Local judo coach tours Rio ahead of Olympics

Saudi woman training under Jim Nieto has chance to compete at 2016 Games

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

Jim Nieto is a committed judo teacher, a longtime instructor at the local YMCA and an advocate for gender equality in sports. Recently, though, he's been exploring a new possible title: Olympic coach. Nieto recently returned to Santa Monica from Rio de Janeiro, where he toured the new athletic facilities and experienced the city's gridlock firsthand. "Traffic was unbelievably slow because of the construction," Nieto said of his visit to the 2016 Olympic Games host city. "They have the craziest drivers. Nobody uses a turn signal, including the buses. Imagine having a bus cut you off. You're thinking, 'Why isn't anybody honking?' But they don't

Broad Stage announces changes in leadership

Jane Deknatel named interim executive director

BY JENNIFER MAAS
Daily Press Staff Writer

While unveiling its programming slate for the 2016-2017 season, The Broad Stage this week announced that Jane Deknatel, who has been with The Broad Stage for six years, most recently as director of development, has been appointed interim executive director and that former executive director, Wiley Hausam, has now become senior artistic advisor. Hausam, who spent less than a year as executive director, is now moving back to New York for personal reasons, according to a press release provided by The Broad. But with his new title, The Broad made it clear he will still be involved in some capacity. "[Hausam] has curated our 2016-2017 season thus far and his new title is quite descriptive of how we will be working with us – he will advise of at a senior level on attractions for the future," Richard Kendall, board chair of The Broad Stage, wrote in an email. "He is actually changing the way he works with us," Kendall said. "Moving back to New York is a personal decision of Wiley's. We wanted to be respectful of that decision." When discussing the replacement

Southern California getting rain, but not much

Associated Press

Showers fell here and there around Southern California on Friday as the first of a series of low pressure systems moved overhead, but rainfall totals remained very low in a region that is largely lagging well behind normal in the fifth year of drought. A more significant system off the coast was expected to offer a better chance of widespread rain as it moves eastward into the region on Saturday, the National Weather Service said. The weekend system was expected to have some chance of thunderstorms but rainfall would be light to moderate, the NWS said. Forecasters said there was a possibility of locally heavy rain, which

Santa Monica Pier

New Ferris wheel lighting package for its 20th birthday celebration

In light of its 20th Birthday celebration, Pacific Park will begin work on a new Ferris wheel lighting package in early May. The West Coast's only amusement park on a Pier also has a variety of birthday activities planned for the world-famous landmark leading up to the Ferris wheel reveal. Pacific Park opened on the Santa Monica Pier on May 26, 1996.

Standing 130 feet above the Pacific Ocean, the solar-powered Ferris wheel will kick off summer with a brilliant and shiny lighting package that costs nearly $1 million. The new Ferris wheel lighting package will increase colors displayed from the current 8 to 16.7 million color value combinations, offer higher resolution, greater color depth and faster "frames per second" display speed.

The Ferris wheel's new programming and display software upgrades increase imaging speed from 3 to 24 frames per second to display dynamic, custom, computer-generated lighting entertainment in the evenings.

"Pacific Park's all-new, one-of-a-kind Ferris wheel lighting package will further enhance the quintessential Southern California theme park and beach experience for our guests and the Santa Monica community," said Jeff Klocke, Vice President at Pacific Park on the Santa Monica Pier. "Pacific Park is a very unique two acre amusement park that helps attract more than 8 million visitors annually to the Pier and we look forward to celebrating our 20th Birthday with everyone that visits."

The Pacific Wheel's LED lights are mounted on the Ferris wheel's structure including the 40 spokes and hubs. The new lighting package will feature state of the art LED components where one tri-color LED replaces three RGB LEDs, which provides even greater efficiency and savings on electricity. The existing eco-friendly LED lights already provide 75 percent greater energy savings than most Ferris wheel's traditional incandescent bulbs.

