Santa Monica Fire Department graduates seven new firefighters

BY BONNIE ESLINGER
Special to the Daily Press

SMO The Santa Monica Fire Department bolstered its ranks Saturday with the graduation of seven new recruit firefighters.

City officials, friends, family and fellow firefighters filled the Museum of Flying at the Santa Monica Airport to see the now-probationary members of the department receive their badges and be sworn into service.

Before the event, the recruits — Clark Coble, Zigifredo Hernandez, Brandt Loucks, Brian Sathre, Austin Tuer, Charles Walker, and Nicholas Zuppardi — gathered outside in the parking lot and circled in prayer. It was something they started right before their first test, the men said, and the exercise always seemed to calm nerves and bring them closer together.

They came from different places: a few were already working firefighters for other cities and counties, one brought an emergency medical technician background, another a police officer.

When they marched into the museum before the waiting crowd they were in perfect unison.

"Who are we?" one called out. "SMFD!" the others proudly replied.

The recruits were put through a rigorous 12-week academy that started each day at 5:45 a.m. with a grueling physical workout, Captain Sean Van Sluis told the audience. Then there was classroom instruction and afternoons running through strenuous drills, going up and down ladders, handling the hoses and water, and simulating fire and medical emergency operations. The men were also trained for hazardous materials, auto extractions, urban search and rescues and wildland firefighting.

"These firefighter are definitely prepared," Van Sluis said.

Fire Chief Scott Ferguson told the men the department was ready to put them into action.

"While you've had it tough in the academy you know the real work begins after you've put the badge on your uniform," Ferguson said.

Ferguson and other fire officials who spoke also acknowledged the family members and significant others who supported the recruits through their training.

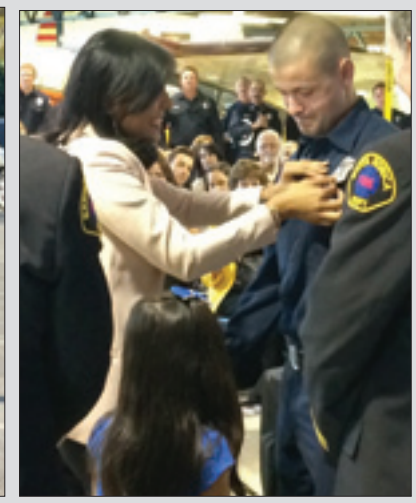

Clark Coble, the class speaker, said the group may have passed the academy, but the "real test" was ahead.

"We'll be going into burning buildings and mangled cars … we'll be risking our lives for the citizens of Santa Monica,

Zoning issues: Parking, landmarks, existing hotels

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of articles previewing City Council's reviewing of the Zoning Ordinance Update. The articles will focus on the issues that city officials have deemed heavily discussed.

CITY HALL Tomorrow, City Council will listen to hours of discussion about the proposed Zoning Ordinance, which will dictate land-uses throughout the city for years to come.

All types of minutia will be discussed but just over a dozen issues, many of which have been covered previously by the Daily Press, will likely come up the most.

Council will take its first crack at the ordinance Wednesday night and, if all goes according to plan, they could finalize it in May.

The Planning Commission has been grappling with the ordinance for months.

MONUMENT

40 months behind the Inyo County detention facility's barbed wires as tens of thousands of Japanese Americans were interned by the U.S. government during World War II at sites across the western half of the country.

He and his family shared a small shelter with another family. It had a single light bulb and no running water.

Maeda came back to Southern California after the war — he has lived in Mar Vista since 1958 — and he struggled to come to terms with how he and other internees had been treated by their own country.

"Whenever I came near this intersection, I would react with deep emotional feelings," he said at a 2012 event — 70 years after the start of his imprisonment. "(But) ... that visceral feeling has been replaced by feelings of hope."

His hope is due in part to serious momentum in the effort to install the Venice Japanese American Memorial Marker, which he and other organizers have sought for years to put in place at the busy Los Angeles intersection where hundreds of Santa Monica, Malibu and Venice residents boarded buses to Manzanar.

