Rotary donations

ROTARY: Saturday, March 20, two dozen Santa Monica Rotarian's and some of their family members volunteered for our Rotary Day of Service at John Adams Middle School (JAMS). In partnership with the JAMS PTSA, they painted and planted and brightened up the school grounds for students who will be back on campus in the coming weeks.
"The timing for this project could not have been more ideal in the end, as the kids will be returning imminently and to see their school with fresh paint and plants, well, that is a great indication they are loved," said Cindy Fitzgerald, parent volunteer and PTSA Executive Board Member in charge of beautification at JAMS.

The newly launched Santa Monica Animal Shelter Foundation (SMASF) is on a mission to provide Santa Monica's shelter with the resources it needs to rehabilitate abandoned animals and is looking for community members to help.

According to SMASF Board Chair Carmen Molinari, help can come in many forms be it volunteering time or skills, donating money or items, or even becoming a board member.

"It's incredibly rewarding to get involved and help save lives,"

CRISIS: The Clinic is working on the mental health component of the crisis.

CLARA HARTER
SMDP Staff Writer

As LA's homeless count increases every year, so does the number of unhoused individuals with acute mental health issues, creating what Venice Family Clinic calls a "humanitarian crisis" on the city's streets.

Venice Family Clinic is the largest street medicine provider and offers a range of supportive mental and physical health services to an ever growing homeless clientele.

Dr. Coley King, VFC's director of homeless health care, says the County's failure to provide adequate shelter to move people off the streets is a contributing force behind this crisis.

Council paves way for possible development

BRENNON DIXSON

An affordable housing project could replace a city-owned garage after City Council approved a resolution Tuesday that declared 1318-1320 4th Street as exempt surplus land.

Council also declared the City-owned property at 1636 5th Street and master-leased property at 1333 4th Street, which is sub-leased by the City to Chase Bank through April 2022, as surplus land during a trio of motions that sought to bring the City into compliance with a new version of the state's Surplus Lands Act.

The master-leased property at 1333 4th Street was previously approved by Council for a hotel, retail, office and open space development known as the "The Plaza" after a competitive request for proposal process; however, Council terminated the negotiations for The Plaza development in December 2020.

The new version of the Surplus Lands Act requires the actions from governments who own land so entities wishing to purchase the land for certain uses have the opportunity to make a bid. It does not distinguish whether a short-term lease constitutes a disposition of property and staff deemed it necessary to declare the Chase Bank parcel as surplus land this week.

The declaration of surplus status does not force a sale and neither does the declaration of exempt surplus land, according to Interim City Attorney George Cardona. It only serves as a prerequisite to proceeding with negotiations with the individuals

Free, Live Virtual Shows on Blue Origin, the Gaia Mission, and Spring Sky Highlights for Binoculars and Small Telescopes in April

Santa Monica College's John Drescher Planetarium continues its Friday evening events in April 2021 with free, live virtual shows presented online at smc.edu/planetarium. The friendly presentations will provide updates on Blue Origin activities, the European Space Agency's Gaia mission, and spring sky highlights to enjoy through binoculars and small telescopes.

The Friday evening shows are at 8 p.m. and are preceded by a streamlined, virtual digest of the popular Night Sky Show at 7 p.m., offering the latest news in astronomy and space exploration. The shows include the chance to chat with the planetarium lecturers and ask astronomy-related questions.

The planetarium is exploring a variety of ways to present its shows while the Santa Monica College (SMC) campuses are closed due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Currently, the planetarium is using the Zoom platform. To attend the shows, the Zoom software version 5.0 or higher must be installed on the viewer's computer. A free download is available at zoom.com.

The April 2021 shows are:

• Friday, April 2, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): "Blue Origin – On the Radar at Last?" – Senior Lecturer Jim Mahon. Blue Origin, one of Amazon founder Jeff Bezos' companies, has been developing its own reusable rocket engines and boosters, test flying a suborbital passenger capsule for commercial use, and working on a lunar landing system. The company also won a contract to supply booster engines to United Launch Alliance for the new Vulcan launch vehicle. That same engine will power Blue Origin's New Glenn, scheduled for first flight late this year. Free. Zoom at smc.edu/planetarium.

• Friday, April 9 & 23, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): "Gaia: Earth Mother Watching the Stars" – Associate Lecturer Sarah Vincent. The stars of the Milky Way dance to the Music of the Spheres. The European Space Agency's Gaia mission, named for the Greek goddess of Earth, is mapping the positions and motions of the closest, brightest stars to an accuracy never before achieved. Show will take a look at the Milky Way through the eyes of Gaia. Free. Zoom at smc.edu/planetarium.

