at the Main Street market, according to survey results released by City Hall.

While pony rides were not the subject of the survey, an open-ended question was flooded with more than 100 responses asking City Hall to keep the pony rides.

Of the just over 200 comments (or affirmation of comments) that were left over a four and a half hour period on Feb. 15, 114 were about the pony rides and petting zoo. Only 8 percent of those comments supported the removal of the pony rides while 92 percent asked that they remain, according to the report from Farmers' Market Coordinator Jodi Low.

"For many years my kids rode the ponies," said one commenter. "We all love them! Please keep the ponies! You have one or two 'squeaky wheels' making a decision for everyone. Please keep this passage for the youngest of the community."

Animal rights activists began protesting the pony rides and petting zoo early last year. They claimed, among other things, that the rides and zoo teach kids to mistreat animals. In their visits to the market, city officials did not find the animals living in unsafe conditions. But in September, City Council voted to seek a non-animal vendor to replace Tawni's Ponies, owned by Tawni

PRO-PONY RIDE: Farmers market customers are overwhelmingly in favor of keeping pony rides according to an informal survey released by market organizers.

Angel, after her agreement with City Hall expires later this year. Angel has been a vendor at the market for years.

Last month, council voted to ban exotic animals from parks and most crowded public places after city officials cited concerns about mistreatment of the creatures and threats to public safety.

The survey at the Sunday Main Street Farmers' Market asked visitors to respond to multiple-choice questions about what they'd like to see more and less of at the market. One board allowed market-goers to write in comments. Some comments were affirmed by check marks from other market-goers, which is how the pony rides received so much support.

The comment, "Keep ponies and petting zoo," got 35 affirmations while "Keep ponies," got nine.

"Please keep the ponies and petting zoo," read one comment. "My daughter is Ocean Park Blvd.

Westside Family
Health Center holds successful fundraiser

Westside Family Health Center (WFHC) held their first annual Champagne and Dessert Dance Party Fundraiser, "I HEART WFHC," on Feb. 21 at the TAG Gallery at Bergamot Station.

During this event, 120 guests enjoyed food, drink, dancing, art, and a prize drawing all while supporting WFHC. Attendees included supporters, vendors, patients, sponsors, WFHC Board and team members and community partners. "We thought the event was just about perfect," said WFHC Board Member, Stephanie Negriff, "It was a great venue – perfect size – and well attended."

Proceeds from the event will go toward providing high quality, patient-centered care and education to WFHC's 9,734 patients, who rely on WFHC for their primary medical needs as well as specialty care referrals and health education.

At the event, Debra A. Farmer, WFHC's President/Chief Executive Officer, explained why it is so important that WFHC have fundraisers to help secure support from our community.

"We help the most vulnerable populations – uninsured, low income or disenfranchised," she said. "Without us, people have nowhere to go."

Future aspirations include owning new clinic space and adding programs in mental health, dental and vision care so that WFHC can help more vulnerable populations.

Community tours of WFHC, located at 1711 Ocean Park Boulevard in Santa Monica, can be scheduled by contacting Celia Bernstein, Director of Development, at

SMMUSD requests parent
input on homework

The Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District is inviting all parents to participate in a 10-minute online Homework Survey now available on the SMMUSD website at: <http://bit.ly/17hKs2d>. The survey will be open until March 27.

Parent input is important to the district and principals and helps with the development and improvement of homework plans at each school, while fulfilling the district's commitment to transparency and collaborative decision-making.

Parents with more than one child in the district are invited to take the survey for each of their children. The survey is anonymous and will take approximately 10 minutes to complete. Results of the survey will be reported by grade and school site only and will not identify individual responses.

The results of previous surveys are available on the SMMUSD website at: www.smmusd.org. Future surveys are planned that will give parents further opportunities to give feedback on various aspects of the district and their children's schools.

"We appreciate all parents taking ten minutes to complete this important annual survey that will help the district and principals evaluate current practices and formulate future homework plans," said Evan Bartelheim, director of assessment, research, and evaluation.

Real estate agent surfs to highest Sunset Park sale

I BELIEVE THE MOST RECOGNIZABLE line from the musical The Music Man, is 'you gotta know the territory' and I have found it to be a very true statement, for just about everything. Whether you're hiring a divorce lawyer who knows the law and the judges or a tax accountant who knows the tax code, insider knowledge is crucial to achieving good results. This is most especially true in the world of real estate where location is everything, but finding a good deal can be a challenge unless you have someone on your side that knows the territory.

