Gender neutral bathrooms up for debate at Council meeting

SCOTT SNOWDEN
SMDP Staff Writer

In Tuesday's meeting City staff will introduce a proposed amendment to the Santa Monica Municipal Code by requiring multi-stall, all gender, public restroom facilities and the establishing of associated standards for all appropriate newly constructed buildings.

The City Council reaffirmed Santa Monica's commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion at its March 11, 2023 workshop when it identified "racial justice, equity and social diversity" as one of its five priorities for fiscal years 2023-2025. This priority in part states that "all community members shall be provided with access to resources and opportunities, where difference in life outcomes cannot be predicted by race, class, gender, disability, or other identities."

According to the agenda for Tuesday's meeting, "Gender neutral public restroom access is an important opportunity for the City to demonstrate its commitment to equity, ensuring restrooms are designed to feel safe and accessible by more of our community."

The new design code will ultimately be enforced in the construction of buildings for which a complete permit application is submitted to the City on or after July 1, 2023. Provisions are also included allowing existing

SMMUSD pushes forward with feasibility study to turn Civic Auditorium into a gym

GYM?: The currently vacant Civic Auditorium could become a gym or affordable housing.

GRACE INEZ ADAMS
SMDP Staff Writer

The Board of Education took the next step in determining whether the long-vacant and seismically unsound Civic Auditorium has the potential to serve as the new competition gym for Santa Monica High School at their April 20 meeting.

The Board voted in early March to conduct a feasibility study of the site and last week approved a $86,210 contract with NV5 as part of that process to conduct an environmental assessment of the levels of asbestos, lead and PCBs at the site and other hazardous materials that were used in construction in the 1950s when the auditorium was built.

After going unused since 2013, the Civic Auditorium site was deemed by the City as "surplus land" last year, a designation that gives priority to parks, affordable housing and school projects to be developed at the site so long as the building's landmarked features are maintained.

While the district was the only group to express interest at the time when the board initially voted to approve the feasibility study, Community Corporation of Santa Monica (CCSM), the City's largest affordable housing developer, has since put forward a proposal to build affordable housing at the site, preserve and revitalize the auditorium structure and find ways to incorporate the site's history into the project through a partnership with the Committee for Racial Justice.

Lawmakers take up fentanyl crisis

LYNN LA
Special to the Daily Press

What could have been a dramatic showdown last week, orchestrated by Republican legislators demanding action on bills addressing California's fentanyl crisis, was ultimately avoided with a deal for a special hearing.

In March, the chairperson of the Assembly public safety committee, Los Angeles Democrat Reggie Jones-Sawyer, announced that the committee would put a hold on all fentanyl-related measures. At the time, he cited "duplicative efforts" and "temporary solutions" that provided no "rational solutions at all."

That move put several bills to increase penalties or expand treatment— authored by Republicans but also some Democrats — in limbo, and weeks ticked by with no clear timeline of when they would be reconsidered again. To put pressure on the committee, Republican legislators and district attorneys, joined by residents whose family members died from fentanyl overdoses, held a rally on Tuesday, April 18 near the state Capitol.

On Wednesday — the same day Gov. Gavin Newsom made a surprise visit to San Francisco's Tenderloin district to discuss the fentanyl crisis with Attorney General Rob Bonta and Mayor London Breed — Republicans announced they would move to withdraw five fentanyl measures from the committee and try to force votes Thursday on the

Caloric Corruption

I've spent the past few nights riveted by Bernie Madoff. I can certainly say that it wasn't his boyish good looks, charisma or honesty that drew me into the documentary of his life, now defined solely by his historically proportioned Ponzi scheme. Rather, it was the lies that he perpetuated over the span of forty years. He didn't discriminate. He lied to widows, royals, those who had much and those who had little. I was glued to the television screen, dumbfounded by his ability to do what he did: win people over, gain their trust and lead them nowhere, ultimately to their demise without them even knowing what was happening.

Sadly, the personification of this monster on Wall Street doesn't dwell only in the financial district. Some people are willing to tell you whatever you want to hear and others tell you only what you need to know. Some things are too good to be true. And those that seem so...just may be. Too good to be true.

