Story Slam in Santa Monica

MARINA ANDALON
Daily Press Staff Writer

The Fairview Branch will be presenting their first ever 'Your Story' Project this week as part of a Moth inspired storytelling night.

The Moth is a national non-profit storytelling organization that launched in 1997. The organization has presented a countless number of personal stories live and its content provides a template for organizations to use when creating their own live events.

"What really attracted me to pilot this program was the way The Moth can bring people together," said Jennifer Boyce, a Youth Services Librarian in Santa Monica. "There is a certain kind of human interaction that happens in storytelling that often time leads to friendships."

'Your Story', is modeled after The Moth, as they both honor and celebrate the ability to tell personal stories. The stories involve diversity, experiences, and most importantly human connection.

The Moth began in Georgia where poet, best selling novelist and founder, George Dawes Green would spend evenings swapping stories with friends. The program formalized in 1997 in New York City and since then

Samohi Freshman dies after jumping from third-floor balcony

BY KATE CAGLE
Daily Press Staff Writer

A freshman at Santa Monica High School died Monday from major brain trauma after trying the drug LSD and jumping from a third-floor balcony.

Samohi's principal Dr. Antonio Shelton confirmed the death of 15-year-old Andre Zuczek Monday in a letter provided to parents. Zuczek is the third student at Samohi who has died this year.

"Andre and a few friends got together on Saturday and tried the drug, acid. Things went badly very quickly as Andre had what is thought to be a "bad trip," and fell from a third-floor apartment," the family said in a statement included in the letter.

Zuczek's mother wanted the community to know what happened so other parents may be spared from losing a child to drug use.

"We encourage you to talk about Andre with your kids, friends, your family and whoever else provides you support. In sharing, please be aware that hearsay and gossip can be very hurtful and can add more sorrow to the grief we are all feeling at this time," the statement said.

Police officers received a radio call for suspicious activity at the Belmar Apartments on 1725 Ocean Avenue around 3 p.m. Saturday, March 18. A caller said several teenagers were acting erratically and were possibly on drugs, according to Lt. Saul Rodriguez with the Santa Monica Police Department.

When officers got to the building, they noticed Zuczek standing on the balcony of an upper level unit. Within moments, the teenag-

Kenyans Barno, Jepkurgat win titles at Los Angeles Marathon

Kenyans Elisha Barno and Hellen Jepkurgat won the men's and women's titles at the Los Angeles Marathon on Sunday.

Barno pulled away from 2015 winner Daniel Limo of Kenya in the final mile of the race, crossing the finish line near the Santa Monica Pier in 2 hours, 11 minutes, 51 seconds.

Limo was timed in 2:12.13. He finished third last year in the 26.2-mile race that begins at Dodger Stadium and finishes at the Pacific Ocean.

Willy Koitile of Kenya finished third in 2:12.43. Defending champion Weldon Kirui of Kenya was fourth in 2:13.21.

Jepkurgat comfortably led the pack throughout the women's race before breaking away in the 13th mile to win in 2:34.24, nearly 2 minutes ahead of fellow Kenyan Jane Kibii, who finished in 2:36.14.

The winners earned $23,000 each.

SAN FRANCISCO

Spring showers, gusty winds expected to hit California

After several weeks of dry weather, the start of spring will bring rain showers throughout California this week, forecasters said Monday.

The storms will not be as significant as those in January and February, which dropped enough rain and snow in the state to end a five-year drought.

Three storms will visit the northern region through the weekend, the National Weather Service said. Windy conditions are expected Monday, increasing Tuesday.

The early systems will bring up to 3 inches in the North Bay with less than an inch expected in most parts of the San Francisco Bay Area. The spring storms could dump up to 2 inches in the Santa Cruz mountains with potential flooding when the third system moves in Friday.

Two storm systems will impact the southern region of the state starting Tuesday, the weather service predicted.

Thunderstorms are possible mainly north of Santa Barbara on Tuesday. Widespread showers, thunderstorms, and highly variable rain amounts and intensities will follow through Wednesday as the storm center moves through the state.

