Promenade's first tattoo parlor opens for business

Clara Harter

OPEN: After a change to local rules, a tattoo parlor has opened on the Promenade.

CLARA HARTER
SMDP Staff Writer

The Promenade's first tattoo parlor and the first US location of internationally renowned tattoo brand Cleopatra Ink has opened its doors and ink bottles.

The store is located at 1340 3rd Street Promenade and aims to fulfill the wildest design dreams of tattoo seeking residents and tourists. Cleopatra Ink is one of the largest and most experienced tattoo companies in the world. It began as a single store in Alanya, Turkey in 2014 and quickly expanded to 58 studios employing over 1,500 people across Europe and now North America.

Cleopatra Ink will also be the only currently operating tattoo business in Santa Monica. For many years Santa Monicans were generally opposed to the idea of tattoo parlors and high permitting fees alongside zoning restrictions discouraged businesses from opening. This attitude has recently shifted and in 2021 City Council removed the costly $7,000 modified use permit requirement for tattoo parlors and approved a zoning ordinance allowing tattoo parlors on the Promenade.

"The difficulty of opening a tattoo shop is sort of a vestige of the day when people with tattoos were in the margin," said City Councilmember Gleam Davis in an August 2021 meeting. "We need to come into the 21st century and our recognition of that, in all honesty, I think is part of cultural equity."

Cleopatra Ink was thrilled to see these changes enacted and Santa Monica store Co-owner Alihan Dogan said he thinks the company's culture aligns well with that of the city.

"It is a family friendly environment. I have a baby that is nine months old. She comes to the store all the time and other people come to the store with their babies. We're not a conventional tattoo store, we're not bad boys, we're not bikers. We are very client oriented," said Dogan.

Another key difference that sets Cleopatra Ink apart from other tattoo studios is its detailed and client-focused design service. The studio does not rely on tattoo reference books or tattoo artists' sketches, but utilizes a team of graphic designers to create a custom design for each client based on their unique vision.

The tattoo design service is offered free of charge to anyone who is interested in getting inked

An expansive redevelopment of the 100-year-old Miramar Hotel project is one major step closer to commencement this week, after the California Coastal Commission unanimously approved plans that would see the site transform with larger guest rooms and the addition of 60 luxury condos, a new affordable housing complex on 2nd Street, and three levels of underground parking, along with street-level improvements like a public green space.

Following the decision, project

Bloom endorses Chavez Zbur for Santa Monica's new AD-51

EMILY SAWICKI
SMDP Staff Writer

Assembly hopeful Rick Chavez Zbur has scooped up a trove of high profile endorsements since announcing his campaign for Assembly District 51, the new District that will encompass Santa Monica as well as Culver City, West LA and Hollywood. The newest among them is from Assemblymember Richard Bloom.

On Thursday, Chavez Zbur's campaign announced Bloom, whose AD-50 currently represents most of the area the new AD-51 will cover, threw his support behind Chavez Zbur. Bloom elected not to run for a sixth and final term after dropping out of the LA County Supervisors race.

Bloom's endorsement joins those of Governor Gavin Newsom, U.S. Senator Alex Padilla and labor union Unite Here! Local 11. Chavez Zbur also recently earned the endorsement of the California Democratic Party. In total, the Chavez Zbur campaign claims more than 200 endorsements.

"I'm excited to endorse my friend Rick Chavez Zbur, a longtime leader in equity and justice, for Assembly District 51 because I know he has the innovative vision and

City's Commitment to Safety Breathes New Life into Santa Monica Pier

Spending the day on the Santa Monica Pier brings together friends and families in our community, across Southern California, the state, and the world. I know, for I have seen it and lived it for over 32 years. The Pier is the soul of our city and one of the most iconic places in the state.

Why is the Santa Monica Pier so special?

The easy answer to that question is to point out the unbelievable views, the ocean breeze blowing in your hair, and the feeling of escape from the hustle & bustle of the city. But what really makes the Pier so unforgettable is its people: the people who work here, who have started businesses here, and who have created a culture here. It is the vendor program we have had for over three decades, the street performers, the family-owned businesses, and Pacific Park.