The memorial committee has been hard at work to bring the project to fruition, winding its way through numerous local and state government agencies to receive approval and appropriate permits.

In 2012, the National Park Service awarded organizers a $50,000 grant to design, build and install a commemorative obelisk.

This past August, members of the memorial committee and a representative of Los Angeles City Councilor Mike Bonin presented plans to the Cultural Affairs Commission, which approved the project.

On March 25, the L.A. public works board approved a recommendation by the city's Office of Community Beautification to allow for the 9-foot-6 monument to be erected at the northwest corner of Lincoln and Venice boulevards.

As the committee awaits additional permits and hashes out a required maintenance plan, it will host its fourth-annual fundraiser April 23 at Hama Sushi (213 Windward Ave.) in Venice. The restaurant's proprietor, Esther Chaing, has donated more than $7,500 towards the monument over the last three years.

Chaing will again donate all proceeds from the day's $20 bento box lunches, which must be pre-ordered through Phyllis Hayashibara either by phone at (310) 390-1576 or via email at phyllishayashibara@gmail.com. For curbside pickup of pre-ordered box lunches from noon to 2 p.m., call (310) 717-3393 upon arrival on the day of the fundraiser.

Chaing will also donate 10 percent of that evening's dinner sales to the monument project. For reservations, call Hama Sushi at (310) 396-8783.

For more information about the monument, visit www.venicejamm.org.

"Let this monument be a constant reminder not to let injustices of this nature happen again," Maeda said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

We should like to respond to the article Zoning Issues: Child Care, Marijuana, Residential Density published on April 10, 2015. This article mentions the Zoning Ordinance Update rules for medical marijuana dispensaries. Santa Monicans for Safe Access (SAMOSA) would like to point out a few important things, as follows.

The article says "Despite the plethora of options in the surrounding municipalities ... ." In fact, there is not a plethora of LEGAL dispensaries in surrounding areas. Of the total 134 dispensaries Los Angeles allowed a couple of years ago, less than 50 of these legal dispensaries remain. Plus, only a few of them are on the Westside. Any other dispensary is illegal. Surely, it is unsafe and unwise to encourage patients to go to illegal dispensaries. Moreover, if there is a plethora of any type of business outside of Santa Monica, it is alcohol stores and drug stores. And yet, our reasonable and compassionate City officials do not ban those types of stores from Santa Monica. Nor are residents required to drive outside the City to visit these stores.

This article also states that "The Police Department and the city officials had opposed that inclusion [of dispensaries], noting that residents could simply order delivery .... ." However, in an SMDP article published last February 5 (Planning Officials Say No To Pot Shops), the SMDP confirmed that only one of the four delivery services cited at that time by City Staff was legal. Today, there are no – as in none – legal delivery services anywhere in LA. Worse, last year in other press articles, City Staff acknowledged that any delivery service operating in Santa Monica would have to have a Santa Monica business license. And yet, City Staff confirmed that none had been issued. SAMOSA believes that it is very unsafe to invite illegal delivery services into one's home. The Police, Chief Seabrooks said in her testimony to the Planning Commission that if the City asked her, the Police would have no problem policing medical marijuana dispensaries – just as they do for any other business.

Finally, the article says "most" of the Planning Commissioners supported allowing dispensaries. In fact, five out of the six then present Commissioners supported allowing dispensaries. The baseless myth regurgitated in the article that dispensaries lead to more crime has been resoundingly shown to be a shameful scare tactic reminiscent of "Reefer Madness." indeed, UCLA studied this very issue ("Exploring the Ecological Association Between Crime and MMD" [Medical Marijuana Dispensaries]). UCLA found the opposite to be true – crime DECREASES in neighborhoods where dispensaries operate. Legal dispensaries have robust security plans which decrease crime in their surrounding areas.

The ordinance permits only two dispensaries within a very limited and well thought out zone. They are barred from being close to schools, parks and other sensitive uses. The ordinance is fair, reasonable and compassionate. The near unanimity of Commissioners who supported this ordinance mirrors the 90 percent or more (according to a "Field Poll") of Santa Monicans who desire legal, local and safe access to medical marijuana.