Any thunderstorm could result in minor mud and debris flows in recent burn areas, as well as lightning hazards for outdoor activities including beach areas.

Thursday should be dry, but a second system should bring rain to the region Friday night and Saturday.

LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles Aqueduct to see massive Sierra runoff

Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti has declared an emergency due to predictions of overwhelming runoff from the eastern Sierra Nevada snowpack that feeds the Los Angeles Aqueduct.

The action Monday is aimed at helping the city Department of Water and Power respond to what it describes as the threat to "the health and safety of the public as well as to protect infrastructure and the environment."

The aqueduct runs hundreds of miles south down arid Owens Valley to Los Angeles.

The city is using aqueduct water to replenish local aquifers and emptying reservoirs to create more capacity but a huge amount will end up in Owens Lake, which dried up when the city channeled its water source into the aqueduct 100 years ago.

MALIBU

Council votes to declare Malibu a sanctuary city

Taking a stand in the national debate over illegal immigration, Malibu has joined the ranks of sanctuary cities.

The City Council of the celebrity enclave voted 3-2 this month to approve a resolution prohibiting use of city funds and resources to enforce federal civil immigration law.

Councilwoman Laura Rosenthal introduced the resolution after Malibu resident and actor Martin Sheen appeared before the council in December to urge a sanctuary designation.

"When I reached out to some of the people at the schools and other people in the community, they told me people are scared," Rosenthal told the Los Angeles Times (http://lat.ms/2nKIAIF). "That's people coming into Malibu who may be undocumented. I wanted to send a clear message that we are here for you."

A report by the city attorney cited the potential for some "negative fiscal impacts" due to an executive order by President Donald Trump directing the attorney general and secretary of the Department of Homeland Security to ensure that sanctuary jurisdictions do not receive federal grants.

The report said the city receives annually about $46,000 in community development block grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Development. Malibu also occasionally receives one-time grants from federal agencies but currently has none that are active.

Immigrants work throughout the city, according to Juan Escobar, 32, who works at the Malibu Country Mart.

"You see Spanish speakers taking care of babies in every house," he told the Times. "They help people here."

Resolution supporter Mikke Pierson, 57, said it is important to express support for people who are in the country illegally.

"Heck . we would be paralyzed and no one's houses would be cleaned," the former surf shop owner said.

LA Chargers re-sign OL Wiggins, DT Palepoi to 1-year deals

The Los Angeles Chargers have re-signed offensive lineman Kenny Wiggins and defensive tackle Tenny Palepoi.

The Chargers announced the one-year deals Monday.

Palepoi is entering his fourth NFL season. The former undrafted free agent from Utah made 23 tackles in 13 games last season as a depth contributor on the Chargers' line.

The 6-foot-6 Wiggins can play guard or tackle for the Chargers. He appeared in 13 games with San Diego last season, making one start. Wiggins has started nine games in his four-year NFL career.

The Construction Conundrum

SPRING IS OFFICIALLY HERE AND WITH IT comes the 'spring cleaning' for me and my law office. Out with the old and in with the new seems to be the order of the day and even the city of Santa Monica seems to be in on the spirit of the season with infrastructure construction happening all around town.

It appears that there are much needed upgrades and/or refurbishments going on to the sewers system on Ocean Avenue, Pico Blvd by my family law office and at select intersections near you. Driving around downtown Santa Monica is a nightmare most days, and recently it seems that the city is doing all that it can to make the process as annoying as possible.

I have vociferously called for the city to invest in our infrastructure and am in fact quite happy that we are making upgrades, improvements or simply repairs. In previous articles, I've written about how important I believe it is for us to work on the underpinnings of our city. Fourth street downtown was in desperate need of water main repairs, I don't know if they've been done yet. I assume not as I don't recall there being construction delays there.

But one of the questions that keeps coming up about the construction is "Why can't they do this stuff at night?" When there is less traffic and presumably it would be safer to the workers and less annoying to the general public.

The snarky answer is because government never does anything that could be construed logical or convenient.