• Friday, April 30, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): "Binocular and Small Scope Highlights of the Spring Sky" – Senior Lecturer Jim Mahon. With the constellations of winter giving way to those of spring, small telescope and binocular users have new, seasonal Deep Sky targets available. The show will present some of the best, with close-ups and low-power views to simulate how they look in small telescopes and binoculars. Then, the show will switch to the freeware desktop planetarium program Stellarium and "locate" those targets in a virtual star party. Guests are invited to ask about locating a galaxy, cluster, or nebula they believe to be in the sky and bright enough for small instruments. (Note: This show repeats May 7, with Sunday Matinee May 2.) Free. Zoom at smc.edu/planetarium.

More information is available online at smc.edu/planetarium or by calling 310-434-3005. All shows subject to change or cancellation without notice.

Letter to the Editor

By Paul Scott Send comments to editor@smdp.com

Because Kevin McKeown does not drive an EV and does not have to deal with finding a charger, he has a fundamental misunderstanding of what the Tesla Supercharger station means to the EV community. He claims that the property owner and Tesla should cobble together a housing project with some chargers and the city would allow such a project to go through. The reasons the Tesla site needs to be completed as a surface lot with 62 stations are several.

Visibility: people seeing available fast charging stations will know that if they buy an EV, they can easily get a charge. A housing development would not allow enough chargers to replicate the throughput of a gas station. This is a crucial point as the Tesla facility is designed to imitate the convenience of a gas station.

Solar: the lot will be beautifully landscaped with a large solar carport shading the cars beneath. The unmistakable connection of seeing cars directly fed by sunlight is impossible to miss. The contrast with the gas station down the street will be evident as well. A large battery onsite will be fed from the grid to provide energy to chargers through the night. Clean, renewable electricity will be purchased for all needs beyond what the solar produces. Constructing housing would minimize or eliminate the solar component.

Timing: any decision involving a combined housing development would take several years to complete. If that happens, Tesla will bail on Santa Monica and go somewhere else. They understand the existential calamity that is climate change and that this facility needs to go somewhere now, not a scaled down facility several years from now. We need thousands of these facilities throughout the country. This was to be the first, and if allowed to be built, it would easily prove the concept as thousands of people currently burning gasoline, like most of our city councilors do, could then buy EVs and use clean energy instead.

The owner of the property has indicated he does not want to build housing. This has been known for years. Any moratorium on building this site will mean the space will instead be used for selling pumpkins and Christmas trees in the fall, the only thing the lot has been used for over the past decade. Wasting time on the chance you can convince the owner to change his mind works counter to the City's climate and transportation goals.

Over the past 20 years, Santa Monica has installed around 200 chargers, mostly the slower Level 2 version. The chargers that will be used on this site are fast enough to charge a car in about 30 minutes. The charging power of this one site is over ten times the combined power of all 200 public chargers spread throughout Santa Monica. Tesla can build it in 6 months and they will pay all the costs. This site will allow thousands of people who can easily afford EVs, but lack the charging, to make the switch. We needed this facility years ago, but now that someone is willing to build it, Our city leaders think the better idea is to kill it.

Bottom line: there are dozens of good housing sites in Santa Monica, but only one site that will work for Tesla. A competent city council should be able to provide sufficient access to EV charging AND build housing.

Community Members Invited to Participate in Virtual Public Hearing and Survey to Learn About the Wireless Communications Facilities Ordinance Update and Give Input

The City of Malibu invites all community members to participate in the City's virtual public hearing during the Council meeting on Monday April 12, and take the survey to learn about the City's Wireless Communication Facility (WCF) ordinance update, ask questions and give their feedback.

"I hope everyone in Malibu will give their input so we can ensure that wireless facilities will meet the communications needs of the community while protecting neighborhood character, the environment and other priorities that residents identify," said Mayor Mikke Pierson.

The City is updating its Wireless Communication Facility Ordinance that regulates the permitting of wireless facilities in public rights-of-way, establishes design and development standards, and standardizes permit conditions for wireless facilities in public rights-of-way. The ordinance is meant to ensure that the City maintains a balance of ensuring adequate wireless cellphone and internet access throughout the community while protecting the environment, public health and community character.

The code update is also necessary to bring the City's Ordinance into compliance with federal and state laws that have been enacted since the adoption of the original ordinance in 2003.