Will residents lose when council "OKs" zoning revisions?

TOMORROW EVENING AND WEDNESDAY evenings, City Council will review and officially promulgate nearly 500 pages of zoning code updates required by the adoption by the Land Use and Circulation Element (LUCE) part of the city's master plan.

There are literally dozens of updates that have residents up in arms. They are mostly revisions that would facilitate a marked increase in development throughout the city as well as lead to much higher and denser mixed-use (apartment/retail) developments and inappropriate commercial uses in residential neighborhoods.

The most despised revisions would allow "Activity Centers" for larger commercial properties when (and if) they are redeveloped. Examples are the Rite-Aid/Von's properties at 14th and Wilshire Boulevards, Bristol Farms property at Wilshire and Berkeley Street and the Albertson's Center at Lincoln and Ocean Park Boulevards.

These could become regional shopping centers like Santa Monica Place - massive structures soaring 57 feet with another 14 to 18 feet for walls to mask rooftop mechanical equipment, elevator shafts, cell towers, heating and air conditioning. Total height: 75 feet.

The "activity centers" would cover most of the lot with retail stores, apartments, offices and huge parking garages Community benefits would include open courtyards, prominent sidewalk facings and bicycle amenities. Other amenities would include huge increases in traffic, noise, pollution and structures towering four floors over single and two floor homes, next door.

One of the goals of the updated codes is to concentrate development near transit lines, so city planners want to add Tier 3 developments - four to six floor tall apartment buildings with ground floor retail components - to most major thoroughfares such as Wilshire, Santa Monica, and Lincoln Boulevards. However the presence of these larger mixed use structures will also cause traffic, increased density and crowding as well as infringe upon adjacent residential neighborhoods. Council needs to say "No" to Tier 3, too.

To a lesser extent, Montana Avenue and Main Street would have a 'bonus" height added to their zoning when a developer includes affordable housing in its plans. This would enable three floor buildings on primarily single and two floor commercial streets and forever change their scale and unique ambience. Let me say it again: Social engineering makes for bad city planning.

The leaders of Santa Monica Forward (SMF), that new citizen's group that claims an exclusive right to promote "values that will shape the future of the city," have requested code updates to allow commercially operated early child care/education centers to operate in single-family home neighborhoods.

Enter former Mayor/councilwoman and current Santa Monica for Renters' Rights Steering Committee member Judy Abdo who was the Director of Child Development Services for the Santa Monica Malibu Unified School District before retiring and is a member of City Hall's Early Education and Childcare Task Force. She and a handful of fellow school/education supporters are lobbying hard for this exercise in excessive social engineering over good planning.

Commercial businesses operating in residential neighborhoods is a major source of problems. For example, City Hall's possibly illegal "OK" for the conversion of a 1920s-era apartment building into the Palihouse Hotel in the middle of a multi-family neighborhood at Third Street and Washington Avenue has caused nothing but grief for neighbors by exacerbating parking problems, traffic and "round-the-clock" noise.

A friend (who asked for anonymity) from a Mid-City neighborhood has an early childhood education/daycare center operating out of an adjacent condo. He told me about constantly being subject to "the noise of crying of infants to toddlers which cause one to always wonder when is there true suffering, abuse or neglect." In addition to noise all day, vehicles come and go from early morning until well into the evening dropping off and picking up children. The facility applied for and received reduced time "pedestrian loading" parking that virtually eliminates two, scarce, on-street parking spots.

Abdo and her cohorts also want these daycare/early childhood education facilities to allow outdoor play to 8 p.m. Proposed code revisions would restrict outdoor activity to no later than 6 p.m. Playground noise puts an undue and unnecessary burden on those living next to them - especially when these playgrounds may be as close as ten or twenty feet. Later hours only builds a stronger case for why these uses should not be in single family residential neighborhoods.

