Knoernschild, 55, is one of 185 Legacy Runners who have run and completed every Los Angeles Marathon since its inception 28 years ago.

Along with Knoernschild, roughly 24,000 runners from 61 countries and all 50 states gathered for the annual L.A. Marathon on Sunday.

"Every person that runs has their own story," said former mayor of Santa Monica, Assemblyman Richard Bloom, who has been to every marathon since it came to Santa Monica four years ago.

"I think it's wonderful," added Santa Monica Chief of Police Jacqueline Olympic Boulevard between 20th Street and Cloverfield Boulevard will be closed from March 25 through May 2 from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. Sunday through Thursday for construction of a bridge for the Exposition Light Rail Line.

Officials with the Exposition Construction Authority said construction crews will be erecting falsework using timber and steel forms as a mold for the cast-in-place bridge that will span Olympic Boulevard.

The work will take place at night to limit traffic impacts. Construction will be phased so that eastbound and westbound traffic lanes on Olympic Boulevard will not be closed at the same time. The intersection of Olympic and Cloverfield will remain open to through traffic, however, turns onto westbound Olympic will be prohibited.

The senior, headed to play collegiate ball at Cal, hit a 3-pointer with 1.6 seconds remaining to give the Vikings a win in the Southern California regional final of the CIF-State Boys Basketball Division I Championship over Loyola at the Citizens Business Bank Arena in Ontario, Calif. on Saturday.

The victory sends Samohi to the state final against Pleasant Grove on Friday in Sacramento.

It's the second appearance for Samohi in the state final, but the first since 1928.

Santa Monica was in firm control of the game at half-time, up 26-16, but Loyola was far from done.

MALISSA FERUZZI SHRIVER

A champion for the arts

BY HENRY CRUMBLISH
Special to the Daily press

MONTANA AVE Malissa Feruzzi Shriver is a Santa Monica superwoman.

Any given day you can find her taking tennis lessons, spending time with her family or lobbying for change in Washington, D.C. But, the 49-year-old wife of former Santa Monica Mayor Bobby Shriver wasn't always part of the state's social elite.

"I'm not a Shriver, I married someone with that name," she said. "I thought if I can make a difference and leverage that name I would."

Born Malissa Feruzzi to Italian parents, the California native realized at an early age the paramount importance of art and expression.

"I think art was in my blood, I love art," she said.

So important was art that it became her life's mission to protect it and insure that it has a place in society for future generations.

"All the things I thought would disqualify me from being an effective advocate made me perfect for the job," said Feruzzi Shriver, who retired as chair of the California Arts Council this year and feels art advocates have done a poor job in this country. "It's sad, a lot of these kids don't have an advocate, the future of this country is at risk."

While at UCLA, Shriver earned a degree in women's studies in 1989. Shriver's parents pressured her to earn a practical degree that would keep her financially secure.

She chose a different route.

"I was an artist, I never thought I would be a politician," she said.

Later in life, Feruzzi Shriver was appointed by her brother-in-law, then Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger, as chair of the council in 2005 and served two terms.

Feruzzi Shriver has tirelessly defended the arts, having been involved with myriad advocacy groups such as the California Alliance for Arts Education, the National Assembly of State Arts Agencies, and the Western States Art Federation.

More impressive than her resume is the

Dealing with a severe case of the fear of heights

I'VE RAISED SOME EYEBROWS WITH my last two columns. First, I was enthusiastic about plans for the renovated Fairmont Miramar Hotel — including the 21-floor tower — at Wilshire Boulevard and Ocean Avenue.

One week later, I praised the proposed 22-floor, Frank Gehry-designed hotel planned for Ocean Avenue and Santa Monica Boulevard as the kind of project needed to reinvigorate Downtown Santa Monica.

Both of these developments, although admittedly large by Santa Monica standards, are well thought out and will provide benefits that far exceed their negatives. Unlike previously approved (unbuilt) hotel projects, both the Miramar and Gehry developments (pending approval) promise to be first class.

