Staff boost for summer school

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

CITYWIDE Several months remain in the regular school year, but Santa Monica-Malibu district officials have already been lining up plans for upcoming summer sessions.

The district is expecting to have more literacy coaches and instructional assistants in summer school classes, officials said during a Board of Education meeting earlier this month.

In addition to improving teaching ratios, having additional staff will make it more feasible for students to receive mentoring in one-on-one or small-group settings, said Irene Gonzalez-Castillo and Ellen Edeburn, the district's directors of curriculum and instruction.

The forthcoming increases in summer staffing follow analysis of staff surveys and student test results from last year, when the district hired additional literacy coaches for elementary students. Literacy coaching will be made available at the middle school level this summer, officials said.

Outgoing fifth-grade students will attend summer classes at middle school sites to prepare them for their transitions, officials said. Fifth-graders had previously been stationed at elementary schools.

Some money for the instructional assistants has come from the Santa Monica-Malibu Education Foundation, officials said. Under recently enacted guidelines, SMMEF oversees fundraising throughout the school district.

Board member Jose Escarce noted that summer school, which in recent years has been shortened from six weeks to four weeks, should not provide "cookie-cutter" services. He said instructors should work with students to see how

Big Blue Bus wants 25-cent fare hike

CITYWIDE To keep up with the incoming Expo Light Rail, Big Blue Bus wants to boost its service hours by 11 percent.

The augmented service will necessitate a fare hike starting in January, BBB officials said in a report to City Council this week. Regular fares would jump a quarter, from $1 to $1.25. Fares for seniors and riders with disabilities wouldn't be impacted.

"BBB's new proposed cash fare, $1.25, is still one of the lowest in the County as most Municipal Operators are at $1.35 - $1.50, and much lower than Metro's cash fare of $1.75," BBB officials told council. "Senior and Disabled fares would be unchanged at $.50 and BBB passes would be increased incrementally."

BBB is projecting a 4-percent increase in passenger revenue with the coming of Expo.

Plans for the fare increase and route changes were scheduled to be presented to council on Tuesday, but city officials are asking council to push it back to April 28 because a significant item pertaining to the future of the Santa Monica Airport is scheduled for that night.

Last year, BBB eliminated discounted transfer fares and integrated with Los Angeles County's TAP card system, which allows riders to keep their fare money on a card rather than trying to jam crumpled dollar bills into a finicky cash acceptor while fellow riders wait to board with rolling eyes.

Previously, transfers cost 50 cents.

BBB's grand plan will create more north-south service to complement the east-west light rail. They're eliminating redundant routes and stops covered by other transit systems. First- and last-mile connectivity will become a focus.

Additionally, BBB promised to keep local passengers in mind — a concern that some council members shared at a meeting about BBB changes in December.

Many of the plans are similar to those proposed in December. Initially, the fare increase was proposed for July 2016, but that has moved up to January in the recent report because the jump in annual revenue service hours was proposed at 9 percent and is now proposed at 11 percent.

"Based on feedback from the Council, staff adjusted the plan by revising three of the routes presented to Council in the CITY HALL If you're hoping to have a seat in the Council Chambers Tuesday night you're going to want to arrive early.

The last time City Council addressed the plans for the future of Santa Monica Airport, a year ago, more than 100 members of the public signed up to testify and the chamber reached full capacity, forcing dozens of onlookers to retreat to the lobby, where the meeting was televised.

On Tuesday, council will consider what to do when the clock strikes midnight on a 1984 agreement that ties City Halls hands on certain issues related to the airport. The agreement expires on July 1 and numerous community groups are rallying their troops.

Concerned Residents Against Airport Pollution (CRAAP), run by airport opponent Marty Rubin, is calling for a rally outside of City Hall at 6 p.m.

"Express what you expect City Council to do after the clear mandate by Santa Monica voters!" CRAAP said in a release.

This is a reference to a skirmish over airport control that arose when aviation groups hired paid signature gatherers to get a measure on the ballot last year that

Downtown
Heal the Bay hires
new Policy Director

Heal the Bay has announced Rita Kampalath as their new Science and Policy Director.