Present zoning allows childhood education/daycare operations in single-family neighborhoods, but getting a permit to do so requires an extensive bureaucratic process including hearings before the Planning Commission and City Council. However, this revision is needed so residents shouldn't have to spend inordinate amounts of time, money and energy fighting non-conforming uses that should be prohibited outright.

I agree that "high quality early childhood education for working families is truly indispensable for our community" although there is a time and place for everything and single family neighborhoods are not the place for traffic generating, noisy businesses even if they have a noble purpose. Abdo's pet projects shouldn't become a burden to residents and prevent the enjoyment of quietness and tranquility of one's own home.

I'm betting City Council they will throw residents a bone and eliminate "activity Centers" and do a token Tier 3 reduction unless affordable units are involved. They'll do what they always do and go with their personal social engineering agenda by voting for more development overall then justifying it as a benefit to the community and allow commercial child care/education businesses in residential neighborhoods. I hope I'm wrong, but I feel a screwing coming.

Will Our Zoning Code Be a Blueprint for Displacement?

ONE OF THE MOST PRESSING QUES-tions facing us as we consider our first comprehensive zoning update in 30 years is whether we will truly be able to preserve Santa Monica's existing neighborhoods.

That won't happen if we turn our backs on the vision in the Land Use and Circulation Element (LUCE), which we vetted as a community and the City Council unanimously approved in 2010, by eliminating the possibility of building new homes on our commercial boulevards.

As part of the six-year LUCE process, we agreed, as a community, that we wanted to put new homes on the boulevards and near transit precisely because we didn't want desperately needed new homes to displace long-term residents in existing neighborhoods.

In order to make that happen, we agreed to allow some four-to-five story buildings — all residential above the first floor — on our commercial boulevards. As we are about to adopt a new zoning update, some now want to undo the years of work by the community and limit standards along our boulevards in what would amount to a de facto moratorium on housing there.

By taking away the option to build future housing on the boulevards, we would be setting the stage for a potentially disastrous wave of displacement of long-term residents, many of whom benefit from controlled rents.

Unfortunately, the Ellis Act allows that and the city has no control over this. But the zoning decisions to fulfill the LUCE's goal to avoid displacement are completely within the Council's control.

Santa Monica in 1980 was home to 88,314 people. That number has inched up to about 93,000 today. The pressure to build new homes for the people who want to live in Santa Monica has been mounting for 30 years and it will only continue to mount.

For the past 10 years or so, we have been allowing a healthy number of new homes, mostly concentrated in the downtown area. But, we've seen that steady, moderate progress screech to a near halt recently. Only 32 new homes have been approved since January 2014.

The LUCE anticipates that we will add 4,955 new homes by 2030. That number reflects Santa Monica's fair share of housing for the growing regional population. Our great schools, resilient economy, and amazing climate will draw people here. If there will be no new homes built on our commercial boulevards, we will see long-time rental homes replaced by condos at rates similar to what we are seeing in San Francisco.

Make no mistake: We cannot stop Santa Monica from changing, but we can decide if those changes will be for the better. Let's not turn the LUCE, our community's roadmap for a sustainable future, into a blueprint for displacement.

how many parking spaces should be allotted for any new property. The commission recommended that parking requirements be determined based on use and whether or not the project is located in commercially zoned areas near the incoming Expo Light Rail or high service transit areas around Lincoln and Pico boulevards or Santa Monica Boulevard at Fourth Street.

"A parking maximum would also be established, allowing a relatively small proportion of additional parking spaces to be provided by right with the two exceptions," city officials said in their report to council. "1) additional parking being permanently provided as public parking or 2) replacement parking fulfilling the requirement for another use."

The traffic demand management (TDM) requirements for developers would be increased.

"The Draft Zoning Ordinance would lower the threshold at which an Emission Reduction Plan is required from 50 or more employees to 30 or more employees," the report to council says. "For developers the threshold for requiring an annual TDM plan would be 7,500 square feet for non-residential projects and 16 or more units for residential projects; and the intensity of TDM that is required for a project/employer would be based on the proximity to transit services with higher Average Vehicle Ridership targets in transit-rich districts."