However, in recent years, the Pier experience deteriorated, to a degree, for not only our visitors, but our employees, licensed vendors, street performers, and businesses. A surge in unpermitted vending overcame the Pier, resulting in blocked fire lanes and pedestrian pathways. Rules and regulations aimed at the safety of all of the Pier's visitors and workforce were being ignored, and at times there was an atmosphere of near-lawlessness. In addition, both the Pier and beach began to suffer environmental damage due to improper waste disposal.

Fortunately, the City Council took thoughtful actions focused on public safety on our Pier and surrounding beaches by launching a Pier Task Force that consisted of personnel from Santa Monica Fire, Police, Code Enforcement, Public Works, and Los Angeles County Health Department. Over the past eight weeks, it has been tremendously successful, and we commend the decision by the Council to keep the commitment to ensuring public safety on the Pier and surrounding beaches for the ongoing future.

As the Executive Director of the Santa Monica Pier Corporation, I spend much of my time on the Pier interacting with residents, employees, business owners, and visitors and I can attest to the Task Force's success in making the Pier not only safer but more accessible.

We are very proud of the broad access to opportunity presented at the Pier for the past several decades and the decision to continue the Task Force will cultivate a safe environment for entrepreneurs, street performers, and local vendors to work.

In addition to traditional brick and mortar businesses, the City has creatively and thoughtfully developed programs to include 13 vendor carts and 23 street performance spots, opening up a variety of opportunities for individuals to become active members of our thriving Pier community through both vending and expression of their First Amendment rights, while also ensuring the safe and easy thoroughfare along the Pier's busiest walkways.

Our vending programs have been part of the Pier's fabric for so long and thus, the City's efforts toward developing them is sometimes overlooked. Modifications to quantities, spacing, and logistics have occurred over the years, and the programs can still be modified, with public safety and access to opportunity always foremost in mind.

It is this great history of balance, honoring both public safety and the creation of opportunities, which should light the path forward. The City has already placed the steps in motion with the assembling of the Task Force and now ensuring its continuation in the near future.

Through this collaborative effort, we can focus on safe vending practices alongside increases in access and equity for vendors and promoting entrepreneurship. This decision demonstrates that although safety is the main concern, we have not forgotten our commitment to the entrepreneurial spirit that is alive in our community. As the City continues to explore other opportunities for anyone interested in vending, we will continue to support their efforts to educate and renew safety on the Pier.

Turning Clocks Forward Is Perfect Time to Test Smoke Alarms

Daylight saving time began on March 13, and the American Red Cross Los Angeles Region reminds everyone to test your smoke alarms.

In 2022, Red Cross LA already has helped more than 320 people following more than 65 home fires with urgent needs such as emergency lodging, financial assistance and recovery planning. Most recently, the Red Cross responded to an apartment complex fire in the Crenshaw area helping 24 individuals displaced by the fire, by opening an emergency shelter and providing food, water and other services as they began their recovery.

HOW TO 'TURN AND TEST'

Did you know working smoke alarms can cut the risk of dying in a home fire by half? That's why it's critical to "Turn and Test" and take these lifesaving steps to stay safe from home fires – the nation's most frequent disaster:

Install smoke alarms on every level of your home, including inside and outside bedrooms and sleeping areas. Test alarms monthly and replace the batteries at least once a year if your model requires it.

Replace smoke alarms that are 10 years or older. That's because the sensor becomes less sensitive over time. Check the date of your smoke alarms and follow the manufacturer's instructions.

Practice your two-minute escape plan. Make sure everyone in your household can get out in less than two minutes – the amount of time you may have to get out of a burning home before it's too late. Include at least two ways to get out from every room and select a meeting spot at a safe distance away from your home, such as your neighbor's home or landmark like a specific tree in your front yard, where everyone knows where to meet.

Teach children what a smoke alarm sounds like. Talk about fire safety and what to do in an emergency.

"As many as seven people die in this country every day from a home fire, but smoke alarms cut your risk in half," said Guillermo Sanchez, Preparedness and Resiliency Manager for the Red Cross in Los Angeles. "Protect your household this weekend. Turn your clocks forward and test your smoke alarms."

