Commissioners scrutinize 3.5 acre apartment complex coming to Lincoln Boulevard

BY KATE CAGLE
Daily Press Staff Writer

The developers of a 3.5 acre apartment complex on Lincoln Boulevard will have another go-around with the Planning Commission Wednesday in an effort to get one of the largest projects on the Boulevard underway.

The five-story building will bring 191 apartments near the corner of Lincoln and Colorado Boulevard (the same company is also developing the corner property) along with 388 parking spaces and 12,477 square feet of retail. When adjoining properties are finished, Lincoln Court will extend all the way from Olympic to Colorado, providing access to the three mixed-use developments.

An attorney representing the developers called the building "the most important part of the Lincoln collection" at a February Planning Commission meeting. David Rand expounded "it's the piece that makes the whole development work together in concert."

But to several commissioners, the concert was out of tune.

They sent the architect back to the drawing board with instructions to improve accessibility for cyclists needing to store their bikes, change landscaping, remove parking spaces and add more affordable housing. While it appears the commissioners will see several of their wishes granted Wednesday, the developer is refusing to budge on the number of affordable units.

The development has chosen to provide 15 units at the lowest income level, meaning to be eligible to live there a person would have to make less than $18,250 a year. Under the zoning code, devel-

Trial of ex-Los Angeles County sheriff nears deliberations

BY MICHAEL BALSAMO
Associated Press

Jurors in the corruption trial of former Los Angeles County Sheriff Lee Baca heard competing interpretations of evidence Monday as the prosecution and defense delivered closing arguments following nearly two weeks of testimony.

The case was expected to be placed in the panel's hands later in the day for deliberation.

Baca, 74, is accused of obstructing justice and lying to investigators in what federal prosecutors have said was an attempt to stymie an FBI probe into guards who savagely beat inmates in the jails run by Baca and deputies who smuggled contraband to prisoners.

"When defendant Baca learned the FBI and a federal grand jury was investigating, he obstructed and when he learned the FBI has turned its focus on him, he lied," Assistant U.S. Attorney Lizabeth Rhodes said in her closing.

She said Baca's subordinates hid an FBI informant who was in the county jail from federal agents, moved him to other detention facilities and changed his name in the Sheriff's Department computer in order to thwart the probe.

"Obstruction started from the top and went all the way down," Rhodes said.

If convicted, Baca, who has early stage Alzheimer's disease, could face up to 20 years in prison.

Baca, who headed the nation's largest sheriff's department for 15 years before he resigned in 2014, is accused of a 2011 conspiracy to derail the FBI probe after jail guards discovered an inmate with a contraband cellphone was acting as an FBI informant.

An undercover FBI agent had bribed a guard to give the phone to the inmate so he could stay in touch with the FBI and shoot photos and video of beatings.

Defense attorney Nathan Hochman said in his closing argument that prosecutors hadn't provided compelling evidence to prove Baca ordered any type of interference with the federal probe.

"Sheriff Baca did not conspire, did not obstruct and did not in any way attempt to obstruct the investigation," Hochman said.

Hochman said Baca thought the FBI committed a crime when agents had the cellphone smuggled to the inmate informant. He said Baca believed the inmate was being moved and having his name changed in the computer for safety reasons.

Hochman told jurors they heard "no evidence Sheriff Baca gave orders to obstruct the FBI."

He also said the former sheriff didn't willfully lie to federal authorities about the case in 2013, as prosecutors allege.

Several of Baca's former deputies testified during the trial that they believed Baca knew of their actions to hide the informant.

An FBI agent who was leading the investigation into the abuse at the jail told jurors last week that while she was investigating the case, two sheriff's sergeants went to her home and threatened to arrest her.

In his opening statements in late February, Hochman told jurors that Baca "did not lie, hide, conceal what happened 20 months before, but explained it to the best of his memory."

Baca did not testify in his own his defense.

It's the second time Baca has faced trial on charges that he conspired with underlings and obstructed justice in the investigation of civil abuses in the nation's largest jail system.

In December, jurors deadlocked and a mistrial was declared. He was going to face a separate trial on a lying charge, but prosecutors added that count to the other two charges in the retrial.

A psychiatrist has said Baca's memory could have been impaired when he told prosecutors in 2013 he was unaware of actions taken by deputies to thwart the FBI investigation, though his defense attorney was unable to present that as a defense.

Facebook says its data can't be used for 'surveillance'

BY BARBARA ORTUTAY
AP Technology Writer

Facebook is prohibiting developers from using the massive amount of data it collects on users for surveillance. This includes using such data to monitor activists and protesters.

The company said Monday that it is making an existing policy "explicit." Facebook says it has already taken action against developers who created or marketed tools meant to be used for surveillance. It says it wants to "be sure everyone understands the underlying policy and how to comply."

