20K-plus L.A. Marathon runners brave high temps

BY DANIEL ARCHULETA
Managing Editor

OCEAN AVENUE A sea of runners made their way to Santa Monica on Sunday all hoping for Los Angeles Marathon glory.

What they found were unseasonably high temperatures and varying degrees of either dehydration or just plain fatigue.

A number of runners had to seek medical assistance following Sunday's race with most complaining that the temperatures, which reached the mid 80s, were to blame for their distress.

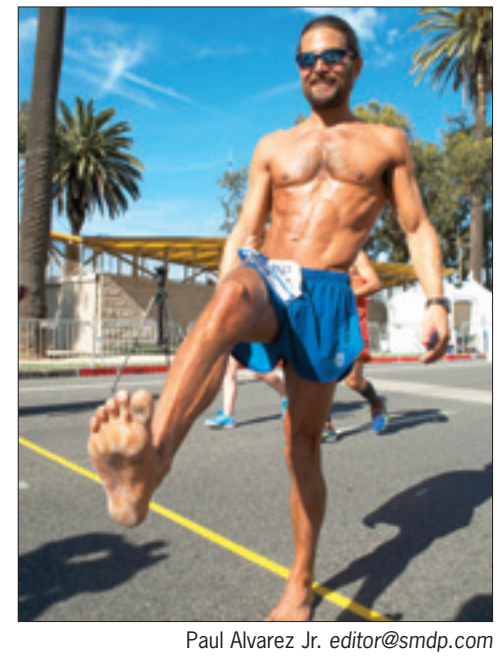

At least 20 people were transported to area hospitals and another 1,000 sought help at medical tents set up near the finish line on Ocean Avenue.

Other than the few who were overcome by the heat, most runners of the massive race were pleased with the outcome and walked away with their finisher medals swinging back and forth and a feeling of accomplishment.

"I couldn't think of a better place to finish a race," said Sam O'Melveny, a first time marathoner who is a senior at Dana Point High School. "The course was just gorgeous."

Those tasked with treating runners after the race said that there was no one way to tell if people needed assistance.

'300' sequel rules box office with $45.1M debut

JAKE COYLE
AP Film Writer

NEW YORK The shirtless warriors of the "300" sequel "Rise of an Empire" ravaged the post-Oscars box-office weekend with a domestic debut of $45.1 million but an even bigger international haul of $87.8 million.

Seven years after the original "300" became an unlikely, ultra-stylish, blood-soaked sensation, Warner Bros.' 3-D follow-up showed considerable might at the box office. While "300: Rise of an Empire" didn't come close the North American debut of Zack Snyder's 2007 original ($70.9 million and without the benefit of 3-D ticket prices), it performed like a blockbuster overseas.

"Rise of an Empire," which with flexed torsos and R-rated bloodshed further chronicles the ancient battles of the Greeks and Persians, led a busy box-office weekend that also saw an Academy Awards bump for "12 Years a Slave" and one of the highest per-screen averages ever for Wes Anderson's European caper "The Grand Budapest Hotel."

Though "300: Rise of an Empire" is excessively macho, Eva Green — the film's fiercest presence — may have drawn females for what was always going to be a male-centric release. Whereas the female audience for the first "300" was only 29 percent, it was 38 per-

Survey: U.S. average gas price up 10 cents per gallon

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CAMARILLO, Calif. The average U.S. price of a gallon of gasoline has jumped 10 cents over the past two weeks.

The Lundberg Survey of fuel prices released Sunday says the price of a gallon of regular is $3.51. Midgrade costs an average of $3.69 a gallon, and premium is $3.84.

Diesel was up three cents over the past two weeks at $4.03.

Of the cities surveyed in the Lower 48 states, Los Angeles has the nation's highest average price for gas at $3.94. Jackson, Miss., has the lowest at $3.18.

Counties undermine California's prison efforts

DON THOMPSON
Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. California counties are confounding the state's court-ordered efforts to sharply reduce its inmate population by sending state prisons far more convicts than anticipated, including a record number of people with second felony convictions.

The surge in offenders requiring state prison sentences is undermining a nearly 3-year-old law pushed by Gov. Jerry Brown. The legislation restructured California's criminal justice system to keep lower-level felons in county jails while reserving state prison cells for serious, violent and sexual offenders.

The law initially reduced the state prison population by 25,000 inmates and brought it close to the level demanded by a special panel of three federal judges who ruled that a reduction in crowding was the best way to improve treatment of inmates.

But the inmate population is rising again, led by a record increase in the number of second felony convictions for those who already had a prior conviction for a serious crime.

Counties, where prosecutors have discretion in filing such charges, sent nearly 5,500 people with second felony convictions to state prisons during the 2013-14 fiscal year, a 33 percent increase over the previous year and the most since California enacted the nation's first three-strikes law in 1994 that required life sentences for offenders convicted of three felonies.

The number climbs to 6,044 two-strike offenders last year if parole violators returned to prison with new second-strike sentences are included, a 20 percent increase.