Visit redcross.org/fire for more information, including an escape plan to practice with your family. You can also download the free Emergency app by searching for "American Red Cross" in app stores.

AMC Theater Building on Third Street Promenade sells for $26.5 Million

At the end of February, 1310 Third Street Promenade closed escrow for $26.5 million. The 45,000 square foot, three-level building currently houses the famous AMC Theater, a cornerstone of the world-renown Promenade for the past two decades. The deal was brokered by Barbara Tenzer, President of Tenzer Commercial Brokerage Group, Inc. Tenzer has been a long-standing, trusted figure in Santa Monica's commercial real estate market, lending her expertise to brokering most of the sales and leasing on Third Street Promenade for the past 31 years.

"Third Street Promenade is one of the most iconic and beloved streets in the world and this sale shows we are turning the corner into a strong recovery," said Barbara Tenzer. "I'm fortunate to work with such amazing clients who continue to bring new and exciting energy to Santa Monica. This is a special building and I'm pleased it will continue to provide a haven for entertainment for generations to come."

Tenzer has played a pivotal role in helping shape Third Street Promenade, bringing investments from big names like H&M, Cotton On, Brandy Melville, Tesla, HQ Gastro Pub, UGO Cafe, Sephora and NFT Digital Gallery. She served on the Downtown Santa Monica, Inc. Board of Directors, including two years as Board Chair. She was a partner in Trastevere at 1360 Third Street Promenade for 27 years.

DUI/Driver's License Checkpoint

The Santa Monica Police Department's Traffic Unit will hold a DUI Checkpoint on March 18, from 6 p.m. to 3 a.m. at an undisclosed location within the city limits.

Checkpoint locations are chosen based on a history of DUI crashes and arrests. The primary purpose of checkpoints is not to make arrests, but to promote public safety by deterring drivers from driving impaired.

During the checkpoint, officers will look for signs that drivers are under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs.

The Santa Monica Police Department is committed to keeping the traveling public safe. The safety of our community is and always will be our mission. We are looking for impaired drivers because driving under the influence is dangerous and puts others on the road at risk.

The Santa Monica Police Department reminds the public that impaired driving is not just from alcohol. Some prescription medications or over-the-counter drugs may interfere with driving. Always follow directions for use and read warning labels about driving or "operating heavy machinery," which includes driving a car. While medicinal and recreational marijuana are legal, driving under the influence of marijuana is illegal.

If you plan on drinking or taking medications that may impact your ability to drive safely, plan on staying at home.

Drivers charged with a first-time DUI face an average of $13,500 in fines and penalties, as well as a suspended license.

Funding for this checkpoint is provided to the Santa Monica Police Department by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, reminding everyone to 'Report Drunk Drivers - Call 9-1-1'.

CRIME WATCH BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON FEBRUARY 23 AT APPROXIMATELY 9:30 P.M.

SMPD officers responded to El Torito located at 3360 Ocean Park Blvd for an assault. Reportedly, the suspect, Kevin Kamson, became irate when a restaurant patron used the rented electronic scooter belonging to Kamson. Although the patron returned the scooter and apologized for the confusion, Kamson began spitting and yelling at the patron and ultimately punched the victim in the face. Kamson then pulled out a knife and made stabbing motions towards the victim and their family. While the victim took shelter behind her vehicle and called 9-1-1, Kamson damaged her vehicle. Witnesses pointed out the suspect as he fled on the scooter through the parking lot. Officers arrested Kamson for Assault with a Deadly Weapon and Vandalism.

ON FEBRUARY 24 AT 8:20 P.M.

Officers arrested Latifah Allah for loitering in a City parking structure as well as for lighting newspapers on fire in a stairwell. The reporting party stated that upon returning to his vehicle parked in the Main Street Library Parking Structure, he observed a fire with flames over a foot high in the stairwell. He was able to provide a description of the person sitting next to the open flames and stated that he extinguished the fire by stomping on it. Based on the description provided and the suspect, Allah, being in possession of burnt newspapers and a lighter, officers transported her to the Santa Monica Jail and booked her for arson. She was ultimately issued a citation with a court date of April 8.