LANDMARKS AND STRUCTURES OF MERIT

Preservationists rely on City Hall's Landmark and Structure of Merit designations to keep landowners from tearing down or altering historically significant buildings.

Under the proposed ordinance, modifications to the height standards would only be authorized if a Landmark or Structure of Merit was being preserved. As a result two height modification allowances would be established.

This would allow developers to do more if they are saving old, significant buildings within certain boundaries.

EXISTING HOTELS

The current ordinance prohibits hotels in certain residential neighborhoods but does allow those in existence prior to 1995 to continue its service.

"This provision allows such existing hotels to remain and be rebuilt or expand consistent with the governing development standards," city officials said. "The Draft Zoning Ordinance would change this categorization of existing hotels from permitted to legal non-conforming. As with all legal non-conforming uses, this change would not require these uses to cease operation and such uses would be authorized to be rebuilt if damaged or destroyed through any non-voluntary event."

This would allow existing hotels to continue to operate but would halt intensification or expansion, city officials said.

most of whom are complete strangers. And we'll be pushing our bodies to the limits to do so. But we'll be doing it together," Coble said. "It's now time to put all of our training to the test. It's time to join our fellow Santa Monica firefighters and make out training cadre and our friends and family proud."

The men then received their Santa Monica Fire Department badges, which were pinned on by persons of the recruits choosing. Doing the honor for Coble was his father, retired Deputy Chief Kent Coble.

Together the group took their oath of office.

The now-probationary firefighters also received their station assignments on Saturday, with some scheduled to report to work the next day.

Captain James Altman, the president of the local fire union, said after the ceremony that getting the six additional firefighters was critical to public safety. Department staffing is already strained, a situation that is exacerbated with the new Metro Expo Line that cuts through the city. Saturday's graduation brings the staff number up to 93, he said, below a desired target of 105.

With a significant number of firefighters retiring, the new firefighters will help the department get to needed personnel levels, said Ferguson before the graduation. The Santa Monica City Council also signed off on the hiring of six additional firefighters, which will come through a second academy class that's expected to start in August. There's also the possibility of another class at the start of next year and six new firefighters, "that we're hoping to get [approved] in the middle of the two-year budget cycle," the chief said.

Having such turnover in the department is a challenge, but comes with some advantages, the chief said.

Ferguson is retiring in May to take a position leading the Murrieta Fire Department, said Saturday's graduating class will be his last with Santa Monica.

"You lose institutional memory, a lot of experience with fires and understanding of the community, but you bring in a whole new batch of enthusiasm," Ferguson said. "So it's a give and take."

Point of no return

Dear EarthTalk

What is the best way to measure how close we are to the dreaded "point of no return" with climate change? In other words, when do we think we will have gone too far?

David Johnston
via EarthTalk.org

WHILE WE MAY NOT YET HAVE REACHED the "point of no return" — when no amount of cutbacks on greenhouse gas emissions will save us from potentially catastrophic global warming — climate scientists warn we may be getting awfully close. Since the dawn of the Industrial Revolution a century ago, the average global temperature has risen some 1.6 degrees Fahrenheit. Most climatologists agree that, while the warming to date is already causing environmental problems, another 0.4 degree Fahrenheit rise in temperature, representing a global average atmospheric concentration of carbon dioxide (CO2) of 450 parts per million (ppm), could set in motion unprecedented changes in global climate and a significant increase in the severity of natural disasters - and as such could represent the dreaded point of no return.

Currently the atmospheric concentration of CO2 (the leading greenhouse gas) is approximately 398.55 parts per million (ppm). According to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), the federal scientific agency tasked with monitoring the health of our oceans and atmosphere, the current average annual rate of increase of 1.92 ppm means we could reach the point of no return by 2042.