I imagine it has more to do with union rules, nighttime pay rates and probably a safety and expense factor. Night time is probably not actually safer since people are fighting the desire to sleep, it's dark out and colder – all of which would lead to accidents. Working at night would also require lighting, that means costs for electricity, probably a union paid "light operator" and the additional expense of the truck to deliver said lighting.

On the surface, it seems that operating heavy machinery at night, would be easier given the lighter traffic load, it probably also makes the job harder when you're trying to see what you are doing, and there's more drunk drivers. Plus there's the noise factor to be contended with, heavy machinery is not known for its subtlety and quietude.

But the reality is I don't get to make those decisions. You have to be in the government and involved in the planning if you want to be involved in the results.

I imagine it's much like the fence that's broken on Pico at seventh Street. We have some fancy dancy venting put in to protect the bike lane. It's been broken due to what appears to be a car accident for about a month and a half now.

The city manager's office reported to me that they have ordered additional fencing to repair the fence but it has not been delivered yet. This was about a month ago. Had it been my decision I would've used more plain fencing that's readily available. It seems to me that when we have fences that are down, that's a liability and safety risk, if the whole point of the fence is to protect people.

But I'm not in charge so I don't get to make those decisions.

See the light

Editor:

I'm an avid biker but I also drive. It bothers me so much that every day I encounter people on their bikes who lack a light so that they can be seen.

When such a person rides on the street in an area with insufficient street lighting, this is a recipe for disaster. In case of a collision the biker is the weaker party landing on the pavement, in the hospital or worse.

Contributing to this unacceptable situation is the fact that so called fixie bikes that are sold in places like BIG 5 don't come with a light already equipped. A lot of especially young people have a total lack of responsibility and common sense. It also seems that from the side of our Police Department there is very little or no enforcement at all. A bike without a working light should be treated the same way as a car.

When their property is affected, people will hopefully learn quick. It is also not possible that on streets like Stewart between Olympic and Pico where there are three Stop-signs in quick succession motorists stop but people on their bikes do not.

I believe penalties for such behavior should be in place. In that area there was always police presence/motorcycle-cops hiding on the side by the park etc.-but I haven't seen this recently. Does the City of Santa Monica not need the revenue anymore or what is the reason?

California lawmaker wants tax to fund tuition-free college

Some California Democrats want to make college tuition free for in-state students by taxing very wealthy residents.

Assemblywoman Susan Talamantes Eggman said Monday she's introducing a bill to create a 1 percent tax on Californians earning more than $1 million per year. The Stockton Democrat says the tax would provide an estimated $2.2 billion each year — enough revenue to make public colleges tuition free for residents.

"I see this as an investment in California's overall future," she said, adding that the measure will help middle-class families send their kids to college.

The bill, AB1356, comes on the heels of a separate proposal by other Assembly Democrats to make college more affordable. That plan, which was introduced last week, aims to make college debt-free for students by helping cover non-tuition related expenses and expanding aid for community college students. Eggman said she thinks her bill and that proposal will complement each other.

The bill requires a two-thirds vote in the Legislature because it would create a new tax. It would also be put on the ballot so voters can weigh in, Eggman said.

Jon Coupal, president of the Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association, said while he doesn't think college should be "excessively expensive," he doesn't support making college tuition free because he believes students should make a contribution toward their education costs.

The new tax would "give California citizens who have done well one more reason to move out of California," he said.

Eggman said she doesn't believe the new tax would drive wealthy people out of the state.

The wealthiest 1.5 percent of Californians generates roughly half of the state's income tax revenue. Voters approved Proposition 55 in November to continue taxing that group at a higher rate until 2030 to provide education and health care funding.

In 2004, California voters approved a 1 percent tax on people earning more than $1 million per year to fund mental health programs.