Last fall, the American Civil Liberties Union obtained records that Facebook and its Instagram service provided user data access to Geofeedia, which develops a monitoring product marketed to law enforcement. The ACLU said at the time that while both Instagram and Facebook cut off access after finding out about this, Facebook did not have a "public policy specifically prohibiting developers" from taking user data for surveillance.

The new prohibition states that developers — who get access to user data from Facebook to create apps — should protect "the information you receive from us against unauthorized access, use, or disclosure. For example, don't use data obtained from us to provide tools that are used for surveillance."

The ACLU report says the data the companies provided to Geofeedia included only public posts, not those that users restricted to just friends or in some other way. But such access to Facebook data is still valuable to third parties because it would be very difficult to collect and comb through all the stuff on their own.

According to the ACLU, Facebook had provided Geofeedia with access to a data feed called the "Topic Feed API," which is supposed to be a tool for advertisers. But Geofeedia could use it to obtain a feed of public Facebook posts that mentioned a specific topic, place or event — for example, "monitor hashtags used by activists and allies, or target activist groups as 'overt threats,'" Matt Cagle, attorney for the ACLU of Northern California, wrote last October. Facebook terminated this access nearly a month earlier after being notified about it by the ACLU.

BREAK-INS

Elementary School at 2401 14th Street. Twenty desktop computers were stolen from the computer lab the night before, according to Lt. Saul Rodriguez. Rodriguez said several computers were recovered on school grounds later in the day.

Less than a week later, on Thursday, March 9, Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District received another blow. Police responded to a burglary report around 7:40 a.m. at Grant Elementary School at 2638 Pearl Street. The campus had been broken into the night before. The thief or thieves hit multiple classrooms, stealing at least nine desktop computers.

Police believe the two incidents are related.

"This is devastating to our students and staff to have learning tools stolen from our schools," said Gail Pinsker, SMMUSD's community and public relations officer.

Pinsker said the District is in the process of determining the value of the computers and working with their insurance company to replace them.

"We do have a deductible so that will also play a role in this process. The District now has to take money planned for other student programs or technology purchases and (instead) replace these computers," Pinsker said.

On Friday, Superintendent Dr. Ben Drati sent a message to all staff telling them to take "extra security measures to secure belongings in your class or office."

"Please lock up items such as laptops, other electronics and any other valuables in your class or office, if not taking it home at night," the e-mail said.

SMPD's Criminal Investigations Division property section is investigating both break-ins. Anyone with information should contact SMPD at (310) 458-8491.

COMPLEX

opers must provide affordable housing or pay a fee. The ordinance allows them to offer more or fewer units based on the income of the tenants – the lower the income, the fewer the number of apartments. While renting apartments to the neediest of the needy is laudable, the commissioners complain it means fewer affordable units overall.

"It's a policy concern," Rand said when Commissioner Mario Fonda-Bonardi complained about the number of affordable units. "You guys adopted an ordinance. It's a zoning ordinance that gives the applicant the option to choose one of the options in the code."

"If there's buyer's remorse over the ordinance, then this body as a policy-making body should look into that…compliance is the only standard that's required (of us)."

In anticipation of Wednesday night's discussion, City staff asked the Housing Division for input. It turns out, most of the people trying to get into affordable housing meet the lowest income requirement (30% of the area's median income). Additionally, without the 15 units supplied by this project, the City would likely miss their annual objective for building those units.

The developer also plans to coordinate with an agency to provide case management services to the households that qualify for the affordable units.

When it comes to parking, the commissioners may also be stuck.

"I'm just appalled at how much parking is going into this project," Commissioner Leslie Lambert said at the February meeting. Lambert believes more parking means more cars, which means more traffic on already congested Lincoln Boulevard.

The 388 spaces going into the underground parking garage meet the minim requirements of the zoning ordinance. The developer explored filing an exemption, which would reduce the number of spaces to 292 but concluded it would mean too few spots for the number of apartments they are building.

With those hurdles in mind, the developer will likely face a skeptical planning commission Wednesday.

"This is an extremely large development," Commissioner Richard McKinnon said. "It has to be done right."

BAN

his lawsuit by heavily Democratic California, Maryland, Massachusetts, New York and Oregon, asked for a hearing with a federal judge in Seattle before the administration plans to implement the ban Thursday on new visas for people from six predominantly Muslim nations.

A hearing in a separate lawsuit by Hawaii already has been scheduled for Wednesday.

Ferguson said the revised ban is still unconstitutional and harms residents, universities and businesses, especially tech companies such as Washington state-based Microsoft and Amazon who rely on foreign workers.

"No one is above the law, not even the president — and I will hold him accountable to the Constitution," Ferguson said in a statement. "Cutting some illegal aspects of President Trump's original travel ban does not cure his affront to our Constitution."