Pacific Park's new Ferris wheel lighting package is produced by Eworks Pro based in Orlando, Fla.

"Electronics technology is continuously advancing. In the past 8 years, micro-processors have gotten much faster, and computer chips get smaller and smaller. LEDs have gotten smaller too and generate more light output than ever. Our latest control technology allows for the display of 16.7 million color value combinations, whereas the old system had only 8 colors," said Lars Koch, Vice President at Eworks Pro. "For Pacific Park, this primarily means that the illumination on each of the 40 spokes of the wheel will go from 15 pixels to 64 pixels. Therefore, the new lighting package will have 2,560 pixels, which is 1,960 pixels more than the old system."

Eworks Pro introduced the world's first fully computerized LED lighting package Ferris wheel in 2004 and continues to lead the market with highly reliable and innovative LED products for the amusement industry. Eworks Pro installed the current lighting system on Pacific Park's Ferris wheel in 2008, which provided the transition from 5,392 incandescent bulbs to the 160,000 energy-efficient LED lights.

In January Pacific Park began its 20th Birthday celebration with the unveiling of a new logo and brand platform that includes a new visual identity for its advertising design, collateral development and in-park signage program, among other marketing activities. The Park also introduced a new vision statement that reads: "Our purpose is to provide an authentic California amusement experience, where guests of all ages play together in a safe and unrivaled setting."

New Roads School

Grammy Award-winning music at The Moss Theater

New Roads School will present 'the dean of American cellists,' Lynn Harrell, along with acclaimed violinist Helen Nightengale and pianist Joanne Pearce Martin in concert at the Moss Theater, 3131 Olympic Boulevard, on April 13. Proceeds from the event will benefit New Roads School.

Tickets for the concert, which include a pre-event champagne reception, along with a limited number of VIP tickets to the post-concert dinner with the artists, are now available for sale. The chef-prepared dinner with wine pairings will be held at Tastemade Studios, 1816 Berkeley Avenue., contiguous to the Moss Theater and New Roads campus.

"New Roads is incredibly proud to welcome Lynn, a brilliant instrumentalist on a global scale, to the Moss Theater, along with Helen and Joanne, both accomplished virtuosos. It has long been our vision to bring this exceptional level of artistic programming to the Santa Monica community," said Luthern Williams, Head of School.

The evening's performance will include Claude Debussy's Sonata for Cello and Piano, Beethoven's Sonata #3 op. 69 for Cello and Piano and Mendelssohn's Piano Trio #1 in D minor op. 49.

Lynn Harrell's presence is felt throughout the musical world. A consummate soloist, chamber musician, recitalist, conductor and teacher, his work throughout the Americas, Europe and Asia has placed him in the highest echelon of today's performing artists.

Pianist Joanne Pearce Martin was appointed by Esa-Pekka Salonen in 2001 as the Los Angeles Philharmonic's Keyboardist. A Steinway Artist and graduate of Philadelphia's Curtis Institute, she has been featured with the LA Phil on multiple occasions with conductors.

Beginning her violin studies at the age of two, Helen Nightengale made her solo debut at 10 with the Louisville Orchestra under then music director Jorge Mester. She has held various symphonic positions, including concertmaster positions

From 2010-2014, Helen and Lynn were Artist Ambassador's for the Save the Children Foundation's HEART(Healing through Education and Art) campaign. As a result of this appointment, they formed a non-profit, "HEARTbeats Foundation" (www.heartbeatsforchildren.org) which raises money and awareness about the positive effects of music on children when used therapeutically.

Higher lead levels found in children near Exide plant

Children living near the now-closed Exide Technologies battery recycling plant had higher lead levels in their blood than those living farther away but lead paint in older homes may play a big role in the findings, according to a state study released Friday.

The California Department of Public Health analyzed blood lead levels from nearly 12,000 children under the age of 6 who were tested in 2012 - the last full year that the suburban Los Angeles plant was operating.

