Orchestra trip canceled after Belgium bombings

Samohi students hoping to organize benefit concert

CANCELED: The Samohi orchestra have been forced to cancel their trip.

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

Members of Santa Monica High School's orchestra were scheduled to convene on campus Tuesday for their final rehearsal before a spring-break trip to Europe.

But what was supposed to be an exciting tune-up became a somber, emotional meeting as students absorbed the news of the terrorist attacks that rocked Belgium earlier that day.

As people around the world mourned following bombings in Brussels that left at least 30 people dead and scores more injured, the orchestra's anticipated journey abroad was canceled due to safety concerns.

The trip to France, Belgium and the Netherlands was nixed following discussions between orchestra director Joni Swenson, Samohi principal Eva Mayoral and Santa

Hop around town for holiday fun

Easter events abound on the Westside

BY JENNIFER MAAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

Santa Monicans who are hunting for Easter activities this week need look no further than their own backyard, as the Westside is offering plenty of ways to celebrate this egg-cellent holiday.

On Friday the Pico Branch Library (2201 Pico Blvd.) will offer an egg hunt for ages 4 and up, with spring stories, a craft and, of course, a hunt for eggs. Space is limited, but free tickers are available for pick up 30 minutes before the program. The event goes from 3:30 - 4:30 p.m.

Also on Friday is a special Good

Council approves airport leasing policy

BY MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

Approving a new leasing policy for the Santa Monica Airport left the council literally speechless Tuesday night.

After months waiting and an hour of community input, the City Council unanimously approved a new leasing policy for the Santa Monica Airport without a word of debate or comment at their March 22 meeting.

The unusually taciturn council accepted a new policy that uses six principles for evaluating leases, including harmony with airport neighbors, contributing to a sustainable airport fund, being in compliance with the city's legal rights and legal obligations, opportunities for arts/education/culture, providing procedures for administration/evaluation, and environmental sensitivity.

The decision follows council's decision last year to provide some 3-year leases to non-aviation tenants, but at that time the council moved aviation businesses to month-to-month leases and asked for more information regarding the master tenant/sublease contracts.

There are a total of 629 leases at the airport. About half are direct leases with the city, but 323 tenants are subleases from one of six master tenants. Leases can cover entire buildings, office space or just a "tie-down" location for a single aircraft.

Leases account for about 67 percent of total airport revenue and the proposal calls for all tenants to move to market-rate leases to help the airport become self-sustaining and erase a $13.1 million debt it owes to the city's general fund.

The leasing policy was presented to council without the support of the Airport Commission. Commissioners deadlocked 2-2 on the proposal last week over concerns that vague wording could create more opportunities for law-

Monica-Malibu school district Superintendent Sandra Lyon.

"It's been really heartbreaking for the students," Swenson said. "The kids are devastated. But what they were experiencing doesn't compare to the tragedies that were happening in Belgium at the time. To the credit of the kids, they understood that."

In an email to local Board of Education members and other district officials Tuesday morning, Lyon said the district had been monitoring safety issues in Europe since the November terrorist attacks in Paris.

She and Mayoral explained their decision to cancel the trip in a letter to orchestra students and parents Tuesday.

"We understand that some will be frustrated, disappointed, and perhaps even angry at this decision, and we understand," the letter reads. "However, we cannot in good conscience go forward with this trip knowing the concern being raised in France and Belgium right now over safety and security. It is just too precarious a situation."

Swenson was preparing to lead a group of 83 students, 11 parent chaperones and a few educators on a 10-day trip whose itinerary included stops in Paris, Bruges and Amsterdam. The orchestra was slated to perform March 26 at Salle Gaveau, an historic concert hall in the French capital. The musicians were then slated to stop in Belgium on their way to Amsterdam, where they had planned a March 28 performance at the world-renowned Royal Concertgebouw.

"That opportunity is once-in-a-lifetime," Swenson said. "And they're so musically ready. They're playing at their peak at sounding so wonderful."

Orchestra students and parents had spent months fundraising for the trip, the cost of which was estimated at about $400,000. Swenson said officials bought travel insurance, but it was unclear Wednesday exactly how much money the group would be able to recover.

