Children's museum doubles in size for Santa Monica move

MUSEUM: The new Children's Museum at Santa Monica Place is now scheduled to open in June of this year.

MADELEINE PAUKER
Daily Press Staff Writer

The Cayton Children's Museum will open June 1 in Santa Monica Place, offering expansive, hands-on exhibits and artistic and cultural programs for children, youth and families.

The museum existed for the past 20 years as Zimmer Children's Museum near the Los Angeles County Museum of Art and is now funded by philanthropists Andrea and Barry Cayton. Cayton, which was originally planned to open in November, will be almost twice as large as Zimmer and feature new play elements, including a full-size helicopter, firetruck and veterinary clinic. The philosophy of the museum will remain the same, said Esther Netter, the founder and CEO of ShareWell.

"The way children learn is through play, and it's how children practice empathy and develop compassion," Netter said. "We hope you'll come and visit us and play, and while you're with us your child will be practicing kindness, caring, cooperation, taking risks and learning what it's like to live in a diverse world."

Each area of the museum will provide opportunities for children to take chances, work and reflect together. The installations will foster different character traits and life skills, Netter said.

For example, Cayton will include a "courage climber," a structure children can climb to view the museum from on high through "perspective windows."

"The courage climber is about taking risks, literally reaching higher than you have before and practicing seeing the world from a different perspective," Netter said.

The helicopter and fire truck will be part of an exhibit called "Let's Help" that will also include a play market and cafe. The exhibit is designed for children to practice

CBD donuts and fried chicken come to town via Astro

ANGEL CARRERAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

Those in Santa Monica looking for the incredibly specific sweet and savory combination of donuts and fried chicken won't have to wait much longer.

Astro Doughnuts and Fried Chicken will open it's second Los Angeles location this month, bringing the restaurant to Main Street. The donut restaurant famed for its unique donut offers will replace the former home of Books and Cookies.

"We have had our eyes set on Santa Monica since opening our first West Coast location in Downtown Los Angeles in 2017," Elliot Spaisman, cofounder of Astro Doughnuts and Fried Chicken said via email. "Santa Monica's casual and care-free vibe makes it the perfect place for Astro's playful brand."

Casual and carefree will be the vibe of the restaurant, with an outdoor patio, beer and wine, and a CBD donut (available only on Sundays). And yes, it's mostly locally sourced.

"Many of the ingredients are sourced locally; some come straight from the Santa Monica Farmers Market," Spaisman said. "Whenever possible, we buy local."

Spaisman says he and Astro aren't deterred from the large overturn of restaurants and businesses on Main Street, saying Astro is a now-three location proven concept.

SMMUSD recruiting for new high school program

MADELEINE PAUKER
Daily Press Staff Writer

The Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District (SMMUSD) is launching a project-based learning program for high schoolers in a renovated space at Olympic High School for 100 students entering ninth grade in the fall.

The students will embark on a four-year program that will allow them to pursue their own interests, form relationships with real-world experts in those topics and demonstrate their knowledge with a project or presentation at the end of each semester. The Olympic campus at Lincoln and Ocean Park Boulevards will accommodate the program, said Jessica Riche, principal of Santa Monica Alternative School House (SMASH).

"Project-based learning is already threaded throughout the district ... it improves student-teacher engagement and helps close the achievement and opportunity gap," Riche said. "We're trying to expand what's there to help students

Soundwaves concert

The Soundwaves new music series at the Santa Monica Public Library welcomes back pianist Susan Svrček for a concert Thursday March 28, 2019, at 7:30pm in the Main Library Martin Luther King Jr. Auditorium, at 601 Santa Monica Blvd.

Svrček will present a set of chamber music interpretations of the music of Arnold Schoenberg. Nic Gerpe joins her for "Six Pieces for Piano Four-Hands" and a two piano arrangement of "Chamber Symphony No. 2." Svrček, violinist Elizabeth Hedman, and cellist Kate Dillingham will perform the trio version of "Transfigured Night."

Schoenberg began his career in the first decades of the twentieth-century in Austria, moving from a late Romantic style through Expressionism to atonality. He moved to the United States in 1933 as a refugee from the Nazis and settled in Brentwood, teaching at UCLA and USC, until his death in 1951.