Critical Missing Man

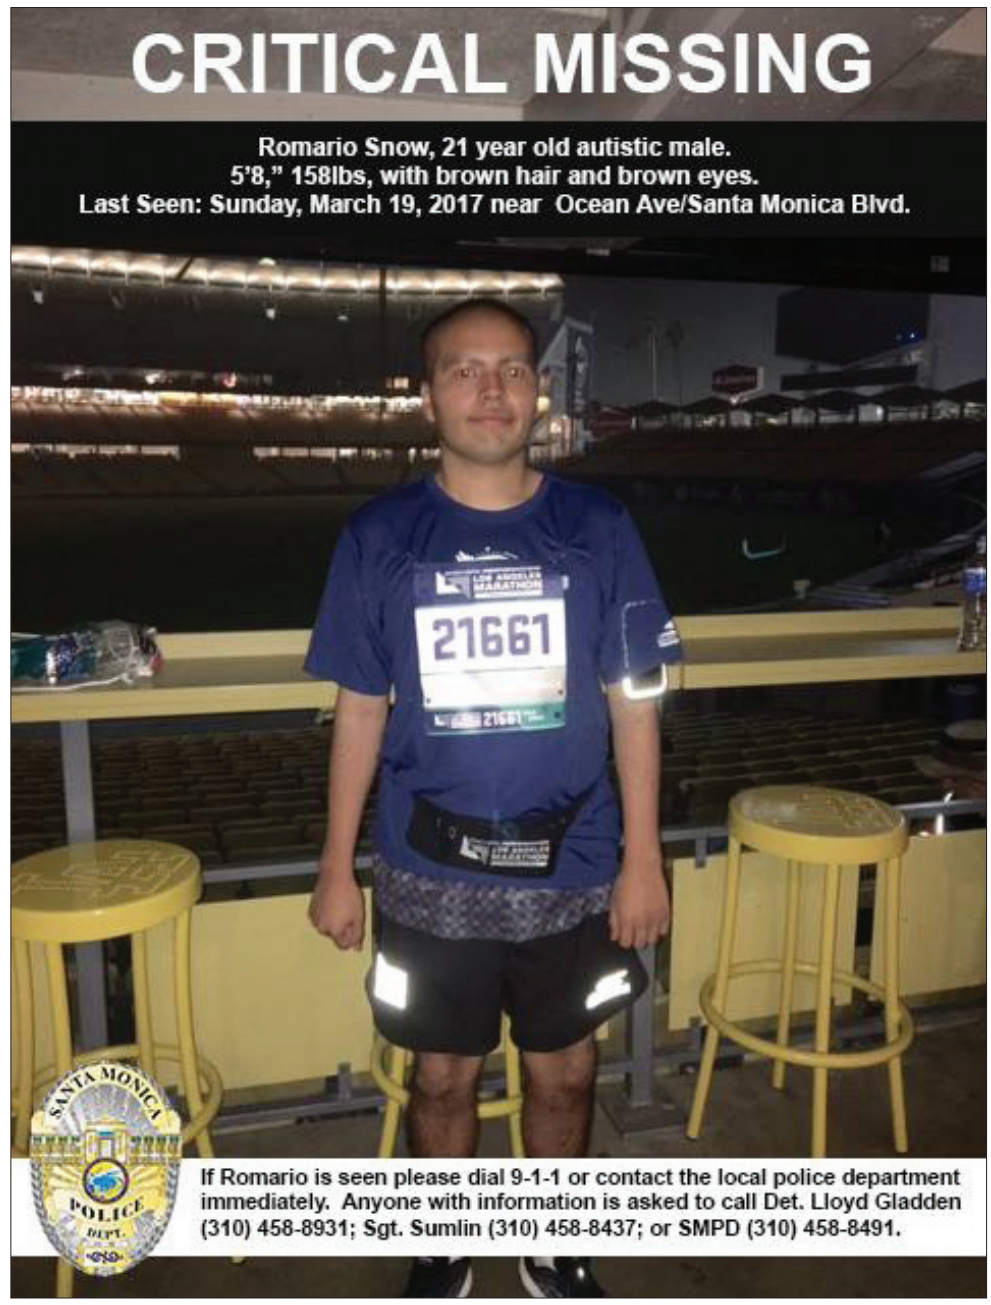

The Santa Monica Police Department (SMPD) is seeking the public's assistance in locating a critical missing adult, Romario Snow, a 21-year old autistic man.