Instead of preparing for a flight to Paris, Swenson spent Wednesday reaching out to City of Santa Monica officials as she and her students attempt to organize a charity concert to support Belgian citizens.

"The really positive spin to put on something so tragic is the kids are amazing," she said. "The kids are really learning real-world events. In some small way, they feel they can make a difference. That's our goal right now. ... If we could do our concert and make it a benefit, that would help the students feel like they can help."

SMMUSD Special Board Meeting

The Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District Board of Education will hold a special meeting on Thursday, April 7, at 4 p.m. in the Santa Monica High School cafeteria for a presentation on the districtwide findings of the recent equity review.

SMMUSD is working with Dr. Pedro Noguera and his team to develop an action plan to assist the district in taking the next best steps to address achievement gaps in the district and further current equity and access work.

The first phase of this work was an equity review, which was conducted by Dr. Noguera's team this past fall and early this year. The team visited each school in the district and gathered data to examine trends across the district so that they can make school-specific and districtwide recommendations. The team visited classrooms and spoke with staff and student focus groups.

Dr. Noguera is currently a distinguished professor of education in the UCLA graduate school of education and information sciences and previously served as a tenured professor at New York University from 2003-2015. He is a noted author of 11 books and more than 200 articles, serves as a director of the Center for the Study of School Transformation and on numerous national and local organization boards. He holds a Ph.D. in sociology from Cal Berkeley.

The agenda for the special meeting will be posted on the district's website:

http://www.smmusd.org/board/meetings.html The presentation will be videotaped and posted at www.smmusd.org

The campus is located at 601 Pico Blvd, Santa Monica. Please note that there is limited parking on the Santa Monica High School campus; therefore, members of the public wishing to attend the April 7 special board meeting will need to park off-campus, either on the street (obey parking signs) or in the Civic Center parking structure (standard parking rates apply). A map of the campus is available online at: http://www.samohi.smmusd.org/About/campus.htm

The regular board meeting for the month will be on Thursday, April 14 at 5:30 p.m. in the district office board room. The agenda for the regular meeting will be posted by April 8.

Bike & Pedestrian Safety Enforcement

The Santa Monica Police Department (SMPD) will conduct a Bike & Pedestrian Safety Enforcement Operations with focused enforcement efforts on primary collision factors involving motorists, pedestrians and bicyclists.

The police department identifies locations where pedestrian and bike collisions are prevalent, along with the violations that led to those collisions. Traffic officers will be on duty patrolling areas where bike and pedestrian traffic and collisions occur in an effort to lower deaths and injuries.

Field enforcement operations will take place on Saturday, March 26, between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Officers will be looking for violations engaged in by drivers, bike riders and pedestrians alike that can lead to life changing injuries. Special attention will be directed toward drivers speeding, making illegal turns, failing to stop for signs and signals, failing to yield to pedestrians in cross walks and similar dangerous violations.

Additionally, enforcement will be taken for observed violations when pedestrians cross the street illegally or fail to yield to drivers who have the right of way. Bike riders will be stopped and citations issued when they fail to follow the same traffic laws that apply to motorists.

All riders are reminded to always wear a helmet; those under 18 years of age must wear helmets by law. Pedestrians should cross the street only in marked crosswalks or at corners.

Funding for this program is provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Art fling and a funny Bean

EXHIBIT: Jimi Gleason's Surface and Light will continue for several more weeks.

I STOPPED INTO THE SPRING FLING at Bergamot Art Station this past Saturday for a tiny sampling of all that this unique gallery complex has to offer. Spring Fling is extra fun; the doors swing open, the crowds swell in, people gather around the complimentary bar, dine at food trucks and enjoy music - a festive way to usher in the spring art season.

I had time to visit only four galleries: William Turner, Laura Korman, RoseGallery and Lois Lambert Gallery/Gallery of Functional Art.

William Turner announced that while waiting to mount its show honoring the 90th birthday of local legend Ed Moses in late April, the stunning Jimi Gleason exhibition "Surface and Light" will continue for a few more weeks. Gleason worked with Moses in his studio for five years.