Some may argue that Gehry's hotel (with its undulating walls) and the Miramar aren't attractive, but they're still head and shoulders over the approved 710 Wilshire mess with its 80-foot high vertical walls and cheap 1980s exterior, or the dated Motel 6-styled, 131-room Courtyard by Marriott and companion 138-room Hilton Hampton Inn proposed for opposite corners of Colorado Avenue and Fifth Street.

All one has to do is look at the proposed rabbit warren of four- and five-floor apartment buildings set to replace the Village Trailer Park on Colorado. I'd rather have a well designed, high-rise tower surrounded by parks, gardens and public amenities than a crowded, cheek-by-jowl conglomeration like the East Village.

City Hall had ample opportunity to cajole developers into building aesthetically pleasing buildings but completely abdicated that responsibility as long as they promised to pay hotel workers a "living" wage or build additional low-income housing.

Many Santa Monicans feel that high rises have no place in this "iconic beach town." But this hasn't been an "iconic beach town" for 30 years. Get over your batophobia, folks. There's nothing wrong with a few elegantly designed towers — as long as they're Downtown.

Even though a development may be tall, I look at its overall benefits. An open 1-acre park, as in the case of the Miramar? Paseos and an art museum as in Gehry's project? Attractiveness? Sustainability? Minimal traffic increases? Functionality? Enhances the community? That is what counts with me.

Unfortunately, City Hall's planning process encourages dense, squat, low rise, unappealing, cookie-cutter buildings with articulated walls, jutting balconies and squared off, industrial looking design elements. Bland. Boring. Lifeless. No wonder so many folks here are anti-development.

Still to come is a total renovation of the former Holiday Inn, now Wyndham, at Ocean Avenue and Colorado. Owner FelCor Lodging Trust Inc., has floated the idea of replacing the existing hotel with a building featuring a tower as high as 195 feet.

I haven't seen renderings of this project, so I have no opinion about FelCor's plans. Because of the prime location across from the Santa Monica Pier bridge, FelCor must propose something truly spectacular if they expect any community support

Three hotels are pending on Ocean Avenue with tall structural elements between 195 and 240 feet high. Now is the time to begin closing the barn door and start framing zoning regulations to prevent additional high-rise infill, control excessive heights in other projects to come and avert a dreaded wall along our ocean front.

THERE'S NOTHING WRONG WITH A FEW ELEGANTLY DESIGNED TOWERS – AS LONG AS THEY'RE DOWNTOWN.

I would also suggest reducing the maximum height recommendation mentioned in the Downtown Specific Plan for the Third Street Promenade to 45 feet to avoid walls of 84-foot high buildings there, too.

REMEMBERING CLIFFORD HAYDEN, JR.

When one lives in a place like Santa Monica for a period of time, the folks we do business with, like the great mom-and-pops, often become good friends, too. It's why I fondly remember the proprietors of stores who served me well for decades and who finally closed their businesses, retired or passed away.

A couple months ago, Carlson's Appliances went out of business. Colby Evett, owner of Evett's Model Shop passed away last month at 92 years. Lincoln Appliances closed last November a few weeks after its founder and owner Clifford Hayden, Jr. passed away at age 85.

Clifford Hayden, Jr. was born and raised in Santa Monica. His father was a motor-officer for the Santa Monica Police Department in the late 1920s. After graduating from Santa Monica High School, Clifford, Jr. joined the Navy. He served in the Pacific near the end of World War II.

He married his high school sweetheart Helen Andrews and they had three children: Laurie, Doug and Jan.

In the early 1950s, he went into the construction business and was successful enough to begin buying real estate in his beloved Santa Monica. In 1964-65, he opened an appliance store on the 1400 block of Lincoln Boulevard, which he called Lincoln Appliances.

Three years later he purchased property at Olympic Boulevard at 20th Street and moved his store, but kept the "Lincoln" name. It became famous as "The place that looks like Sears blew up" because of signs posted on the store's exterior.

For the next 44 years, Clifford, Jr. sold Whirlpool and other name-brand washers, dryers, refrigerators, stoves and major appliances to tens of thousands of satisfied local shoppers. And, he raised his family and served his customers. He was a man of great integrity and gave everyone a fair deal.

Lincoln Appliances is gone but Clifford Hayden, Jr. has left a legacy of unsung community service along with friends, family and former patrons who remember him fondly. R.I.P.