The trend is complicating the state's mandate to meet a prison population cap by February 2016. Last month, the federal judges reluctantly gave Brown's administration two additional years to comply by taking steps that include earlier releases for some inmates sentenced on a second strike.

Partly as a result of the increase in second-strike offenders, the prison population of 133,000 inmates last June is projected to grow to 143,000 by June 2019, despite all the steps the state is taking to comply with the federal court order and reduce the population to about 112,000 inmates.

State prisons currently hold more than 34,000 second-strikers, about a quarter of the total inmate population.

Second-strike convictions had been generally declining since 1999. They began rising sharply about the same time as the realignment law took effect in October 2011, according to figures from the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation that were reviewed by The Associated Press, though there are competing theories on the reasons for the increase.

Enough is enough

Editor:

Santa Monicans for Renters' Rights is only against the Hines project until after the elections. Then it will be full steam ahead for Hines. Look at all the other projects they have endorsed or are about to. How convenient for the replacement of a water main going in the east Olympic area, real close to the Hines project and other developments. The City Council is paid off by you know who. Why don't we put developers on the council? They already have the Planning Commission and city manager. Is anyone out there for the community?

Santa Monica is so corrupt. It's ruined now. What will it be like in 10 years if not stopped? Employees working for the city have been tainted with their excessive salaries, health benefits, pensions etc. Compared to other cities, Bell comes to mind. Roads are parking lots now. We don't want any more phony traffic studies. Enough is enough. Wake up, Santa Monica.

Editor:

It is indeed positive that the city of Santa Monica is now supporting the restoration of Paul Conrad's unique and creative "Chain Reaction" mushroom cloud peace sculpture. It will also be positive to see City Council members and city staff joining hands with Conrad family members and the community in a "chain of unity" around the iconic landmarked sculpture at a Save Chain Reaction planned public gathering on June 27, which would have been the late three-time Pulitzer Prize winning political cartoonist's 90th birthday.

Anti-airport commission fumbles

WHAT ON EARTH WERE THEY THINKING?

I'm talking about the Santa Monica (anti) Airport Commission?

After a federal judge tossed out City Hall's lawsuit against the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) over future uses at the 227-acre Santa Monica Airport (SMO) property last month, "The Airport Commission voted 4 to 1 to send a recommendation to City Council that would halt the sale of aviation fuel and restrict the rental of airport property to any tenants other than art studios and those doing light manufacturing." They also suggested raising all rents to market rate, reported the Santa Monica Daily Press ("Airport Commission recommends starving SMO," March 3, Pg. 1)

If I were an aero-related tenant at the airport, I'd be looking into suing City Hall if this recommendation is acted on by City Council. I would think that adoption of the commission's recommendations would constitute discrimination against aviation-related tenants and a threat to private business and livelihoods.

On Dec. 9, 2011, this newspaper editorialized after real-estate executive and Sunset Park resident David Goddard (now chairman) was appointed to the Airport Commission ("Airport Commission's lack of diversity is troubling.") and stated that he "had a strong anti-airport agenda."

The Daily Press pointed out that Goddard was a member of the Friends of Sunset Park neighborhood group which had been "vigorously lobbying elected officials to shut SMO down or at least extremely curtail operations there" and noted that Goddard was encouraging residents to fill out a survey from the anti-SMO Community Against Santa Monica Airport Traffic (CASMAT).

The five person commission is rife with airport haters — four of whom live near SMO — who want to see the airport closed. They seems to only represent a select few anti-airport residents in West Los Angeles and Sunset Park instead of the community as a whole.

The editorial continued, "There was a time when the Airport Commission was comprised of representatives from the aviation community, merchants operating around the airport and residents in both Sunset Park and elsewhere. It was truly representative of the community. Right now the commission is not. It represents one view — those who feel SMO is a danger to the public because it lacks proper runway safety areas and contributes to air pollution."

Suggesting shutting down businesses and terminating hundreds of airport-related jobs is despicable. Chairman Goddard, Vice Chair Peter Donald, Steven Mark, Suzanne Paulson and Lael Rubin were all appointed by the City Council. Nevertheless, council should condemn their repulsive recommendation on no uncertain terms.

The future for the airport will almost certainly include aviation uses. Therefore, decisions on its future must produce results that are best for all stakeholders including airport neighbors. Unfortunately, this bunch of political appointees has demonstrated they're not up to the challenge

PRAISE THE LORD

In early February, I heard complaints about a new "City of God" church that had leased the Grant Elementary School auditorium from the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District (SMMUSD) for Sunday morning services although I didn't write about it.

A few residents along Pearl Street and near Grant school were complaining that some church-goer's cars were parking in front of their houses on Sunday mornings. Preferential parking permits (enacted years ago to keep nearby Santa Monica College students from occupying spaces on public streets) aren't in effect on weekends.