Our Unsustainable Secret: Lead

We are all aware of the controversial airport that sits behind a fenced area in the southeast corner of Santa Monica. We have heard of the noise problems, the safety problems and the pollution. We know we were promised a great park. What most have not heard much, if anything about, is the lead. The same lead that has been banned in auto gasoline, paint and toys is used in aviation fuel. The leaded fuel is burned by most of the small planes that take off and buzz around over neighborhoods. The lead comes out in the exhaust and falls on people, homes, and schools below; it drops like lead at the rate of two grams per gallon. The city need not sell aviation fuel. Storing and supplying fuel is not our responsibility and it is definitely not a sustainable business.

What most do not know is the city owns six underground tanks, three of which are 36 years old. That's old for an underground tank; old even when not in earthquake county. The tanks sit above our aquifer; the same aquifer that has already been fouled in the past by Douglas Aircraft and leaking tanks from gas stations in years gone by. The same aquifer that supplies drinking water. Sure, the tanks are periodically checked, but accidents and failures happen.

The city is voluntarily storing and selling a known toxin. Lead has been proven to be unsafe at any level. It has been found in the blood of children around a similar airport, Reid Hillview, in San Jose, CA, at the same levels found in the children of Flint Michigan. A recent air quality study found elevated lead levels in the air around our airport and declared the airport to be the only source of airborne lead in the area.

Last November 2021 Council Members Brock and de la Torre proposed the city staff divest from the storage and sale of leaded fuel and the council unanimously agreed. Our Airport Commission also agreed. Even though we are not required to do so, the city staff has recently undertaken a project to sell unleaded fuel from one of our tanks, but our staff has not charted a known course of action to stop the sale or storage of lead in the second and older 12,000-gallon tank. The City Attorney claims shutting out of the second tank might cause a problem in the future with the FAA or the aviators. Yet we know that in the real and now present that lead is coming out of Santa Monica Airport, exposure to lead reduces the IQ in children, and its effects are permanent. Lead is a clear and present danger. We know the tanks sit above our aquifer. Lead is the elephant in the room and in our tanks, and that elephant must be shown the door. Santa Monica does not have to participate in this dirty business that should have ended decades ago as it was with cars, paints and toys.

Pilots and aviation businesses alike claim they too would like to get the lead out of aviation fuel. Yet while leaded fuel is available, they continue to use it. We know lead is bad. Even a little lead is bad. No lead is good. Not in our water, our air, our soil or our bodies.

No one is putting a gun to anyone's head to sell and store leaded fuel at Santa Monica Airport.

It's not green, it's not sustainable, and it's not defensible. In fact, after being asked for a clear explanation as to why we cannot get out of the fuel business we were not shown a convincing answer. We are talking lead, not bacon wrapped hot dogs on the pier. You cannot refuse or hide from airborne lead. Aviation fuel is the serious stuff of industry. Toxic to living things.

Our FAA obligations do not allow the city to ban the total use or sale of leaded fuel at the airport, but in no place do they clearly state the city must provide tanks or the city must sell fuel. It is time to retire our old tanks and get out of the leaded fuel business. It makes sense to get out of the aviation fuel business altogether. If an aviation business wants to bring in their own newer safe and up to code tanks, then let them bear the costs, as well as the responsibility for the harm they are causing to those on the ground.

There comes a time to stand up for what is clearly right and reject what is not. It is wrong for a responsible and sustainable city to support and participate in the sale and storage of lead and any toxic fuels. There is no safe level of lead in our water or our air.

We have an obligation to keep the airport open until 2029. We have no obligation to store and sell fuel until then.

Please get out of the fuel business. Do it for the kids.

representatives Ellis O'Connor and Dustin Peterson issued a statement saying they were looking forward to the project moving into its next stage.

"We appreciate the California Coastal Commission's unanimous approval of our project and are incredibly humbled by, and grateful for, the extraordinary outpouring of support across the community," Connor and Peterson wrote. "We look forward to writing the next chapter in the Miramar's storied history."