You are what you guzzle

Dear Earth Talk,

I was wondering how toxic chlorine is, because my well water was just chlorinated yesterday and today the smell is still strong. I have a 4-year-old daughter and I'm concerned.

– Rose Smith

DRINK UP: Some 98 percent of U.S. water treatment facilities use chlorine to clean drinking water supplies. If your water is from a well, there are expensive ways to remove it close to the source, but the most affordable approach is to filter it at the faucet or with a pitcher-mounted filter.

According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), chlorine levels of four parts per million or below in drinking water — whether from a private well or municipal reservoir — are acceptable from a human health standpoint. Inexpensive home drinking water test kits (from $5 on up) that can detect levels of chlorine and other elements in water are widely available from online vendors. Administering the tests is easy and can provide parents with a way to involve kids in science for a practical purpose right at home.

Chlorine was first used in drinking water to reduce waterborne infectious diseases in Jersey City, N.J. more than a century ago. It was so effective at destroying potentially harmful bacteria and viruses that the practice soon spread far and wide. Today some 98 percent of water treatment facilities in the U.S. use some form of chlorine to clean drinking water supplies. The American Water Works Association (AWWA), a trade group representing water utilities across the country, credits the presence of chlorine in drinking water with a 50 percent increase in life expectancy for Americans over the last century. Indeed, some consider the chlorination of drinking water to be one of history's greatest public health achievements.

But others aren't so sure that any chlorine in drinking water should be considered safe. Opponents of chlorination point to studies linking repeated exposure to trace amounts of chlorine in water with higher incidences of bladder, rectal and breast cancers. The problem lies in chlorine's ability to interact with organic compounds in fresh water to create trihalomethanes (THMs), which when ingested can encourage the growth of free radicals that can destroy or damage vital cells in the body. Besides cancer, exposure to THMs has been linked to other health issues including asthma, eczema, heart disease and higher miscarriage and birth defect rates.

Those with their own private wells who are skittish about chlorine have other options for disinfecting their water. One baby step would be to replace chlorine with chloramine, an ammonia derivative that doesn't dissipate into the environment as rapidly as chlorine and has a much lower tendency to interact in bad ways with organic compounds in the water. However, traces of chloramine in the water may not be to everyone's liking either, because it causes rashes after showering in a small percentage of people and can apparently increase lead exposure in older homes as it leaches the heavy metal off old pipes.

Another option, though somewhat costly, would be to purchase a machine to purify the water. Ozonation units, which disinfect by adding ozone molecules to water and leave no residues, start at around $9,000. Another choice would be a UV light treatment machine — at $6,000 or more — which cancels out viruses and bacteria by passing the water through UV light rays. The Clean Water Store is a reputable vendor and good online source for such water treatment equipment.

Perhaps the most sensible and affordable approach is to filter the water at the faucets and taps. Carbon-based tap- or pitcher-mounted filters can work wonders in removing impurities from drinking water. They can even be installed on shower heads for those with sensitive skin.

stop Mathews and company as they continue their historic postseason run.

"I'm proud of our guys, from start to finish," Samohi head coach James Hecht said. "This is a game of momentum changes. I knew Loyola was going to go on a run. But, our kids showed a lot of composure. They didn't panic, they buckled down."

For Mathews, he wasn't going to let Loyola walk away winners.

After losing to Loyola twice during the regular season — and once during a scrimmage — it seemed that the Cubs had Samohi's number.

That would have been the case if not for Mathews, who led the Vikings with a 24-point per game average this season and has proven to be the team's undisputed leader.

"I honestly have been thinking about that all week, what if it comes down to that," Mathews said. "We're not going to lose to them three times, not three times."

Hecht couldn't have agreed more.

"Great players make great shots," Hecht said of Mathews' last-second heroics.

Mathews may have been the player of the game with 19 points, but it was fellow senior Troy Maloney and his 17 points that propelled Samohi to its early lead.

Maloney finished the day five of seven from beyond the 3-point line as he was instrumental to Samohi's early dominance.

Coming from behind didn't seem to phase Loyola, who were led by senior center Thomas Welsh. Welsh helped mount the Cubs' come back, going seven for seven in the second half en route to 17 points on the game.