Knowing your way around is crucial for a real estate agent, but it's the connections and the 'insider knowledge' that separates a good agent from a great agent. Last week I was having lunch at Ye Olde Kingshead with my friend Andrej Nagy who is a real estate agent for The Agency (www.theagencyre.com) we were chatting about his latest big sale, which has the distinction of being the highest sale price in the history of Sunset Park, ever, at $2.625 million.

I asked him what's his recipe for success, "total devotion to knowing my territory. I walk my neighborhood of Sunset Park on a daily basis, frequently accompanied by my dog Spencer who is a natural attraction to start a conversation. People are always asking me what's the best deal in town? Everyone wants to know what their home is worth, how quickly are offers being made etc." The current hot market is likely to heat up in the coming months as we head into the traditional high sales season of April, May June, because parents want to buy and sell over the summer to get the kids settled for school in September.

Real estate agents, contractors and designers are all busy right now getting homes ready for a sale. "I have few homes in process right now, that will be going on the market in the next two months as we work with the homeowners to maximize curb appeal and prepare the local marketing campaigns."

I reached out a client of Nagy's to see if he was walking the walk, and Rick Wenninger had this to say about him: "Andrej handled the purchase of our new home from start to finish with professionalism and enthusiasm. He negotiated aggressively for us both before and after the offer was accepted, followed up quickly on even the smallest details throughout the escrow period, and, even now, after we moved in last month, he is still working to make sure our experience in our new home is everything we expected. Andrej did a first class job throughout the transaction, and we are now using him to list our former home."

Using a local agent is crucial in a market like Sunset Park that is family friendly, has mature landscaping and is an up and coming market for remodel construction. I am not a fan of the mansionization I see happening in Sunset Park, but I know that it's the future. In speaking with Andrej he reminded me that "remodels and new homes raise the market value of the surrounding properties. A rising tide lifts all boats." An apt choice of metaphor for the good looking surfer he is, to choose.

"Being a local I get to park and surf off Station 28, which is a nice place for this boy from Jersey to be, I get out a few times a week, but having a new wife, and the demands of a busy real estate career are loves that take a big chunk of my schedule!" he said grinning through his glowing winter tan.

The market in Sunset Park has picked up nicely, sales are up 59 percent over 2014 numbers, and average price per square foot is up $50, which is a good thing for everybody. "North of Montana is doing even better, last year the median sale price was $2.085 million and this year it's $3.275 million, and that's based on the same number of sales (30 vs 31). I think it's clearly a factor of the new construction that's going on which is bringing up all the home values in that district," said Nagy.

As a divorce lawyer I track the real estate market closely because as it goes, I go. The divorce rate tracks real estate with about a six month time lag, people generally only get divorced if there is something to fight over, no equity, they're not coming to divorce lawyers, huge equity, they're pounding on my door to get this done now. I have a case where the parties weren't in a rush to get the paperwork done until they heard about another condo in their building going for a steep price jump, all of sudden they're both ready to get to market — it's the power of "knowing the territory."

Nagy told me that "I have lots of insider information because I work the territory I live in, and I talk to everyone. I know who's planning retiring to Mexico and will be ready to sell in the next six months, I know who's planning their divorce and who's just had a baby and wants to move up. This is what makes me a resource for my clients who want to find a deal that isn't on the market yet."

Property values are hitting new highs and the market is sure to keep climbing for the next few months, which is good news for sellers, bad for buyers and comforting for those of us whose livelihoods surf the waves of the real estate market.

DAVID PISARRA is a family law attorney focusing on fathers' rights and men's issues in the Santa Monica firm of Pizarra & Grist. He can be reached at dpizarra@pizarra.com or (310) 664-9969.

very attached to the ponies. And they don't look over-worked or anything, like that. They seem just fine! Well cared for and relaxed."

There were at least 11 comment or affirmations that seemed to support the removal of ponies.

"Unkind to shackle ponies," one said, "don't teach the children this kind of message."

"Teach kids to respect ponies and other living beings," said another, "do not ride or treat as creatures for human convenience."