Take Pop Tarts, for instance. These are considered delicious and tantalizingly colorful in some circles (especially circles of those under ten). The majority of ingredients are man-made or man-tainted and have been proven to lead to health problems and chronic disease. Still, they're marketed to us as plausible breakfast options and are placed on shelves right at the height of the kid compartment in shopping carts. If products like these have been proven to be unhealthy options for us, why is this still allowed? Aren't they too good to be true?

CALORIC COVER UP.

With all the conspiracy theories and secrets covered up by the food companies and oversight organizations upon whom we rely, it should come as no surprise that it has come to light in recent months that the Academy of Nutritionists and Dieticians accepted donations from the very companies whose products we should be avoiding. Between 2011 and 2013 - 2017, the organization accepted more than $15 million in donations from key players in Big Food such as companies like Coca Cola, PepsiCo, Hershey, Kellogg's, General Mills and Conagra as well as some of the largest producers of sugar and high fructose corn syrup. Monsanto and the dairy industry were also contributors. Aside from accepting large donations, documents reflect that the Academy purchased more than a million dollars of stock in some of the same companies, sharing in profits generated by J.M. Smucker and Nestlé.

A paper trail of emails evidenced symbiotic agreements between the Academy and their donors and the proof is in the chia pudding. In 2015, then treasurer of the Academy, Donna Martin, agreed to endorse Kraft singles, a cheese slice that contains way more non-cheese ingredients than any true cheese should.

BREAD: Fresh baked bread.

After an uproar from the public, Martin canceled the partnership with Kraft.

While it's not against the law to take part in the stock market or to turn a profit, it certainly is a conflict of interest to profit by investing in the very products that undermine the mission of your organization. Though the Academy is no stranger to public scrutiny and its ties to Big Food, it is a private organization whose financial records are kept confidential from the public. The aforementioned Donna Martin, now works for a public school district. It wasn't until she used her school email to discuss Academy matters, releasing the communications into the public domain, that the Academy's financial records, donor lists (and amounts) and emails were made public.

This may come as no surprise to you. Sadly, it's confirmation of what most of us expected: it's too good to be true. Money can suddenly sway opinions. Deep pockets find willing hands in the oddest places and sadly, some of these hands are those mapping our foodscape. Some of these hands pick our crops and choose our seeds. The Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics is the world's largest organization of food and nutrition professionals. In addition to helping to structure eating habits and recommendations, it shapes national food policy. It trains thousands of dieticians to advise Americans on how and what to eat. Yet, we are the fattest and sickest we have ever been.

Something's fishy and it's not just at the factory fish farms. The line between the straight truth and its bent version is slight and right now, it's blurry. More than blurry. It's time we start reading between the lines and I don't only mean our ingredients labels. We must read between the lines that we're fed by Big Food and the corporations charged with protecting, guiding and educating us. Easier said

Drescher Planetarium Presents Free, Live Virtual Shows in May on Exoplanets, the Life Cycle of Stars, and Skylab

Santa Monica College's John Drescher Planetarium continues its Friday evening events in May 2023 with free, live virtual shows presented online at smc.edu/planetarium. This month's friendly presentations will cover exoplanets and how scientists learn about them, the life cycle of stars, and the first part of a two-part retrospective on Skylab.

The planetarium's May shows include a free Special Sunday Matinee on May 7 at 11 a.m. The matinee combines an abbreviated version of "The Night Sky Show" and the week's featured evening show, "Understanding Exoplanets," which looks at how scientists find out what is on the surfaces of other worlds.

The Friday evening shows are at 8 p.m. and are preceded by a streamlined virtual digest of the popular Night Sky Show at 7 p.m., offering the latest news in astronomy and space exploration. The shows include the chance to chat with the planetarium lecturers and ask questions.

Planetarium lecturers are currently using the Zoom platform to present shows while the actual on-campus planetarium remains closed due to the COVID-19 pandemic. To attend the shows, the Zoom software must be installed on the viewer's computer. A free download is available at zoom.com.