Around 3.6 percent of the children living within a mile of the plant had elevated lead levels and the percentage fell to around 2.4 percent for children living farther away, the study found.

Both figures are higher than the 2012 figure of around 2 percent for children in Los Angeles County as a whole, the report said.

The percentages were for children who had 4.5 micrograms of lead or more per deciliter of blood.

However, the study found that the impact of living closer to the plant was smaller when researchers factored in the age of the children's homes.

"This appears to be because older housing is more common in the areas closer to the Exide facility," said a news release from the state Department of Toxic Substances Control, which requested the study.

"Older housing often has lead hazards because lead content in paint was not strictly limited until 1978," the release said.

The study found that fewer than 2 percent of the children tested had elevated lead levels in areas where most homes were built after 1940, the release said.

Messages to Exide media representatives seeking comment were not immediately returned.

Local, state and federal officials had cited Exide for decades for emitting too much lead and arsenic and for violating hazardous waste laws both in and around the 15-acre plant and on the highways where its trucks traveled.

Exide, which filed for bankruptcy in 2013, closed the plant last year. The company agreed to pay about $50 million to clean up the site and several hundred nearby homes

The Department of Toxic Substances Control has spent about $7 million to remove some 10,000 tons of lead-contaminated soil from communities a few miles southeast of downtown Los Angeles in a heavily industrial area.

In February, Gov. Jerry Brown spending $176.6 million for further testing and cleanup of thousands of homes that may be contaminated by lead. The state Senate approved the funding on Thursday.

A growing need for LUVE

Editor:

Someone named Daniel Shenise suggests in the April 6 issue of the Daily Press that Santa Monica residents should just accept all the overdevelopment and that we should plan for visitors from China or Dubai, not current residents. He then compares renters to college kids relying on rent control and says he doesn't care about mass evictions.

Who is this guy? A guy who does architecture and design work on massive luxury properties. He is pimping his own bottom line. Don't listen to anything he says.

In the same issue, Judy Abdo and Santa Monica Forward attempt to discredit the LUVE initiative. I almost stopped reading when Forward said LUVE "flies in the face of Democratic planning." LUVE addresses the total failure of Democratic planning. Residents have screamed for years until they were purple in the face that we don't want the development, only to be ignored as the SMRR machine, Planning Commission and City Council cram it down our throats.

And don't be fooled by the "affordable housing" mantra – it is just shilling for SMRR so they can increase their political power. We cannot build our way out of our problems, and our quality of life has already been substantially eroded.

LUVE is the only thing between us and further erosion of our quality of life.

Re: California's minimum wage

Editor:

This proposal is just plain outrageous! In comparison, I live on Senior Citizen SSI; less than $11,000 a year.

The new $15/hour minimum wage translates to $600/week or $31,200/year.

Does this mean SSI recipients like me can look forward to receiving three times our current payment?

How else can we keep pace with the overpaid minimum wage earners?

Judge grants Sheen's ex-fiancée temporary restraining order

A judge has granted Charlie Sheen's ex-fiancée a temporary restraining order after she accused the actor of threatening her.

A Los Angeles Superior Court judge approved the stay-away order Friday based on Scottine Ross' application stating she was fearful of the actor because he purportedly threatened her life and because of two alleged incidents of domestic abuse.

Los Angeles police say they're investigating Sheen after receiving a criminal report last week. They haven't identified the alleged victim or the exact nature of the investigation.

Celebrity news site RadarOnline.com has said it was served with a warrant seeking audio that is purportedly of Sheen threatening to bury Ross, whose relationship with the actor ended in 2014.

Emails to Sheen's publicist and lawyer seeking comment were not immediately returned.

LOS ANGELES

Vin Scully Avenue is now the main street into Dodger Stadium

Despite some opposition, the Los Angeles City Council on Friday officially renamed Elysian Park Avenue after the revered announcer, who's been the voice of the Dodgers for 67 years.