There were complaints about large banners hung outside the school inviting people to come in and worship in addition to smaller lawn signs that had been placed around the neighborhood — the latter may be a violation of municipal codes.

I was informed that people arrive as early as 7 a.m. to unload cars and put up signage. I also received e-mails from neighbors who were offended because church leaders failed to inform them of their plans beforehand.

There were (and still are) noise complaints because loud, amplified, "Christian rock" music carries into the neighborhood during Sunday services.

An article about the situation appeared in the March 3 Los Angeles Times and another article accusing Sunset Park residents of being intolerant NIMBYs popped-up on LA.Curbed.com a few days later.

Are church related vehicles parked on a public street on Sunday morning a big problem? 55 worshippers at a recent service (according to the L.A. Times) doesn't seem like an unreasonable burden on the neighborhood.

Pearl Street is a busy thoroughfare with a public school. There will be occasional weekend events and traffic. Even though this part of Sunset Park is residential, it's still an active urban area, 24/7.

I'm not a big supporter of religious institutions but in this situation, I feel Grant neighbors are acting unreasonably. However, there are issues that need to be addressed.

The early set-up before the school is "officially" available (by terms of the contract with the school district) should be curtailed.

The SMMUSD should use some of the rent revenue — reportedly $1,067 per week — to install soundproofing or heavy drapery to prevent amplified sound from radiating into the neighborhood.

I've been writing for years about how the district should be exploring opportunities to raise revenues above and beyond imposing parcel taxes on residents. Selling facility naming rights, licensing school names and logos and leasing out school facilities to help bring in needed income is smart thinking.

Finally, someone has got the right idea. The leasing of the Grant auditorium to the "City of God" is good business but only if it can be done without an undue burden on nearby residents. The question is, "What constitutes undue burden?"

Gasoline prices may jump due to new emissions law

DON THOMPSON
JASON DEAREN
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO California's greenhouse gas reduction law already has shaken up the state's industrial sector, costing it more than $1.5 billion in pollution permit fees.

It's now poised to hit the pocketbooks of everyday Californians.

Starting next year, the law will force fuel distributors into the same cap-and-trade marketplace as utilities and major manufacturers. The oil industry says it will lead to price increases of at least 12 cents a gallon immediately, while state regulators say any price spikes could vary widely, from barely noticeable to double-digits.

Anticipating angst at the pump, a leading state lawmaker is raising concerns about the uncertainty of the law's impact on prices for consumer fuels, including gasoline, natural gas, propane and heating oil. Senate President Pro Tem Darrell Steinberg, D-Sacramento, says the state should scrap the plan to put fuel producers under the cap-and-trade provision of the law and instead institute a 15 cent-per-gallon "carbon tax."

Cap-and-trade sets a limit, or cap, on emissions of heat-trapping gases and requires companies to pay for each ton of pollution they emit, the price of which is determined in an allowance auction. Polluters that cut emissions below the cap can sell their leftover pollution permits, called allowances, to companies that need extra.

The program is a central part of AB32, the greenhouse gas reduction law that passed the Legislature and was signed by former Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger, a Republican, in 2006. But it is just one of several provisions of the law — such as requiring lower-carbon fuels — meant to prompt Californians to change their transportation and energy consumption habits as the state seeks to reduce emissions of heat-trapping gases to 1990 levels by 2020.

The California Air Resources Board, which designed and implemented cap-and-trade, differs with Steinberg's assessment and projects no noticeable increase in gas costs after Jan. 1. But the board's own economic analysis of AB32 from 2010 shows that diesel prices could rise from 3 percent to 23 percent, with gasoline prices rising 5 percent to 32 percent, depending on market factors associated with the global warming law's programs.

The industry and some economic forecasts have predicted a 10- to 12-cent increase in the price per gallon at the pump, and Steinberg says those prices could spike as high as 40 cents a gallon.

Still, Mary Nichols, chairwoman of the Air Resources Board, said oil companies have had since 2010 to prepare and are not required to pass on the costs to consumers.

"It would appear to be some deliberate measure on their part if there were to be a sudden rise in (fuel) prices on Jan. 1," Nichols said. "I would expect that they would incorporate the cost of the allowances into their pricing."

Steinberg's idea of charging a flat tax on carbon — rather than having the price change regularly because of cap and trade auctions — does not force polluters to reduce their emissions, Nichols said, which is key to the state's greenhouse gas law.

But it does allow for more stable pricing, said Steinberg, a Democrat from Sacramento.

"Under cap-and-trade, no one can tell us whether fuels will trade at 10 cents or 40 cents a gallon in 2015 or 2016, at any given timing and without a warning. On the other hand, a carbon tax is stable," he said.

He proposed a 15 cent-a-gallon carbon tax to offset what he said would be the indirect tax on consumer fuels once the companies that produce those fuels go into the cap-and-trade program next year.

Under his proposal for a flat carbon tax, introduced in the Legislature as SB1156, the tax would rise to 24 cents a gallon by 2020 and more than 40 cents a gallon by 2029.