The May 2023 shows are:

• Friday, May 5, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): "Understanding Exoplanets" — Lecturer Sarah Vincent. Everyone has seen headlines proclaiming "Water World Discovered," but how can scientists know what is on the surfaces of other worlds? Tonight's show takes a look at exoplanetary science. Free. Zoom at smc.edu/planetarium.

• Sunday, May 7, at 11 a.m.: Sunday Matinee — "Understanding Exoplanets" — Lecturer Sarah Vincent. Matinee presents a 70-minute condensed version of "The Night Sky Show" and this week's feature show, "Understanding Exoplanets," which takes a look at exoplanets and how scientists find out about what is on the surfaces of other worlds. Free. Zoom at smc.edu/planetarium.

• Friday, May 12, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): "The Life Cycle of Stars: A Walk Along the Main Sequence" — Lecturer Sarah Vincent. From stellar nurseries to black holes, tonight's show presents a closer look at how stars are born and what happens when they die. Free. Zoom at smc.edu/planetarium.

• Friday, May 19, at 8 p.m. (following The Night Sky Show at 7 p.m.): "Skylab – America's First Space Station – A 50-year Retrospective: Part One" — Senior Lecturer Jim Mahon. In May 1973, the last Saturn V booster placed Skylab — a 76-metric-ton space station — into Earth orbit. Although beset by early problems requiring some ingenious repairs by NASA and the first crew, Skylab was eventually occupied by three separate crews, with the final crew living aboard for 84 days, a record in early 1974. Part One of this two-part retrospective will cover the development, launch, and frantic repairs during the first Skylab crew mission. Part Two will wrap up the retrospective next fall. Free. Zoom at smc.edu/planetarium. More information is available online at smc.edu/planetarium or by calling 310-434-3005. All shows subject to change or cancellation without notice.

"Since our inception in Los Angeles in 2016, OUTWORDS has recorded nearly 300 interviews in 38 states. We share our stories with students and teachers around the globe," said Mason Funk, Executive Director of The Outwords Archive. SMC'S Global Motion World Dance Company to Perform May 6-7 at The Broad Stage

The Santa Monica College Global Motion World Dance Company is proud to present its spring 2023 performance of dances from around the world. The performance will include a dance work created for Global Motion by renowned Bharatanatyam dancer Ashwini Ramaswamy.

Performances are on Saturday, May 6, and Sunday, May 7, at 7:30 p.m. in The Broad Stage at the SMC Performing Arts Center, 1310 11th Street (at Santa Monica Boulevard), Santa Monica.

SMC students will present the excitement and diverse beauty of other cultures through showcasing traditional and contemporary World Dance styles — including West African, Flamenco, Ballet, Asian, Hawaiian, Mexican Folklórico, Salsa, and more.

The spring performance features a dance work choreographed by Ashwini Ramaswamy for Global Motion students as part of a one-week residency as a guest artist at the SMC Dance Department. The project is a collaboration between the department and the BroadStage Education and Community Program. Ramaswamy has spent more than 30 years studying Bharatanatyam, one of the most popular and widely practiced classical dance styles of India. She is a founding member — along with her mother, Ranee Ramaswamy, and her sister, Aparna Ramaswamy, both award-winning choreographers — of the Ragamala Dance Company, where she is the Choreographic Associate.

Global Motion was founded over 40 years ago by Judith Douglas, former chair of the SMC Dance Department, to bring knowledge, understanding, and appreciation of the diverse beauty of dance throughout the world, and to give SMC students the essential experience of working with choreographers and performing as a professional company, on a professional stage.

The SMC Dance Department uses The Broad Stage — including the stage and lighting crew and support staff — for performances. Costumes are handmade each season by professional costumer Patricia Oliva.

Global Motion is under the artistic direction of Raquel Ramirez and Sri Susilowati. Ramirez is a dance professor at SMC and the founder and director of a folklórico performance group dedicated to supporting the traditions and cultures of Mexico. Susilowati, originally from Indonesia, creates and performs traditional and contemporary works that focus on community, gender, and ethnicity.

Faculty choreographers are Laura Canellias (Salsa), Keali'i Ceballos (Hawaiian/Swing), Angela Jordan (West African), Raquel Ramirez (Mexican Folklórico), and Sri Susilowati (Contemporary Javanese).