The street between Sunset Boulevard and Stadium Way will be formally dedicated Monday.

But a new main entrance sign was installed Friday that reads "Welcome to Dodger Stadium" and includes the address "1000 Vin Scully Avenue."

Some community groups opposed the idea not because of any problem with Scully but because Elysian Park is also a beloved historical institution and they didn't want to see the name go.

Scully, who's 88, has been doing play-by-play for the Dodgers since 1950 when they were in Brooklyn.

He's announced this will be his last year.

The value of Santa Monica Airport

AN OPEN LETTER TO SANTA MONICA City Council:

It is almost axiomatic that virtually any piece of public infrastructure is noisy, smelly or unsightly. While the Santa Monica Airport may not meet all of the above criteria, it has obviously created many detractors. But let us look at it from the point of view of infrastructure, as a facility designed to serve the needs of the community, in this case by providing aviation services.

You know that the airport has been here for over 90 years and during that time it has hosted the Douglas Aircraft Co. factory, now long gone. That factory was one of the most important facilities in Santa Monica, putting the city on the map. It also provided much of the financial wherewithal to the city to grow and expand and provided employment and housing for thousands of people in Santa Monica and surrounding cities. In fact, it was so successful that the city has moved on and become home for other types of businesses. It is understandable that people moving into the Santa Monica/West Los Angeles area since 1973, when Douglas plant closed, have little appreciation for its financial contribution or its contribution to aviation, aerospace and the war efforts during World War II, Korean War and Vietnam War.

Santa Monica Airport has been and is a vital part of the aviation infrastructure in the Los Angeles area. There are many other airports in the area, so what is the big problem in closing down Santa Monica? With the closure of any airport, the airports in the surrounding area will see an increasing load of traffic, and if we continue down this path, pretty soon nobody wants to have an airport in his neighborhood or city. What do we do then?

As I mentioned before, almost any piece of infrastructure is going to have its opponents because of noise, smell or unsightliness. In most communities the infrastructure facilities are usually spread around so that no single area has to carry more than its fair share. So how does the City of Santa Monica stand in its share of infrastructure? How many of the following does the city have: power plants, sewage treatment plants, oil drilling rigs, oil refineries, prisons, landfills or smoke stack industries? Edison's power plant is in El Segundo, as is the sewage treatment plant. There are no oil rigs that I know of, and the nearest oil refinery is in El Segundo, where the local residents can enjoy its sights and smells. The nearest prison is in Downtown Los Angeles and landfills are even further away. And there is no heavy industry in Santa Monica since the departure of Douglas Aircraft Co. So would you say that the city is carrying its fair share of the infrastructure load?

Isn't this elitism in the extreme that you are not willing to tolerate anything that offends your refined senses and dump it on others? You know, I have yet to meet a single person who did not willingly move into this area. And if they didn't know that the airport was there, shame on them!

You are probably well aware that America's infrastructure has been in decline for some time. The American Society of Civil Engineers has done some estimates and our infrastructure is in urgent need of upgrading. And yet, here you are ready to tear down a significant piece of this infrastructure, which not only is a local but a national asset! And all of this to please a few malcontents and developers who stand to make a real killing when the airport property is developed. What we need is some serious political will from our politicians - not weathervanes.

In addition, have you not considered what this will do to the local traffic? I used to live just on the Los Angeles side between Bundy Drive and Centinela Avenue and between Interstate 10 and Ocean Park Boulevard. I'd like to invite you to come and check out the traffic one day in the late afternoon when people get off work in Santa Monica. I remember what it was like 50 years ago. We had parking restrictions on our streets so that Douglas employees would not park here. But the traffic flowed well and there were very few serious accidents. I don't think that most residents here want a repeat of the Playa Vista development on the former Hughes airport with its huge population density and attendant increase in traffic load.