The Coastal Commission's hearing to discuss the project, now more than a decade in the making, lasted two-and-a-half hours on Thursday afternoon, March 10, and included an outpouring of public support from residents, business owners and stakeholders including representatives from the Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce, Downtown Santa Monica, Unite Here! Local 11, and other groups.

One outspoken supporter was Peter Trinh, Vice Chair of Downtown Santa Monica.

"It's astonishing how long this project has taken and we hope that you can help to officially put forward this, so Santa Monica can receive an enormous community and economic benefit that this development will bring," Trinh said. "We're in an unprecedented recovery time all over and Santa Monica needs a beacon project like this to help it with forward thinking and entrepreneurship as much as possible." Trinh called the project a "role model" corporate partner.

During the hearing, detractors for the project were few.

According to Coastal Commission staff, six letters of opposition were delivered to the Commission by last Friday, March 4; 101 letters of support were delivered by the same time.

"Staff has received correspondence from residents of the building immediately inland of the project site expressing concern with the potential for this project impact private ocean views visible from the upper floors of an existing private residence," a Commission staffer described. "However, as discussed in the addendum for this matter, private views are not protected by the policies of both the Coastal Act and the City certified LUP. In this case, the project will not result in significant impact to public ocean views, which are protected by the Coastal Act and certified LUP."

One resident who spoke in opposition was Steve Linett, who said he was the head of a group of 800 residents called Residents Against the Miramar Expansion.

"What I thought this whole thing was supposed to be about [was] the coastline and the Coastal Act, not all these other issues relating to jobs," Linett said, later adding, "The Coastal Act states that, quote development shall not interfere with the public's right of access to the sea. The building of the Miramar is going to bring unprecedented gridlock to California Avenue, which is the most important artery leading from Santa Monica to the sea, since it feeds directly into the California Incline and empties out on the beach." Linett also expressed concern over views.

Steve Hudson, the Coastal Commission District Director for the South Central Coast and South Coast Districts, thanked Peterson and his team for their many years of working to see the project come to fruition.

"This was a complex project, and there were issues as it was originally proposed. They had been working for many years with the city but there were still some issues and one of those primary issues was that, as this project originally came to us, there were no provisions for low cost overnight accommodations," Hudson said. "Not either on site or any sort of in-lieu fee. So, that was a major point of many of our discussions with the applicant. I'd just like to thank them again for entering those discussions with an open mind; that was much appreciated."

According to Coastal Commission staff who spoke at the hearing, the housing is part of a plan to offset the construction of 60 new luxury condominium units and 201 "new" hotel rooms (largely replacing rooms that are currently in the project, though the Coastal Commission classifies them as new).

"The construction of high cost hotels in the Coastal Zone may conflict with multiple Coastal Act and certified LUP [Land Use Plan] policies requiring that the lower cost hotels shall be protected, encouraged and, where feasible, provided," a Coastal Commission staff member described. "In past actions, the Commission has required applicants to provide at least 25 percent of new overnight accommodations at lower cost. This approach would require the applicant to provide at least 51 of the proposed 201 new high-cost hotel rooms at lower cost rates."

But, according to an estimate from a consultant hired by developers, locking in 51 of the new hotel rooms at a lower rate would not be economically feasible for developers; Miramar has proposed to build the 42 affordable housing units as well as provide $5.34 million to the City of Santa Monica in fees for community improvement projects. The Commission also requested an additional $6.477 million of "in-lieu" fees to help offset the lack of low-cost hotel rooms — a fee that, due to an increase in building costs, has gone up more than 25 percent since it was first proposed in 2015. Project representatives agreed to the change.

Commissioners were also effusive in their praise of the project.

"I'm incredibly excited to be able to be here and support the staff recommendations and approve this model project and I'm happy to make the motion to approve," Commissioner Linda Escalante said, adding, "I do think that this is proof that, yes, we can: We can intentionally increase good quality affordable housing in the Coastal Zone and be inclusive and welcoming for the public access and provide good union jobs and economic development — and all of these while building with climate change and our environment top of mind."