On March 19, 2017 at about 1:52 p.m., the critical missing adult was last seen by Los Angeles Marathon Security personnel at the intersection of Ocean Avenue and Santa Monica Blvd. Snow was set to reunite with his family in Santa Monica however, has not been seen since.

Romario Snow is described as 5'8," 158 pounds, with short brown hair and brown eyes. He may be wearing black/grey shorts, blue shirt and a light brown sweater. Snow has the mental capacity of a 12 year-old.

If Romario Snow is seen please dial 9-1-1 or contact the local police department immediately. Anyone with information is asked to call Det. L. Gladden (310) 458-8931; Sgt. M. Sumlin (310) 458-8437; or SMPD (310) 458-8491.

Zuczek was unresponsive upon impact. Santa Monica Fire Department paramedics treated the teen and took him to the hospital where he remained in critical condition until dying Monday.

Paramedics treated a second teenager at the scene for minor injuries.

"Our thoughts and prayers are with the family and friends right now," Gail Pinsker, SMMUSD public relations officer said.

Zuczek was a SMASH student before entering Samohi as a freshman. SMASH principal Jessica Rishe also sent a letter home to parents at that school. The Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District has made counselors available at both SMASH and Samohi for any students and staff in need of support.

STORIES

it has presented more than 20,000 stories live.

Boyce put together workshops for possible participants in advance of the show. The first workshop introduced The Moth storytelling concept, while the second workshop gave people a chance to practice telling their story and receive feedback.

"It was great to see an older gentleman receive such positive feedback from a young high school student," said Boyce. "The program is intergenerational, so I am looking forward to hearing stories from various age groups."

Just like The Moth, the event has a theme. 'Your Story' will present a five-minute story about identity, with every story relating to that specific theme.

Boyce believes identity is the perfect theme for the night, especially with it being the first event. She explains that identity can be interpreted in many different ways, either directly or abstract.

"The theme gives everyone the opportunity to take their story in many different directions," said Boyce. "It can be about race, gender, or even where you come from. It can all be very interesting."

With the program's intergenerational appeal, the event is expecting students from Santa Monica High School, Santa Monica College and community members. Judges include an SMC Professor, Samohi Librarian, and Santa Monica Librarian. Stories will be judged each storyteller's performance, presentation skills and more.

Storytellers will compete for prizes, along with bragging rights to be the winner of the first ever 'Your Story' Project.

