'Distractions' hinder SMMUSD progress on achievement gap

Editor's note: This is the third installment of a multi-part series about the Santa Monica-Malibu school district's achievement gap.

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

Sandra Lyon watched with joy Thursday evening as elementary school students performed "De Colores" in front of the local Board of Education. For a few moments, at least, the issues facing the Santa Monica-Malibu school district were drowned out by the singing voices of young children.

A week earlier, when the school board heard a presentation by Pedro Noguera on longstanding achievement gaps in the district, Lyon sounded relieved to be addressing a problem directly related to education.

"This is the fun stuff that we love," the superintendent said. "How do we improve outcomes for kids?"

As stakeholders are well-aware, and as Noguera reminded district leaders and community members during his recent talk in the Santa Monica High School cafeteria, non-classroom matters have commanded ample time and resources in SMMUSD in recent years, requiring a lion's share of Lyon's attention.

The discovery of chemicals in the caulk at Malibu schools has enraged families in that city and spawned an ongoing lawsuit, the centerpiece of a protracted battle that has cost the school district millions of dollars in consultants and legal fees.

That conflict has fueled an effort by Malibu activists to separate from the existing district and create their own school district. Board-sanctioned negotiations between Santa Monica and Malibu advocates came to a halt last week over the filing of a lawsuit that challenges Santa Monica's current at-large voting system. Kevin Shenkman, a member of the Malibu negotiating team, is representing the plaintiffs in the case.

"The distractions matter," Noguera said, arguing that they divert district leadership's attention from academic problems. "What is being discussed at the school board level? Is it teaching and learning? Is it equity? Or is it something else?"

In order to close the achievement gaps that persist between black and Hispanic students and their peers, Noguera said, the school board must establish that as a primary goal. He added that the district must shift its focus from adults to kids.

"If equity is a priority," he said, "how does it show up in our time in meetings and in our budget? ... How much time in board meetings do you spend really thinking about the kids? If it doesn't get attention, it's not a priority."

Noguera, who was hired by the district last year, has spent months observing classrooms and meeting with administrators, teachers and students. He and his consultancy found that racial tensions have contributed to feelings of distrust and marginalization among stakeholders.

"If we truly want to further equity and reduce economic disparity, we need to make a clear and unequivocal effort to that commitment by focusing our attention and allowing our superintendent to help focus the attention of the district on teaching and learning,"

Artist by day, homeless by night

Santa Monica entrepreneur launches Kickstarter for unlikely friend

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

When the sun is up, William Girven blends in with Santa Monica's workday pulse. He rides his bicycle in dress shirts and jeans, takes cigarette breaks outside Cross Campus and strikes up conversations with people on the street.

At night he sets down a large piece of cardboard in a parking lot and sleeps outside.

"Most people don't believe I'm homeless," he said.

Ralf-Rainer von Albedyhll was one of those people. An entrepreneur who rents space at the Colorado Avenue office community, von Albedyhll interacted with Girven during smoking breaks but never would have guessed his current housing situation.

"I assumed he lived around the corner or something," von Albedyhll said. "Then, one day, I saw him on his bicycle with this big piece of cardboard, and I'm going, 'What the hell is that?'"

Compelled by Girven, the entrepreneur learned that his new friend had been homeless for about five years. Girven wasn't making enough money as an artist to support himself but continued drawing and painting anyway, eventually winding up on the streets of Santa Monica.

"You don't make a decision to be an artist," the septuagenarian said. "You're born to it, and you just do it. No matter how far down you go, when you have purpose, you have a sense of self."

Conversations with Girven inspired von Albedyhll to launch a website and a Kickstarter campaign, the proceeds of which will support an art exhibit of Girven's work at Cross Campus and a documentary about everything that's happened since the two met. The $50,000 crowdfunding drive wraps up May 3.

Earlier this month von Albedyhll spoke in Downtown Los Angeles at the annual BIL Conference, a TED-style event featuring a variety of innovators and

Why the Chamber is opposing the anti-housing, pro-traffic Land Use Voter Empowerment (LUVE) initiative

BY NOW YOU HAVE PROBABLY SEEN THE signature gatherers suggesting that they can end traffic with their so-called LUVE initiative. The initiative would require that almost any proposed development above 32-feet tall be forced to go to a vote of the people. Simply put, this would be a disaster for our community. Even the most uncontroversial, midscale projects-schools, nonprofits, churches, mixed-use housing with included affordable housing-would not be exempt.

The Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors has reviewed this initiative closely. We want to inform our membership and our community why we have voted unanimously to strongly oppose it.

The measure's proponents will have an easy job gathering signatures, which will not be hard to do especially when ending traffic is promised. But we want to make sure that our community is informed and prepared to discuss the initiative leading up to November, when we are confident that most of our community will vote "no" and prove that Santa Monica is truly an inclusive city willing to accept its responsibility to plan for the future. We hope you will carefully review our concerns and encourage you to share them with your friends and neighbors.

LUVE HURTS OUR LOCAL ECONOMY

Business and property owners fund the vast majority of city services through local taxes. LUVE would result in a stagnant, if not declining economy, and would reduce our city's tax revenue. As a result city services would need to be cut and there would be pressure to raise taxes, impacting both businesses and consumers.

LUVE HURTS TRAFFIC

LUVE would lock Santa Monica in the very land use pattern (sprawling suburbs) that created our regional traffic nightmare. Metro has wisely been making substantial investments in an expanded alternative transportation network (Expo opens to Santa Monica May 20), but LUVE would destroy the potential to realize a more sustainable, traffic-reduced future. The only proven way to improve our traffic problem is to provide more housing near our jobs-for people at all income levels-and encourage more people to give up driving their cars in exchange for alternate modes of transportation like walking, biking, transit and rideshare.

LUVE HURTS RESIDENTS AND PROPERTY OWNERS

Most of the existing buildings, including apartments, condominiums, hotels and many offices, in the City are not consistent with the standards included in the current Zoning Ordinance, which was adopted in 2015. The Zoning Ordinance protects existing nonconforming buildings and provides a process for them to be rebuilt in the event of fire, earthquake or other damage or destruction. For most existing buildings, LUVE would likely require a vote of the people merely to repair/restore them in the event of a casualty.

LUVE HURTS NON-PROFITS, SCHOOLS, HOSPITALS AND RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS

LUVE does not include an exception for non-profits, schools, hospitals or religious institutions, which are all important members of our Santa Monica community. Many non-profits, schools, hospitals and religious institutions operate in facilities taller than 32-feet. Requiring a longer approval process and a vote of the people would curtail the ability of these institutions to provide needed services in our community.

LUVE HURTS OUR HOUSING SHORTAGE CRISIS

LUVE would exacerbate an already serious housing shortage crisis that is driving the cost of housing ever higher. It would further limit the opportunities for both low and middle-income residents-service workers, teachers, nurses, and city and nonprofit employees-from being able to afford to live in Santa Monica. LUVE supporters claim that the initiative contains exemptions for affordable housing projects but these exemptions are meaningless when there is no funding available for such projects. The only affordable housing built in recent years has been included in market-rate projects.

LUVE HURTS EMPLOYERS AND THEIR WORKFORCE

The housing and transportation impacts mentioned above would also increase strain on our business community, which seeks to attract a talented workforce to an area that is increasingly unaffordable and traffic-locked. Further, LUVE would make it even more difficult for our creative tech startups to be able to stay in Santa Monica as they grow.

LUVE HURTS OUR CITY BY PUTTING US AT RISK OF EXPENSIVE LAWSUITS

In the cities where similar measures have passed, very few projects ever go to a ballot because the process is so expensive. Those cities are left stumbling to meet their state required and much needed housing numbers. The City of Encinitas has been sued multiple times since they passed the comparable Prop A in 2013.

LUVE HURTS US ALL

We strongly oppose LUVE because it attacks the economic, environmental, housing, social, and transportation-related goals the Chamber has adopted for our diverse and inclusive city. Even some of our most development-cautious council members are already speaking out against it. No matter which side of the development debate you are on, LUVE hurts Santa Monica.

Kobe's big night ruins my column

AS A LAKER FAN SINCE 1960, THESE last three seasons have been brutal. This year's 17-65 record is the worst in franchise history, breaking last year's record. How ironic that the NBA's winningest franchise in total games, just compiled the 34th worst season in NBA history. Until Kobe's final game, I was going to lead with: "Forgive me family and friends of Dr. Buss, the late former owner of the Lakers, but if he wasn't already dead, the last three seasons would surely have killed him."