As part of the outreach efforts for the WCF ordinance update, the City invites all residents take the new online survey, available through April 5 at https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/malibuwcf. The survey results will be presented to the City Council during its April 12 public hearing on the WCF Ordinance.

During the April 12 hearing, Council will consider the draft WCF ordinance update, as well as the recommendations made by the Planning Commission during its March 1 public hearing. The Commission recommended the draft ordinance be approved as amended. The Commission's recommendations are available to view at https://www.malibucity.org/DocumentCenter/View/27692/Planning-Commission-Resolution-No-21-21.

In advance of the City Council's April 12 hearing, City staff will present a proposal to map all WCFs in the City, together with the associated costs, to the Administration and Finance Subcommittee.

The Council had directed staff on January 11, 2021 to amend the agreements to include the mapping of existing wireless facilities in the City as part of Council's review of the agreement for wireless application reviews.

The viewing and commenting instructions for the April 12 hearing, as well as the link to the survey and project background information are available on the project webpage at www.MalibuCity.org/WCF.

SMC Continues Distinguished Scientists Lecture Series with Biomedical Engineering Expert Peter Galie April 8

Santa Monica College continues its Distinguished Scientists Lecture Series this spring with a special presentation by Dr. Peter Galie on "Vascularization of Self-assembled Peptide Scaffolds for Spinal Cord Injury Repair." The presentation includes an audience Q&A.

The presentation is free, and will be held online as a live virtual event at 11 a.m. on Thursday, April 8. A Zoom link will be posted with the listing April 8 on the SMC Events calendar at smc.edu/calendar. To attend, the Zoom software must be installed on the viewer's computer. A free download is available at zoom.com.

Galie is an associate professor of Biomedical Engineering at Rowan University and a former postdoctoral researcher in the Physiology department at the University of Pennsylvania. His primary area of expertise is the fabrication of three-dimensional vascular models that both investigate the contribution of hemodynamic factors to pathology, and form the basis of vascularized scaffolds for regenerative applications. Currently, his work is supported by the American Heart Association and the National Science Foundation.

The event is sponsored by the SMC Associates (smc.edu/associates), a private organization that funds speakers and special programs on campus.

More information is available by calling the SMC Office of Public Programs at 310-434-4100.

Lions Roar

By Susan DeRemer
Send comments to editor@smdp.com

As the Santa Monica Lions Club waits patiently for people to become vaccinated and the ability to safely resume our community activities, we have continued to look for ways to help the Santa Monica community. As part of a Lions clubs International effort to provide food for those in need, our the SM Lions members contributed $400 to Feeding Families – SM. Knowing how food donations can vary from week to week, we decided to give them money to be used to fill out whatever food needs they had within a given week.

Feeding Families SM was established at the beginning of the pandemic when Suzie Crocker, a pastor from Hope United LA, contacted Cheryl Byrne with some pre-packaged food she wanted to offer to any families Chery knew that might need it. Cheryl, along with Marie Espino and Karen Miller, reached out the Grant Elementary School's community liaison, and the rest is history. They have continued to distribute weekly boxes of fresh and packaged food items to families in need throughout the pandemic, growing from a small group that worked out of Marie's garage, to a larger group of volunteers working out of Hope United LA to assemble the boxes. If you are interested in learning more, volunteering and/or donating, go to their Facebook site - facebook.com/feedingfamiliessm.

Monthly regular evening meetings have resumed for the SM Lions, however, they are still by Zoom to keep everyone safe. Earlier this month we were happy to have long-time resident and professor at Santa Monica College, Terry Green, as our speaker. He shared his experiences growing up in Santa Monica and what kept drawing him back to his favorite community. We learned how his father's teaching career led to his own love of teaching, both at John Adams Middle School and Santa Monica College (known then as Santa Monica Community College). One of his proudest contributions to education was creating developmental math to make learning more accessible for all students. It was an enjoyable evening and he is a good storyteller with a great sense of humor.

If you think you might want to join us the 2nd Thursday of each month at 6 p.m. for a Lions meeting, please reach out to Yoriko Fisher at yorikofisher@gmail.com or 443-883-1101. We welcome guests, at no charge, and for those that are interested in joining, we are offering special memberships rates during the pandemic.

who have expressed interest with the city's RFP process.