Kampalath will work with Heal the Bay's team of seasoned technical and policy experts to advance more holistic water-quality improvements that also supplement local water supply in Southern California. She will also oversee an upgrade to Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card program to include predictive modeling and forecasting of beach water quality.

"I have always found Heal the Bay's science-based approach to advocacy to be inspiring," Kampalath said. "I am honored to be joining an organization with such a long track record of success." She will report to Sarah Sikich, who was recently promoted to vice president of Heal the Bay.

Kampalath most recently served as an engineer at Geosyntec Consultants, where she helped manage a number of significant environmental initiatives. She oversaw such projects as tracking sources of water pollution in two San Diego watersheds and implementing water quality improvement regulations and policies throughout Southern California.

Kampalath earned a B.S. in Chemical Engineering from Columbia University and a M.S. and Ph.D. in Chemical Engineering and Civil and Environmental Engineering, respectively, from UCLA. She previously worked as an engineer for the U.S. Air Force in environmental and safety policy compliance.

Her hire completes a recent restructuring of the Science and Policy Department at Heal the Bay. Dana Murray has been promoted to Senior Coastal Policy Manager and Peter Shellenbarger has been promoted to Water Resources Manager. Murray will play a leading role in our coastal and ocean protection initiatives, while Shellenbarger will support efforts to improve water quality, including advancing policies and projects that beneficially reuse stormwater to enhance local water supply.

"Rita's scientific expertise and experience with a variety of water quality issues that face our region will help Heal the Bay advance thoughtful solutions to the region's environmental problems," said Alix Hobbs, president of Heal the Bay.

Heal the Bay's Science and Policy Department has led several environmental health improvement efforts over the past five years:

The advancement of dozens of pollution limits for waters throughout Los Angeles County;

The establishment of underwater parks – known as marine protected areas – throughout Southern California;

The March defeat of a ballot initiative in Hermosa Beach that would have opened up Santa Monica Bay to oil exploration.

What if? What if? What if?

Editor:

The human imagination tends to the dark side at the slightest provocation and revels in irrational fears. Mr. Levin's comments regarding Harrison Ford's forced landing are an example at hand.

In fact, over a 100-year span, only one single person has died as a result of aviation at Santa Monica Airport excluding those persons actually in an aircraft, and no one has been seriously injured either.

Aircraft operations at SMO have never been, and are not likely ever to become, a significant threat to life or property on the Westside. Mr. Ford's forced landing demonstrates that fact perfectly.

On the other hand, in the last three years alone, 874 pedestrians and bicyclists have died or been injured in our town, according to the Santa Monica Police Department (<http://m.smgov.net/news/items/2014/12/8/50527>). Now there is a clear and present danger.

Fear cars, fear domestic accidents, fear lightning, if you will - they are all vastly more prevalent and likely to call your number than any random airplane. Mr. Ford's mishap is not some great miracle, but is, in fact, the way most general aviation malfunctions play out, and we are glad he is still with us.

Stop the flights

Editor:

What is it going to take? A good saying "God drops pebbles on your head before the boulder." If God intervenes or not is not my point. But getting rid of the dangerous flights over Santa Monica is!

It's enough with the air and noise pollution but waiting for the boulder to drop is not what I pay property taxes for. It's time to be rid of the flights over the City once and for all.

Podcast hope and solution

GETTING TO KNOW PEOPLE OVER YEARS IS

a blessing, and I have been blessed to have many great friends in Santa Monica and to see their careers explode. One of those great friends is a fellow attorney who is also an interventionist — Darren Kavinoky. I met Darren years ago through a men's group and we became good friends sharing war stories about legal clients.

I recently had the opportunity to have Darren on my Men's Family Law podcast where we discussed his new show "Breaking Point" on the ID channel. Darren's personal journey from outlaw to criminal defender to criminal interventionist is a local story of redemption, hope and solutions.

Today he is a nationally recognized legal analyst who appears on HLN and ID and is host and co-creator of "Deadly Sins," a show that examines the connections between the seven deadly sins and murders. His position as an authority on criminal behavior comes out of his years as a criminal defense attorney, and his training as an interventionist dealing with people who have substance abuse problems that are leading them to criminal behaviors.