The Miramar project is not quite ready to break ground. Following the Coastal Commission Permit issuance on Thursday, developers now move on to design review with the City of Santa Monica, including going before the architectural review board and landmarks commission, a process expected to take months to years.

at Cleopatra Ink. Clients will describe what they want and have the opportunity to see the graphic design pasted directly on images of their body for an accurate prediction of what their tattoo will ultimately look like. The studio also specializes in covering bad or old tattoos with fresh artwork.

Currently five of Cleopatra Ink's European artists are working in the store and in the future Dogan said that the store seeks to partner and collaborate with Los Angeles-based tattoo artists. The brand also seeks to expand across California and America and considers the Promenade as the perfect place to launch that journey given its iconic location.

"We are really, really happy," said Dogan. "This is the best spot that could ever happen."

policy experience to deliver for our shared communities," Bloom said in a prepared announcement of his endorsement. "AD-51 needs a proven progressive champion who will prioritize a fairer economy, affordable housing and homelessness, urgent climate action, fair wages and benefits, and protecting our most vulnerable communities. From his track record and values, Rick has clearly demonstrated he is that kind of leader, and I know he will continue to do this important work in Sacramento. I am confident that this district will be in good hands under Rick's leadership, and I look forward to helping him get elected."

Chavez Zbur, an environmental lawyer, sits on the Board of the California League of Conservation Voters and is the former executive director of Equality California, a statewide LGBTQ+ civil rights organization. An out gay man, Chavez Zbur lives in Los Angeles where he co-parents his 16-year-old daughter and 12-year-old twins, all of whom attend public schools.

If elected, Chavez Zbur will lead an Assembly District that was reshaped in this year's statewide redistricting, with the removal of Malibu and the Santa Monica Mountains and the addition of Hollywood all the way to the border of Los Feliz around Santa Monica Boulevard.