To vent my frustration over the Laker incompetence in these past three seasons (65-181!) I had planned on a few choice words describing Laker management, which seems thoroughly rudderless. And then Kobe, on the final game of his illustrious 20-year career, had a night to remember for the ages.

Given his 60 points and leading the Lakers to a come-from-behind victory, some have speculated it was the greatest "last game" for any athlete in any sport, ever. It also completely destroyed the tenor I had planned for this month's Snide World. (Oh well, I'll save a little room at the bottom.) That night pitted the hapless Lakers, with the league's 2nd worst record and the Jazz, which didn't make the playoffs. And yet, demand to see Kobe's final game was through the Staples Center roof. Stub Hub reported a courtside ticket sold for $27,500. (I wonder if that included parking?) Even tickets in the "nosebleed" section were going for as much as $700. Staples was also packed with celebrities, including: Jack Nicholson, Kanye, Beckham, Jay-Z, Adam Levine, Snoop Dogg, George Lopez, Jeremy Piven, Dyan Cannon and 25 of Kobe's former teammates.

Frankly, I wasn't sure I was even going to watch on TV. It's been such a depressing three years and the thought of Kobe playing his final game with seemingly nothing on the line, was even more depressing. But my friend, Tracey, insisted. She not so subtly reminded me of his 5 NBA titles and 18 All-Star game appearances. She could have included his MVP in the 2007-2008 season and his MVP honors in the 2009 and 2010 Finals when the Lakers won consecutive championships. (Note: You know it's a culturally changing world when a woman shames a man into watching sports!)

Here's what Kobe accomplished that night: In scoring 60 points at age 37, he beat the record by 5 years! (Wilt scored 60 at age 32.) Kobe made 22 out of 50 shots, scored 23 points in the 4th quarter, and brought the Lakers back from a 14-point deficit in the final 10 minutes. He even had a game-ending steal and an assist. All in front of his wife Vanessa and their two daughters, and 17,388 of his best friends.

The game was so magical if you wrote it in a screenplay Hollywood would laugh you out of town. The evening included the moving pre-game speech by Magic Johnson, the standing ovation for Kobe, the last minute victory, the post-game speech by Kobe and his press conference with reporters, all memorable. In the press conference Kobe spoke in Spanish and Italian and even dropped a bit of Chinese words and told the reporter "I'll be seeing you soon." (The latter suggesting that Kobe, who has rock star status in China, might be playing there someday or at least giving exhibitions.)

From the storybook ending of Kobe's last game, we now switch to the rather grim reality of the post-Bryant Lakers. Dr. Buss would not be pleased. He was determined to catch the Celtics who lead the Lakers in NBA Championships 17-16. While the Celtics are seeded No. 3 in the upcoming Eastern Conference playoffs and have a bright future, the Lakers are going to need ping-pong ball luck if they're even to make the playoffs next year. (They have a 55 percent chance of keeping their draft choice in the June 23 draft.)

A Kobe-less Lakers has more questions than answers. After two "worst-ever" seasons, will coach Bryon Scott return? GM Mitch Kupchak seems to suggest so, but should Kupchak even return? Co-owner Jim Buss seems to suggest so, but should he return? (He promised if the Lakers weren't "contenders" after three seasons, he'd walk, well, the Lakers won't be contenders anytime soon so why wait to walk?)

On the bright side (if there is one) in 2016-2017, the NBA's salary cap projects to $92 million, giving the Lakers roughly $60 million, or enough for 2 max players. So if they get lucky with the ping-pong balls, if the youngsters Randall, Russell, Nance and Clarkson develop and if they're able to lure max players despite the Lakers' obvious "rebuilding" status, one day, hopefully soon, the team might bask in the warm sunshine of success. As for now, I'm still basking in Kobe's final game.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON APRIL 5, 2016 IN THE EARLY MORNING HOURS

Officers responded to an apartment in the 400 block of Washington Avenue for a domestic violence call. The 911 caller said she could hear hitting, slapping, and thumping and believed someone was being hurt.

When officers arrived they entered the apartment and saw obvious signs of a struggle including overturned furniture, broken items, and blood drops on the ground. The officers separated the couple to figure out what happened. Both of them appeared to have visible injuries.

The male involved told officers everything was fine and the couple was into aggressive and rough sex. He said it just got a little out of control. He was visibly bleeding from his nose, head, and hand.

