Crime trends trouble Montana shops and residents

ROBBERY: Robert Abalov is wanted in connection with a robbery.

Daily Press Editor

ABALOV

Following a pair of robberies on Montana Ave. this month, store owners and residents of the area are questioning how to secure their homes and businesses in the face of a troubling series of crimes.

Two jewelry stores have been robbed on the same block this year and the area has experienced residential burglaries including a violent home invasion last year. SMPD has identified the suspect in the recent robbery as Robert Art Abalov, a 32 year- old Los Angeles resident who was still at large at press time. The incidents have prompted calls for more security, both private and public.

"The reality is we're really concerned as merchants because as this happens more and more, fewer and fewer people are going to come shop because they don't feel safe," said Ryan Olehass, President of the Montana Ave. Merchants Association.

Olehass said some merchants have asked for private security patrols along the business district but the price to provide even an unarmed guard is more than the organization can currently afford. However, they are considering ways to levy additional assessments to fund security efforts and Olehass said the discussions are necessary due to a lack of preventative actions by the Santa Monica Police Department.

He said there were reports of individuals casing the neighborhood prior to the January robbery.

"Our disappointment was we didn't see an increased presence of police," he said. "Presence sometimes deters criminal activity and we didn't see that."

According to Olehass, robberies are rare in shopping centers with a robust law enforcement presence

New rules could limit Bird scooter operations

GROUNDED: New rules proposed by City Council could allow the city to fine Bird for scooters left on the sidewalk.

KATE CAGLE
Daily Press Staff Writer

City staff is recommending an emergency ordinance to migrate Bird Scooters off sidewalks in Santa Monica and onto private property.

The Council will debate an ordinance Tuesday that will prohibit offering or displaying a "shared mobility device" from the public right-of-way or public property without City authorization. Under the proposed law any vehicles, including Bird scooters, left on the sidewalk would be subject to immediate impounding.

"Urgent regulatory actions are necessary to protect public health and safety," said a recent report by Salvador Valles, the assistant director of planning and community development for Santa Monica.

City staff recommends an impound fee of $60 per scooter and administrative fines of $500 to $1000 for violating the law. According to the report, the city

A GoFundMe campaign to help a local woman who was attacked and stabbed in her Santa Monica apartment quickly surpassed its goals and raised $15,000 in just one day. The fundraiser for Leigh Collins is no longer accepting donations.

"As scary as it was, I came out on the winning side of it and I'm going to be okay," Collins said in a video posted from the hospital on the fundraising page. "I appreciate all of the calls and the prayers."

Police say DNA evidence collected at the scene led them to 25-year-old Rashad Harris, who was on probation for a separate break-in when Santa Monica police arrested him Tuesday. Harris is currently held on $1.1 million bail and is due back in court April 10.

Soundwaves Welcomes Aron Kallay

On Wednesday March 21, at 7:30 p.m., the Soundwaves new music series at the Santa Monica Public Library welcomes keyboardist Aron Kallay to the Martin Luther King Jr. Auditorium at the Main Library, 601 Santa Monica Blvd.

Kallay will perform selections from his Beyond 12 project, which commissions new music for retuned and remapped keyboards. While the black and white piano keys represent a linear order of fixed pitches, software now allows Kallay and his collaborators to assign any pitch to any key, to use notes beyond standard 12-note equal temperment, and to even retune and reorder the keyboard during a piece. Three Beyond 12 albums have been recorded, with contributions from dozens of composers, including Kyle Gann, John Schneider, Bill Alves, Isaac Schankler, Nick Norton, and many others.

A busy concert pianist, arts administrator, and educator, Kallay is also a Grammy nominee and holds a doctorate from USC. He appeared on the first Soundwaves concert, in January 2016, playing a piano composition by Daniel Lentz, and the Library is happy to have him back.