Susan Svrček is one of the founding members of Pianospheres. A graduate of CalArts, Yale, and USC, she has performed solo across the US, Europe, and Asia, and with the LA Philharmonic New Music Group, among other ensembles. She currently teaches at the Pasadena Conservatory of Music. She previously appeared at Soundwaves in September 2017, playing Olivier Messiaen's "Quartet for the End of Time."

This show will include sections of each piece. They will be played in full at Villa Aurora in Pacific Palisades on March 30 and Zipper Hall in downtown LA on April 2, as part of the Pianospheres concert series. Founded in 1994 by Leonard Stein, a student of Schoenberg's, PianoSpheres presents a core group of four pianists plus guest artists in annual recitals. It is one of the pillars of the LA classical music scene and is celebrating its 25th season in 2018-19. For more information, see pianospheres.org

Soundwaves is a concert series featuring composers and performers who appear on the DRAM (Database of Recorded American Music) streaming service. The Santa Monica Public Library is the first public library to offer this service to its cardholders. Listings of past and upcoming Soundwaves shows as well as sound and video recordings are at SoundwavesNewMusic.com

Admission is free and all are welcome. Seating is limited and on a first-arrival basis. The Santa Monica Public Library is wheelchair accessible. SMC Emeritus Gallery Unveils Student Photo Exhibition

The Santa Monica College Emeritus Art Gallery will present its Annual Student Photography Exhibition from March 21 through May 1.

The opening reception for the exhibit will be from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. Thursday, March 21, in the gallery, located on the first floor of the SMC Emeritus Campus, 1227 Second St., in downtown Santa Monica. Parking is available next door in Santa Monica Public Parking Structure No. 2. Gallery hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The exhibit and reception are free.

"Our SMC Emeritus students have a broad range of experience in photography," said Dr. Scott C. Silverman, Associate Dean of SMC Emeritus, "with some having taken classes with us for just a semester or two, to those taking classes here for years and years. You will find their work to be artistic and beautiful. It would be fantastic to see you there."

The salon-style group exhibition features a remarkable variety of recent photographic works created by 25 students. The students are: Aliza Astrachan, Ira Astrachan, Jon Barry, Linda Brookover, Dorli Burge, Eva Caulfield, John Dalton, Scott Davis, Caroline Gerstley, Jim Gerstley, Kathleen Higgins, Suzie Kim, Chenkung Lee, Leticia Lua, Wendy Miller, Regina Pally, Allan Popelka, Doris Power, Judy Raffel, Linda Rosman, Karen Sandler, Marilyn Stern, Jo Tashima, Michael Telerant, Alan Tossman, Alex Vital, James Wang, and Fanya Yusim.

SMC's widely praised Emeritus program offers more than 120 free noncredit adult education classes and special programs of interest to older adults.

Eyes Up, Slow Down: Lawn Signs Encourage Safe Driving

This month, the City of Santa Monica is distributing 2,000 lawn signs to households citywide as part of a broader citywide initiative called "Take the Friendly Road." In partnership with local schools and the City's Safe Routes to Schools program, the lawn signs are a practical tool to encourage all road users to model safe travel behaviors including looking out for one another and driving at neighborhood-appropriate speeds.

"Our teachers and crossing guards are great safety resources for students and parents, but they are only able to keep an eye on the intersections and locations closest to the school," said Cory Keen, the City's Safe Routes to School Coordinator. "We need to reach further; our entire city should be seen as a safety-first zone. With schools located in every neighborhood and students walking everyday, we have a role to play in advocating for safety everywhere."

Close to 40% of residents reported that they feel uncomfortable navigating Santa Monica's streets, and the highest rate of collisions happens during the afternoon rush hour, when many students are walking home from after-school activities. "Take the Friendly Road" is part of the City's commitment to eliminating all fatal and severe injury crashes by 2026 through education, infrastructure and enforcement.

"Take the Friendly Road is a call for all of us to pay attention to our actions, and the very real consequences of unsafe behavior, whether we're behind the wheel or walking down the street," said Francie Stefan, Acting Chief Mobility Officer for the City of Santa Monica. "We want to encourage all of our students to get outside and to feel safe when biking, walking, skating, or scooting in the neighborhood... and for parents to feel confident too."

The signs will be distributed through Santa Monica's public elementary schools, as well as some private schools. Interested individuals can also email Cory Keen to receive one at Cory.Keen@smgov.net.