In Santa Monica, where we have such a robust mix of rehabs, recovery homes and sober livings, we get to see and know people who have turned their lives around. We have places like Victoria's House for sober living, and the Clare Center that take people from the first stages of detox through to living in a group setting to rebuilding their lives.

Sadly, not all get to make it. People die from addiction every day. Darren shared with me a story on the Men's Family Law podcast how he represented a man who had been in treatment and hired Darren to defend him in a criminal matter. One day they were celebrating in the hallway the successful win in the criminal case, and then, just five months later, Darren was being invited to this man's funeral after he had died of an overdose.

That was the genesis of Darren's path to being an interventionist. He knew as a criminal defense lawyer that he was doing good work, but there was so much more to be done to save people's lives. It's one thing to save someone from a harsh jail sentence; it's quite another to put them on the path to recovery.

Recovery is a rocky, curvy road for many people, as an episode of "Breaking Point" will show. I was enjoying the first episode with a young woman who is skilled at lying to her parents, the police, Darren, and even herself. But with the trained input from an experienced interventionist, she was able to get the first glimmers of help that she needed to pull her life back from the deadly path she was on.

I have many friends and clients who are in recovery; often, it's a crisis point that leads them to my family law office, whether it was a bad night of drinking that led to a domestic violence restraining order or a years-long decline as a result of drugs that led to a divorce filing. At some point, there is a crisis that can be the pivot point to a new and better life.

Knowing that there are people like Darren to help others recover is one thing; being able to see them, hear them, and rely on them when there is a crisis is a good thing. It not an easy thing for someone to admit they have a problem, and then take action to correct it. Hearing it from a family member is rarely helpful — usually an outside third party is needed to break through the walls of denial and delusion that keep people enslaved to drugs and alcohol.

If you want to learn more about what Darren does, you can listen to our conversation on the Men's Family Law podcast available on iTunes, or go to the website www.interventionpartners.com.

Neighborhood group appeals Planning Commission decision regarding LUCE amendments

On Monday, March 23, the board of Northeast Neighbors filed an appeal with the City of Santa Monica Planning Department of the decision by the Planning Commission regarding amendments to the Land Use and Circulation Element (LUCE). Specifically, the Planning Commission chose to remove proposed amendments that would have eliminated two highly contested Activity Centers on Wilshire Blvd. and cut Tier 3 development on Wilshire, Santa Monica, and Pico Boulevards.

This action by Northeast Neighbors now allows City Council to consider these amendments and potentially remove Tier 3 and activity centers from the document.

"This appeal was filed on behalf of residents citywide," said Amy Aukstiklanis, chair of Northeast Neighbors. "By filing this appeal we are placing these amendments squarely in front of City Council, our elected officials. For more than two years residents across the city have worked intensively to protect our quality of life from the negative impacts of over-development. Now it's time for City Council to make these changes."

A hearing date has not yet been set.

would have made it harder for City Council to shut the airport down. The measure failed by a landslide despite hundreds of thousands of dollars spent on its campaign.

Sunset Park Anti-Airport sent out mailers to registered voters asking council to, among other thing, eliminate all types of fuel sales at the airport.

They also want a section of the airport, which City Hall will gain more control of, to be closed to aviation uses, with the exception of the runway, which they say could be closed at the end of next year.

Mid City Neighbors asked its members to attend the meeting and voice their opinions. The Friends of Sunset Park Board sent a letter to council, asking them to minimize the risk of litigation while working to expand the current park adjacent to the airport.

Meanwhile, leaseholders at the Santa Monica Airport are concerned about the unintended consequences of whatever council decides.

Currently, all tenants are on month-to-month leases and it could stay that way until some of the biggest leases are renegotiated, which could take a year or more. Month-to-month leases make it hard for tenants to get loans and invest in their properties. They also make it hard for the tenants to plan.

City attorneys are also recommending that council raise rents of all tenants at the airport to market rate. Many aviation tenants pay less than market rate for their space. Some airport opponents say that raising rent could push them out and make the airport less attractive to pilots.

This tact, along with a belief that City Hall could one day — perhaps on July 1 — shorten a section of the runway and ban aircraft with poor emission controls, is called, by some, the starvation strategy. If you make the airport less attractive to pilots, the reasoning goes, then it will slowly fade out of use and be easier to close completely.