Guest artist Emiko Saraswati Susilo introduces the fundamental techniques and philosophy of Balinese dance, including its relationship to music and culture in Bali. A dancer/choreographer, voice actor, and musician who revels in the meeting of movement, voice, and music, Susilo has dedicated her life to nurturing intercultural communication. She is the associate director of Çudamani and served as director and board chair for Gamelan Sekar Jaya for over 10 years.

Alumni choreographer is Keith Morris (Flamenco)

SMC dance students audition to choreograph pieces each semester for Global Motion. This spring, the student choreographers are Liam Gifkins, Melisha Mahakumara, and Koa Viecco.

Global Motion World Dance Company has toured extensively and performed at schools, festivals, and special events throughout California and Mexico, as well as performances in Beijing, China; Bracciano, Italy; Santiago, Chile; Lloret de Mar, Spain; and Paris, France. In October 2019, the ensemble traveled to Asia for performances in Beijing, China.

Advance tickets are $20 for general admission (a modest service charge applies) and may be purchased online at smc.edu/tickets or by calling 310-434-3005 (Monday-Friday; limited hours). Tickets may also be purchased on the day of the performance for $23 (a modest service charge applies) at The Broad Stage Box Office at the SMC Performing Arts Center. Free parking on premises. The Santa Monica College (SMC) Music Department is pleased to present the SMC Applied Music Showcase: A Benefit Concert to support the students in the distinctive Applied Music Program. The Applied Music Program is a part of SMC's continuing effort to blend top-tier arts education with high-quality performances for the public. Founded in 2001 by Dr. James Smith and currently directed by David Arbury, Jimmy Cheesman, and Janelle DeStefano, the program is dedicated to fostering the development of outstanding instrumentalists, vocalists, and composers, with the goal of preparing each student for successful transfer as a music major to a four-year university or conservatory.

than done, yes, but it's possible. After all, it was no surprise that it was too good to be true.

"No-Need-to-Knead" Whole Wheat Bread

With four simple ingredients, this easy recipe eliminates added sugars and preservatives found in most store-bought bread. Pre-slice and keep in freezer to maintain freshness.

INGREDIENTS

4 cups organic whole wheat flour
2 cups warm water
¾ teaspoon dried activated yeast
2 teaspoons salt

Method

Place flour, yeast and salt in a bowl. Whisk to combine.

Add water and mix with a wooden spoon or hands to combine.

Form into a rough ball and leave in bowl, covering it with plastic wrap.

Let rise on counter for 12 hours without removing plastic wrap.

Before forming dough, preheat oven to 475°F.

Place a Dutch oven into oven to heat.

Remove plastic wrap, placing dough on a wooden board sprinkled with additional flour.

No need to knead – form dough into a ball, lightly scoring the top in an X formation.

Place dough into hot Dutch oven on parchment paper.

Bake for 30 minutes covered. Remove cover and bake for 15 minutes more.

Allow to rest before cutting.

Board President Maria Leon Vazquez, who opposed conducting the feasibility study from the beginning reiterated her previously stated stance that community input should be gathered before moving forward with the project in any way. The contract was initially part of the consent calendar, items that are passed as a group and often without discussion, but Vazquez pulled the contract for debate and said she wanted to delay study of the project's viability.

"I think that before we can move forward, it is my belief that I think we should have more conversation at the table with the key people I think should be at that table, and I think it should be some of us at the School Board to have those conversations with the City of Santa Monica in negotiating this and it can't be done by representatives, by others from our departments but from us who will be actually voting these projects forward."

Other Boardmembers said a study to determine if the Civic property is usable for education purposes (including the cost of rehabilitation) was a necessary first step, that no negotiations were underway yet due to the lack of a feasibility study and that deadlines imposed by State rules governing the sale of civic property required speedy action.

While Board Vice President Richard TJ agreed that it is important to gather feedback, he said now is not the time and that it is first necessary to establish whether or not the project is even possible before it can be taken to community members for input.