This performance is a co-production with Microfest, Southern California's annual festival of music in alternate tuning systems, now in its 21st year. For their full schedule visit microfest.org

Soundwaves is a concert series presenting artists who appear on the DRAM (Database of Recorded American Music) streaming service. The Santa Monica Public Library is the first public library to offer this service to its cardholders. Listings of past and upcoming Soundwaves shows as well as sound and video recordings are at SoundwavesNewMusic.com

This event is free and open to the public. Seating is limited and on a first-arrival basis. The Santa Monica Public Library is wheelchair accessible. Singing Lawyers & Judges In Harmony

Lawyers and judges who normally use their voices in trial, in mediation or in a settlement conference will instead use their voices on stage to make beautiful music together. These singing lawyers, judges, law students and legal staff will harmonize in a concert featuring The Sound of Music to the Fauré Requiem. Choral Director Jim Raycroft will lead Legal Voices of the Los Angeles Lawyers Philharmonic, dubbed "LA's Only Legal Chorus," in a Marvelous Choral Concert on Saturday, March 10, 7 p.m., at St. Augustine by-the-Sea (1227 4th Street) in Santa Monica. LA Lawyers Phil Musical Director Gary S. Greene, Esq., will MC the concert.

This concert highlights the LA Lawyers Philharmonic's chorus, Legal Voices in a touching a cappella rendition of "Danny Boy" with soloist Brian W. Anderson, Esq., along with inspiring songs from The Sound of Music with soloist Anita Olp, Esq. The concert will culminate in the magnificent Fauré Requiem conducted by Raycroft featuring soloists Eric Castro, Esq., and Allegra Gorchynski and organist Eileen Raycroft.

The evening will also spotlight soloists singing popular tunes and songs from musicals including Beauty and the Beast, Porgy & Bess, Company and more. The soloists are Matthew Artson, Renée Burkett, Randall Garrou, Esq., Linda B. Hurevitz, Esq., Cindy Organ, Esq., Jim Raycroft, Darice Richman, Dave Ritchie, Esq., John Hamilton Scott, Esq., and Julia C. Shear Kushner, Esq.

They will be accompanied by Derrick Lowe, Esq., on piano with "Aint Got Nothin' But the Blues" being accompanied by William Ryan, Esq., on guitar. The program is produced by Debra Marisa Kaiser.

Proclaimed by the City of Los Angeles as "LA's Only Legal Orchestra," the Los Angeles Lawyers Philharmonic was founded in 2009 by attorney/conductor Gary S. Greene with 30 musicians to bring the legal community together in harmony. Since then, the orchestra has grown to 75 members and has performed more than 50 concerts, raising tens of thousands of dollars to benefit those who cannot afford legal services and for other charitable purposes.

In 2011, Greene organized the orchestra's chorus, Legal Voices, and later that year, the chorus debuted with the LA Lawyers Phil at Walt Disney Concert Hall. Consisting of more than 100 voices, Legal Voices gave a triumphant performance of the finale of Beethoven's 9th Symphony, the Ode to Joy. Since then, the chorus has performed major works annually at Disney Hall including Carl Orff's Carmina Burana, Beethoven's Choral Fantasy, Bernstein's Chichester Psalms and countless Broadway and motion picture scores. In the fall of 2012, Greene appointed Jim Raycroft, a 30-year member of the Los Angeles Master Chorale, to serve as Legal Voices' third Choral Director.

In 2012, Greene formed the award-winning Gary Greene, Esq. and His Big Band of Barristers. In the same year, the band participated in the American Bar Association's "Battle of the Lawyer Bands" and was invited to perform in Chicago where they took first place and have since been dubbed, "America's #1 Legal Band."

These musical organizations are where lawyers, judges, law students and legal staff meet in harmony. The members include conservatory graduates, professional musicians as well as some serious amateurs.

The concert will support the LA Lawyers Philharmonic, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization. The money collected from ticket sales makes it possible for the orchestra, chorus and big band to perform concerts and raise funds for those who cannot afford legal services and other charitable causes.

Concert tickets are $30 for general admission and $25 for students and seniors (65 & older). 50% of the concert ticket price is a tax-deductible donation to the LA Lawyers Philharmonic. To purchase tickets, visit http://www.LegalVoicesConcert.eventbrite.com.