Some comments were more ambiguous.

"Have the council members consult constituents before they vote on the ponies," one visitor wrote.

Others were ambivalent: "Many people won't even come to the market if the ponies are gone. No ponies - no confined animals please."

tion to the murder case that triggered a standoff with a barricaded suspect in Santa Monica on Feb. 21.

The suspect, David Carrillo, was wanted as part of a murder investigation and when Sheriff's deputies arrived to arrest him, Carrillo barricaded himself inside a residential unit on the 800 block of Ocean Park Blvd.

Officers made multiple attempts to communicate with Carrillo over the course of the standoff but Carrillo refused to comply with officers. Following the arrival of the Sheriff's SWAT team, the department helicopter and multiple additional units, Sheriff's deputies used tear gas to force Carrillo out of the unit and a K-9 unit was able to bring him to waiting deputies.

Carrillo was treated for injuries on the scene and taken to jail with a one million dollar bail.

According to the Sheriff's Department, Carrillo is suspected of killing 30-year-old Wesley Morejon on Feb. 10 in the 8000 block of Vermont Avenue. In a statement, the department said Carrillo was identified with the aid of witnesses and excellent video surveillance but the need the public's help to identify other potential witnesses to the crime.

"Detectives are requesting the public's assistance in identifying several witnesses to the murder," said a statement issued on March 2. "Detectives are attempting to identify a female depicted in surveillance video wearing a white shirt with red stripes that appears to be with the victim in a store. In addition, detectives are trying to identify a male black wearing a green shirt who arrives in a Cadillac STS. It appears that this male not only witnessed the murder, but also videotaped it using his cellular phone."

take to make the project go faster.

“I think realignment of the off-ramps is a critical piece of this plan,” he said, as council reviewed plans for a transit hub near the terminus of the incoming Expo Light Rail. “And Caltrans’ participation in this would dictate much of the timelines for any work that we would do, and if we could hear back from staff how to prioritize that work, and how to fund or accelerate it so that we know just where we stand on planning out this property.”

Councilmember Ted Winterer also expressed interest in the project.

Discussion of the item was cut short when City Attorney Marsha Moutrie warned the council members that the discussion was in danger of veering away from the agenda item. The Council can only discuss items specifically listed on their official agenda and the agenda must be released 72 hours prior to a regular meeting.

Planning Director David Martin told council that the consultants they’d agreed to fund during the meeting would be considering the realignment of the off-ramp.

Scott Schonfeld, who owns a building next to the freeway (where the Daily Press offices are located) has been an advocate of the realignment and asked for expediency during the public input portion of the meeting.

“I’m concerned that the timing of the long-term planning here will really push out the commencement of that feasibility study until after the (Downtown Specific Plan) is adopted,” he said. “This seems like a very sequential planning process when in fact this site requires significant coordination with other agencies and stakeholders like our group, like Caltrans, and really would like to see more of a coordinated planning effort similar to what seems to be happening now at Bergamot.”

Schonfeld has said in the past that the project would cost tens of millions of dollars but could be financed if Caltrans were willing to give City Hall the land where the current Fourth Street exit is located. This, he said, is at least an acre of land that could be developed.

In 2013, when Schonfeld presented positive results of traffic and feasibility studies to Downtown Santa Monica Inc., a public-private nonprofit that helps manage and market Downtown for City Hall, traffic planners were generally enthusiastic but expressed concern about the pedestrian usage near the traffic light at Fourth and Olympic, especially given its proximity to Santa Monica High School.

When asked about timing city planner Sarah Lejeune told O’Day that they were looking at integration with the Downtown Specific Plan, which is still being ironed out.

This year, construction starts on the Colorado Esplanade and the California Incline, resulting in months of significant thoroughfare closures. City officials are also studying a one-way street network Downtown.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Swedish public broadcaster SVT, capitalizing on the country's supposedly liberal sexuality to promote an upcoming children's series on the human body, produced a one-minute cartoon featuring genitals singing and dancing. However, the SVT program director admitted in January that there was criticism -- not for salaciousness, but because the penis was portrayed with a moustache and the vagina with long eyelashes, which some critics said unfortunately "reinforced gender stereotypes."
■ (1) A mummified monk in Mongolia became the latest religious figure whose followers insist he is not dead but living in a meditative trance. Dr. Barry Kerzin, among whose patients is the Dalai Lama, called the state "tukdam." Scientists attributed the monk's preserved condition to Mongolia's cold weather. (2) After consulting its substantial research base, The Smoking Gun website reported that Steven Anderson's arrest in Fargo, North Dakota, in January was only the third time that someone operating a Zamboni had been charged with DUI. Anderson, 27, was arrested while (erratically) resurfacing the ice between periods of a girls' high school hockey game.