Over 50 years ago, Sam Yorty got elected mayor of Los Angeles with the promise of doing away with separate collection of trash and metal cans. That collection had been perhaps the first serious attempt at recycling. Well, that decision was finally overturned many years later and now trash, recyclables and garden waste are all collected separately, saving huge volumes of material from going into landfills. That regrettable delay in conservation was and remains Sam Yorty's legacy.

Thirty years ago, then-Congressman Henry Waxman succeeded in stopping the Metro Red Line expansion to the Westside because of objections from the residents of Beverly Hills. They did not want the great unwashed descending on their beautiful city. Well, that decision has now been reversed, even by Mr. Waxman. But I seriously doubt that I will see this line operating to the Veterans Administration, much less to the beach at Santa Monica, in my lifetime. How much time has been lost? How much easier would the traffic on the Westside and Santa Monica be if that subway line were running today? So that remains Mr. Waxman's legacy.

Your decision to support the closure of Santa Monica Airport will go down in history in the similar manner. The only difference is that this time, that decision soon will be impossible to reverse, unlike those that I mentioned above. Is this the kind of political legacy that you want to leave?

S.I. HUME is a Los Angeles resident, Naval Aviator, former Marine Corps officer and helicopter pilot who served in Vietnam.

would bring the possibility of mud and debris flows from recent burn areas.

A wet Saturday could also have implications for horses running in the $1 million Santa Anita Derby at Santa Anita Park in Arcadia as well as the Formula DRIFT auto racing event on the streets of Long Beach.

Showers were forecast to taper off on Sunday, followed by a return of a chance of light rain on Monday as yet another low pressure system moves over the area.

Snow showers down to 6,500 feet and accumulations at elevations above 7,000 feet were possible, but the Southern California ski and snowboarding season was wrapping up. At Big Bear Lake in the San Bernardino Mountains, the Snow Summit resort was closed for the season and neighboring Bear Mountain said Sunday would be its last day.

The next chance for precipitation comes Thursday but models disagree on whether it will be light showers or heavy rain, the weather service said.

While the El Nino warming phenomenon in the Pacific Ocean brought rain and snow to California this winter, most of those storms hit northern areas including the Sierra Nevada while bypassing the southern half of the state.

As of Friday, downtown Los Angeles had recorded less than half the normal 13.67 inches of rain that normally falls to date. San Diego has fared better, with a deficit of little more than 2 inches.

ment of Hausam with Deknatel, Kendall detailed her history with The Broad.

"Since 2010 Jane Deknatel has been at The Broad Stage, first as a consultant and advisor to the executive director, and then for two years as director of development and advisor to the Board, and now as executive director," Kendall said.

"Before joining us she had a storied career at CBS, NBC as vice president for movies and mini-series, and then at HBO where she created what we now know as HBO films.

"But most of all she knows to build consensus amount patrons, donors, and board members, and to be able to move an idea, a project, and an organization forward. That is a great skill to have."

The Broad also announced that Dale Franzen, who led The Broad Stage from 2008 to 2014, is curating a new series of performances for the new Founding Director's Series this season.

for finding the best, tentpole attractions and she knows our audience since Dale put together the seven seasons of programming that attracted that audience," Kendall said. "I am sure the audience will be stimulated and very pleased by the Founders Series programming."

Kendall believes Franzen's series will fit right in with the announced programming for the 2016-2017 season.

"The new Founding Director's Series joins the great programming we just announced, the on-going Celebrity Opera Recital Series supported by the Lloyd E. Rigler-Lawrence Deutsch Foundation, Beethoven, Bagels and Banter series made possible by a gift from Barbara Herman, and a jazz series that my wife and I support – so it will find itself among an already strong slate," he said. "It is a thrilling place around here every performance night!"

honk. They're used to it."

Nieto's trip to Brazil had everything to do with Joud Fahmy. A 22-year-old woman from Saudi Arabia who has been in Santa Monica for more than a year, Fahmy, the daughter of a diplomat, is training with Nieto for a shot to compete in the Olympics in judo as a representative of her home country.