Authors on Architecture: Smith on Wright

Join the Southern California Chapter of the Society of Architectural Historians as they explore a fascinating aspect of Frank Lloyd Wright's legacy. Author Kathryn Smith will discuss her book, Wright on Exhibit, at Santa Monica Public Library on Sunday, March 17, at 2 p.m. in the Main Library's Martin Luther King, Jr. Auditorium, 601 Santa Monica Blvd.

More than one hundred exhibitions of Frank Lloyd Wright's work were mounted between 1894 and his death in 1959. Wright organized the majority of these exhibitions himself and viewed them as crucial to his self-presentation as his extensive writings. He used them to promote his designs, appeal to new viewers, and persuade his detractors. Wright on Exhibit presents the first history of this neglected aspect of the architect's influential career.

Drawing extensively from Wright's unpublished correspondence, Kathryn Smith challenges the preconceived notion of Wright as a self-promoter who displayed his work in search of money, clients, and fame. She shows how he was an artist-architect projecting an avant-garde program, an innovator who expanded the palette of installation design as technology evolved, and a social activist driven to revolutionize society through design.

This program is free and open to all ages. Seating is limited and on a first-arrival basis. The Santa Monica Public Library is wheelchair accessible. For disability-related accommodations, call Library Administration at (310) 458-8606 at least one week prior to the event. The Main Library is served by Big Blue Bus routes 1, R10 and 18. Making the old new

Dear EarthTalk: I saw a news item about overhauling classic old cars with electric engines, and wondering if this can be done with any old car, such as my 1999 Subaru Outback? If this is feasible, maybe I should reconsider my plan of trading up for a new Prius.
– Tim St. Germain, Boise, ID

It's true that there's never been a better time to convert an old gas guzzling car into an emissions-free electric vehicle (EV), but some makes and models are better suited for a so-called "EV swap" than others.

Michael Bream of San Marcos, California's EV West, which made news recently with its conversions of old VWs and Porsches into EVs, says you could convert a '99 Subaru—but EV Swaps are typically reserved for classic cars. "A newer Subaru has a ULEV certified (low emission) engine, so it's not as bad a polluter as a classic car, and doesn't suffer from reliability and power issues that classic cars typically suffer from," he says. "A typical conversion of a Subaru would cost about the same with parts and labor as a brand-new all-wheel drive Tesla Model 3, so unless your vehicle is extremely well loved, or you can't stand the thought of selling it, then it might be a better solution to buy or lease a new EV."

EV West is one of a handful of garages across North America now specializing in EV conversions. Some others include: Zelectric Motors (San Diego, CA), ElectricGT (Chatsworth, CA), Make Mine Electric (Sebastopol, CA), Electric Vehicles of Washington (Bellingham, WA), Shockwave Motors (Russellville, TN), Epic Car Conversions (Toronto, ON) and Green Shed Conversions (Crystal River, FL).

If you don't want to wait to get your car converted by one of these shops, you'll just have to do it yourself (or find a local mechanic looking for an interesting project). Luckily lots of companies now sell EV conversion kits (Canadian Electric Vehicles, Electro Automotive, Wilderness Electric Vehicles, DIY EV, EV Source, Metric Mind Corporation, EV Drive) that include new engines, batteries and components. Expect to spend about $8,000 on all the parts needed for the job while the labor will be up to you. DIYers should check out EVRater.com's "How to Build Your own Electric Vehicle in 5 Easy Steps" or Mechanic Doctor's "How to Convert Your Car to an Electric Vehicle" for step-by-step instructions. Meanwhile, California-based EV4U runs "3-Day Hands-On Conversion Workshops" near Sacramento for $495.

With a new base model Prius starting at $23k, you may well be better off doing the EV Swap on your old car. According to EVW, the operating costs of driving a Prius hybrid ($0.14/mile) are about four times what it costs to get around in an EV (whether native or a conversion). "In addition to the fuel savings, electric cars do not need oil changes, spark plugs, distributors, timing belts, etc.," EVW adds.

What you won't get is that new car smell or the nervous feeling of driving a brand-new car off the dealer's lot. But you will get the satisfaction of knowing that you saved two tons of metal from the junk heap—and saved the world the trouble of sourcing materials for and building another brand-new Prius.

He says Astro will attempt to entrench itself in the community in several ways to avoid the fate of many other restaurants, flavor being the first and foremost. Alongside the CBD donut, Astro will offer "Santa Monica-inspired menu items", varieties of fried chicken and monthly rotation of seasonal flavors will win over locals.