But city attorneys note in their report to council that ousting aircraft with poor emissions and shortening the runway would likely result in litigation. They recommend against implementing those changes on July 1.

Patrons of the restaurant Typhoon e-mailed the council (and the Daily Press) in large numbers, insinuating that month-to-month leases and raised rates could drive the company out of business at the airport.

"Employees need to have job security, insurance companies need to provide long term coverage, supplies need to be lined up to continue providing their goods," wrote resident Roberta Reid. "I think the public needs to know that denying Typhoon a long term lease will drive them out of business. Not only will this be a tremendous loss to the community but one has to wonder what will happen to the space after they depart."

Owners of the restaurant did not respond directly to requests for comment from the Daily Press but did ask their patrons to write letters in support of the two-decade-old establishment.

Some of the letter-writers said that if the airport is going to stay open for the next couple years anyway, as the city attorney's report concedes, then council might as well support the thriving culture that surrounds the airport.

Michael Myers, managing director of the Ruskin Group Theatre at the airport, wants council to be sure to ask the right questions.

"The desire to starve the airport could have bad unintended consequences for the things that people already love," he told the Daily Press. "We have to be very deliberate not to throw the baby out with the bath water because I think if we lose a lot of what's been built up — the City Council designated the south side for arts uses and soccer fields and put in the restaurants, jazz night on Monday night — I think there's no reason to go so fast because there's so much pending litigation yet to be resolved."

Blake Griffin finding his form fast since returning from injury

LOS ANGELES From Sunday to Sunday since he returned to the court, Blake Griffin has given the Los Angeles Clippers everything they missed in his absence. When he wasn't scoring at least 20 points per game like he did in the past weekend, he registered a double-double in his first three games back.

"I started getting that feeling that [Blake Griffin] is starting to find himself," Clippers star Chris Paul said. "That is the guy we all know and love and we are used to. It just felt great to see him be aggressive."

Griffin was out for nearly a month recovering from a surgical procedure removing a staph infection from his right elbow. It usually takes a while to return to prime form after missing a major portion of time. Griffin's approach to being aggressive is expediting that process.

"It's been up and down in different area," Griffin said. "The points of emphasis for me have been being more aggressive and to shoot more, so I try to do that but at the same time still take good shots. I still try to be a playmaker at the same time as well. So it is getting there."

"I'm more and more comfortable each game," he added, "but we just have to take each game as it comes."

When he was ruled out in early February, the Clippers were going through a tough stretch in which 15 of their next 20 opponents at the time had winning records. Many thought that Griffin's absence would lead to a season collapse. Instead, with sharp shooting from Jamal Crawford and J.J. Redick and the amazing point guard play of Chris Paul led them to going 9-5 during that stretch.

"I think we trust the system," Griffin said, "that is not to say we get away from it, but I think we trust the system and know how the system works. That stretch of games of where I was sitting out, they really trusted the system and played really well. Guys stepped up too, but trusting the system is huge. I remember around this time last year, after the All-Star break was where we really felt like we were trusting it, and by the playoffs I thought we really took advantage of that."

With road games at Philadelphia and New York coming up, look for Griffin to look like his MVP self again real soon.

Have You Been Injured in an Auto Accident?

If you believe that you or a family member are entitled to compensation for an injury, the best thing you can do is speak to an experienced personal injury attorney. You may be entitled to compensation for your injury including lost wages.

Find out how much your claim is worth right now!

Get immediate consultation 24/7. This a cost free, no obligation call.

Negligence and Auto Accidents

To have a valid car accident claim, you must first determine the negligent party or parties that caused the car crash. You may suspect that another driver, pedestrian, motorcyclist etc. acted carelessly, but cannot identify what traffic laws they violated. A skilled car accident attorney, however, can examine police reports and state traffic laws and speak to witnesses to determine who was at fault for your motor vehicle accident.

Tip: Act Quickly

If you seek legal advice, it's important that you do so as soon as possible after an accident. You're more likely to get the compensation due to you if your attorney is able to act quickly. Our state attorney's are available 24/7 to discuss your claim.