Caring About Climate Without the Federal Government

Dear EarthTalk:

How did the Global Climate Action Summit coming up later this year in San Francisco come about and what do organizers hope to accomplish?

Jamie Smith
San Jose, CA

THE PURPOSE OF THE FORTHCOMING 2018 Global Climate Action Summit—scheduled to take place September 12-14, 2018 in San Francisco, California—is to showcase the actions that state and local leaders, businesses, investors, scientists, students, non-profits and other so-called "subnational actors" have taken to reduce their emissions already. Organizers hope to secure bold commitments from them to do even more, thus showing that decarbonization and economic growth go hand-in-hand and galvanizing a global movement for climate action that leaves no one behind.

Jerry Brown wants the world to know that Americans care about the climate crisis despite lack of attention to the issue from the Trump administration. Credit: Neon Tommy, FlickrCC.

This new international meeting is the brainchild of California's 79-year-old outgoing governor Jerry Brown, one of the country's great crusaders for cutting carbon emissions despite lack of federal interest in solving the climate crisis. According to Brown, subnational actors are a critical part of the climate solution and can help push the world's leaders to go further, faster. These leaders will join citizens from around the world to showcase examples of major climate action initiatives already taking place without the aid of the federal government. They hope to inspire deeper commitments from each other and from national governments in support of the Paris Agreement.

Brown has tapped three leaders as summit co-chairs: Patricia Espinosa, executive secretary of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change; Anand Mahindra, chairman of the Mahindra Group, an Indian conglomerate that recently committed to meet its Paris climate agreement commitments; and Michael Bloomberg, the former mayor of New York City and founder/CEO of Bloomberg LP who is a vigorous campaigner for and generous donor to environmental causes. These three are primarily responsible for shaping the event's purpose, format and overall curation and leveraging their voices and network for the cause.

Why now? According to Brown, 2018 is a turning point: Countries and all of us must step up the commitments that were made in Paris and do more. "The momentum we generate this year must lead to a climate turning point by 2020 in order to prevent the worst effects of climate change," says Brown. "It must be the beginning of a new phase of action and ambition on climate change."

Participants are expected to go beyond just sharing what they have achieved to date and announce stepped-up commitments to usher in what organizers are hoping will be "a new era of decarbonization and prosperity." The culmination of the meeting will be a call to action to nations to step up their ambition under the Paris Agreement and cut emissions on a science-based trajectory that limits warming to well below two degrees Celsius.

"The Summit seeks to change the climate conversation, broaden and depoliticize the issue, and activate everyone to call for change to preserve our future," Brown concludes. The governor's actions in steering California to be one of the world's most fuel efficient large economies is even more inspiring than his words. Given that Brown won't be able to run again for governor due to term limits, the Summit may represent the last hurrah of his storied political career.

Picture Book Peer Critique Night

It's time for the Westside Writers Mingle annual Picture Book Peer Critique Night, in which organizers break into groups of 5-6 people to offer kind and constructive feedback on each other's PB manuscripts. To participate, bring 6 copies of your picture book manuscript (double spaced, please).

After multiple drafts, it becomes almost impossible to read your own manuscript with fresh eyes. This Mingle provides a great opportunity to get that fresh perspective. Find out what is working in your manuscript and what could use a little polishing.

In small groups each author will have an allotted amount of time to read and receive feedback. Please note: Picture book manuscripts are often 500 words or less. If yours is lengthy, you may want to read only part of it so you don't miss out on valuable critique time.

Do you write novels and not picture books? Or maybe you just aren't ready for your work to be read by your peers. They encourage you to come anyway and offer feedback. Giving and listening can be just as valuable as receiving. And never fear; the MG/YA critique night is next month.

For this Mingle, it's particularly helpful to know who is coming and who is bringing material to share. Please RSVP to westsidewriters@gmail.com if you can.

The event will be at the Ocean Park branch, Santa Monica Public Library, 2601 Main Street (corner of Main & Ocean Park Blvd.) from 7 – 8:45 p.m.