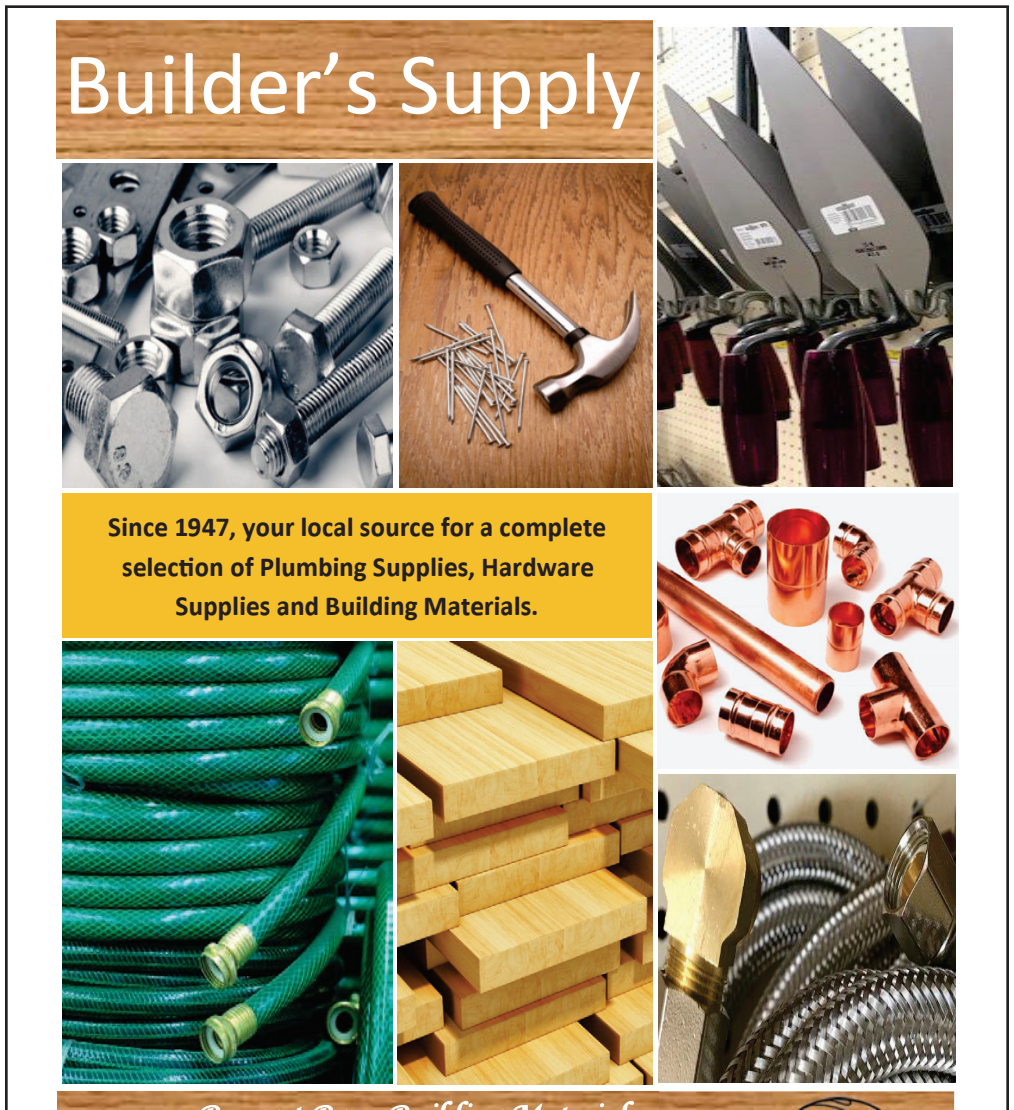

Speaking to the Daily Press in February, Chavez Zbur said he felt his campaign was aligned with Bloom's politics and Santa Monica's values.