Gleason's work gleams, shimmers and shines, and in this barely lighted gallery the black floors reflect what feels like an inner glow. These are paintings, but they are made from a complex process that starts with a solid bar of silver, dissolved in concentrated nitric acid, creating silver nitrate (a solid). Additional technical processes create silver oxide, later dissolved in ammonium to create the final compound that he applies to the canvas.

In short, he turns a precious metal into a liquid then back into a solid again, and creates canvases that seem to radiate of their own accord. They're made in lustrous deep colors, glowing golds, shades of blue, teal/green/aquamarines and burnished coppers. Then he divides the canvases into varying geometric planes and shades of those colors. It's a nearly spiritual experience viewing these works in this space where they seem to float.

Check with William Turner Gallery www.williamturnergallery.com for days and hours. Don't miss this show now that it's been extended.

GOING IN CIRCLES

Laura Korman Gallery is a relatively new entrant at Bergamot. I had been approached a while back to tell her story; she's the daughter of long-time Carol Burnett sidekick, comedian Harvey Korman.

But the art is the story after all and Korman's collection of artists includes a new one to me, Randall Stoltzfus, whose show is titled "Penumbra." His meditative, repetitive circular patterns are hand painted in oils, adding layers of gold leaf and other materials until the surfaces evolve their own unique texture and depth.

Stoltzfus was brought up in the Mennonite community and he spent time as artist in residence at an insane asylum in Italy. Perhaps these experiences influenced his work, which to me feels contemplative, peaceful and nature-based. More information at www.laurakormangallery.com.

MANY FACES

I was tickled pink to rediscover work by Japan's Cindy Sherman, photographer Tomoko Sawada. I'd written about her in these pages when her "Omiai" series of self-portraits - shot in commercial wedding photographers' studios in Japan of Sawada posing in many different traditional styles of hair, makeup and post-wedding garb - went on view at the Getty Center.

She's an exciting artist with a wild sense of personal style.

At RoseGallery, her series "Facial Signature" features 300 images of her as varying interpretations of the East Asian woman. These small portraits are tightly packed, and installed wall to wall on three sides of the gallery. They look black and white, but vary in tiny ways, with a pink tinted cheek, an orange tinged hairdo, different lengths and hair styles side-swept or with bangs, smiling, pouting or frowning, all inspired by Sawada's experiences in New York of being misidentified as Chinese, Korean or Singaporean. She hopes that viewers will come away questioning their stereotypes of East Asian women.

The exhibition is on view through April 9; details at www.rosegallery.net.

Commissioner Lael R. Rubin reiterated her concerns to the council, saying the leasing policy makes no explicit acknowledgement of aviation uses at an airport and that a minor tweak to include recognition of aviation tenants as part of the mix would insulate the city from future lawsuits.

"It's clear the City needs a policy, it's clear that market rates should have been in place a long time ago, but this is a great opportunity to do it right," she said.

Aviation advocates opposed the policy, saying it was discriminatory and potentially harmful to the city.

Stacy Howard spoke on behalf of the National Business Aviation Association, a national advocacy organization. She said the policy was tainted by its incorporation of misconceptions about the City's legal obligations that could violate federal standards.

"We at NBAA encourage you, as responsible community leaders, to assure the leasing policy you may approve here tonight makes provisions for multi-year leases at reasonable terms for both aeronautical and, where appropriate, non-aeronautical airport tenants without discrimination and with rates and charges comparable to the city's recent appraisal," she said. "Therefore preserving precious community resources and airport business, jobs and family incomes they support."

Residents were overwhelmingly in favor of the leasing policy. Many saw the leasing policy as a means of regulating behavior that residents deem to be dangerous or detrimental to their lives.

Robert Rigdon said a leasing policy was necessary to protect the city from ongoing and potential legal challenges over the airport. He cited the recent arguments before the Ninth District Court and ongoing hearings in Washington, D.C. as evidence the city should have a defined leasing policy.