There is limited metered parking adjacent to the library on Norman place, as well as metered street parking. Additional metered parking is available in City Lot 11 with entrances located at 2934 Main Street and at 170 Hollister Avenue (your best bet). Click HERE for a flyer with a map & parking info.

As always, an RSVP is not required to attend, but it helps organizers prepare. And if you are able to bring snacks to share, that would be delightful.

The group generally meets on the 1st Wednesday of the month. Visit https://losangeles.scbwi.org or http://socalmingles.blogspot.com for more information.

BIRD

has already been collecting scooters from the sidewalk.

"Although staff has recently impounded devices, such as scooters operated by Bird Ride's, Inc, no impound fee currently exists making these efforts ineffective," the report said. The ordinance is worded to limit criminal liability on the part of users. Instead, companies that display or offer the scooters for rent would have to pay up for misdemeanor penalties.

In order to keep their business in the city, Bird would instead need to partner with local businesses and parking lots where users would park their scooters at the end of a ride. The company currently operates on an ad-hoc basis where users can simply leave the electric scooters on street corners and sidewalks.

While this ordinance focuses on the company, riders can still get tickets from the police department for not wearing a helmet, riding on the sidewalk or without a license. The California Vehicle Code prohibits riding motorized scooters on sidewalks or the beach bike path.

While the emergency ordinance is in effect, the city would establish a pilot program to assist with the development of a regulatory framework for dockless rental companies like Bird. City staff wants to contract with a third party to help enforce the law by removing scooters from the street.

Just two weeks ago Bird took a plea deal with the city attorney's office to accept responsibility for violating local law and pay more than $306,000 in fines and investigative costs. The city said a significant portion of the fines would go to a broad public safety campaign for Vision Zero, the City Council's goal of eliminating deaths and significant injuries from traffic collisions.

Bird has recently reduced the top speed of the scooters from 22 to 15 miles per hour, instituted a free helmet service and improved their app security to ensure only those with a valid license can register to ride.

The discussion on an emergency ordinance to control Bird's operations comes just a week after the City Council voiced strong support for policies to get more commuters out of cars.

"I think we have a tendency to react.. somewhat negatively to disruption, sort of the conversation we had around Uber and Lyft a year ago was actually quite negative," said Mayor Pro-Tempore Gleam Davis during last Tuesday's mobility discussion. "That's not going to stop these disruptors so we darn well better adjust our attitude and say…'we're going to work with you.'"

Davis supports more car-free lanes in the City for bikes and electric scooters. She encouraged staff to be both bold and nimble. Recent data suggests traffic has worsened throughout Southern California over the last fifteen years, with the percentage of households without cars falling thirty percent, according to the Southern California Association of Governments. The increased congestion has lengthened commute times.

"We welcome disruption," Davis said. "We want to be disrupted but you have to work with us."

The City Council will hear from the public and discuss the emergency ordinance Tuesday, March 6, at 5:30 p.m. inside City Hall Council Chambers 1685 Main Street. The Council will enter closed session for legal discussions before moving on to public items.

her apartment early Friday morning near Santa Monica High School when a man broke in, held her at knifepoint and demanded money.

"I gave him money and he attempted to rape me and I was able to fight him off," Collins said. "I'm doing fine. I'm healing. I'm at the hospital, obviously."

The man ran off after Collins fought back. He was injured during the scuffle and left a trail of blood outside the apartment on the 1700 block of 5th Street. SMDP officers were waiting when Harris met with his probation officer in Van Nuys Tuesday in the San Fernando Valley and arrested him there.

Collins was cut twice in the forehead and had a black eye after the attack but is expected to make a full recovery.

"I know everyone is really scared and I wanted to call each of you individually and make sure you know that everything is going to be alright," Collins said. "I wish I could be with all of you."

CRIME

and Montana Ave. should have the same kind of protection.

"Obviously the criminals agree with us because they're targeting Montana for a reason," he said. "They don't target areas that have a heavy police presence, you don't hear about this happening on Rodeo drive, there's a visible presence."