Despite spearheading the comeback for Loyola, he was not involved in a crucial scenario when the game was knotted at 50 a piece.

Instead of going inside to the 7-foot Welsh, Loyola settled for an errant 3-point attempt by Mtume Armour with 29 seconds remaining that set the stage for Mathews' dagger.

Morgan Genser editor@smdp.com

UPS: Samohi's Trevis Jackson (right) leaps into the air as Loyola's Thomas Welsh attempts to get his hand on the ball on Saturday.

"We missed it by a few inches and Jordan knocked his down, that's how life goes and how basketball goes some times, " said Loyola head coach Jamal Adams.

Samohi's Erron Vaughn took the inbounds pass and calmly dribbled the ball, allowing time to dwindle down to the final seconds.

With four ticks on the clock, Vaughn gave the ball to Mathews, who dribbled around a screen and found himself open behind the NBA 3-point line as he squared up and drained the most important basket of his young career.

The dramatic victory sets up a state final with Northern California champion Pleasant Grove on Friday at Sacramento's Sleep Train Arena.

ahead of Mose, who won in 2:09:44. The women started 18:35 ahead of the men.

Throughout the race, it appeared Duliba checked her watch at regular intervals. In fact, she said, she had written conversion times from miles to kilometers all over her hands and forearms so she could pace herself properly.

She started in a pack of four, fell back in mile 3, caught up and took the lead at mile 4. Duliba and Ethiopian Zemzem Ahmed broke away from the pack in mile 11.

Ahmed seemed content to draft off Duliba for much of the next eight miles, but Duliba left her in mile 19 and later said she was surprised Ahmed didn't stay with her.

"I was expecting her to run fast," Duliba said through an interpreter. "I was surprised she stayed behind me. I was asking (her) to go in front."

Ahmed finished second in 2:30:32. A spot on the Belarus team isn't assured for Duliba until the end of April because others might run faster.

"I'm so happy. It was my dream to run this time, to set the national record," Duliba said. "The last 10 kilometers, I had in mind, 'Keep the same pace. Keep pushing, keep pushing.' "

Mose and Julius Keter raced as part of a pack of 10 runners for the first 15 miles. By mile 22, the pack had thinned to six, and before the mile was up, the two broke away. Mose left Keter in mile 25. Keter finished in 2:10:31, followed by Nicholas Chelimo of Kenya in 2:10:43.

FEET MADE FOR WALKING: Runners make their way down Ocean Avenue after completing the 2013 L.A. Marathon on Sunday.

"I'm not sure I'm beating him. He's strong. I know him," Mose said of Keter. "But when we were at 24 miles, that was when I left him behind, so that's when I saw I can win the race. When I found myself at 25 ... I felt strong and happy."

Deena Kastor, the 2004 Olympic bronze medalist who came into the race with the fastest marathon time among the elite women, fell back in mile 5 and never threatened. She finished third in 2:32:39.

Kastor, who raced even though she is planning to run in the world cross country championships next week in Poland, attributed her performance to an upset stomach and a little tightness.

"I felt definitely like I was prepared to run," the 40-year-old said. "My husband told me it's getting 100 percent out of yourself on a less-than-100-percent day. I gave a 100 percent effort on an 80 percent day."

fact that during her career as a vanguard of the arts, she has never been paid for her work, sacrificing her own happiness and leisure time to tackle the problem of ineffective and outdated education.

"I know it will take some time away from my kids and my painting, but it's worth it," she admits.

Her efforts have not gone unnoticed by those in her field.

"I cannot emphasize enough the incredible work that Malissa has done on behalf of the arts and for arts education in the state of California," said California Arts Council Director Craig Watson. "Her dedication, passion, and extraordinary effort in this unpaid position is unprecedented."

To Feruzzi Shriver, art education is disappearing from California schools in an alarming manner.

"If I see that threatened it riles me up," she said.

Since the benefits of art are easily felt but hard to quantify, decisive action must be taken to insure its future.

"I don't know why people, as citizens, don't feel an obligation to protect art," she asked. "I would not be considered a successful student without painting, drawing, and arts and crafts."