"But that moment hasn't happened yet, that just hasn't happened, there will be a moment when the board will be able to determine by way of reflecting and deliberating whether there is a need to do x,y and z…" he said. "I don't hear that this item tonight is that item for that conversation, I hear that this item is necessary for us to get to a place to make a determination whether or not this is a possible project."

School Board Member Alicia Mignano voted to advance the study but said she did want community input before any final decisions were made.

"And there's a lot of different opinions in our community… and I want to know what our community thinks we should do," she said.

SMMUSD Chief Operations Officer Carey Upton noted that the District has a limited amount of time to complete the study within the priority window of the surplus land designation and told the board that the City had requested the district prepare an appraisal of the value of the property by June 1.

The board voted 6-1 to approve the environmental assessment contract, with Leon-Vasquez being the sole 'no' vote.

FENTANYL

Assembly floor. Four of the five are authored by Democrats, including one that would enhance sentencing for fentanyl-related deaths from San Diego Assemblymember Brian Maienschein. (In March, he publicly expressed disappointment with the move by Jones-Sawyer.)

Thursday, just before the floor session, legislators avoided the floor fight by agreeing to debate the five bills, plus a sixth one, at a special committee hearing on April 27. Republicans considered it a big win, and a few Democrats reacted in favor.

Assembly Republican leader James Gallagher of Chico said in a statement: "I'm glad my Democratic colleagues finally recognized that a months-long delay in addressing the fentanyl crisis is not acceptable…. We're making progress, but we will not rest until this poison is out of our communities and the killing spree ends."

The statement also included an expression of support from Natalie Page, who spoke earlier this week at the State Capitol and is the sister of a 36-year-old father who lost his life to fentanyl.

"The time to act is now and I am happy to hear that there is a renewed sense of urgency at the State Capitol. We must stop enabling and hold dealers accountable for spreading this poison in our communities. This has nothing to do with Democrats or Republicans. And I am hopeful that lawmakers will advance legislation at the hearing next week," said Page.

Democrats said they were also eager to move on the subject.

"My colleagues and I are working to treat this crisis with the urgency it requires," said Assemblymember Cottie Petrie-Norris, an Irvine Democrat, in a statement. "These bills deserve a hearing so that they may continue to proceed along the legislative process."

While Santa Monica's local Assemblymember, Rick Chavez Zbur, wasn't a sponsor of the disputed bills, he said he will be studying the proposals in advance of the vote week.

"The crisis of fentanyl is heartbreaking, and we must do more to address its devastating effects," he said. "I will be carefully analyzing these bills to ensure that they protect our communities in an equitable way."

Jones-Sawyer said that because there wasn't initially "enough time to properly discuss this crisis," he wanted to hold a hearing later.

"I wanted to… ensure we could have more stakeholders in the room and give space to allow victims' families sufficient time to be heard beyond the boundaries of the customary bill hearing. This is exactly what I will do…. I look forward to our public hearing on fentanyl so that we as a legislative body can learn from experts and craft policies that protect Californians and properly punish suppliers," he said in an emailed statement to CalMatters.

The bills in question are:

AB 33 (Jasmeet Bains) – to establish a Fentanyl Addiction and Overdose Prevention Task Force.

AB 367 (Brian Maienschein) – add a sentencing enhancement for fentanyl dealers who kill or seriously injure people they sell the drug to.

AB 474 (Freddie Rodriguez) – prioritize cooperation between state and local law enforcement to disrupt fentanyl trafficking organizations.

AB 675 (Esmeralda Soria) – prohibit carrying a gun while in possession of fentanyl.

AB 955 (Cottie Petrie-Norris) – increase penalties for fentanyl dealers who sell on social media.

AB 1058 (Jim Patterson) – increase penalties for those possessing large quantities of fentanyl.

CRIME WATCH

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON APRIL 9

SMPD officers responded to 3202 Wilshire Blvd (CVS) for what was ultimately determined to be an estes robbery. A male suspect attempted to remove multiple items from the secured racks in the electronics section. After finding no success in remove those items, he moved towards the alcohol section where he grabbed a bottle and placed it inside a duffle bag. When confronted, the suspect, Elijah Phillips, struck a staff member multiple times with a closed fist. In summary, Phillips was accused of over $1,000 in damage to the store. Twenty-two year old Phillps was arrested and transported to the Santa Monica Jail. He remains in police custody with a scheduled April 25th court appearance.

buildings to voluntarily retrofit existing public restroom facilities.