Lieutenant Saul Rodriguez said the department is already changing its patrol priorities based on citywide crime trends.

"We try our best to cover the entire city to be as effective as we possibly can," he said.

He said the department has heard from businesses and residents about pre-emptive police activity and additional patrols in the area are possible.

"We're already adapting to burglaries in the residential area," he said. "Including visible patrols, bike patrols, undercover operations, those are discussions we're having now as to how we can best combat that. We understand (the concern) and we know that and we do our best to handle whatever issues we are facing. We're trying to do our best to do what we can with the resources we have available."

The North of Montana Association neighborhood organization (NOMA) held its monthly meeting just days after the most recent commercial robbery and residents had concerns over the way SMPD communicates during emergencies.

During the most recent robbery, officers established a perimeter to search for the suspect and residents who were out of the house at the time were unable to return home. NOMA president Nancy Coleman said it was hard for those residents to find overnight accommodation on short notice, especially if they were unaware of the situation until they reached a road closure.

She said residents were also frustrated by a lack of in-person information during the event.

"When police officers are asked about what's going on, the residents are told 'we're in the middle of an operation, we can't talk about it.' Is that appropriate or not appropriate? That is a question that folks felt fairly strongly about."

The NOMA neighborhood has had private security patrols since 1981. The guards are paid for by a coalition of homeowners and while residential burglaries have been fairly common in the neighborhood for years, a pair of more violent home invasion incidents prompted the private association to increase patrols.

On an individual level, everyone agreed there are steps that can be taken. For businesses, installing security measures such as visible cameras and alarms can deter criminals. Residents can also install alarms and lock doors/windows even when they are home. In both cases, Rodriguez said all suspicious activity should be reported to police.

"If you see something, call us, we'll come out," he said.

COMMUNITY BRIEFS

Pico Blvd.

SMC presents five music events in march

The Santa Monica College Music Department is pleased to present five spring music events in March in The Broad Stage or The Edye at the SMC Performing Arts Center, 1310 11th Street (at Santa Monica Boulevard), Santa Monica. The events include a Jazz Series performance featuring the Connie Han Trio, a choral music reading session focused on socially conscious music, a presentation on the "Empowering Silenced Voices" movement, an afternoon performance by the SMC Wind Ensemble, and a Wednesday evening performance by the SMC Symphony.

THE MARCH EVENTS ARE:

Friday, March 9 at 7 p.m. in The Edye: Jazz Concert: Connie Han Trio. A rising star who is unquestionably destined for greatness, Connie Han is one of the most exciting new jazz pianists on the scene today. At age 21, she has already been featured in Keyboard magazine and performed for audiences around the world at events like the Montreal Jazz Festival. Part of the SMC Spring Jazz Series. (Tickets are $10.)

Tuesday, March 13 at 7 p.m. in The Edye: Socially Conscious Choral Music Reading Session, co-hosted by the SMC Choral Department and Chorosynthesis. SMC invites the community to come sing selections of the new music that is spurring profound conversations and making waves with its socially conscious relevance and inherent compositional quality. A music packet and list of resources for finding socially conscious music will be provided. Admission is free, but reservations are required. Complimentary tickets available at the SMC Music Office (PAC 211) or by advance reservation through Jeremiah Selvey (selvey_jeremiah@smc.edu).

Thursday, March 15 at 11:15 a.m. in The Edye: "Empowering Silenced Voices" Talk. SMC Professor of Music and Director of Choral Activities Jeremiah Selvey will be joined by a special guest – Connecticut College Director of Choral Activities Wendy Moy – for a presentation on the birth and development of the "Empowering Silenced Voices" movement, which uses music to give a literal and figurative voice to the disenfranchised, unheard, and silenced voices of our time. Admission is free, but reservations are required. Complimentary tickets available at the SMC Music Office (PAC 211).

Sunday, March 25 at 4 p.m. in The Broad Stage: SMC Wind Ensemble, under the baton of Kevin McKeown, will feature the music of Shostakovich's "Finale" from Symphony No. 5, a new transcription of Aaron Copland's "Letter from Home," and Bernstein's "Candide Suite," in celebration of the composer's 100th birthday. (Tickets are $10.)