SUMMER

they're progressing and tailor lesson plans to meet specific needs.

“The increase in staffing is to support those notions,” Gonzalez-Castillo said. “Adding classroom assistants will help. I think we’re moving in the right direction.”

Instructional assistants could also improve the summer school experience in other ways, officials said. They said aides could make phone calls to students' parents to promote attendance as well as other special activities.

Board member Maria Leon-Vazquez asked about boosting parental engagement so students can receive help beyond the classroom. She floated the idea of PTA members providing childcare for parents' younger children so the parents could spend time in the classroom during summer school.

Terry Deloria, assistant superintendent for educational services, offered several other engagement ideas, including home visits and parent nights. She said library visits could help students develop their learning habits.

Leon-Vazquez noted that it might take several summers for the district to see empirical improvement resulting from the additional instructional aides.

“Current high school summer students didn’t have the benefit of literacy coaches in elementary school,” she said. “Hopefully, we’ll see the numbers get better.”

Officials said they plan to monitor instructional assistants' impact on students' progress and keep the school board updated.

Before the end of the discussion, board member Craig Foster wondered aloud about how summer opportunities could benefit all students in the district.

"Wouldn't it be cool to have summer programs for all kids?" he said. "Let's put it out there on our wish list as a 'one day' (in the future) kind of thing. It would give staff more opportunities for the summer. And the county library has all kinds of programs, so it's really about finding the ribbon to put it all together. It would be a huge service."

ns — no sample taken

Heal the Bay is a nonprofit environmental organization making Southern California coastal waters and watersheds, including Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. We use science, education, community action and advocacy to pursue our mission.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card™ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our swimmers are happy.

December 2014 presentation,” BBB officials said. “In addition, one other route was adjusted based on stakeholder comments received after the December 16th presentation.”

Route 16 is now proposed to extend in order to connect with Route 3 on Lincoln Boulevard.

Route 18 was altered slightly and could add service until 9:30 p.m.

Route 43 will have expanded afternoon and evening hours.

Route 44 will run every 15 minutes during the school year, rather than the previously proposed 20 minutes, thanks to feedback from Santa Monica College. It'll run every half hour in the summers.

Services changes would go into effect in August or September — though that could be pushed back if the item is heard later in the year — and BBB would finish a follow-up study at the end of 2017.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Even dangerous felons sometimes serve short sentences, but Benito Vasquez-Hernandez, 58 -- guilty of nothing -- has been locked up for nearly 900 days (as of early March) as a “material witness” in a Washington County, Oregon, murder case. The prosecutor is convinced that Vasquez-Hernandez saw his own son, Eloy, murder a woman in 2012, and the case is on hold until the victim’s body is found. The judge has given Vasquez-Hernandez two opportunities to leave, both impractical (pay a $500,000 bond or give a video deposition, but he speaks no English, is illiterate in Spanish and, said his lawyer, might be mentally incompetent). (Consolation: Material witnesses in Oregon earn $7.50 a day.)

■ The trendy St. Pauli neighborhood in historic Hamburg, Germany, suffers its share of uncouth revelers who wander out from night-clubs seeking restroom facilities but too often choose walls of storefronts and private homes, reported London’s The Guardian in a March dispatch. The solution, according to the civic group IG St. Pauli: paint jobs with an “intensely hydrophobic” product known as Ultra-Ever Dry,” which somewhat propels liquid aimed at it right back toward the source by creating an air barrier on the surface. In other words, said an IG St. Pauli official, it’s “pee back” time, and shoes and trouser legs should expect splashes.