Environmental leaders point out that this doesn't give us much time to turn the tide. Greenpeace, a leading environmental advocacy group, says we have until around 2020 to significantly cut back on greenhouse gas output around the world — to the tune of a five percent annual reduction in emissions overall — if we are to avoid so-called "runaway" climate change. "The world is fast approaching a 'point of no return' beyond which extremely dangerous climate change impacts can become unavoidable," reports the group. "Within this time period, we will have to radically change our approach to energy production and consumption."

In a recent lecture at Georgetown University, World Bank president Jim Yong Kim reported that whether we are able to cut emissions enough to prevent catastrophe likely depends on the policies of the world's largest economies and the widespread adoption of so-called carbon pricing systems (such as emissions trading plans and carbon taxes). International negotiators meeting in Paris next December are already working to hammer out an agreement mandating that governments adopt these types of systems to facilitate emissions reductions. "A price on carbon is the single most important thing we have to get out of a Paris agreement," Kim stated. "It will unleash market forces."

While carbon pricing will be key to mitigating global warming, Greenpeace adds that stemming the tide of deforestation in the world's tropical rainforests and beyond and adapting our food systems to changing climatic conditions and increasingly limited resources will also be crucial to the health of the planet.

"Without additional mitigation, and even with adaptation, warming by the end of the 21st century will lead to high to very high risk of severe, widespread and irreversible impacts globally," reports the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), an international group of leading climate experts convened by the United Nations to review and assess the most recent scientific, technical and socio-economic information on global warming. Indeed, there's no time like the present to start changing our ways.

LEGEND
DRY -- each location is graded on an A – F scale based on bacterial pollution levels present in the surf zone
WET -- grades for days of recorded rainfall and the following 3 days
ns -- no sample taken

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card℠ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Heal the Bay is a nonprofit environmental organization making Southern California coastal waters and watersheds, including Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. We use science, education, community action and advocacy to pursue our mission.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON APRIL 4 AT APPROXIMATELY 10:50 A.M.

Officers responded to a report of an assault with a deadly weapon in the 2100 block of Delaware Avenue. Upon arrival, officers made contact with the victim which stated that she was inside of her residence when a woman, later identified as Dana Brown, 51, was standing in front of her residence yelling obscenities. The victim went on to ask Brown to leave; five minutes later she was seen entering a parked vehicle.

As the victim walked out of her home and toward her vehicle, Brown was sitting in her vehicle when she began to yell at her and drive her vehicle toward her. At this point, the victim realized that there was a male passenger in the vehicle. Hearing the sound of the vehicle accelerating and in fear of being struck, the victim jump out of the way and she noticed that the vehicle made its way up the curb. The driver and passenger were apprehended and identified by the victim as the two subjects in the vehicle. Brown was booked for assault with a deadly weapon. Bail was set at $30,000.

City of Santa Monica

NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY OF PROPOSED 2015-19 CONSOLIDATED PLAN AND FY 2015-16 ONE-YEAR ACTION PLAN ALLOCATING FEDERAL CDBG AND HOME FUNDS

Notice is hereby given that the City of Santa Monica has developed the Proposed 2015-19 Consolidated Plan and FY 2015-16 One-Year Action Plan. The Consolidated Plan, submitted every five years to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), is required in order for the City to receive Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and HOME Investment Partnerships Program (HOME) funds.

The Consolidated Plan outlines the City's housing and community development needs and presents the City's strategy in addressing these needs over the next five years. The Action Plan details specific projects and activities for one-year use of CDBG and HOME funds, per the needs specified in the Consolidated Plan. The City is seeking community comments on the Proposed Consolidated Plan and One-Year Action Plan.

Copies of the Proposed 2015-19 Consolidated Plan and FY 2015-16 One-Year Action Plan are now available to the public for a 30-day community review period ending May 12, 2015. Copies are available at City Hall (Room 212) and on the web at www.smgov.net/hsd, or you may contact the Human Services Division, 1685 Main Street, Room 212, Santa Monica, CA 90401, telephone (310) 458-8701; TDD (310) 458 8696. Please send your written comments to humanservices@smgov.net or to the above address by May 12, 2015. You may also present your comments verbally at the City Council public hearing.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

TODAY IN HISTORY

1970 – An oxygen tank aboard Apollo 13 explodes, putting the crew in great danger and causing major damage to the spacecraft while en route to the Moon.