Wednesday, March 28 at 7:30 p.m. in The Broad Stage: SMC Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Brian Stone. The cool and hot SMC Symphony presents the Nordic beauty of Sibelius' placid and pastoral Sixth Symphony. Contrasting will be Tchaikovsky's fire and flash in his sizzling hot Mediterranean "Capriccio Italien." (Tickets are $10.)

SUBMITTED BY GRACE SMITH, SMC PUBLIC INFORMATION OFFICER

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (March 5)

At first, it will seem as if this year comes at you in small doses and tiny portions, but nonetheless, you'll soon discover that you're in an entirely new and improved position. A standout conversation will open doors in June. The success of family favorably affects your work. There's a payout in August. Cancer and Scorpio adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 3, 22, 29, 27 and 40.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

The Sufi master said that forgiveness is the fragrance flowers give when they are crushed. To be fair, he didn't have your personal life. Does it really make sense to go sweeter on an offender? Considerations of the day...

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Today you'll love life, and life will love you back. What's even better is that life will love you in your preferred way. It's a jam! It's a groove! No big wins, but dozens and dozens of small ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)

The favor of fortune is related to your confidence. This is really about trusting yourself. You'll be OK if it goes right; you'll be OK if it goes wrong. You're adventurous and unflappable. Now here comes the good luck.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)

If you stock your week with activities that have the potential to be enjoyable, you'll probably have a pleasant week ahead, though honestly it's more about enjoying yourself than it is about the activity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

As a big event on the horizon gets closer, it's taking up more space in your brain. You're right; you will be giving a performance – an informal one but still a performance. Now is the time to start imagining this going extremely well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

One definition of love is: the opposite of fear. Even so, smart people don't hug sharks, and some people are better loved from a distance. People will catch what you're sending out, even from miles and miles away.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

There are those who appreciate apologies, but no one wants to hear them all the time. As for you, you'll take only about one or two before you don't believe them anymore. The best apology is a behavioral change.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)

Question: Which way, right or left? Answer: Neither of the above. What you really need are more ideas. To come up with more ideas, bypass your analytical mind. Anything goes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

You have faith in your own mind, but you still take questions to your friends, to the experts, to the universe – because only a fool would think his own mind has the be-all and end-all answer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

You feel you can tell who is in the know and who isn't, but listen to them all anyway. You'll get the most useful nuggets from people who don't understand the scope of what you're dealing with.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Even though there's much to learn from listening to what people say, there's even more to learn from what people ask you today. Questions will reveal the speaker's bias, needs, wants and interests.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

You don't know how much you need to laugh until someone makes you laugh. This is most easily done by one who knows you well, has the same sense of humor or just happens to be irresistibly cute.

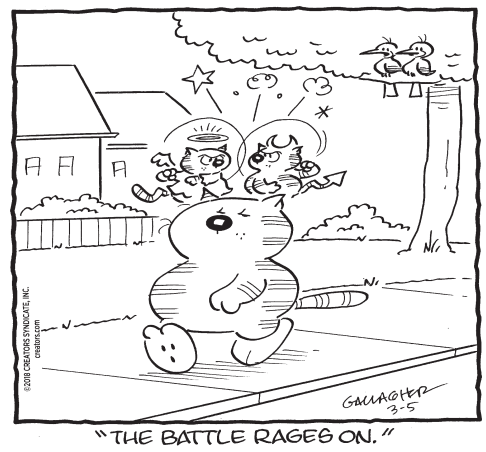

Countdown to Venus Change

Though you're a whole person, there's still comfort (and truth!) in the notion that there's someone to fill in the gaps for you – to support you where you're weak and lean on you where you're strong. It's the last day of Venus in Pisces. Put your faith in love, and put your love in action. All is moving toward better days.

Get Me That, Stat!

■ Forty percent of young people who identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual or "questioning" report they have seriously considered suicide in the past year, according to a survey of more than 15,000 high school students.