"I think that the city really needs to take that step or you're doing nothing and at this point, that would be disastrous because you have a bunch of former tenants sitting out there that don't' know what to do," he said.

Zina Josephs spoke on behalf of the Sunset Park neighborhood association. She said the neighborhood fully supported the leasing policy as a means of reducing pollution, noise and potential traffic.

Sunset Park resident Alan Levinson said a leasing policy that can shape uses at the airport is vital to the residents, even under threats of legal action.

"We must have faith that we prevail because an undersized jet port in a residential neighborhood makes no sense and it never will," he said.

After the meeting, Councilwoman Sue Himmelrich said she trusted staff to implement the policy appropriately.

"With so many applications on the horizon, we needed a policy or it could have led to random, inconsistent decisions," she said. "There are always concerns, but I trust Nelson [Hernandez] and Rick [Cole] to implement the policies in a consistent manner that will give due consideration to our concerns about our residents, our land uses, our revenue, and our goal of ultimately turning the airport into a park.

Councilman Kevin McKeown said the new policy doesn't differentiate based on the type of business. He said new leases would be based on impacts to neighbors, environmental concerns and fiscal responsibility.

"The Council has unanimously adopted a policy predicated on protecting nearby residential neighborhoods from the impacts of inappropriate and potentially unsafe uses at the airport," he said. "We are ending master leases, and allowing tenants to reapply directly and individually to the city as landlord. The real estate leasing company who will handle this for us needed clear direction from the Council on how to evaluate the applications, and we have now given that clear direction."

MY LIFE AS A BEAN

Embarking on its 30th anniversary season, the local and well-respected Pacific Resident Theatre in Venice is happy to announce a short extension of the very popular one-man show "Safe at Home," Orson Bean's amusing and touching autobiographical play.

A long-time standup comic, stage performer, TV and movie actor, he's an old pro, this guy. And at age 87, he's still capable of bringing the house down, between the old school, rimshot-style jokes (slightly off-color and politically incorrect) and the poignant story of life with his dysfunctional family and how he overcame it.

And, oh yeah, he also performs some conjuring and card tricks, including audience participation, to share some of the skills he employed to earn a living with a magic act when he was a young man.

After the ups and downs of his life, maybe the real magic is the journey he takes to find his way to lasting love and faith through simple acts of gratitude.

Orson Bean "Safe at Home" has been extended through April 10, Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 3 p.m., at Pacific Resident Theater, 703 Venice Blvd. For tickets visit www.pacificresidentheatre.com or call (310) 822-8392.

Once forgotten, a California primary could sway 2016 contest

MICHAEL R. BLOOD
Associated Press

Imagine Ted Cruz walking precincts in Haight-Ashbury, the hippie homeland in Nancy Pelosi's district. Or Donald Trump stumping in Compton, the West Coast capital of hip-hop.

In California, expect the unexpected.

A possibly decisive presidential primary June 7 is going to take Republican candidates where they haven't been before, since they need to collect as many delegates as possible toward the nomination. California awards 172 delegates, the most of any state.

Home to 1 in 8 Americans, California is usually an afterthought in presidential elections, with its June primary arriving long after nominations have been settled. But an erratic Republican contest this year, reordered by the Trump insurgency, has transformed the nation's most populous state from campaign also-ran into potential kingmaker.

California's primary amounts to 54 separate races on a single day — one in every congressional district across the sprawling, diverse state, and one statewide. The winner in each district collects three delegates; then, the candidate who gets the largest number of votes statewide claims a bonus of 13 more.

That means a solidly Democratic district covering the heavily Hispanic neighborhoods east of downtown Los Angeles has the same importance as one in the traditional Republican heartland of Orange County, once the home of Richard Nixon.

Republicans account for a paltry 7 percent of the voters in the 13th Congressional District, which includes Oakland. But it awards three delegates to the winner, just like the 22nd District, a Republican fortress in the state's farm belt.

"Anybody who tells you they have a good idea of how this is going to turn out is just lying to you," said Robert Molnar, an adviser to Steve Poizner, a former state insurance commissioner who is leading Ohio Gov. John Kasich's campaign in the state.