1972 – The Universal Postal Union decides to recognize the People's Republic of China as the only legitimate Chinese representative, effectively expelling the Republic of China administering Taiwan.

1972 – Vietnam War: The Battle of An L?c begins.

1974 – Western Union (in cooperation with NASA and Hughes Aircraft) launches the United States' first commercial geosynchronous communications satellite, Westar 1.

1975 – Bus massacre in Lebanon: An attack by the Phalangist resistance kills 26 militia members of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, marking the start of the 15-year Lebanese Civil War.

1976 – The United States Treasury Department reintroduces the two-dollar bill as a Federal Reserve Note on Thomas Jefferson's 233rd birthday as part of the United States Bicentennial celebration.

1984 – India moves into Siachen Glacier thus annexing more territory from the Line of Control.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Update: According to the mayor of Rio de Janeiro, it appears that some of the 2016 Summer Olympics aquatic events will take place among floating household trash and raw sewage in Guanabara Bay (although Mayor Eduardo Paes noted to the Associated Press in March that the events are scheduled for the "cleanest part" of the bay). To acquire the games, organizers had promised a massive cleanup, but now, with 500 days to go, Paes conceded that the goals will not be met and that, indeed, infrastructure improvements still have not halted the sewage flow into the bay.

■ Ion Productions of Cincinnati is eager to sell "the world's first commercially available hand-held flamethrower" -- the XM42, which could shoot 25-foot flames and costs between $700 and $800. Ion announced in March that it was seeking additional funding, touting the device's uses ("killing insects," "eliminating weeds between pavement cracks," "melting snow," "entertaining friends") and assuring potential buyers that portable flamethrowers are less regulated than handguns. (Only California and Maryland legislators, and a few city or county officials, appear to be on top of the issue of amateur flame-throwing.)

Pay bills first, Capricorn

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You might be more challenging than you realize. If you use your creativity, you'll be able to cut costs and find a better solution to a financial problem. A brainstorming session is likely to serve you well, as it could point you in the right direction. Tonight: Follow a friend's lead.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★ You might not be aware of how angry you have become. You could find yourself losing it at an inappropriate moment. This is a pattern you won't want to continue. Consider expressing your frustration earlier, before it erupts. Everyone will be happier, including you. Tonight: Out late.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ If you feel anger or irritation developing, it might be best for you to express these feelings as they occur. Others most likely will become more responsive and helpful as a result. A friend might surprise by you forcing you to think outside the box. Tonight: Where the action is.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You could be at your wits' end when dealing with a friend who seems to be on the warpath. Understand that this person's anger is not directed at you. Resist having a knee-jerk reaction, and don't hold a grudge. Allow your sensitivity to emerge. Tonight: Your treat.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Others seem determined to express their feelings, and they want you to hear them loud and clear. Don't neglect to express your thoughts in addition to acknowledging theirs. You'll gain a new perspective as a result. Tonight: Be available, and know that anything can happen!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You could feel as if you're on top of the world when discussing an imminent change. You need to be direct and caring with a friend whom you see often. At this point, you might need some alone time, without the clutter of your day-to-day life. Tonight: Happiest at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You could be quite sorry that you reacted to someone in such a volatile way. This person can be needy at times, which might be overwhelming. Remember this occasion so that you will not repeat this performance. Let your creativity open you up. Tonight: Fun and games.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Say little and respond in a more positive way. Your ability to read between the lines with a very angry person will help you find a way to get through to this person. You could feel as if an associate tends to be too forgiving of this individual. Tonight: Off to the gym.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You could be put off by the hectic pace of your day and by the many requests from others. Pull back some and consider what must happen in order for you to complete what you must, then follow through. Tonight: Work with a loved one who often is erratic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★ Be aware of what you must do in order to promote a necessary change in your life. Financial security is always important to you, and you can't compromise on this level. A loved one could be challenging, as he or she tends to have different ideas from you. Tonight: Pay bills first.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ You will be all smiles, even in the face of an emotional storm. You might want to revise your schedule in order to bypass someone who seems to be creating a lot of uproar. A dear friend or loved one will support you in your ideas and your desires. Tonight: As you like it.