About two-thirds of the estimated $3.6 billion raised by Steinberg's carbon tax would go back to households earning less than $75,000 a year in the form of a state-level Earned Income Tax Credit. The rest would go toward mass transit programs with the goal of getting more Californians out of their automobiles.

The legislative prospects for Steinberg's tax proposal, especially during an election year, are uncertain. But the oil industry has greeted his plan warmly.

Catherine Reheis-Boyd, president of the Western States Petroleum Association, said the cost of cap and trade allowances will add $2 billion to the costs of gasoline and diesel, or about 12 cents per gallon.

The group's oil company members are proposing to continue cap and trade on industrial facilities, but using a set carbon tax on fuels starting in 2015.

The Q Line

To sign or not to sign

A movement to force a special election to overturn the City Council approval of the Bergamot Transit Village is winding down following a drive to gather signatures from 10 percent of registered Santa Monica voters. The results are not in yet, but this week marks the deadline.

So, this week's Q-Line question asks:
Where do you stand on the referendum? Are activists right in objecting to the project or are they barking up the wrong tree?

Contact qline@smdp.com before Friday at 5 p.m. and we'll print your answers in the weekend edition of the Daily Press. You can also call 310-573-8354.

EW: The Union of Concerned Scientists reports that, thanks to global warming, insects previously stopped by cold winters are already moving to higher latitudes, a phenomenon that could expose an extra two billion people, mostly in developing countries, to the dengue virus over the next half century.

With warming comes health issues

Dear EarthTalk:

How is it that global warming could cause an increase in health problems and disease epidemics? Do we have any evidence that it is already happening?

Jim Merrill
Provo, Utah

GLOBAL WARMING ISN'T JUST BAD FOR the environment. There are several ways that it is expected to take a toll on human health. For starters, the extreme summer heat that is becoming more normal in a warming world can directly impact the health of billions of people.

"Extreme high air temperatures contribute directly to deaths from cardiovascular and respiratory disease, particularly among elderly people," reports the World Health Organization (WHO). "In the heat wave of summer 2003 in Europe, for example, more than 70,000 excess deaths were recorded."

WHO adds that high temperatures also play a role in elevated levels of ozone and other air pollutants known to exacerbate respiratory and cardiovascular problems. And according to the non-profit Union of Concerned Scientists (UCS), warmer temperatures and higher levels of atmospheric carbon dioxide can stimulate plants to grow faster, mature earlier and produce more potent allergens. "Common allergens such as ragweed seem to respond particularly well to higher concentrations of carbon dioxide, as do pesky plants such as poison ivy. Allergy-related diseases rank among the most common and chronic illnesses…" reports the group.

Another way global warming is bad for our health is that it increases extreme weather events that can injure or kills large numbers of people. According to WHO, the number of weather-related natural disasters has more than tripled since the 1960s. Likewise, increasingly variable rainfall patterns combined with higher overall temperatures are leading to extended droughts around the world. "By the 2090s, climate change is likely to widen the area affected by drought, double the frequency of extreme droughts and increase their average duration six-fold," reports WHO. One result is likely to be a downturn in agricultural productivity along with a spike in malnutrition. Another is less access to safe drinking water, a trigger for poor sanitation and the spread of diarrheal diseases-not to mention resource wars.

Perhaps most worrying to public health experts, though, is the potential for global warming to cause a spike in so-called "vector-borne diseases" like schistosomiasis, West Nile virus, malaria and dengue fever. "Insects previously stopped by cold winters are already moving to higher latitudes (toward the poles)," reports UCS. Researchers predict that thanks to global warming an extra two billion people, mostly in developing countries, will be exposed to the dengue virus over the next half century.

A related fear is that thawing permafrost in Polar Regions could allow otherwise dormant age-old viruses to re-emerge. Earlier this year, French and Russian researchers discovered a 30,000 year old giant virus, previously unknown to science, in frozen soil in Russia's most northerly region. While the virus, which researchers dubbed Pithovirus sibericum, is harmless to humans and animals, its discovery has served as a wake-up call to epidemiologists about the potential re-emergence of other viruses that could make many people sick. While some of these re-emergent viruses might also be new to science, others could be revitalized versions of ones we thought we had eradicated, such as smallpox.

Ethiopians sweep Los Angeles Marathon

LEE BARNATHAN
Associated Press

SANTA MONICA Amane Gobena ran two marathons in two months, and after winning the second in Los Angeles, she'll now have enough money for that dream home.

The 31-year-old Ethiopian woman won the Los Angeles Marathon on Sunday in 2 hours, 27 minutes, 37 seconds after finishing sixth in Dubai on Jan. 25.

She crossed the finish line 41 seconds ahead of men's champion and fellow Ethiopian Gebo Burka and won a $50,000 bonus for being the first elite runner to finish. The women started 17:41 ahead of the men. She also won a $25,000 first prize as top woman.