It's why the Saudi Arabia Olympic Committee paid for Nieto to travel to Brazil and familiarize himself with the judo venue and the various facilities.

Nieto's trip was the latest indication that Fahmy, despite her relative lack of experience in the sport, has a real chance to participate in the upcoming Olympics.

According to Nieto, Fahmy is not officially qualified as an athlete because she has not placed at an international tournament. He said there's a small possibility that she might not be able to compete.

But, Nieto said, countries with historically small Olympic contingents are sometimes able to enroll "wild-card" entrants in certain sports.

"They wanted to bring me all the way to Rio, and they paid for my trip," he said. "It's not set in stone yet. But it sounds good."

There's hope for Fahmy embedded in the 2012 Olympics, when Saudi Arabia was represented by a woman for the first time in the history of the Games. And the shortage of Saudi women competing in judo means Fahmy might have a chance to do what Wojdan Shaherkani did in London three years ago.

Fahmy, a Santa Monica College student who has been training in judo for less than a year, is busy gaining experience. In December she took first place in her division at the Judo Winter Nationals, an event in Los Angeles featuring more than 700 total competitors. In February she participated in the Taishi Judo Club's annual tournament at Cerritos College. And earlier this month she took third place in her division at the National Collegiate Judo Association championships at San Jose State University.

Fahmy is working hard on her conditioning and learning how to defend against arm-bars, Nieto said. She now has a personal trainer to build on her skills and stamina.

During the collegiate championships, Fahmy rolled through her opponents to rebound from a subpar showing in her first match.

"She's still a beginner, but she's doing extremely well," Nieto said.

From Ronnie to a fan: more than 100 Reagan letters for sale

JOHN ROGERS
Associated Press

Long before he was president of the United States or even governor of California, Ronald Reagan had an army of star-struck movie fans who wrote him letters — and who to their surprise often got a personal reply.

For one writer in particular the replies added up to well more than 100 as Zelda Multz evolved from teenage president of the Ronald Reagan International Fan Club to a lifelong literary friend of the man who, 40 years after she first wrote to him, became the nation's 40th president.

His letters to her range from brief thank-yous for birthday cards Multz sent him to expressions of frustration at being relegated to roles in movies he knew weren't very good to expressions of heartbreak at the dissolution of his first marriage and to anguish over the failing health of his elderly mother.

"I wish she didn't need to suffer so much all the time, but you don't hear her complain, always smiling and saying, 'I'm fine.' That's my Mom Nelle," Reagan says in one handwritten letter.

As the years pass, the letters come to include the future president's thoughts on politics, his concern for the health of Multz's own elderly mother and his joking responses about his mortality, noting in one missive that he prefers to think of his 81st birthday as the 42nd anniversary of his 39th.

They are variously signed "Ron," "Ronnie" and "Dutch," the latter a nickname reserved for close friends.

"This shows a completely different side of his life, it shows Ronald Reagan the man," says Profiles in History President Joe Maddalena, whose Calabasas-based auction house is putting the collection on the block April 18. "It's his personal views on life, relationships, families and, think about it, there are even fan-club cards signed by the guy. It's kind of surreal."

The collection also includes more than 350 photos, among them candid shots of Reagan performing such mundane chores as working in his yard.

It is being sold intact by a historical documents collector who declines to be identified, Maddalena said. He said the collector acquired it a few years ago from Multz, who still lives in New York, where she became a Reagan fan when she saw him playing undercover G-man Brass Bancroft in the 1940 spy thriller "Murder By Air."

"I just thought he was cute," Multz, 89, said with a laugh as she spoke recently by phone. "It was just one of those little girlie things."

So she wrote him a letter, not really expecting a reply.

Four years later she was in charge of Reagan's international fan club and the two would maintain a steady correspondence for decades. Multz and another longtime pen pal, Lorraine Wagner, would also meet Reagan several times, in California, New York and even in his hometown of Dixon, Ill., where he and his mother invited them to join him in a parade in his honor.