His wife, Simone Gordon, told officers the two of them were newly married and arguing about relationship issues. She said her husband threw her to the ground several times and she punched and scratched him to defend herself. She could not explain why her husband was bleeding and the broken glass in the apartment.

Officers determined the wife to be the primary aggressor in the fight and placed her under arrest. Bail was set at $50,000.

DANCE

The Stars," the Sand and Sea Ball will incorporate six dancers - including Vazquez, Lyon and Saccone - from the Santa Monica-Malibu area, three celebrity judges and a celebrity emcee to raise funds to benefit the Santa Monica-Malibu Education Foundation (SMMEF) and support music and dance programs in Santa Monica-Malibu public schools.

"Our district is very well known for its music and arts programming and also known for theater as well, but not as well known for dance," executive director of SMMEF, Linda Greenberg, said. "In fifth grade we have a ballroom dancing program. And I've been told this program has really been transformative for students. They were all complaining and groaning and didn't want to participate at first. But even the ones that complained the loudest at first were more confident, were totally invested in the program and just really enjoyed the experience by the end. It was a good introduction to dance because they learn to be respectful to each other."

Greenberg said SMMEF wants to continue to fund the 5th grade program, but with its cost coming in at $50,000 it won't be easy. That's why she was so excited to hear that the Arthur Murray Dance Center Santa Monica chose SMMEF's music and dance programs as the beneficiary for the Sand and Sea Ball.

And the mind behind fundraising for SMMEF? David Woodbury of Arthur Murray.

Over a year ago Woodbury went to the Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce Christmas party at Loews and was standing in the mezzanine when he thought, what if they used that space for a dance competition to benefit children?

"I got chills," Woodbury said. "It sounds very romantic but it's true. … And I realized I could do that, I can raise money for kids. It kinda changed my life in that moment."

Woodbury then worked hard to get all the other pieces in place, including pulling in dancers like Lyon.

"Although dancing in front of a large group of people is not high on my list, I'm willing to overcome apprehension to do whatever is needed to support our students," the superintendent said. "While I have zero dance experience, I am enjoying rehearsing and feel this is a great way to raise funds and spotlight our exceptional SMMEF-funded performing arts programs."

At 5 p.m. on May 22 the Sand and Sea Ball will commence at Loews with cocktails and dinner, then the dancers will compete for the "Mirrored Ball." The evening will end with social dancing and mixers led by Arthur Murray professionals.

Kaiser Permanente is serving as the title sponsor, with other sponsors including Downtown Santa Monica, the Fairmont Miramar Hotel & Bungalows, Santa Monica Place/Macerich, Santa Monica Travel & Tourism and Steve Little Insurance.

Two of the event's judges are Nick Kosovich, the U.S. and world ballroom dance champion, and owner of Lenique Dancewear, and Christy Melgoza, the franchisee of the Woodland Hills and the Thousand Oaks Arthur Murray Dance Centers.

The emcee is Paul Hermanson, Franchisee of Santa Barbara Arthur Murray Dance Center.

advocates. He hopes the crowdfunding initiative and his talk will eventually help Girven get back on his feet.

"The idea is to inspire people," he said. "If there's enough exposure, then there's a reasonable chance that we can pull this off."

The making of the video about Girven that's featured on theunlikelystory.us was somewhat serrendipitious. While participating in a focus group at Cross Campus, von Albedyhll met filmmaker and content producer Greg Bassenian, who agreed to assist in the effort.

Tim Dietrich, an Apple TV app developer, created an app in support of von Albedyhll's charity project.

"All of these ingredients came together," von Albedyhll said.

The entrepreneur is currently in the process of enlisting the help of volunteers to translate the trailer into 12 different languages.

As for Girven, he's still homeless. According to von Albedyhll, he's had access to laundry machines and showers at the Cloverfield Services Center run by OPCC, a Santa Monica-based social service agency. Girven spends time reading at Cross Campus, but he isn't allowed to sleep there.

Girven's primary task at the moment, von Albedyhll said, is making art for the upcoming exhibit.

"There's genuine artistic talent," von Albedyhll said.

board president Laurie Lieberman said. "We need to keep other issues, however important, from diverting our attention and the staff's attention."

Added board member Richard Tahvildaran-Jesswein, who relayed a portion of his conversation with former board president Patricia Hoffman: "The distractions are real. We are representatives of the community, and we need to be on the same page together. ... 'It doesn't matter what [Noguera] says. It matters what you'll do.'"