CHILL OUT TONIGHT, SAG

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★★ A conversation will refresh your thinking and support your end goal. Someone you know might put down your thoughts and ideas. Don't engage this person in a discussion, because then it could become a bigger issue than it really is. Tonight: Discuss what is being said.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ A situation will evoke strong feelings; what you do with them will be up to you. Some of you might be very kind and sensitive, whereas others could be subtle or coy. Manifest a long-term goal through visualization. Tonight: Trust your abilities with a challenging situation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★★ You might have felt less than great upon waking up, but you'll change that scenario quickly. You tend to express what is best in you, no matter what you're up to. Use caution with bosses and anyone else whom you must answer to. Tonight: A whirlwind of energy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★ You might have little choice but to take a step back. Discomfort could emerge because of the role you must play. Use your imagination and create more of what you want. Listen to feedback, but know that you must follow your gut. Tonight: Get some extra R and R.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★★ Touch base with friends before you launch into action. Some of you might be involved in a special event or project. Your flexibility will be remarkable and could prove to be a source of inspiration. Tonight: Go to a jam session, or meet friends for munchies.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★ You might have a problem with a parent or boss. When it comes to dealing with this person, understand that it is either his or her way or the highway. Depending on what you desire as the outcome, you'll have to decide the right approach. Tonight: Be less available.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★★ Let your mind drift to other people and places. Doing so will allow you to relax and gain a new perspective. How you handle a loved one who keeps interrupting this process could be more important than you realize. Tonight: Put on some great music, or go for a walk.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Someone whom you are close to might express him- or herself in a fun and witty way, which will make you lighten up and laugh. You might have to increase your tolerance level in order to deal happily with this type of exuberant personality. Tonight: Let it all hang out.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★ You know you are off-kilter right now. Deal with what seems like an unending onslaught of people asking you for favors. You might not lose your temper, but no one would be surprised to find you in an icy, distant mood. Tap into your creativity for answers. Tonight: Chill out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ An associate will encourage you to share your thoughts and become more a part of the dialogue. Use your sixth sense with a friend who might be touchy. Know that you probably aren't ready to let others know how intuitive you are. Tonight: Reveal more of your zany side.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★★ At times you are able to break down walls and get past others' limitations. Right now, your ability to cross age and gender barriers will help you to present a different perspective. Reach out to a friend who could be distancing him- or herself. Tonight: Be a wild thing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ You could feel a little more down or burdened than you usually do. Take a few days off and plan a vacation at home. Try not to answer the phone; instead, go off and do exactly what you want. Pressure builds because of a parent or loved one. Tonight: Out to dinner.

Tuesday, March 24, 2015

This year you open up to more opinions, animated discussions and new systems of thought. As a result, your perspective on life is likely to change. You might want to update certain facets of your life. Be aware of how these transformations could affect others. If you are single, the person you meet today most likely will not be suitable in a year from now. Be open to dating, and you are likely to meet someone who could be important to your life history. If you are attached, the two of you revitalize your relationship. Your sweetie most likely will embrace the new vitality that seems to emanate from you. GEMINI is always a fun personality.

CRIME WATCH

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON MARCH 13, AT APPROXIMATELY 10 A.M.

Officers observed a man, later identified as Kirk John Douglas, 27 of Delaware, in the 1400 block of Third Street, pulling on a female victim that was sitting next to a fountain. After separating both parties, Douglas was visibly upset and refused to listen to orders given by the officer to sit for further questioning. Douglas refused to explain what happened and continued to rant that the victim was crazy. The female victim was interviewed and stated that Douglas began to move belongings she had placed around her without her consent, threw dirt at her face and went on to grab her by the legs and pull her onto the ground. He was arrested for assault and battery. Bail was set at $40,000.

The Project

The City of Santa Monica, in cooperation with Caltrans, will reconstruct the California Incline Bridge to meet current seismic standards.

The incline extends approximately 1,400 feet from the intersection of Ocean & California Avenues atop the Palisades bluffs to Pacific Coast Highway at the base of the bluffs. The bridge portion of the incline is 750 feet long.

Summary

The project entails demolition of the existing bridge and construction of a new bridge at the same location. The new structure will include a wider sidewalk and bicycle lanes. The north and south ends of the incline will remain a three-lane roadway that terminates at a signalized intersection. The new bridge will consist of a pile supported reinforced concrete slab structure with a width of 51-feet 8-inches, an increase of 5-feet 8-inches over the existing structure.

Benefits

Replacement of the bridge with a new structure, built to current seismic standards, will correct deficiencies in the bridge and make it safe for vehicular, bicycle, and pedestrian use.

The California Incline qualifies for replacement under the Highway Bridge Program (HPB) and therefore 88.5% of the cost to rebuild can be paid for with Federal rather than local funds.