A fallacy found when reasoning against art is that only artists and those seeking art degrees benefit from learning how to sculpt, or play an instrument. Aside from promoting creativity, it teaches your mind the process of inquiry. Studying art is training your mind to think critically, she believes.

"What art is and how important it is, is misunderstood and undervalued," Feruzzi Shriver said. "It's about values, you don't invest in what you don't value."

Although art programs have been universally cut around the nation, the downtrodden subject is still a college requirement and necessary for transfer.

"If it weren't important curriculum it wouldn't be in schools," she said.

Having grown up around artists and her father a sculptor, the mother of two now encourages artful thinking around the house and among her own family. Bobby Shriver plays guitar in his spare time. The former mayor also has a passion for photography, and the Shriver's eldest daughter Natasha is a singer and songwriter.

"I have to do it, as my duty," said Feruzzi Shriver.

This sense of devotion is what distinguishes Shriver from other advocates. The conviction can be felt in her words and echoed in her actions, the moral imperative to act is inescapable.

"That's the ineffable thing about art, you feel it, but you don't know why you feel it."

Feruzzi Shriver's contributions to California's arts education have been meaningful and numerous as she continues to be a champion for creativity. Look for her this year to start a new ad campaign with famed architect Frank Gehry in her ongoing effort to spark interest in art.

"People react and respond to beautiful things," she said. "They're attracted to it, it's sexy and young. It's art."

Seabrooks. "The myriad entities, the comprehensive response."

Gia Alvarez, a running coach who completed her seventh marathon, responded to her own self doubt.

After three years, Alvarez finally put her inner demons to rest by completing a new personal best and successfully qualifying for the Boston Marathon.

"It's amazing, I loved it," she said.

The marathon is not so much a race as it is a happening.

"It's like a cultural experience," said Samuel Bennett, who completed his first ever marathon. "It was difficult for everyone. Everyone who finished had to push themselves."

As he was wincing and rubbing his tired legs, Bennett said that he had tried a couple of half marathons and thought it would be fun to race in the big event. But, after going through the rigors of completing all 26.2 miles he admitted that maybe it would seem like a fun idea after the soreness went away.

Andrew Gonzalez experienced some leg pains of his own.

"A year ago, I broke my leg," Gonzalez said.

Complete with a seven inch plate, and nine screws in his left leg doctors told him to take it easy. Not wanting to be hampered by the past, Gonzalez had something to prove to himself on Sunday.

"It's something I've always aspired to do, I did it," he said.

While a marathon is a once-in-a-lifetime accomplishment for many in attendance, for Joao Miranda it's simply a part of his day-to-day training. Miranda who ran two half marathons last week and went to the gym the evening before the race, exercises six times a week.

"I like the challenge, the mental and physical," he said.

Masahiko Koshu, 23, who completed his 11th marathon on Sunday, enjoys having something to look forward to.

Koshu, a swimmer in high school, started training for marathons after the encouragement of his mother.

"Every year, I'm nervous, I need to go to bed by 9 p.m. because I always lay in bed for hours," he joked.

Koshu finished in 4 hours and 25 minutes mirroring the same time as his mother, back when she ran marathons.

"I thought I would do better," he admitted.

Sam Goldberg also ran to impress his parents. With his dad visiting from Texas, Goldberg wanted to show his pops how he lives these days. Goldberg attracted a crowd with every step he took wearing only a tu-tu, full body paint, a neon green wig and a box of Lucky Charms cereal.