"I'm building a house, and definitely that home will be paid off," Gobena said through an interpreter.

Burka won in 2:10:37.

Gobena finished second here in 2009, but that was on a different course than the current Stadium to the Sea that runs from Dodger Stadium to the Pacific Ocean.

Still, she knew enough to leave runner-up and fellow Ethiopian Tigist Tufa in mile 23 and was not challenged.

Tufa finished in a personal-best 2:28:04, and American Lauren Kleppin was third in 2:28:48, some 13 minutes faster than her previous best. Her goal had been to run at least 2:37, the standard for the Olympic trials that will be in Los Angeles, albeit possibly on a different course, in 2016.

Burka clocked his best time since a 2:10:18 in Cannes, France, five years ago. Through an interpreter, he said he has been sick the last three years but has since returned feeling strong.

"(Through) the instruction of my coach, I cut my amount of exercise, so I was able to save me energy and accomplish my goals," Burka said.

Lani Rutto of Kenya was second in 2:10:48. He challenged Burka over the last three miles but ultimately faded when Burka zigzagged in mile 25. Rutto said that was the major reason he couldn't catch Burka.

Defending champion Erick Mose was third in 2:12:56. He had fallen well back of the pack of six in mile 13 but rallied.

"I was good but I had a big problem reaching 15 miles," Mose said. "I had a big problem with my back running downhill. A lot of pain, so I lost my pace with the other guys."

Joshua George won the men's wheelchair division in 1:33:11, and Susanna Scaroni won the women's race in 1:54:54.

BOX OFFICE

cent for "Rise of an Empire."

"Talk about female empowerment," said Jeff Goldstein, head of domestic distribution for Warner Bros., said of the "Casino Royale" actress.

Noting the popularity of 3-D and IMAX screenings for the movie, Goldstein credited the visual panache of producer Snyder (Noam Murro took over directing), who drew directly from Frank Miller's graphic novels: "He brings a lot to the screen that mesmerizes you."

Paul Dergarabedian, senior media analyst for box-office tracker Rentrak, said the "300" franchise "translates to virtually every culture. Every country can appreciate the visuals of these movies."

The week's other new wide release, 20th Century Fox's animated "Mr. Peabody & Sherman," opened in second with $32.5 million. Though the performance was better than some expected, it's a relatively low total for a film that cost about $140 million to make.

The film is based on the cartoon about a time-traveling boy and his brilliant dog from "The Rocky and Bullwinkle Show." Some of the family film market was likely taken by Warner Bros.' hit "The Lego Movie," which added $11 million in its fifth weekend.

The Liam Neeson thriller "Non-Stop" slid to third place with $15.4 million in the Universal release's second weekend after topping the box office last week.

In limited release, "The Grand Budapest Hotel" made an astounding average of $200,000 on four screens in New York and Los Angeles. Fox Searchlight will expand the film by 65 to 75 theaters next week.

The specialty studio also celebrated the best picture Oscar win for "12 Years a Slave" with a notable bump of $2.2 million, even though it was released on DVD and video-on-demand Tuesday. That was up 123 percent on the prior weekend for the film, which first opened in November.

"12 Years a Slave" drew even more international interest, where it made $9.1 million as moviegoers flocked to see the Academy Award winner.

"We're not quite sure what's behind the trend. When you see such a drastic increase year-over-year ... that kind of suggests that there's been some kind of behavior change at the county level, in terms of how they are charging, whether they are choosing to charge individuals as second-strikers or not," said Aaron Edwards, a corrections analyst with California's nonpartisan Legislative Analyst's Office.

Judges are imposing longer prison sentences for drug, property and other nonviolent crimes since criminal justice realignment became law, according to an analysis by the corrections department. Those sentences are increasing even as the length of sentences for violent crimes declined, leading to a net increase of 3.3 months in the average prison sentence since realignment.

Mark Zahner, chief executive of the California District Attorneys Association, said prosecutors are not to blame. "We're convinced that it's not any kind of change in charging practices on the part of the DA's offices," said Zahner, who said he had spoken with virtually all of the county prosecutors in the state.

Nevertheless, the California Judges Association has asked judges to respond to the increase in second-strike convictions later this spring.

Corrections spokeswoman Deborah Hoffman said the department is examining the trend because it represents the largest jump in the state prison population, but could not say what additional steps the administration is considering.

The two-strikes portion of the law doubles the sentence of a criminal convicted of any felony if they have one prior conviction for a serious or violent felony. It means offenders will be sentenced to state prison and not county jail, and must serve at least 80 percent of their sentence.

The second-strike does not need to be serious or violent to qualify for an extended sentence, and the courts have ruled that prosecutors and judges have discretion in applying the strike law if doing so would impose an unfair sentence given the nature of the crime. Prosecutors also have discretion in charging some crimes as misdemeanors or felonies, with only felonies triggering the second-strike law.

Thirty-eight of California's 58 counties increased the number of second-strikers sent to state prisons in the fiscal year that ended last June, according to the corrections department figures.