Board member Oscar de la Torre, a Samohi alumnus, advocated for an annual report on the work being done to close the achievement gaps. That way, he said, the problems won't fade away.

"On this issue, there's a lot of common ground," he said. "We're good at developing these reports, these strategic plans, and then they go nowhere. There needs to be public accountability. ... I don't want this to be another good report that gets put on the shelf with very little in outcomes."

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Inequality on Parade: (1) The city council in Palo Alto, California, trying to retain some of its Silicon Valley non-millionaires, proposed a subsidy plan in March to help with steep housing costs. In a town where tiny homes sell for $2 million (and are immediately knocked down and rebuilt), subsidies will be available even to families earning $250,000 a year. (2) In February, a family court in England reduced the child-support payments from hedge fund financier Christopher Rokos to the mother of his 7-year-old son from the equivalent of about $17,000 a month to about $11,300 -- though that amount includes more than $1,200 a month for "wine" (perhaps, in case the kid is a handful).

■ The giant HSBC Bank, which was let off the hook in 2012 for its money-laundering by paying a $1.9 billion settlement and promising to vigilantly guard against future money laundering, was revealed in March to be regressing. HSBC's monitor said that the bank somehow failed to stop transactions by a company whose professed business included exporting miniskirts to Iran (which would be against international sanctions but also not exactly smart business). In another incident, a 19-year-old Mexican man in the drug-cartel-intensive Sinaloa state was allowed to open a private-wealth account with just a bagful of cash, claiming to be a "shrimp farmer."

Take time with a loved one, Taurus

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Dealing with an authority figure could prove important in the outcome of a situation involving others. Though you see the issue clearly, it could take a while for it to process. Perhaps a change in how you approach this might help. Tonight: Reach out to someone at a distance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Your ingenuity helps pull a difficult situation into the realm of plausibility. Read between the lines with what you are hearing. If you fear that there is more to this situation than meets the eye, you probably are right. Be generous with a partner. Tonight: Take time with a loved one.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Stay centered, even if you think a powder keg has hit a financial situation that involves you and someone else. Resolving this could involve a negotiation or perhaps a change to the other party's attitude. Tonight: In the limelight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You might be at your wits' end as you attempt to deal with a volatile associate. You always go out of your way for this person, and could have a hard time understanding what is happening. Don't discount this person; let him or her calm down. Tonight: Return calls.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ You can get fussy about finances, and then shortly thereafter become extravagant. You might decide to add more variety or excitement to your daily life. Tonight: Let someone know what you expect from him or her.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Your high energy could be a benefit to others as they juggle different facets of their lives. You seem to have enough time on your hands to pitch in and lighten everyone's load. A roommate or loved one seems to want more of your time. Tonight: As you like it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Others listen carefully to what you have to say. You'll see what they might have missed once they give you feedback. Explain your logic. Assure them that you have weighed the pros and cons. Tonight: You might need a break from all the talk.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You can head in a certain direction, but others' resistance could become even stronger as a result. You might not want to invest too much emotionally, intellectually or financially in someone else's idea until you have more give and take. Tonight: Where your friends are.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Consider taking the lead. Don't lose sight of others' roles or of any financial implications. Several conversations could be distracting, yet some will have ideas worth listening to. Tonight: Do not make plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Reach out to someone whom you care a lot about. You will want to do some research about an important matter. Stay mum about the issue you are checking out until you have a firm answer or decision ready. Tonight: You need some downtime. Get some R and R.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ You might not appreciate someone else's input or say over an important matter. Your immediate reaction might not be pleasant and could have implications. Listen to a friend who seems to understand how to handle this person better than you do. Tonight: Play it easy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Others seem to be off. Know that they could be receiving unusual pressure from someone who has clout. Perhaps no response for now would be appropriate, as it will demonstrate dissatisfaction without having to use words. Tonight: Say "yes" to a dear friend's request.

Monday, April 18, 2016

This year you might feel undue pressure from the outside world. Changes are afoot, which means that you will need to adapt your role at work or in the community. Your ability to grow past preconceived ideas marks these changes. If you are single, you easily could meet someone who is grounded but quite different from you. You will want to get to know this person better. If you are attached, the two of you open up to new possibilities; however, it appears that one of you seems to drag his or her feet. Sometimes it will be you; sometimes it will be your significant other. Take up an interest you both have and develop it together. VIRGO often points out details you might have missed.