For the healthy and/or vegan crowd, Astro will offer vegan and vegetarian items such as vegan doughnuts, salad sides and wraps.

Aside from flavor, Spaisman feels the location and what Astro does with their space will bring plenty of foot traffic to the donut and chicken spot.

"We have tried our best to truly tap into the Santa Monica neighborhood when designing the Main Street location," he said.

The location will feature a 1,300 square-foot space designed by Wayne Sun of Zen Space and have outdoor patio for 30. Additionally, the location will sport a 113-foot mural of the Astro Doughnuts & Fried Chicken Astronaut.

"The mural and interior art pay tribute to the skate and art culture of Santa Monica. With our first locally-sourced beer and wine list and an open-air patio space, the Main Street location will be a destination for locals and visitors alike to sit back and enjoy all day long."

An Astro Doughnuts and Fried Chicken spokesperson says the restaurant will open sometime in the third week of March. For more information, visit http://astrodoughnuts.com/

Intersection work is also taking place on Pico at 14th St. Please contact Jason Hoang, Project Manager at (310) 458-8721, x5385 with any questions/concerns regarding this project.

Annual Water Main Replacement Project

For the week of March 11, the contractor will continue installing new water main on Wadsworth Ave between Neilson Way and Ocean Front Walk. The contractor will also be installing new water services and connecting the new water main on Lincoln Court from Olympic Blvd to north dead end. Water will be shut off on Lincoln Court for the tie-in on Thursday March 14 between 4 am to 12 noon. Traffic will be closed to thru traffic. Please use alternate routes whenever possible. Should you have any questions, please contact Carlos Rosales, Project Manager (310) 458-8721 ext. 2620

Advanced Traffic Management System, Phase 5 Project

For the week of March 11, construction continues on the Advanced Traffic Management System, Phase 5 Project. This project will upgrade the traffic signal equipment at four locations and install fiber optic cables along Montana Ave and 26th St. The project will provide transit priority along the corridor, allow for real-time remote monitoring and management of the traffic signals, provide public Wi-Fi along the corridor, and connect the San Vicente Reservoir and the Montana Avenue Branch Library to the City's network. We appreciate your patience during the project, to provide this safety improvement and public enhancements. Please contact Andrew Maximous, Project Manager at (310) 458-8291 with any questions/ concerns regarding this project.

Fire Station #1 Construction Project

For the week of March 11, construction will be continuing throughout the project area located at 1377 7th Street which will affect the sidewalk and bike lane on the east side of 7th Street just north of Santa Monica Blvd. During the week there may be intermittent closures of the sidewalk and bike lane in front of the project site. If you have any questions or concerns, please contact Senior Construction Manager Sebastian Felbeck at (310) 434-2675.

$5 Million Given to Saint John's Health Center Foundation

Mary and Jay Flaherty have donated $5 million to Saint John's Health Center Foundation in support of the exceptional health care and research of Providence Saint John's Health Center, the John Wayne Cancer Institute and the Pacific Neuroscience Institute.

"We're so thankful to Mary and Jay for their generous gift," said foundation President and CEO Bob Klein. "This gift not only supports groundbreaking, bench-to-bedside research and health care, it signals to the larger community that this campus is worthy of major support. This type of philanthropy is absolutely critical to bringing state-of-the-art medical care to more people."

The $5 million gift will be shared equally among the ohn Wayne Cancer Institute, Pacific Neuroscience Institute and Providence Saint John's Health Center, the anchor of the three affiliates.

"The compassionate and personalized care that Saint John's is known for, coupled with the cutting-edge research of John Wayne Cancer Institute and Pacific Neuroscience Institute, is a unique model in health care and a partnership destined for great success in the field of medicine, which is why we wanted to provide our support," said Mary Flaherty.

Mary Flaherty is a grateful patient of Saint John's and she currently serves as chairwoman of the Saint John's Health Center Foundation Board of Trustees. "My connection to Saint John's is a family tradition that goes back more than 40 years. Saint John's and its affiliates have been there for me and my family as the cornerstone of our health care and we want to ensure its success as a world-class health center for years to come," the couple said.

The gift will support new developments in breast cancer treatment and research, advancements in the field of neurosciences and cardiology, as well as technology updates to ensure Saint John's, John Wayne Cancer Institute and the newly formed Pacific Neuroscience Institute, build upon their reputations as pioneers in medicine.