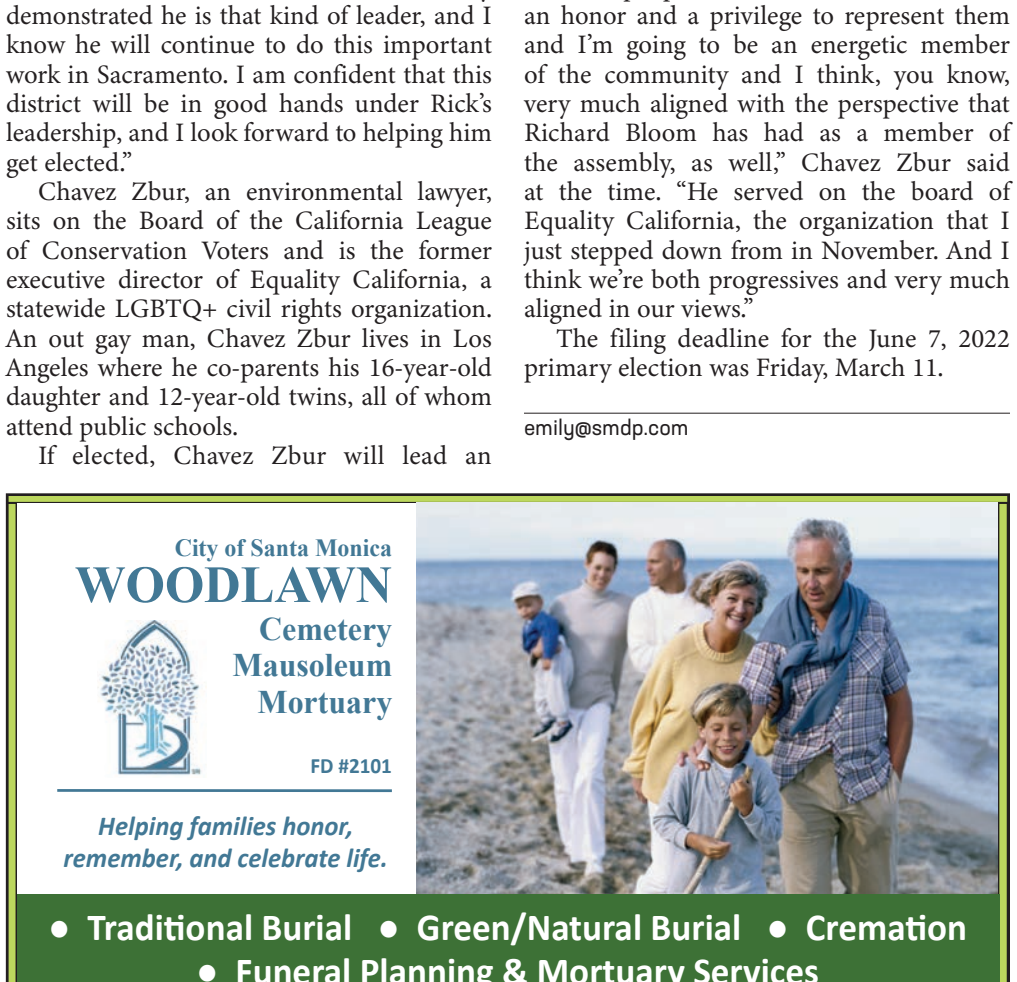

"I think my perspective is aligned with the values of people in Santa Monica. It would be an honor and a privilege to represent them and I'm going to be an energetic member of the community and I think, you know, very much aligned with the perspective that Richard Bloom has had as a member of the assembly, as well," Chavez Zbur said at the time. "He served on the board of Equality California, the organization that I just stepped down from in November. And I think we're both progressives and very much aligned in our views."

The filing deadline for the June 7, 2022 primary election was Friday, March 11.

SURF FORECASTS

WATER TEMP: 60.4°

MONDAY - POOR TO FAIR - SURF: 2-3ft+ Thigh to stomach
Modest blend of SSW and NW swells to top out. Early high tide slows the dawn patrol but wind could remain light for at least the initial tide drop.

TUESDAY - POOR TO FAIR - SURF: 2-3ft Thigh to stomach
Small SSW swell lingers. Could see a nice build in fresh NW swell late in the day as old NW energy falls off. Look for the morning high tide to slow many breaks.

WEATHER

Monday: Sunny, with a high near 71.
Monday Night: Mostly clear, with a low around 55.
Tuesday: Mostly sunny, with a high near 71.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (MARCH 14)

Confidence soars this year. You'll pin your adventurous spirit on a distant destination. There are many ways to get there; each path brings its own unique experience. You're inclined toward challenging terrain and people who have something to teach you. Improvements give you an edge at work and in your personal life. Pisces and Taurus adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 30, 1, 15, 23 and 12.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You're the favorite. Call in a favor and you'll be lavished. Behave badly and you'll be instantly forgiven. Act on your whimsy and you will be inexplicably understood.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Someone has a lot less power than you assumed. The situation is a little like Dorothy and friends visiting the Wizard of Oz. Sometimes powerful people pose and pretend because it's what the citizens expect.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Can the essence of life be seen? Today you feel like you can see it -- and hear and dance to it, too. There are certain people and places that occur to you like geysers of vitality.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Crying is not a form of weakness; it's a way of processing emotion. Each tear is a healing balm. Even so, you'll be somewhat strategic, processing your emotions when and where it is smart to do so.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Your apprehensions keep you from taking a risk not worth taking. But when you see the opportunity that seems right for you, you'll have the courage to move through fear and seize the moment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Assess what you're dealing with through the lens of time. Some problems that seem massive in one moment can quickly become irrelevant. Ask yourself what you're likely to think about the situation next week.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You speak kindly of all, show gratitude and return favors. Most importantly, you make time for those who need a friend. These quality habits are their own reward, but more will come your way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You feel wronged by someone, yet, on some level, it also seems you agreed to the deal. That doesn't mean you should be stuck with it. Deals can be renegotiated or unmade.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You'll find yourself on the receiving end of unexpected niceties, perks and the like. Maybe the bounty is not coming from the direction you thought it would, but you have to admit it feels like your turn. Take it!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Conversation can be competition. Distill it to its essence and it's basically, "I'm the best." "No, I'm the best." Or, "You're the best." "No, you're the best." It's just a competition of modesty.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Take a break from thinking about a problem. While your conscious mind is distracted, your subconscious will work out the knots and find a solution. Using your talents makes you feel rich.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Your priority is usually work over pleasure, others over yourself and duty over leisure. It's time to flip the script and appreciate life from both sides.