Merced County more than tripled the number of second-strikers, from 23 to 79. The number doubled in Placer and San Joaquin counties and climbed 88 percent in Stanislaus County.

The number was up 86 percent in Fresno County, which sent 118 more second-strikers to state prison last fiscal year. That was second only to the 151 additional second-strikers sentenced in Riverside County, although Riverside had only a 34 percent increase because it already had the second-highest number of two-strike offenders going to state prison.

Stanislaus County Assistant District Attorney Carol Shipley blamed the surge in her county on an increase in crime since realignment.

Her office reviewed 8,200 felony cases in 2011 but 11,000 last year, a 25 percent increase over two years. It saw a 14 percent increase in misdemeanor cases.

"That's a huge jump," she said. "People are being released from prison, and they're committing more crimes."

But San Joaquin Public Defender Peter Fox said he thinks there has been "some attitudinal backlash against realignment" by judges and prosecutors.

"Instead of kind of helping the governor to comply with the three-judge court, the attitude has just been, 'Let's keep sending the same number to prison,'" Fox said. "It's a big problem. We've got two more years to meet this deadline. I don't see that happening unless the law is changed."

Policies on applying the law vary widely between counties, said prison consultant James Austin, who has testified on behalf of inmates in several of the lawsuits over California prison conditions. San Francisco, for instance, rarely uses the second- or third-strike provisions that carry extended sentences, even though it has plenty of candidates, while other counties use it whenever they can, he said.

Michael Romano, director of Stanford Law School's Three Strikes Project, said other factors also are likely driving the increase. His group promoted a successful initiative in 2012 that modified what was then the nation's toughest repeat offender law so that only a violent or serious third felony would lead to a life sentence.

Before realignment, he said, ex-convicts who violated their parole could be quickly sent back to state prison without the trouble or expense of filing new criminal charges. Since realignment, most parole violators serve minimal sentences in county jails. If prosecutors think a longer sentence is merited, or want to limit crowding in local jails, they now must file new charges against the parolee.

The projected state inmate population increase "basically doubles the hurdle that the state has to get over," said Rebekah Evenson, an attorney with the nonprofit Prison Law Office, which sued over prison crowding. "They also have to prevent that increase from happening."

LEGEND
DRY -- each location is graded on an A – F scale based on bacterial pollution levels present in the surf zone
WET -- grades for days of recorded rainfall and the following 3 days
ns -- no sample taken

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card℠ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

Heal the Bay is a nonprofit environmental organization making Southern California coastal waters and watersheds, including Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. We use science, education, community action and advocacy to pursue our mission.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

SAY 'YES' TO AN INVITE, SAG

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You have a flair for creating tension, as people find you to be unpredictable. However, a role reversal seems to be at play: A partner or loved one could decide that impulsiveness is a great way to go. Strap on your seat belt! Tonight: Do some yoga or take a walk.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ How you handle the key people in your daily environment reflects who you are. You intuitively know what others want or need. Even still, your best bet is to allow others to ask for your help before rushing in to fulfill an anticipated need. Tonight: Hang out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ You are able to juggle your finances with the best of them. You are likely to discover how difficult a situation can be, especially if it revolves around a friend or loved one. A meeting also could be provocative, but on a different level. Tonight: Pay bills first.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ While others play out their Monday-itis, you seem to be full of unusual and effective ideas. Test them out on several people before launching into action. Tonight: Only as you like it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★ You might not want to share too many of your thoughts right now; instead, listen carefully to a partner or friend. This person will have a lot of great ideas to share, and you could get feedback that might surprise you. Unexpected news heads your way. Tonight: Not wanting to socialize.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You seem to know what to do in order to achieve specific results. Listen to a loved one when discussing an unpredictable associate or partner. This person sees the issue differently from how you do. Tonight: Make plans with a friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Others expect you to come to the rescue for them when they aren't able to help themselves. You could be a little ticked off by this attitude. Your plate is full, and you have a lot of ground to cover. Tonight: Do something just for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You are bound to make a difference by expressing a more complete perspective of a problem. Know that you don't need to be so vested in the outcome. Others will be impressed by your drive and determination. Tonight: Let your mind drift -- you need some R and R.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Someone gladly would take up all of your time and attention, if you would allow it. Only you can decide if this is OK. State your boundaries clearly. If a loved one is involved, do not be surprised if you receive a volatile response. Tonight: Say "yes" to an invitation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Others can't seem to get enough of you. However, you have a strong need to go a certain way, and you don't want anyone holding you back. You could have some difficulty explaining this desire to a needy friend or loved one. Tonight: Carve out the correct situation for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ You seem more than capable of staying away from problems today, as long as you don't take an unusual financial risk. Incoming news could shock you, or you could surprise someone else. Tonight: In the whirlwind of living.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You could be taken aback by a sudden and unexpected financial change. Tap into your creativity in order to find the right solution. As a result, you'll find the right person with whom to connect regarding a project in the near future. Tonight: Act like there is no tomorrow!