"The Flahertys are pillars of our community and their gift will allow us to make enhancements to programs and services so we can offer the latest in medical treatments to those in need. This empowers our caregivers, doctors and nurses to do what they do best, treating each patient with compassion and dignity," said Marcel Loh, chief executive of Providence Saint John's Health Center and John Wayne Cancer Institute.

SMC Students to Be Showcased in Airport ArtWalk March 23

Santa Monica College (SMC) Ceramic Arts and Art Mentor Program students will take part in the 13th Annual Santa Monica Airport ArtWalk on Saturday, March 23. The popular and free cultural event is scheduled for noon to 5 p.m. along Airport Avenue, located on the south side of Santa Monica Airport, between Bundy Dr. and 23rd St.

The event is presented by the City of Santa Monica Airport and Cultural Affairs, with support from the Museum of Flying, Santa Monica College, and other airport venues. Free parking, shuttle, and bike valet will be available for The ArtWalk.

The ArtWalk features live music, children's improv workshops, art sales, a stamp hunt, and more. The festive afternoon for the whole family is a great way to explore the Museum of Flying, The Ruskin Group Theatre, and the many galleries and art studios along Airport Avenue. Snacks and beverages will also be available for purchase from a variety of food trucks.

SMC AT THE ARTWALK

SMC's Ceramics and Art Mentor studios are located at the College's Airport Arts Campus, 2800 Airport Ave. Ceramics students will demonstrate their creative process, from molding and wheeling the clay through baking and glazing the finished designs. Additionally, there will be a special sale of student ceramic and glass works.

Students in the SMC Art Mentor program will also exhibit their work and discuss their process in a large common-area studio. The Art Mentor program provides highly talented students an opportunity to work one-on-one or in small groups with mentors.

For more information, visit the Santa Monica Airport ArtWalk website at smgov.net/airportartwalk or follow the ArtWalk on the event page on Facebook ("Santa Monica Airport ArtWalk 2019").

CAYTON: Prices are still in flux for the new museum but it will host the public and school trips..

MUSEUM

helping each other in times of crisis and their community day to day. Another wing of the museum, "Together We," features installations that children can experience on their own but become amplified when they experience them together, Netter said.

"Together We is about creating opportunities to cooperate, take turns and be patient," she said. "To be successful adults, we need to practice negotiating shared space."

Netter said Cayton will also include an exhibit designed to encourage quieter play and reflection.

"We've created a stage for helping, climbing and learning how to share, and what was missing in our curriculum was how to give our visitors the chance to practice being still enough to see what's going on around us," she said.

One of the installations in "Reflect On" is a small room where a moving image of a meadow in a forest is projected on all four walls. Butterflies flutter around the meadow during the day and are replaced with fireflies at night. The creatures respond to the presence of visitors, Netter said.

"When you walk in and you're boisterous and loud and figuring it out, they fade from the scenes of nature," she said. "But when children stop and try to figure out why they move, in their stillness and quiet the space is filled with butterflies."

In addition to the installations, Cayton will offer a full calendar of classes and performances of visual, musical and performing art, as well as cultural immersion programs in languages like Korean, Spanish and Farsi. The museum will also run summer camps and host special days for children with different abilities and needs.

Cayton is still working on setting ticket and membership prices, Netter said, but the goal is to make the museum as accessible as possible. The museum will invite field trips and no school will be turned away for lack of funding, she said.

Netter said ShareWell chose Santa Monica Place because of its proximity to the Expo Line, ample parking and walkability. She said she hopes the location draws visitors from near and far.

"The summer will be highly trafficked with tourist visitorship, but as we move into the school year our visitorship will be families and school groups during the week and we anticipate families and visitors from a very broad area on weekends," she said. "We will be working with Santa Monica residents and hope to have a special relationship with and opportunities for locals."

in postsecondary preparation, accessing meaningful work and fostering high levels of civic engagement."

Parents of current eighth-grade students from Lincoln Middle School, John Adams Middle School, SMASH and Malibu Middle School, along with others living in the SMMUSD boundaries, are invited to an information session about the program. The sessions will be held Monday at Malibu High School, Tuesday at John Adams and next Tuesday at Lincoln. All sessions will start at 5 p.m. and end at 6 p.m.