Wagner's own collection of letters is at the Reagan Ranch Center in Santa Barbara, donated by a buyer who acquired them through a previous Profiles in History auction.

Maddalena says Multz's archive is the only other known such collection and has never been displayed publicly. A couple of the letters were referenced in Kiron K. Skinner's 2004 book, "Reagan: A Life in Letters."

The pair's correspondence slowed during Reagan's White House years, and letters during that time appear robo-signed.

But it picked up again after Reagan left the White House in 1989 and continued until he was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease in 1996.

"I got a beautiful letter from him before it really set in," said Multz, who still vividly recalls its last sentence: "And Zelda is a name I'll always remember."

Negligence and Auto Accidents

To have a valid car accident claim, you must first determine the negligent party or parties that caused the car crash. You may suspect that another driver, pedestrian, motorcyclist etc. acted carelessly, but cannot identify what traffic laws they violated. A skilled car accident attorney, however, can examine police reports and state traffic laws and speak to witnesses to determine who was at fault for your motor vehicle accident.

Tip: Act Quickly

If you seek legal advice, it's important that you do so as soon as possible after an accident. You're more likely to get the compensation due to you if your attorney is able to act quickly. Our state attorney's are available 24/7 to discuss your claim.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON APRIL 1 AT APPROXIMATELY 6:50 P.M.

Officers responded to the 2400 block of Virginia Avenue in response to a radio call of a possible assault with a deadly weapon. The victim and suspect were friends. While arguing, the suspect produced a knife and placed it on the victim's throat, stating that she could kill him if she wanted to. The suspect, later identified as Jozelle Renee Hall, 45, of Los Angeles, then left the location but returned shortly thereafter. While outside the premises, the suspect attempted to pry off the partially open sliding windows, causing damage to the property. The suspect was arrested on scene without incident, and the knife was recovered from suspect's purse. The suspect also provided false personal information to officers while being booked. Hall was charged with assault with a deadly weapon, vandalism and false personation. Bail was set at $30,000.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★★★★★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

TODAY IN HISTORY

- 1585- The expedition organized by Sir Walter Raleigh departs England for Roanoke Island (now in North Carolina) to establish the Roanoke Colony.
- 1609- Eighty Years' War: Spain and the Dutch Republic sign the Treaty of Antwerp to initiate twelve years of truce.
- 1682- Robert Cavalier de La Salle discovers the mouth of the Mississippi River, claims it for France and names it Louisiana.
- 1782- American War of Independence: Battle of the Saintes begins.
- 1860- On his phonograph machine, Édouard-Léon Scott de Martinville

- makes the oldest known recording of an audible human voice.
- 1865- American Civil War: Robert E. Lee surrenders the Army of Northern Virginia (26,765 troops) to Ulysses S. Grant at Appomattox Courthouse, Virginia, effectively ending the war.
- 1867- Alaska Purchase: Passing by a single vote, the United States Senate ratifies a treaty with Russia for the purchase of Alaska.
- 1909- The U.S. Congress passes the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act.
- 1914- Mexican Revolution: One of the world's first naval/air skirmishes takes place off the coast of western Mexico.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

- In March, Foreign Policy magazine noted that someone had created a “hot male migrants” account on the photo-sharing application Instagram: “Someone is going through photos of migrants and refugees, saving ones of men thought of as hot.” (Many of the men, of course, have survived harrowing journeys and even lost friends and family members while fleeing Syria and other war-torn lands. Wrote one Instagram user, of a man who had turned her head, “He’s gorgeous. Am I going to hell for thinking that?”)
- North Carolina State University scientists, in a “proof of concept” study published in March, claim they have found a promising alternative for eliminating certain infections -- even when no known antibiotic will work. The solution, the researchers write, is to genetically modify maggots (which are well-known to feed naturally off of infected tissue) to gobble up the infections and release, as “waste,” human growth hormone (as they showed in the study could be done with a strain of green bottle fly maggots).