Ferguson filed new court documents after the judge who put Trump's original order on hold said last week he would not immediately rule on whether his decision applies to the new version. U.S. District Judge James Robart told the federal government to quickly respond to Ferguson's claims but said he would not hold a hearing before Wednesday.

California Attorney General Xavier Becerra announced the most populous U.S. state was joining Washington state's challenge, saying the order, despite its changes, is an attack on people based on their religion or national origin.

In Hawaii, which is alone in its lawsuit, the U.S. government asked a federal court Monday to deny the state's request to temporarily block the ban from going into effect.

A judge will hear arguments Wednesday, with the heavily Democratic state claiming the new order will harm its Muslim population, tourism and foreign students. Ismail Elshikh, a plaintiff in Hawaii's challenge, said the ban will prevent his Syrian mother-in-law from visiting.

The government says Hawaii's allegations that the ban will negatively affect tourism and universities are pure speculation. It also says neither Elshikh nor his mother-in-law have been harmed because she has not been denied a waiver for a visa to visit the United States.

Trump's revised ban applies to Somalia, Iran, Syria, Sudan, Libya and Yemen and temporarily shuts down the U.S. refugee program. Unlike the original order, it says people with visas won't be affected and removes language that would give priority to religious minorities.

Ferguson acknowledged the changes to the order but said it still "bars entry for virtually all other individuals from the listed countries," including relatives of U.S. citizens and students who have been admitted to state universities and people who might seek work at schools and businesses.

"This court's original injunction protected these individuals and institutions," Washington state's new court filing said.

It said the federal government can't enforce the new travel ban unless it asks Judge Robart to modify his original restraining order.

"Until they do so, they cannot escape the injunction and continue their illegal conduct," the filing said.

White House spokesman Sean Spicer said last week that the administration believes the revised travel ban will stand up to legal scrutiny.

Associated Press writers Christopher Weber in Los Angeles and Mark Thiessen in Anchorage, Alaska, contributed to this report.

WELL NEWS BY SCOTT LAFEE

Curtain Calls

■ On the night of February 2, 1959, nine ski-hikers abandoned their camp, some clad only in underwear despite sub-zero temperatures, and walked to their deaths. Six died of hypothermia; three from unexplained injuries.

■ When their bodies were discovered, the corpses showed no signs of struggle, though one had a fatal skull fracture, two had major chest fractures and one was missing her tongue. Tests by Soviet investigators noted that some of the hikers had been exposed to large amounts of radiation, but no official explanation for their deaths was ever determined.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (March 14)

There's sunshine in your mind this year, and the cheerfulness you feel will touch lives in ways known and unknown to you. Get out of a competition in the early part of this solar return. Compete only with yourself. You'll accept an honor in May. Contracts favor you in July and October. You'll cash out in 2018. Gemini and Cancer adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 6, 10, 33, 28 and 45.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
You've a success story to share. Be discerning, though. Certain friends will be too jealous to be genuinely happy for you. It's obviously less than ideal, but the friendship will be stronger when you're sensitive to such quirks.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
You crave the joy that comes from letting go of control. The way to get exciting results is to set boundaries and then encourage your crew to go wild within those boundaries.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
You're thinking deeper and wider. Don't be surprised if the people around you do not see the same options that you see. You'll either show them the way or preserve a special route for yourself.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
This is not a zero-sum game. Your success will not come at the expense of anyone else. The cost will be paid by you and you alone. The rewards will go to you, too.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
You're not lost. You're just paying attention in a new way, which can be disorienting. Close observation can make the familiar seem unfamiliar. Take breaks. Observation takes energy. It's harder work than it seems.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Would happiness prevail if not for the current problem? No. The current problem itself is integral to happiness. You'll derive great satisfaction and pride from solving it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
While it would be foolish to aim to make mistakes, it's equally silly to avoid and fear them. The wise do not aim to live without folly. There will be much to learn in a tidy little mess.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)
Trust your instincts. They are creative, accurate, attractive, compelling and healthy. Whoever told you that you couldn't trust your instincts was acting out of self-interest at the time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
From Shakespeare to Disney, the dramatists agree that evil plans are most harmful to the one planning them. All you have to do is mind your own business and the drama will take care of itself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
While it's cynical to think that people are being nice in hopes of future favors returned, it's not altogether wrong today, either. Luckily, the land of politics is one in which you're well versed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
Managing expectations will be a very important part of your day. If you can master this (mainly by under promising and over delivering), you'll wind up a hero.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
If you downplay your accomplishments, you'll insinuate doubt in an otherwise neutral mind. If you praise yourself, it will only annoy. For today, you'll win socially by not discussing yourself at all.

Mercury in Early Aries

Mercury just came through a poetic cycle of the soul and is feeling reborn in Aries. As the messenger planet skips along the early degrees of the ram's realm, our focus goes youthful, flitting from one shiny thing to the next. Human attention may be in short supply. Those who can give it well have something precious and in high demand.