In effect, two Republican campaigns are unfolding — one for the primary, one for the makeup of delegates who may end up deciding on a nominee at a contested convention.

DUELING OVER DELEGATES

Although the clear front-runner, Trump faces iffy odds trying to reach the threshold for the nomination — 1,237 delegates — before the June 7 primaries, also being held in New Jersey, Montana, New Mexico and South Dakota.

The bar is even higher for Cruz, who would need to take about 8 of 10 of the delegates remaining to clinch the nomination. Numerically, it's out of reach for Kasich.

If no one clinches, the decision would fall to delegates at the Republican National Convention in Cleveland in July possibly with multiple rounds of voting.

Accordingly, campaigns in California are aggressively vetting potential delegates — 318, three for every congressional district, with three alternates. Then, they need 10 at-large delegates who would comprise the statewide bonus, with the state GOP chairman and two national committee members.

It's not just a list of names. Campaigns want loyalists.

Cruz campaign officials say if no candidate emerges as the winner after the first convention ballot in July, California delegates would become free to vote for whom they choose. However, when the delegates get cut loose might be open to dispute — state law says it's after two ballots.

Steve Frank, a deputy political director for Cruz, said he wants to make sure his delegates will be committed to the Texas senator on the first vote, the second vote and beyond, if needed.

Typically, prospective delegates must answer a string of questions — much like a job interview. Campaigns are guarding against people with wavering commitment who could jump to other candidates in a contested convention. They also want to weed out people with backgrounds that could embarrass the candidate, such as criminal convictions.

In a convention fight "you want somebody you know will stand up to the pressures," said Frank, a longtime conservative activist. "I want people who are stronger than me."

To help assemble his delegates, Trump has lined up strategist Ted Costa, who's best known for pushing the 2003 recall election that led to the ascendancy of Arnold Schwarzenegger as governor that year. He said in an email that "I'm just interviewing potential delegates" for Trump.

JUNE JOUSTING

On primary day, Republicans will be aiming at a relatively narrow slice of California voters.

The GOP primary is open only to registered Republicans — about 4.8 million voters, out of more than 17 million overall. Republicans most likely to vote in primary elections tend toward the party faithful — conservative in their politics, mostly white and over 55 years old.

Molnar says Kasich, governor of swing-state Ohio, will be strong in coastal districts often favorable to Democrats. Cruz has demonstrated appeal to very conservative voters and born-again Christians. Trump's populist message has resonated with blue-collar whites, and those fed up with the Washington establishment.

Trump has drawn support from outside the Republican mainstream, and nearly 1 in 4 voters in California is registered to no party at all. But those independents, along with Democrats, will be shut out of the GOP race unless they change party registration.

On the Democratic side, Hillary Clinton could have the nomination wrapped up before the California primary.

But quirks in the GOP race mean it's possible the candidate who wins the statewide vote might not get the most delegates overall.

Once a reliable Republican state in presidential elections, California today is dominated by Democrats. The party holds every statewide office and both chambers of the Legislature, along with a 2.7 million edge in registered voters. The last significant push by a Republican to win California was in 2000, when George W. Bush spent more than $15 million, then lost to Democrat Al Gore by 12 points.

Michael Schroeder, Cruz's state political director, said it's possible only a few thousand Republicans will show up in some heavily Democratic districts.

Though small in number, those voters "will have a far greater impact and it's going to force Republicans to campaign in neighborhoods they historically haven't campaigned in," he said.

"I think California is going to matter for the first time in our lifetime," Schroeder said.

Boxer asks president to probe Southern California gas leak

California senators want President Obama to investigate a huge natural gas leak that forced thousands of people from their Los Angeles homes.

Sen. Barbara Boxer announced Wednesday that she and Sen. Diane Feinstein have asked the president to convene a multi-agency task force to investigate the cause of the four-month leak from a storage well.

Boxer says the task force should also determine whether the Aliso Canyon storage facility is safe to continue operations.

The gas leak was sealed in February. Thousands of Porter Ranch residents left their homes out of concern that the leak might affect their health and about 2,600 remain out.