MAKE NICE TONIGHT, VIRGO

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★★ You'll decide that you can face a major transformation and that it will turn out OK. You will wake up with confidence. Whatever is on your mind, pursue it, but don't be surprised if you have a different reaction later in the day. Tonight: No one can complain of boredom.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★★ Dealing with an important matter could cause you to detach and understand more of where someone else is coming from. Your willingness to walk in someone else's shoes will touch that individual. Tonight: You could experience a sudden and perhaps provocative insight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★★ Beam in more of what you want. You might need some personal time. Make sure you get it ASAP, because your popularity could become a drain and a joy at the same time. The pace will pick up very soon. Tonight: A friend could give you quite a jolt. Get into the moment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★★ Zero in on a long-term goal, which might be as simple as throwing a party and inviting all your friends and family. You might be surprised by how well everyone gets along. Expect a sudden happening to alter your plans. Forget maintaining control. Tonight: Go with the flow.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★★ Be aware of how much responsibility you are taking on. Don't be afraid to make an adjustment and share plans with those who deal with you on a daily basis. Unexpected news could be quite a surprise. Tonight: Pace yourself; you have a lot of ground to cover!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★★ Reach out to someone at a distance. This person means a lot to you and is full of wisdom. A child or a new friend could be quite changeable, and might not be the person you had in mind. Allow greater give-and-take with a close friend or loved one. Tonight: Make nice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★★ Deal with a key person in your life on a one-on-one level. You'll have an opportunity to grow past the obvious. You might want and/or need a change around your home. Perhaps some spring cleaning is in order. Stay centered. Tonight: Get ready for surprises to happen!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★★ Defer to others, and know full well that a random chain of events could occur. Know that you can always reverse your direction and assume control. Don't worry so much about a personal decision. You could be out of sorts when dealing with others. Tonight: Adjust plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★★ You might need to worry less about a matter that involves those in your daily life. You can control a situation only so much. In fact, the more controlling you become, the more unpredictable happenings that could occur. Maintain your sense of humor. Tonight: Out late.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★ You could be more creative than you realize. You always seem to come up with a response or a solution. Perhaps because of a conservative streak, you tend to dismiss that intuitive, responsive aspect of your personality. A family member is full of surprises. Tonight: Go for it!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

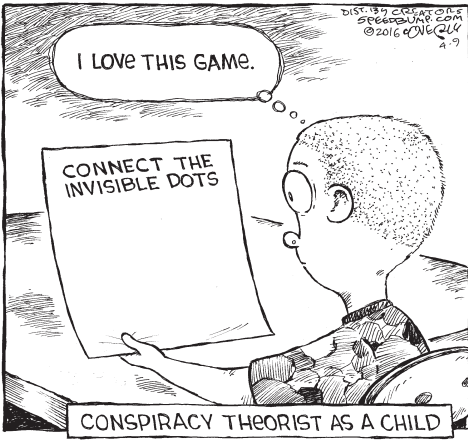

★★★★★ You might be in a situation where you can be as responsive as you want with a family member regarding an issue that evolves from your domestic life. Your actions ultimately could stun others, but you respond and think on a different level. Tonight: Strap on your seat belt!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★★ A friend pushes his or her way into your life, demanding your time. Make it your pleasure. Happiness surrounds communication, especially with a close friend who is like a brother or sister to you. Use extreme caution with finances. Tonight: Expect the unexpected.

Weekend Edition, April 9-10, 2016

This year you experience success in your daily life, whether it is at work or when pursuing a new hobby. People enjoy seeing you and visiting with you. You might decide to transform a major aspect of your life. If you are single, you are capable of popping in and out of other people's lives. Go for excitement when dating, as that is what you are going to have. If you are attached, your relationship could go through a lot of changes, partially because of your need for excitement. Why not plan on a spectacular trip together instead? TAURUS can be so boring.