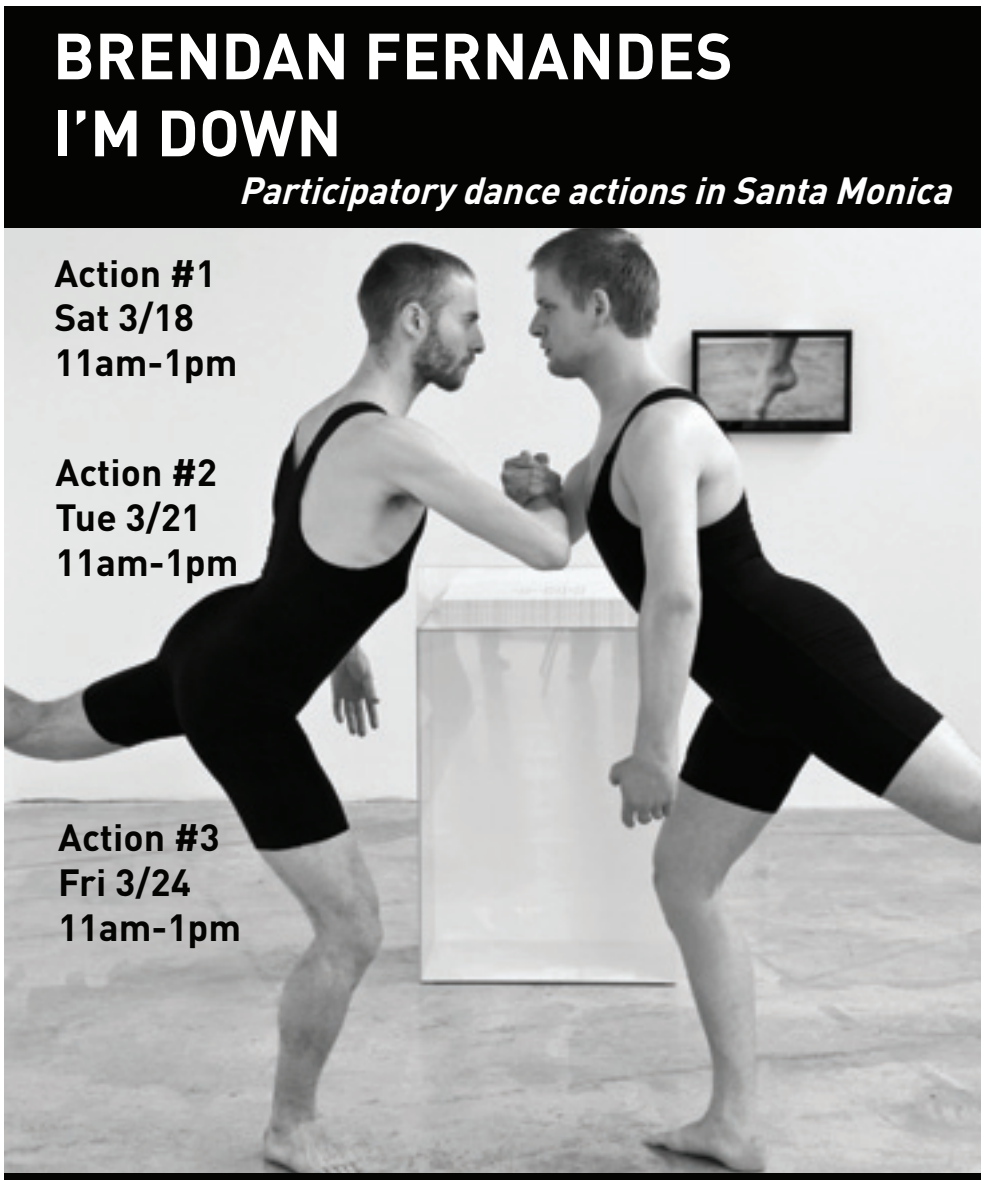

"I believe the event of storytelling is a great opportunity to connect with people within the community," said Boyce. "I am looking forward to hear the stories about identity from different generations."

Seating is limited and free tickets will be available thirty minutes before performance. Event takes place on Mar. 23 at 6 p.m. at the Fairview Branch Library.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON MARCH 8, AT ABOUT 11:04 A.M.
Officers responded to Urban Outfitters at 1440 3rd Street Promenade regarding a subject removing security sensors from merchandise. Officer met with the store manager who told officers the suspect was removing security sensors from the clothing and entering the fitting room. Officers waited outside for the suspect and saw him exit the store without paying for any merchandise. The suspect was wearing several of the items. Approximately $390 worth of merchandise was recovered. The store was desirous of prosecution and the suspect was taken into custody. Andrew William Berry, 34, homeless was arrested for shoplifting and possession of burglary tools. Bail was set at $5,000.

WELL NEWS BY SCOTT LAFEE

Medical History

■ This week in 1875, the first well-documented U.S. birth of quintuplets occurred. It was not a happy day. Five boys were born in Watertown, Wisconsin, to Edna Beecham Kanouse and her husband, Edward. She gave birth before Edward could return with the fetched doctor. Although all five newborns appeared normally developed, one was stillborn, three died within minutes of delivery and the remaining infant lived just a few hours. Their total birth weight was 10 pounds, 2 ounces. Edna Kanouse successfully gave birth to a single child several years later, but died a few months after childbirth from a contagious disease contracted while caring for a sick friend. Until the birth of the famous healthy Dionne quintuplets in 1934 in Canada, the longest known survival of a quintuplet was 55 days.