"So, if Council's desire is to maintain (318-1320 4th Street) as a parking lot and not proceed with negotiations with the affordable housing developers to see what the agreement or what terms can be reached for the development of affordable housing, then you shouldn't declare it exempt. But if you wish staff to explore with the affordable housing developers who have responded to the RFP to see if terms can be arrived at on which the city would proceed under the RFP to develop it as affordable housing, then before staff can engage in those conversations and negotiations, it needs to be declared as exempt surplus land. Otherwise, staff would be precluded from participating in those negotiations," Cardona said.

"It's exploration rather than giving a definitive answer," Councilmember Phil Brock said before he and his peers unanimously supported the three motions

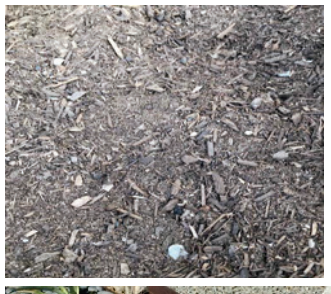

Since staff anticipates the expiration of the master-lease in February 2026, city leaders will likely return to Council to review redevelopment opportunities for the previously proposed Plaza site and seek Council's declaration of all of the parcels comprising the site as surplus land or exempt surplus land, depending upon Council direction for future redevelopment.

ANIMAL SHELTER

said Molinari, who has volunteered at the shelter for over 10 years. "Any way that you contribute you will affect an animal's livelihood and enrich the life of that pet."

The Santa Monica Animal Shelter, in partnership with the Animal Control arm of the Santa Monica Police Department, rescues animals and helps them find new homes. Due to the City's Covid-19 budget cuts, the shelter lost significant funding and staff members and needs help from the community to provide the best care possible for its animals.

While the shelter is a City run organization, the Santa Monica Animal Foundation is an independent non-profit designed to support the shelter's work. It was formerly known as Friends of the Santa Monica Animal Shelter and has recently rebranded with a new mission statement and fresh set of board members.

"We want to ultimately encourage the community of Santa Monica to adopt the shelter themselves," said Molinari. "Even if they can't adopt an animal or give money there are many ways that they are able to help accomplish our mission for the shelter."

Currently the foundation is trying to raise money to provide the shelter with a dog grooming tub and table, exam table with a lift and lamp, and a treadmill.

The two tables will help the shelter provide essential healthcare and grooming services for rescued animals while the treadmill will provide an exercise outlet for the larger dogs. While there isn't enough staff capacity to walk all the animals everyday, treadmills are an essential tool in keeping the dogs healthy and in a good temperament.

Community members can learn more about how to get involved with the shelter and make a donation at linktree.com/santamonicaanimalshelterfdn.

The foundation is also looking for new volunteer board members who have a deep love for animals and want to take on an active role supporting the shelter. Useful skills include experience in fundraising, non-profit management, marketing, legal services, entrepreneurship, and grant writing.

All Santa Monica residents are eligible and those interested in applying should email a resume and cover letter with the subject line "SMASF Board Member Application" to apply@smasf.org.

Other ways to help out include volunteering time at the shelter, donating items like blankets or toys, or volunteering a skill like graphic design or social media management. There are many different avenues to get involved and Molinari encourages all residents to reach out to the foundation.

"Santa Monica is an amazing community of people that really believe in the community and want to get involved in the community," said Molinari. "Helping out at the shelter is such a personally rewarding thing to do because it's from your heart."

HOMELESS

itself, is a highly traumatic experience," said King. "So those individuals who are in the streets in general will suffer from some type of post traumatic syndrome, develop depression, develop anxiety, develop addictions, which can lead to many other challenges."

While some individuals fall into homelessness due to mental health issues, King said that this is only the case for a minority of unhoused individuals.

From his years of experience working on the streets he has found that the majority of people fall into homelessness due to socioeconomic factors. He said that life on the streets will then lead to or exacerbate mental illness and addiction issues.

Venice Family Clinic has a range of strategies to tackle these issues. Their street medicine teams have been bringing service directly to homeless individuals for years, while a newly launched mobile medicine van allows them to perform lab tests, examinations, and vaccinations on site.

Unfortunately, these services can only do so much to stem the rising tide of mentally ill homeless individuals.

In order to address this issue the L.A. County Department of Mental Health is trying to build a new mental health response and treatment system. The department director Jonathan Sherin has big goals for this transformation, but said the department lacks the resources to tackle the full scope of the issue.

"We have a humanitarian crisis in our country. Los Angeles County and the City of Los Angeles are the epicenter of that humanitarian crisis," said Sherin. "How dare we not at the federal level and the state level and the local level make this a disaster response of the highest order?"