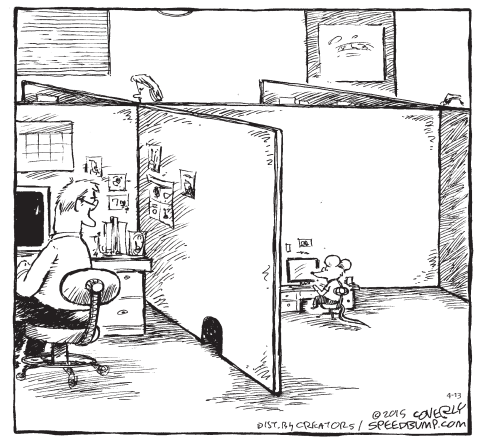

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You will be in a position where you need to take strong control of your assets and your work. You could have a surprise presented to you, yet you might seem somewhat scattered and unable to appreciate what is happening. Tonight: Treat a dear friend to dinner.

Monday, April 13, 2015

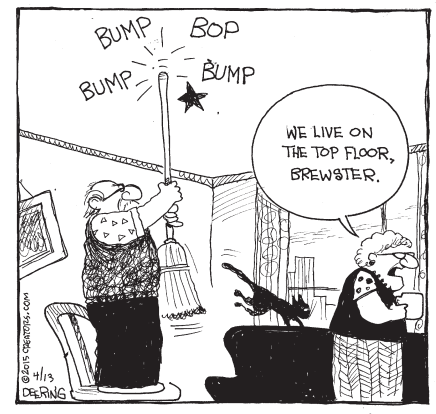

This year you focus on your long-term desires and needs. How you handle someone and the choices you make could be very different from what you initially had expected. Your actions reflect this transformation. Your ability to move through issues becomes fine-tuned. If you are single, it is likely that you will meet someone of significance in the next few months. You will know when this person arrives on the scene. If you are attached, this year could be one of the best periods you have shared as a couple. You will act as if you have just fallen in love. AQUARIUS is your friend no matter what you do.

Each Monday, 'Celebrate This' shows you how to make every day count

Peach Cobbler Day
Monday, April 13
Hard to find outside the South, so go for just-as-peachy pie at Coogie's Café. Voted "best" on the Westside.

Moment of Laughter Day
Tuesday, April 14
LOL ... Catch a comedy show at Westside Comedy Theater or just laugh out loud in public for no reason. Plenty of people do that around here.

World Art Day
Wednesday, April 15
Spend some time at the Getty or Hammer, or get artsy with that selfie.

National Cheeseball Day
Friday, April 17
Not your uncle with a mullet. Munch on some Cheetos or get fancy with French baguettes.

Record Store Day
Saturday, April 18
There's something about a needle on vinyl. Get started at Record Surplus on Santa Monica Blvd.

National Garlic Day
Sunday, April 19
It's not just to slay vampires. The wood-fired garlic knots at Milo & Olive on Wilshire Boulevard are irresistible. Then maybe a mint.

Chase a chill pill with water

By Katharine Romefelt

Feeling overwhelmed? Zen out. Stress is more debilitating than you might think. Reflect on how it affects you this National Stress Awareness Day (or as stressed people call it -- Thursday).

"Stress can be overwhelming, but there are ways to handle it," said Megan Thomas, who seemed pretty chill while wandering Abbot Kinney Boulevard. "Eating healthier food is important, but also getting more organized in your life.

"When you have a problem, deal with it by communicating rather than hiding in a hole."

Megan's keeping a grip.

Take care of yourself this Thursday, people. Maybe yoga is your thing? Ambient music? More comfortable underwear? Whatever it takes. But also make sure the relationships in your life are conducive to a healthier you.