Three-in-one Community Cycling Event

Join Santa Monica Spoke, Mayor Ted Winterer, City Manager Rick Cole, City staff and Breeze Bike Share this Sunday at 9 am at the 17th Street Breeze Expo Station for this three times the fun event!

Experience some of Santa Monica's amazing bike infrastructure and hear about new projects on our way to CicLAvia. The ride is 5.4 miles, mostly on streets with bike lanes, and we'll end the ride at the CicLAvia Venice Hub.

CicLAvia is one of the country's largest open streets events. Streets will be closed to cars and open for use as a recreational space for people walking, biking, running, and skating.

Also, learn helpful tips on how to use the Breeze Bike Share system, including checking out, locking, flexibility of "out-of-station" and "hold" features, multiple bike check out on one account, along with safety tips and Rules of the Road.

All participants that RSVP (at smspoke.org) will receive a promo code good for 1.5 hour of ride time on Breeze Bike Share* and first time Breeze participants can receive a free helmet.

*For more information about free Breeze ride time or receiving the free helmet please contact SM Spoke at Contact@SMSpoke.org.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (March 21)

Get organized now, because you'll soon take your talents to a wider audience. Travel will be involved. You might be surprised who finds you enchanting in April. Family connections will parlay into business wins in May. In June, while tending to responsibility, a dream will come true. Capricorn and Libra adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 12, 2, 40, 9 and 31.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Nature is stronger than man. Then again, man is a part of nature. You'll prove the mightiness of the human spirit in some way today as you go up against the big forces and win.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
After periods of high exertion you need time to relax and recover. If you don't consciously and regularly schedule this, you'll miss it and burn out later. Take care of your health and happiness now by making a plan.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21)
In order to better achieve the group goal, people must feel safe enough speak up about what's working and what's not. If everyone is too afraid to challenge or change the way things are going, the outcome will suffer.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)
There will be flashy, glamorous and dramatic situations to get involved in today, but should you? You won't be sorry if you instead choose your company the same way you choose your shoes -- for comfort and long wear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Maybe you shouldn't tell everyone about the extensive effort you put into getting to a certain result. Your payoff will come when the others figure out that they can't easily duplicate what you just pulled off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
You won't get the sale, promotion or attention necessary to move forward unless people know what you're doing and why. So don't be shy today; publicize your work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Your social talents will be put to good use now. You'll connect people who can do one another good. You'll set a tone where people feel comfortable enough to contribute.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21)
There's nothing wrong with wanting appreciation and love. It doesn't make you automatically needy just because you have the very basic human drive to be valued. Be suspicious of anyone who tries to make you feel otherwise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
You may not agree right now with what you did back there, but you made the best decision you could make based on the information you had at the time. Knowing more, you'll do it differently today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
You've been wronged -- probably just a misunderstanding -- and you'll work it out. Being too conciliatory would be a mistake. Don't mute your own interests more than is good for the relationship going forward.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
The day has exciting potential for you as you follow a fascinating lead. Where high standards meet with prepossessing features, a strong attraction will develop.

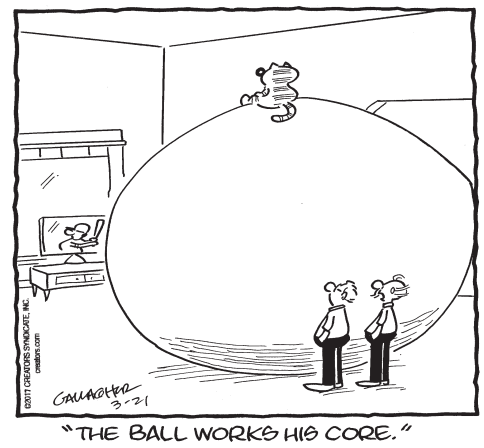

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
Mistakes teach us how to be more flexible in the future. They also make us compassionate. Accept yourself and move on. You're becoming stronger and more able every day.

Ambition Moon

The fresh hope and youthful vigor of the Aries sun fills this day with possibilities. The moon in aspiring Capricorn adds motivation to the mix. It will be important to distinguish between ambition, which is the desire for great gain, and greed, in which those gains come at the expense of others.