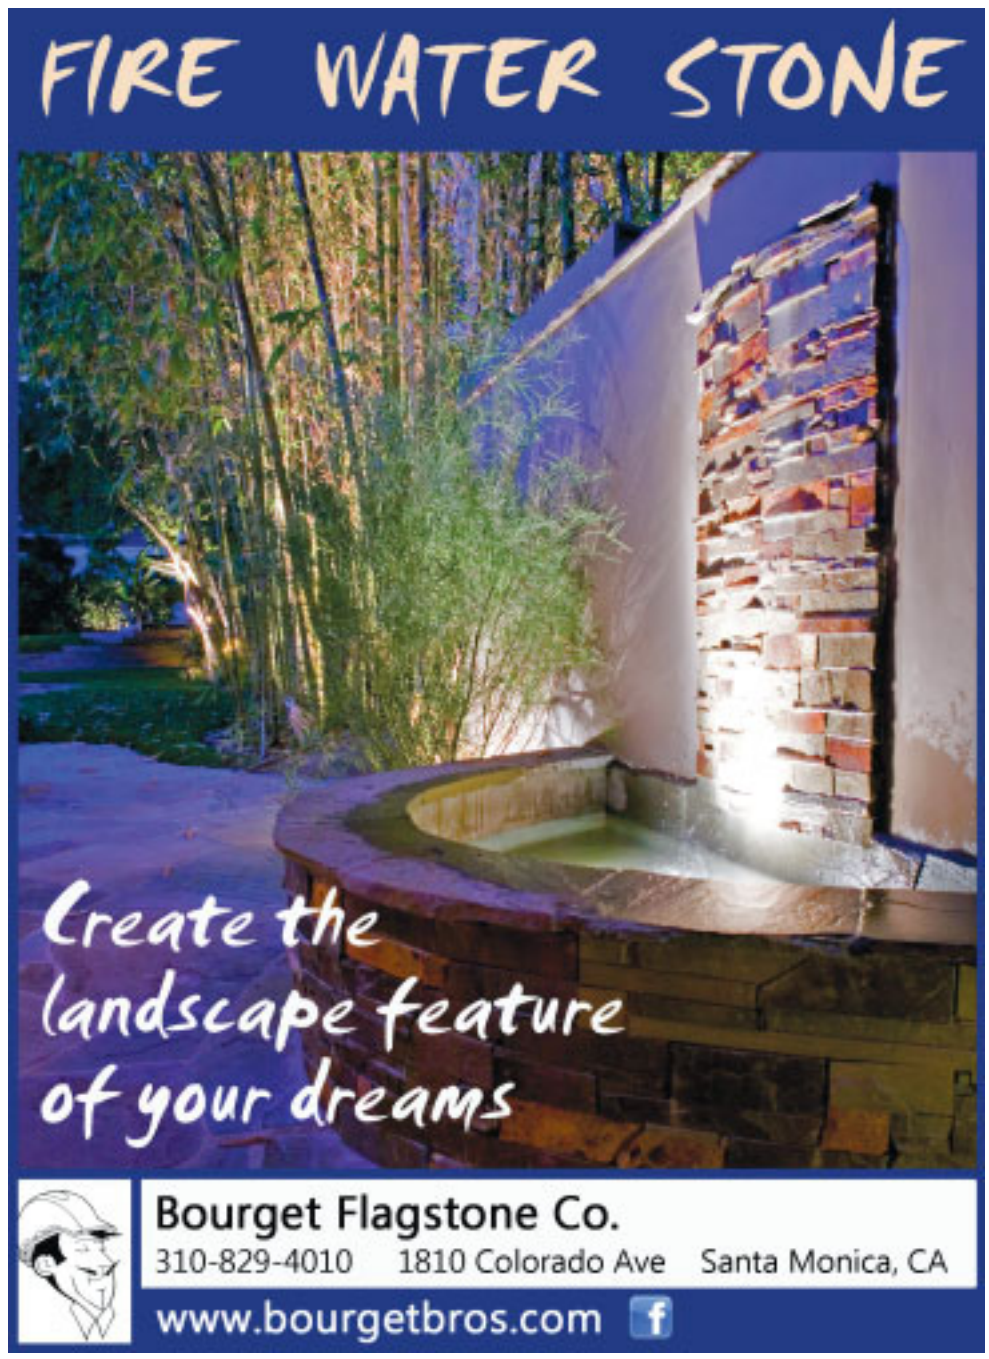

"If I don't know what to wear, I just throw on a tu-tu and have way more fun," he said.

Heal the Bay is a non-profit environmental organization dedicated to making Santa Monica Bay and Southern California coastal waters safe and healthy for people and marine life.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card™ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A–F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

This Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Fighting for Your Unemployment Benefits

In these tough economic times many people are finding themselves out of work, sometimes for the first time in their lives. More than three million Americans are fired each year. After the initial shock of being fired has worn off, the practicalities of having to navigate the unemployment insurance system come into sharp focus.