Part of the problem is that the burden of responding to mental health crises has been largely placed on law enforcement officers, while this is neither their primary role nor a job they have been trained for.

Sherin calls for a three step revamping of the County's approach to mental health.

The first step is creating a regional call center designed to respond to mental health crises. Next, health and human services' response needs to be ramped up so that psychiatric mobile response teams can be deployed in real time. The final piece is providing individuals experiencing a mental health crisis with a place to go that is not limited to jail or an emergency room.

"We have a mental health pandemic on our hands and are seeing so many different challenges that I believe are just beginning to ratchet up," said Sherin. "We as a country and as a state must treat mental health and addictions challenges with the same level of resources that we do physical health challenges."

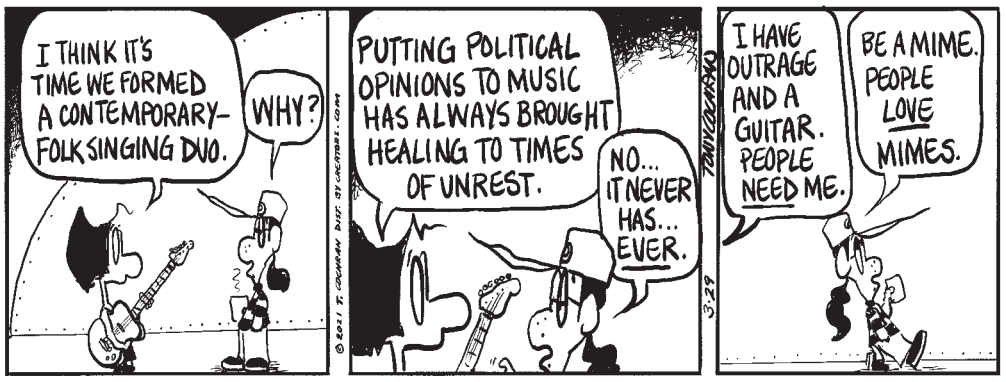

While both Coley and Sherin noted that awareness of the importance of funding mental health services is growing, they fear this attitude shift is not happening fast enough.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (MARCH 29)

You don't need the trophy, but you'll get it anyway. You'll often be running things, bringing people together and facilitating projects that couldn't fly without what you do. You've a knack for finding people who amp up the joy for everyone, so even in the thick of the work, there's much to warm and buoy the heart. Cancer and Scorpio adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 7, 1, 33, 37 and 14.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Seek new challenges, as the problems that interest you are gratifying work, whereas if you wait to see what problems life brings, it's much less empowering.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Your brain isn't the only thinker in your body. And today, the wisdom worth heeding can't be cognitively conjured. It's the voice of your heart, which makes itself known with a rush of feeling and bodily reflex.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The day lacks order, something to embrace. Outsized egos, big wills, blundering innocents and colorful agents of chaos -- these are all luxuries, believe it or not. On quieter days, you'll be nostalgic for this lunacy.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You're often an open book, but right now, you'll benefit from a thicker veil of privacy. Not everyone needs to know your history or even your recent whereabouts. Make people earn your trust; don't give it freely.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). To hear yes is nice, though "no" is a tremendous blessing. Sure, "no" isn't what you wanted two seconds ago when you asked the question, but neither is it rejection. "No" just means there's magic for you elsewhere.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). One of the many reasons you're a good leader is that you don't require people to be a certain way in order to earn your respect. You respect them how they are and hope for the best, and it usually turns in your favor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You're looking for an indefinable something, and though you may be asked to explain your search, doing so would be a waste of time. Instead, peruse as many options as you can and trust that you'll know it when you see it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You'll specialize in embracing complexity, making sense of it for yourself and then explaining the more involved matters in a way that makes it accessible to others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Wordlessly and without realizing it, you make promises. Yes, there are expectations they mentally create, somewhat but not entirely out of your control. With greater awareness, you'll get ahead of it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Performances don't fail on the stage. They fail in the audience's head. As you aim to influence, focus beyond your act and into the minds of others. You'll succeed to the degree that you can see it from their point of view.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Emotions seep into the air, and everyone around breathes them in. People will feel your sadness, your joy... some will catch the contagion, which is why maintaining a balmy inner climate seems like a responsibility.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You'll be dealing with people who don't really know what they want, and even the ones who think they do may not be happy when they get that. Listen through people's wants and into their problem. Is it something you can solve?