Students will participate in four main activities each week, Riche said. The first, Leaving to Learn, entails weekly off-campus fieldwork in groups of 14 students and one teacher that will allow students to explore interests of their choice by learning from real-world experts, she said. Upperclassmen may be able to receive individual mentorship from professionals as the program develops.

Riche said Leaving to Learn aims to supply students with the social network and social capital that private schools often provide in addition to cultivating college readiness and career skills.

"Besides what they learn about specific topics, it teaches them how to navigate public transit, dress appropriately for certain settings and productive communication skills," she said.

The program also includes a Science, Technology, Engineering, Art and Math (STEAM) block with an integrated STEM curriculum that includes some visual art and a humanities block that covers the district's English, history and social justice standards, Riche said.

Students will also participate in advisory, where about two dozen students will stay with the same teacher for at least one year and hopefully all four years, Riche said. Advisors will check in on students to update their individualized education plans, reflect on what they have learned in their fieldwork and their STEAM and humanities blocks, and identify their strengths and goals.

"It's about practicing how to express your feelings and identify your needs," she said.

Advisory will be at the end of the school day and students will have the option to use the time to take a college course or join a sports team at nearby Santa Monica High School.

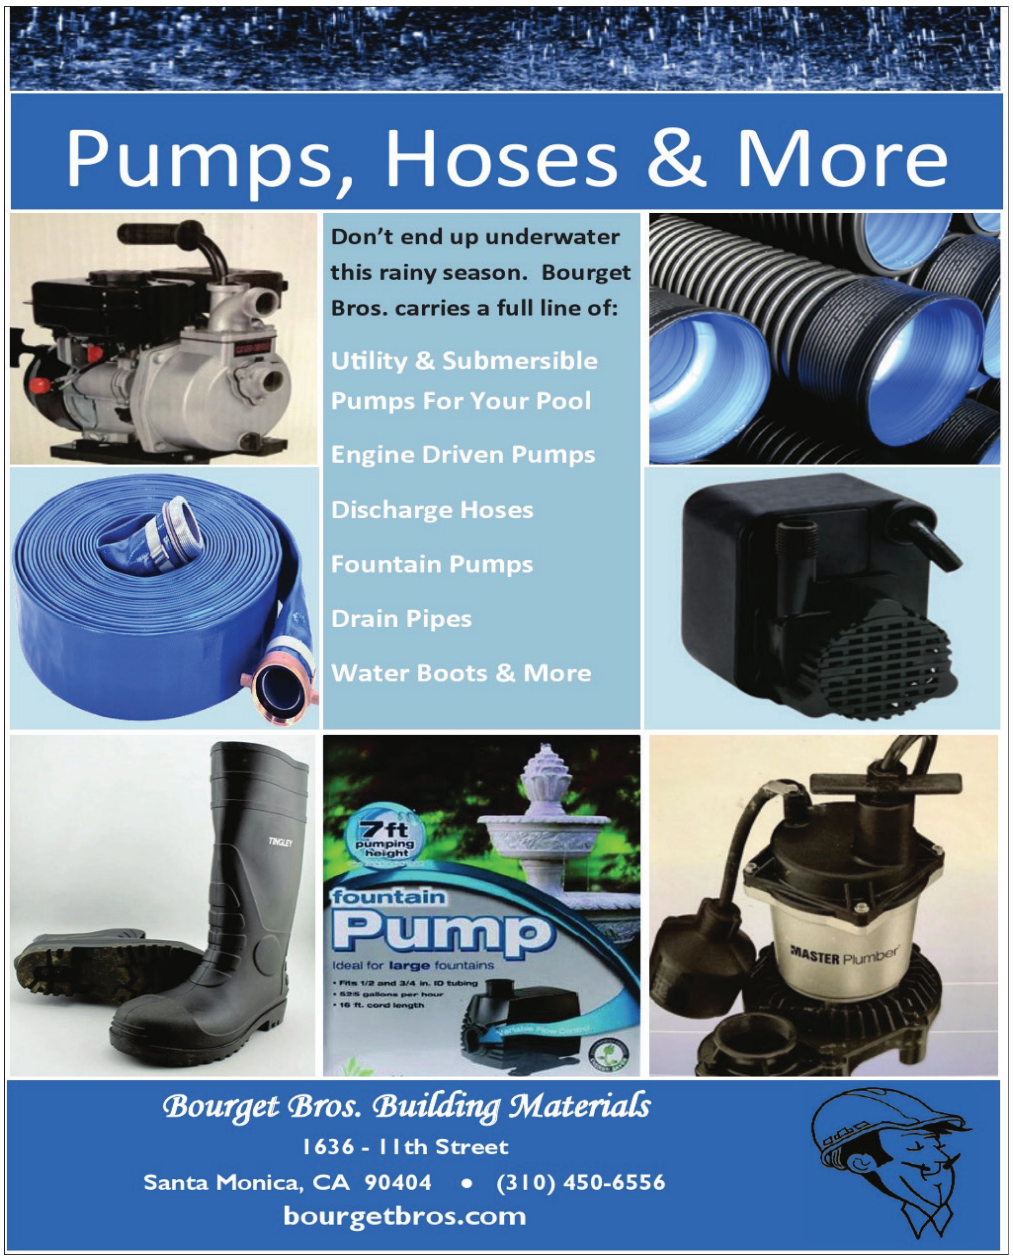

At the end of each semester, teachers will write narrative report cards and students will create projects and presentations related to what they have learned.

"Students will present not just their final projects, but what their process was, what they've learned about themselves and what they can do to apply themselves next semester," Riche said.

SMMUSD will post the application for the project-based learning program on its website Mar. 19 and it will be due Apr. 30, Riche said. The district will then conduct a computerized lottery at the beginning of May and contact parents.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (March 11)

There's a difference between adequate lighting and the inspired lighting of artistic displays in museums, shops, hotels and the like. Making things look good by showing them in their best light often requires a thoughtful plan. The moon auspiciously angles Saturn and then Pluto, offering different "lighting" options. Shop around. Choose a good one.

ARIES (March 21-April 19).
When the sign ahead is the same one again, it means you're traveling in a circle. That's OK; some roads work that way. Roundabouts, they're called. Any exit you take will be better than a circle to nowhere.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20).
Question of the day: Is it better to break rules you know about or rules you don't know about? If it's an artistic endeavor, it's better to break ones you know about. If it's a legal endeavor, the ones you don't know about are safer.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21).