The Southern California Gas Co. has said there's no evidence of a health risk but Boxer says residents need to be reassured it's safe.

Cross-border tunnel found in Southern California

U.S. authorities say they have discovered a secret cross-border tunnel in the California desert.

Authorities scheduled a news conference Wednesday afternoon in a residential area of Calexico, a city of about 40,000 people located 120 miles east of San Diego.

A media advisory from federal authorities says the tunnel links Calexico with the large industrial city of Mexicali, Mexico, but provided no details.

Dozens of tunnels designed to smuggle drugs have been found along the U.S.-Mexico border in recent years. Some have been equipped with hydraulic lifts and electric rail cars.

Mexico's Sinaloa cartel has long controlled drug trafficking along the border in California's Imperial Valley, which offers easy freeway access to Los Angeles and Phoenix.

Los Angeles Rams will be subject of HBO's 'Hard Knocks'

The Los Angeles Rams will be the subject of HBO's "Hard Knocks" this summer.

As they move from St. Louis to Southern California, the Rams have agreed to let HBO's cameras film their first training camp in the LA area. The NFL announced the latest subject of the popular documentary series Wednesday.

"This is an exciting time for our franchise," Rams coach Jeff Fisher said. "Hard Knocks will be an outstanding way to bring our fans into our training camp and preseason, and give a glimpse of the hard work and dedication of our players, coaches and staff as we prepare for the 2016 season."

The hour-long series kicks off its 11th season Aug. 9 and airs each subsequent Tuesday, with a Sept. 6 finale.

"Hard Knocks will give fans an in-depth look into our young team and provide us a unique opportunity to tell the story of this historic season," Rams Chief Operating Officer Kevin Demoff said.

A 30-person crew from NFL Films will shoot more than 1,500 hours of footage over the course of the series. Camera and sound crews will have unlimited access to the players' and coaches' meeting rooms, training rooms, living quarters and practice fields.

"Hard Knocks" launched with the Baltimore Ravens in 2001, followed by the Dallas Cowboys in 2002. The series resumed in 2007 with the Kansas City Chiefs. The New York Jets, Cincinnati Bengals, Miami Dolphins, Atlanta Falcons and Houston Texans have also been featured. The Cowboys and Bengals did it twice.

The last six teams featured on Hard Knocks have equaled or improved their win total.

Friday service at the First African Methodist Episcopal Church by the Sea (1823 Michigan Ave.). The service, "Good Friday: 7 Last Words," will take place at 12 p.m.

On Saturday, March 26, the Santa Monica Junior Chamber (Jaycees) will host the 24th annual Peter Rabbit Day at Douglas Park (2439 Wilshire Blvd.) This free community event will run from 9 a.m. - 12 p.m. Families will enjoy egg hunts (separated by age groups), egg dying, sack races, face painting, balloon animals and more. The Westside Family Health Center will host a healthy eating game and the Easter Bunny and local law enforcement will be making a special appearance. Families are encouraged to come early, as activities are first come, first served.

Grown ups can also get in on the fun on Saturday during a natural egg dyeing (and eating) class at 1450 Ocean Ave. from 1 - 3:30 p.m. Chef Rachael Narins will be there to help attendees learn how to dye and decorate eggs - for Easter or any occasion - with all-natural ingredients, such as beet juice, coffee, turmeric and more, with the farmers market as an inspiration. Each student in the class will learn to design and stencil their eggs using classic techniques, arranging them into a basket to be used as a gift or centerpiece. During the class there will also be a discussion on safe food handling and the chance to make a simple recipe for an open faced egg salad sandwich with creme fraiche and spring herbs. Students should bring an apron, but gloves will be provided. Attendees will also need an empty egg carton or basket to transport your creations home.

And on the big day itself, Del Frisco's Grille's will be taking on the task of serving up an Easter brunch. Restaurant-goers will enjoy a 16 oz. prime rib for $42 for brunch, lunch or dinner, and can top it off with a lemon cake jar for $9. Classic brunch items like the Grille Benedict, fried chicken and waffles, red velvet Belgian waffles, and the new breakfast burrito will also be available as Easter treats. There will also be an Easter egg hunt for the littlest brunch-goers.