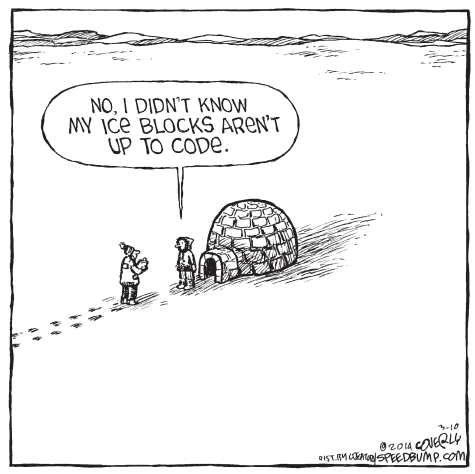

Monday, March 10, 2014

This year a lot happens very quickly in your life. You barely have enough time to adjust to one surprise before another one pops again. Stay flexible, and be willing to look at the glass as being half-full rather than half-empty. If you are single, you might nearly commit several times, possibly to different people. Take your time, and get to know your potential suitors. If you are attached, the two of you enjoy a more playful and fun time together, as if you were just starting to date. Give up being rigid or determined to have your way. Just enjoy your sweetie. CANCER is as emotional as you are!

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ The Drug Users Resource Center in Vancouver, British Columbia (heralded previously in News of the Weird for a vending machine dispensing 25-cent crack-cocaine pipes to discourage addicts from committing crimes to fund their habit), launched a program in August to supply alcoholics with beer-brewing and wine-making ingredients to discourage them from drinking rubbing alcohol, hand-sanitizer and mouthwash. The DURC "co-op" sells, for $10 monthly, brewing mix in a pre-hopped beer kit, but eventually, an official said, co-op members will brew from scratch, including boiling, mashing and milling. A civic leader told Canada's National Post that the program has already begun to reduce crime in areas frequented by alcoholics.

■ Rape-prevention activists estimate that local governments have backlogs of untested evidentiary "rape kits" that total up to 400,000 nationally -- signifying free crimes for rapists, lost justice for victims, and ruined reputations for men wrongly arrested. (As TV police dramas emphasize, many rape victims are reluctant to submit to the indignity of swabbing and photographing so soon after being violated and comply only because detectives assure them of the rape kit's importance.) Memphis, Tenn., has an inventory of 12,000, and the state of Texas at least 16,000 -- dating back to the 1980s. However, the cost of testing (about $500 each) is daunting for many city budgets, according to a February report by the Rape Kit Action Project in New York.

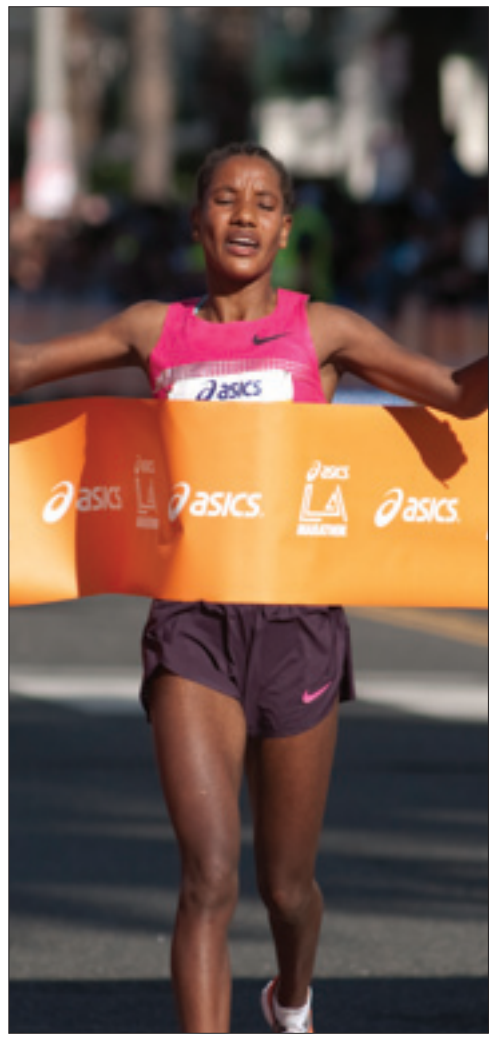

■ Frances Wadsworth-Jones' jewelry design show ("Heaven Sent") at the Museum of London runs until April, with centerpiece brooches that resemble bird droppings. Why, she was asked, would a woman want to wear jewelry suggesting that a pigeon soiled her lapel? "The stain is very intimate," said the artist. It's "something that you wouldn't want, and you're turning it into something beautiful." Wadsworth-Jones' pieces have sold for as much as the equivalent of $4,000.

MARATHON

"It's a person-to-person kind of thing," said Dale Clausen, who works for American Ambulance, which serves Santa Monica. "You just have to keep a close eye out for what may be bothering them."