★★★★★ News from afar could surprise you. You'll wonder what would be the best way to approach a change within a relationship. You might not know where the other party stands. The innate tension between you could throw you off. Tonight: Follow a partner's lead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ You'll feel unusually sure of yourself, but wait one more day before expressing your thoughts. You still might hear an important fact or two that could change your thinking. Do your best to respond appropriately to someone's request. Tonight: Be near good music.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ You'll want to push harder to achieve what you want. Your sense of humor likely won't be in line with someone else's. This person might not even get that you are just joking. Remember this for the future. Tonight: Wherever your friends are, you can be found.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ You'll need to remember what to do in order to forge ahead with an unpredictable cohort. There is undeniable tension that exists between you. Use your instincts, and you will land on your feet. Logic does not necessarily work with this person. Tonight: Let the party go on and on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ A child or new friend could surprise you with what he or she says or does. This distraction could affect your concentration. Attempt to detach a bit if you have to handle an important matter. Still, try to enjoy the spontaneity of the moment. Tonight: Movie night.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ One-on-one relating will help you bypass having to return a lot of calls and messages from the same group. Your sense of humor comes out in a discussion. Although there could be an awkward moment, you will be able to get past the problem at hand. Tonight: Be a duo.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ You could be surprised by what a loved one or dear friend shares. You might want to buy a token of affection for this person. Remember your budget; you won't want to go overboard. Be realistic about your expectations. Tonight: Go along with a request.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ You could be upset by a misunderstanding between you and a loved one. Clearly, you don't see eye to eye with this person. Accept your differences and use them positively. Both of you have a unique perspective, and both will be applicable. Tonight: Relax at home.

Tuesday, March 3, 2015

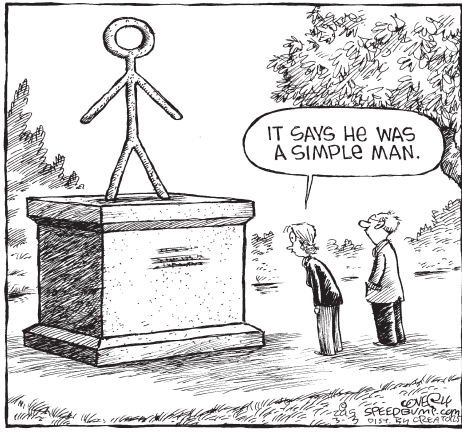

This year you often question what you hear. Don't always assume you are getting the whole truth. Sometimes your feelings are in direct opposition to your thinking. Know that both might be right, and take some time to decide which one you should listen to. If you are single, expect to be in high demand all year long. After mid-August, an opportunity to meet someone special could arise. The two of you are likely to be a good fit. If you are attached, you and your sweetie will tend to agree or disagree, and as a result, you will learn even more about each other. Work through your issues together. LEO always comes up with good solutions.

CRIME WATCH

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON FEB. 19 AT 7:30 P.M.
Officers responded to Starbucks (1356 3rd Street Promenade) to investigate a possible robbery. Once on scene officers learned that no robbery occurred but there was a victim of vandalism at the location. Officers spoke to a customer who was seated in the Starbucks using his laptop computer when the suspect suddenly picked up the computer and threw it on the ground. The suspect then left the location and was stopped by officers at the intersection of 6th and Santa Monica. The owner of the laptop refused prosecution for the vandalism (minor damage). Officers then attempted to identify the suspect when they found a counterfeit California Drivers' License in his possession. Officers placed the suspect, who was ultimately identified as Samuel Earl Britton Jr., under arrest for possession of the fake driver's license. Britton was also in possession of an ATM card that did not belong to him. Britton was booked at Santa Monica Jail for possession of a counterfeit government issued card and possession of lost/stolen property. Bail was set at $500.