Generally, you are entitled to unemployment benefits if you are unemployed through no fault of your own, for example, if you were laid off, fired for a reason other than misconduct, or quit your job for good reason. Once the Employment Development Department (EDD) has received your application for benefits, it usually conducts a telephone interview with you, and also with your employer, to find out why you were fired.

Unfortunately, some unscrupulous employers challenge their former employee's application for benefits even when that employee was fired through no fault of his or her own. In this case, the employer usually claims that the employee was fired for misconduct.

If your application for benefits is denied, you have 20 days to file an appeal. If you believe that your benefits were unfairly denied, it is very important that you file a timely appeal. You will receive a hearing date about 4-6 weeks later. Sometimes, the employer does not even bother to show up to the appeal hearing; they were counting on the fact that you wouldn't fight the denial of your benefits.

The hearing is your chance to explain your side of the story to an Administrative Law Judge. It is natural to feel nervous before the hearing, but you will feel better if you are properly prepared to present your case. You should ask to review the EDD's file on your case, which will include the interview notes with your employer. This means you will get a chance to see what your employer said about why you were fired. You can also send a written request to your employer asking to inspect your personnel file pursuant to Labor Code Section 1198.5. You can ask witnesses who can corroborate your version of events to come with you to the hearing. If they can't come, you can ask them to give you a written statement to take along with you. You can also ask the EDD to subpoena witnesses for you. Finally, you should familiarize yourself with the law that applies to your case. A good starting place is the "Benefit Determination Guide" on the EDD website: http://www.edd.ca.gov/UIBDG/default.htm.

You don't have to bring an attorney with you to the hearing, although you may feel more confident with the support of an attorney experienced in this area. The Legal Grind can put you in touch with an attorney who can help you through the process, from advice on preparation to representation at your appeal hearing.

Depending on the circumstances of your termination, you may also wish to seek legal advice to determine whether you have any legal claims arising out of your discharge. Although most workers in California are "at will" employees, which means they can be fired for any reason or for no reason at all, even "at will" employees cannot be fired in certain circumstances. For example, an employer cannot fire its employee for a discriminatory reason; or because s/he made a health and safety complaint; or because she took time off to perform jury duty. This is a complex area of the law, and an attorney can advise you on whether you may have grounds for a wrongful discharge suit.

Upon investigation of the circumstances of your termination, an attorney may also identify violations which took place during your employment. For example, you may have an overtime claim if your employer did not pay overtime pay (time and a half) for all hours over eight in a day, and forty in a week, or a claim for meal period premium pay if you were unable to take an uninterrupted 30 minute meal break per five hours worked. Exploring potential claims with an attorney may help to give you some peace of mind in this difficult time.

SAY 'YES,' LEO

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You start the day raring to go. It might be hard to stop you or do anything to impede your chosen course. You tend to overthink or worry too much. A sudden insight will encourage you to stop and reflect. You know what to do. Tonight: Catch up on others' news.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Make it your pleasure to relate to someone who has a lot to share. One-on-one relating proves to be worthwhile. Honor incoming news, and rethink your position. Tonight: Do some spring shopping.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Beam in more of what you desire. You might feel as if you can conquer the world and accomplish everything you desire. Recognize your priorities, and know that you are unusually fortunate at this point in time. Tonight: Whatever pleases you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★ Be happy to get some quiet work done. You can and will accomplish a lot if you relax. Follow your intuition when dealing with a touchy associate or loved one. You'll also want to be careful with someone you meet for the first time. Tonight: Vanish while you can.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ Surround yourself with friends. You might wonder what is happening with a loved one who seems distant. Push for what you want with the full expectation of getting just that. You could be seen as a role model for positive thinking. Tonight: Say "yes" to people.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ It feels natural to give others what they want from you. Unite friends and loved ones together in order to make a project happen. You will grease the wheels to ensure that it will be successful. Curb a tendency to overspend at present. Tonight: Working late.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Keep reaching out to someone at a distance. If this person does not respond, you might feel as if you can't do anything more. Detach, and try to understand where he or she is coming from; you'll gain a new perspective as a result. Tonight: Feed your mind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Success often starts from others feeling valued. One-on-one relating could be instrumental to this experience. Once a person feels valued, he or she is likely to be more trustworthy. Do what is needed to bring a project to completion. Tonight: Say "yes."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ You might want to approach others more openly. If you must be assertive, try a different day. You could meet some resistance if you are not careful. Listen to what people aren't saying, and it will give you a lot of insight. Tonight: Go with someone else's suggestion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ You are at your best when you get past a problem and restore your sense of direction. Laughter surrounds you. Realize what is happening within your immediate circle. Your way of handling a problem will prove very effective. Tonight: Get some exercise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Your awareness of possibilities attracts new ideas. How you feel and what you do could change after a playful exchange. You know what you want, but can you manifest it? Tonight: Play the night away.