As of noon, not many needed treatment, but as the temperatures rose, that changed.

The elite runners made their way through the course so quickly that they didn't feel the ill effects of heat, but it was the mass of "everyday" runners that would encounter hardships.

It was that group that included a 28-year-old man who suffered a heart attack on the course. Another had a seizure. But, besides those few isolated instances, most finished with little trouble beyond blisters and sore muscles.

The heat may have changed the dynamic of this year's marathon a bit, but it was the bombing at last year's Boston Marathon that really changed things up.

In addition to the regular group of Santa Monica Police Department personnel that usually patrol each year's race, the FBI and Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department added to the security detail.

Additional barricades were erected surrounding the finish line area, with some streets like Arizona Avenue and Wilshire Boulevard layered with two lines of security checkpoints. And, unlike years past, Palisades Park was off limits to spectators from California Avenue to Santa Monica Boulevard.

"We're taking nothing lightly," said Santa Monica Police Chief Jacqueline Seabrooks. "We want people to come to Santa Monica and enjoy the Los Angeles Marathon."

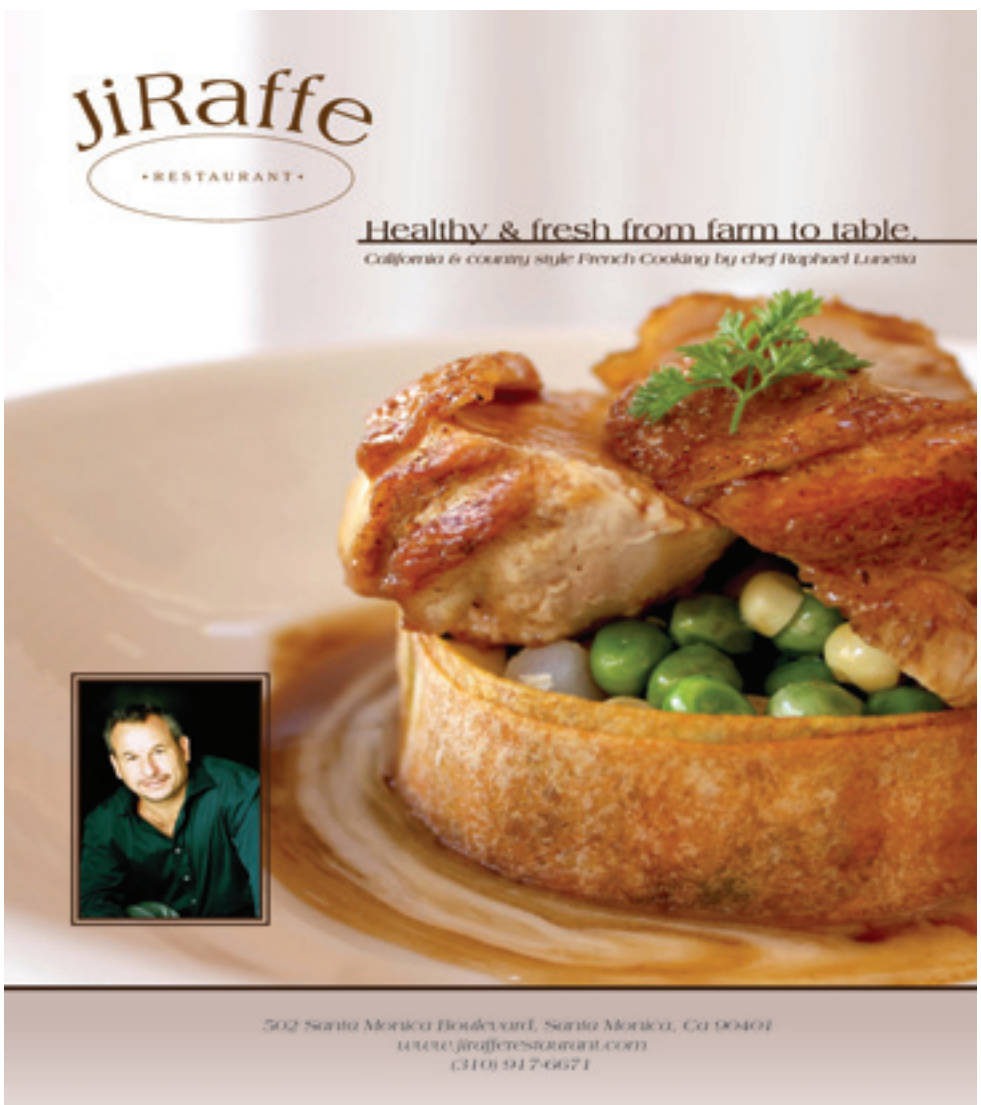

SMPD spokesman Sgt. Jay Moroso said that, from a law enforcement perspective, nothing eventful took place. There were no arrests and the department didn't have many calls for service.

"We had a very quite day," Moroso said. "There was nothing significant to report."