"I'm proud that we are moving forward with establishing gender neutral restrooms in Santa Monica," says councilmember Caroline Torosis. "Consistent with our commitment to equity and social diversity, this ordinance is much needed so that all residents, visitors and stakeholders feel welcome and invited into our City."

During the meeting, staff will also recommend the Council declare that the City-owned properties located at 1444 7th Street (formerly Fire Station 1), 1654 19th Street (formerly City TV) and two remnant parcels associated with the Expo Lot as "surplus land" in accordance with California's Surplus Land Act (SLA).

The SLA governs the sale or lease of land owned by local agencies and requires that the City first declare the properties to be "surplus lands" and then send a notice of availability to entities designated within the SLA. They then have 60 days to respond and if the City receives a notice of interest, it must negotiate in good faith for a minimum of 90 days. The City may reject proposals when the parties cannot agree on sales price or lease terms.

However, all of this will be after what will no doubt be some lengthy closed session discussion as Council will hear updates on 47 existing lawsuits related to the ongoing settlement payments for the Uller case.(Plus a couple more indirectly associated.) Former Santa Monica Police Department staffer Eric Uller molested children while volunteering at the Police Activities League with underprivileged kids in the 1980s and 1990s. Uller killed himself after he was arrested in 2018, but the City's alleged negligence of the abuse has led to payouts to almost 100 victims for $107million.

The statue of limitations to file claims related to child abuse at the Police Activities League ended last year, but the city is still calculating the final payments and attempting to recover some costs associated with the case from insurance companies.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (April 24)

Welcome to the year of the effortless stellar attitude. It's like your set point is at "winning." The other easy thing for you will be staying in the moment, and it's this gift of presence that brings the gleaming world to you. You'll pace financial dealings well and earn a bigger payoff. More highlights: love notes, a commitment fulfilled and a profound honor. Leo and Sagittarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 2, 20, 5, 14 and 8.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Whether natural or imposed, an unhurried sense of time will serve you in multiple ways. It puts others at ease with you, increases your attractiveness and lets you ease into a comprehensive understanding of the circumstance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You want to help someone but are afraid you'll be trapped if they need you too much. The answer is to help people help themselves by teaching them instead of doing things for them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). This is the beginning. Every day has the potential to be the beginning if you want it to be, but some days it's easier to see the fresh start or to become the new person opening a door.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). After striving, gaining ground and seeing continual improvement, it is natural to hit a plateau. This is a signal to change up your strategy. Doing something different could look active or challenging, and it could also look like a nice, long break.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Though you are loyal to those in your vicinity, try not to become too local. There's so much to be experienced that you won't have time to do if you give all your repeat business to the ones you already know.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The happiness you crave has various forms, many of them unexpected. Because of this, it would be easy to overlook sources of joy. You'll see opportunity better when you don't need things to be any certain way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Don't try and hide a flaw. Instead, put a frame around it, spotlight it and ponder anything and everything that's good about it. Within a limitation, there are gifts you have yet to mine.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You learn what's expected so you can exceed it. Your communication is stellar, your understanding multilayered. In addition to finding out the literal guidelines, you'll read between the lines and take the emotional temperature.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The entire scope of people's motivations is unknowable. You're well aware that good people can do bad things and bad people can do good things. You'll consider the entire context of a scenario and handle matters carefully and discreetly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Consider the demand for what you offer. You're doing something others need. When it's time to be charitable, you'll give it away for free. And when it's time to be professional, you charge a fair price.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Emptiness invites fate's blessing. What can you let go of to make room? An empty seat, space on the counter or in the inbox — these are all good omens. Good luck comes to you when there's a place for it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). All investments, including financial, energetic and emotional, come with risk. You may not get back what you pay in, or you may get a large return, and not knowing how it's going to go is part of the excitement.