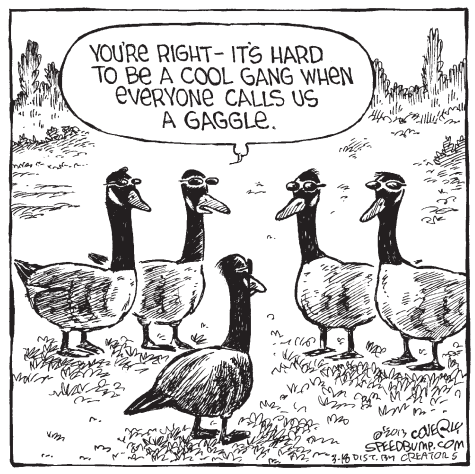

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Ask questions about a possible investment or a change on the domestic front, and you might see a new path. Check in on an older parent or loved one. You might wonder why you're doing what you're doing. Tonight: Order in.

Monday, March 18, 2013

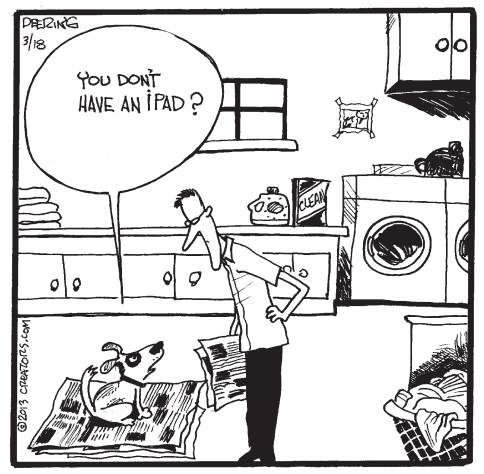

This year you gain through identifying your emotional and intellectual needs. You often will question which voice to follow. Once you decide, you will see results. Others get your intentions. Your work and public image become even more important. You are likely to take the lead in a community or professional commitment. If you are single, you could meet someone at work or out and about. If you are attached, include your sweetie more in your public life. GEMINI understands you well.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ A 31-year-old woman, seven months pregnant with twins, suffered a heart attack arguably because St. Thomas More Hospital in Canon City, Colo., delayed in treating her. The woman and the twins died, and the family is suing church-affiliated Catholic Health Initiatives, the owner of the hospital. CHI's lawyers, until January, were defending the malpractice lawsuit as to the twins' death by using Colorado law, in which a "person" is not created until birth. After church officials in Colorado and the Vatican learned of CHI's strategy, they ordered it abandoned, in that it is of course contrary to the teachings of the church.

■ Leaders of the ice-fishing community, aiming for official Olympics recognition as a sport, have begun the process by asking the World Anti-Doping Agency to randomly test its "athletes" for performance-enhancing drugs, according to a February New York Times report. However, said the chairman of the U.S. Freshwater Fishing Association, "We do not test for beer," because, he added, "Everyone would fail." Ice-fishing is a lonely, frigid endeavor rarely employing strength but mostly requiring guile and strategy, as competitors who discover advantageous spots in the lake must surreptitiously upload the hauls lest competitors rush over to drill their own holes. Urine tests have also been run in recent years on competitors in darts, miniature golf, chess and tug-of-war, and in 2011, one chess player, two minigolfers and one tugger tested positive.