University of California approves anti-Semitism statement

LISA LEFF
Associated Press

A University of California committee on Wednesday cited anti-Semitism as a form of intolerance that campus leaders should challenge but rejected a more far-reaching denouncement of any criticism of Israel's right to exist.

The committee of the university's governing Board of Regents voted unanimously to send the statement on to the full board for final consideration on Thursday.

The statement opposing anti-Semitic behavior has been under discussion for a year amid a wave of impassioned campus activism that has sparked tensions between Palestinian rights supporters and strong allies of Israel.

Jewish organizations such as the Anti-Defamation League, Jewish Federations of North America and American Jewish Committee had lobbied in favor of the document written by an ad hoc working group. The board appointed the group after complaints that an earlier version drafted by UC administrators failed to explicitly condemn anti-Semitism.

The panel approved what is being called a "Statement of Principles Against Intolerance" after softening language in an accompanying report that listed "anti-Zionism" — the rejection of Israel's right to exist — as another kind of discrimination that didn't belong at the university.

Critics of that proposed declaration, including faculty and student groups, had argued that the initial report language stating, "Anti-Semitism, anti-Zionism and other forms of discrimination have no place at the University of California" could be used to stifle free speech and scholarship.

"Anti-Zionism names a political viewpoint that individuals have a right to express under the First Amendment," Judith Butler, a UC Berkeley comparative literature professor, told the board.

Regent Norman Pattiz, who served on the task force that drafted the statement and report, suggested amending it to read, "Anti-Semitism, anti-Semitic forms of anti-Zionism and other forms of discrimination have no place at the University of California."

Pattiz said the change would make clear the university recognizes a distinction between legitimate criticism of Israel and actions that cross the line into inappropriate demonization of Jewish people.

The system-wide principles were drafted in response to pro-Israel groups that demanded more be done to protect Jewish students amid heightened activism on behalf of Palestinian rights.

Student Regent Avi Oved, a UCLA student who is active in Jewish affairs and served on the advisory group, supported amending the report.

"Anti-Zionism should not be conflated with anti-Semitism," Oved said.

Oved added, though, that students with strong ties to Israel are sometimes subject to slurs that would not be tolerated if they were directed at other minority groups.

If adopted on Thursday, the declaration would make the University of California the first public university system to reaffirm its opposition to anti-Semitic behavior since campaigns for academic and economic boycotts of Israel have taken root on many U.S. college campuses.

The draft considered Wednesday described the university as an institution dedicated to the free exchange of ideas and a community where "anti-Semitism and other forms of discrimination have no place."

Pro-Palestinian groups and faculty members with research specialties in the Middle East were upset that anti-Semitism was the only type of intolerance specifically mentioned in the principles at a time when Muslims in the U.S. increasingly face discrimination.

They remained concerned that the slight change to the introductory report made Wednesday did not go far enough.

"The Regents' new policy offers no clarity on how to determine when criticism of Israel or anti-Zionism crosses a line into anti-Semitism, and was predicated on the erroneous assumption that support for Palestinian rights is inherently anti-Semitic," Tallie Ben Daniel, a coordinator for the pro-Palestinian group Jewish Voice for Peace, said.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON MARCH 18 AT APPROXIMATELY 4:40 A.M.

Officers responded to a call of a robbery that just occurred in the 100 block of Santa Monica Boulevard. Officers contacted the victim who stated that he was using his cell phone when he was approached by suspect Joshua Cyprian. Cyprian asked the victim to use his phone. When the victim declined Cyprian attempted to forcefully take the phone. Cyprian then began to punch the victim in the face until the victim fell to the ground. Once on the ground, Cyprian kicked the victim in the head multiple times, causing great bodily injury. Suspect Cyprian ran from the scene. Officers located Cyprian a short distance from the crime scene. A positive field show up, along with traces of fresh blood on the suspect's clothing led to his arrest. Cyprian was booked for felony robbery. Bail was set at $50,000.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★★★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Needed to Take His "Job" Seriously: A man broke into the ATM at a Bank of America in Phoenix on March 1 but was in police custody a few minutes later. He walked away from the machine cleanly, but happened to spot actor Bill Murray on the street (he was visiting friends in the city) and could not resist stopping to chat with Murray about the movie "Zombieland." The delay allowed witnesses to the robbery to catch up to the man and identify him for police.