There's a time to connect with your heart and trust its guidance, and then there's a time to connect with your feet and trust theirs. In other words, some situations you just need to walk away from.

CANCER (June 22-July 22).
In order to spend your time on what really matters, you have to develop a sixth sense about what doesn't. A lot of times, "what doesn't" has a petty feeling to it, a nasty little tone that will repel you once you're onto it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22).
The rules keep changing, and you make it a point to adjust accordingly. Others may be slower to adapt. Just remember that it causes as much pain in the world to give offense as it does to take it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22).
You are extraordinarily fair today and will have the same opinion of an issue regardless of which side you happen to be on. It's because you clearly see what's right.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23).
You're not sure you can approach with love until you feel love, but try anyway. You may find love as you approach, or you may find it much later when you think about what happened. So just act. At some point, love will be there.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21).
Whereas the socially innocent or immature may think in terms of being around "good people" or "bad people," the socially developed concern themselves with bringing out the good or the bad in people they are around.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21).
When no one knows what the correct way is, you can do anything, call it anything and see what comes. In short, there's a touch of absurdity in this day. Let's hope you'll flow with it, because there's humor when you do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19).
What was difficult becomes easy, not because of some huge personal development or technological change but because of improved organization.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18).
It's easier to start over than to sort through and untangle a complete mess. That said, it's not impossible to sort a mess, and maybe that's the best option if the mess comprises beloved things.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20).
No one likes a hard sell. Who wants to feel pressured, powerless and possibly victimized? Sensing there's no glory in this type of influence, you'll back off and find the way of gentle influence.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (March 11). You're an integral part of the culture, and you'll enjoy how things change, each development more exciting than the last. Connections with loved ones deepen as you endeavor to make them special. Don't let a winning streak at work get in the way of this! You'll make money either way, so go on and put your people first. Leo and Cancer adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 1, 4, 48, 9 and 13.

CELEBRITY PROFILES

The Madden Brothers, Benji and Joel Madden, have been known to do a wide range of things in the name of charity, from rocking stadiums to making cream puffs on television. The twins of Good Charlotte were born when the sun and Mars were in Pisces and the moon was in theatrical Leo. Having Venus in Aquarius shows a strong impetus to "pay it forward."