■ An option for suicide "with elegance and euphoria" is how Lithuanian-born Ph.D. candidate Julijonas Urbonas (London's Royal College of Art) described his "Euthanasia (Roller) Coaster," currently (2011) on the drawing board. Urbonas' model of "gravitational aesthetics" would be a one-third-mile-long, 1,600-foot-high thrill ride engineered to supply 10 Gs of centrifugal force (a spin at about 220 mph) to induce cerebral hypoxia, forcing blood away from the head and denying oxygen to the brain. Euphoria (and disorientation and anxiety, but not pain) would likely precede the brain's shutdown. Urbonas insisted that users would have the option through the first two minutes of the three-minute ride to rethink their decision and bail out (or else to push the final "FALL" button).

Say "yes" to an offer, Aries

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You notice that others change their tune far too quickly for your taste. Be happy that those around you can integrate with ease. An element of the unexpected runs through your day. Flex with the moment. Your actions will make someone feel valued. Tonight: Say "yes" to an offer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Focus on your day-to-day schedule. If you're feeling as if life is a bit boring, ask yourself how you can revitalize your daily life. What changes will or can you make? Your creativity might be stymied at the present moment. Loosen up and relax. Tonight: Let the fun begin.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ You could feel as if you need some time to slow down and take another look at what is happening around you. Confusion surrounds a family matter. Know that everything is changeable; just ride the wave to the end. You have the energy you need. Tonight: Out late.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You could be very tired and worn out by yesterday's lunar eclipse. You might want to take some time off to recuperate. You get hit hard enough by Full Moons and New Moons, and a lunar eclipse is no exception. Slow down some, at least for now. Tonight: Veg a little.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Conversations tend to bring agreement between you and others. You might be surprised by how much a particular conversation has changed. You might be unusually creative when you hit a hassle. Tonight: Remain sensitive to the costs of continuing as you have been.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You are in a period where you will land on your feet no matter what. Don't abuse your luck, and you will be fine. A conversation with a family member could become very loving, as long as you keep your cool. Don't go overboard. Tonight: Make it your treat.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ You have the wherewithal to deal with any problem that heads your way. An emotional domestic matter could come forward. You easily will be able to handle whatever comes up, as long as you can avoid a power play. Tonight: Create a scenario that pleases you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Step back and come to terms with what is happening around you. You will understand your reaction once you look at the facts surrounding a power play. Your response needs to come from your creativity rather than be automatic. Tonight: Get a good night's sleep if you can.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You might come to an understanding of what is possible with the support of a key person. An adjustment must be made in order to pave the path to where you want to go. You are likely to be surprised by a family member's response. Tonight: Make it your treat.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ Separate your personal issues from what is going on. You seem to be quite tired and withdrawn at the moment. How you see a personal matter could be coloring how you feel. Let go of a personal issue when you're at work or out in the world. Tonight: A must appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Sometimes, when you are taken by surprise, you have a tendency to be too reactive. Use caution in key conversations with a sibling or neighbor. You might notice how erratic this person can be. Tonight: Read between the lines when engaged in important communication.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Refuse to do anything halfway. You know where you are heading and why, but a money matter could slow you down some. Don't make the assumption that this financial matter is negative; it simply might be time-consuming. Tonight: Make time for a special person.

Thursday, March 24, 2016

This year many possibilities head your way. Though you generally act independently and create your own luck, others seem to want to bestow favors upon you. Recognize, however, that those involved might have certain expectations. Make your choices with this awareness. If you are single, you'll choose to expand your immediate circle of friends. Look to fall 2016 for the type of connection you dream of. If you are attached, the two of you interact well, although you'll find that your significant other wants more attention. Schedule a long-discussed trip together. LIBRA energizes when in contact with you.
