Successful project to restore beach dunes looks to expand

EMILY SAWICKI
SMDP Staff Writer

The Santa Monica Sand Dune Restoration Project has officially been deemed a success; now, The Bay Foundation wants to make it a permanent fixture on the beach just north of the Annenberg Beach House, while also expanding from three to eight acres of protected beach habitat in the area.

On Monday, the City of Santa Monica published a blog post, authored by Nico Predock, featuring an update on the current pilot project that, since December 2015, has sought "to restore approximately three acres of coastal strand habitat on the north end of the Santa Monica Beach."

With the ecological nonprofit Bay Foundation's five-year report stating the dune restoration pilot achieved its goals, it will soon be up to the California Coastal Commission to decide whether it can stay in place permanently. The permit application, still in draft form, was likely headed before the Commission sometime this summer.

"We're pretty staggered at some of the results," The Bay Foundation's Chris Enyart

CDC estimates 3 in 4 kids have had coronavirus infections

MIKE STOBBE
AP Medical Writer

Three out of every four U.S. children have been infected with the coronavirus and more than half of all Americans had signs of previous infections, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention researchers estimated in a report Tuesday.

The researchers examined blood samples from more than 200,000 Americans and looked for virus-fighting antibodies made from infections, not vaccines. They found that signs of past infection rose dramatically between December and February, when the more contagious omicron variant surged through the U.S.

For Americans of all ages, about 34% had signs of prior infection in December. Just two months later, 58% did.

"I did expect it to increase. I did not expect it to increase quite this much," said Dr. Kristie Clarke, co-leader of a CDC team that tracks the extent of coronavirus infections.

The news came as Pfizer sought permission to offer a booster dose to kids ages 5 to 11, just like people 12 and older can get.

In the CDC report, the most striking increase was in children. The percentage of those 17 and under with antibodies rose from about 45% in December to about 75% in February.

The older people were, the less likely they had evidence of past infections. That may be because older adults have higher vaccination rates and they may be more likely to take other COVID-19 precautions, such as wearing masks and avoiding crowds, Clarke said.

Reported COVID-19 cases had a huge surge in December and January, then fell almost as dramatically as they had risen. But daily case counts have been trending up again

US consumers still confident in April, but slightly less so

MATT OTT
AP Business Writer

U.S. consumer confidence dampened slightly in April but remains high even as inflation continues to cloud their optimism about the rest of the year.

> Purchasing intentions are down overall from recent levels as interest rates have begun rising — Lynn Franco

The Conference Board said Tuesday that its consumer confidence index — which takes into account consumers' assessment of current conditions and their outlook for the future — edged down to 107.3 in April, from 107.6 in March.

The business research group's present situation index, which measures consumers' assessment of current business and labor conditions, also dipped modestly this month to 152.6 from 153.8 in March.

The expectations index, based on consumers' six-month outlook for income, business and labor market conditions, ticked up to 77.2 in April from 76.7 in March. It stood at 80.8 in February and remains a weak spot in the survey.

"Purchasing intentions are down overall from recent levels as interest rates have begun rising," said Lynn Franco, the Conference Board's senior director of economic indicators. "Meanwhile, concerns about inflation retreated from an all-time high in March but remained elevated."

Franco added that inflation and the war in Ukraine will continue to eat into confidence and may further curb consumer spending through this year.

PRICES: Disruptions to the global energy market caused a price spike that has contributed to decreased confidence in the economy.

Inflation soared over the past year at its fastest pace in more than 40 years, with costs for food, gasoline, housing and other necessities squeezing American consumers and negating their pay raises.

According to the index Americans have scuttled some vacation plans, but slightly more intended to make big purchases like a car or major appliance.

The Federal Reserve raised its main borrowing rate by a quarter point last month, the main mechanism for combating inflation. Multiple rate hikes, with the possibility of half-point increases, are expected this year.

The Labor Department said earlier this month that its consumer price index jumped 8.5% in March from 12 months earlier, the sharpest year-over-year increase since 1981. Prices have been driven up by bottlenecked supply chains, robust consumer demand and disruptions to global food and energy markets worsened by Russia's war against Ukraine.

Consumers were slightly less optimistic about the labor market, even as U.S. employers have added at least 400,000 jobs for 11 straight months, pushing the unemployment rate down to 3.6%. That's the lowest rate since the pandemic erupted two years ago and just above the half-century low of 3.5% that was reached two years ago.

LA sheriff investigates how reporter obtained leaked video

STEFANIE DAZIO
Associated Press

The Los Angeles County sheriff on Tuesday disputed allegations he orchestrated a cover-up of an incident where a deputy knelt on a handcuffed inmate's head and said a Los Angeles Times reporter who used leaked documents and video to first report on the case is part of his criminal investigation.

The paper's top editor condemned Sheriff Alex Villanueva's action, calling it an illegal "attempt to criminalize news reporting."

"Sheriff Alex Villanueva's attack on Alene Tchekmedyian's First Amendment rights for doing newsworthy reporting on a video that showed a deputy kneeling on a handcuffed inmate's head is outrageous," Executive Editor Kevin Merida said in a statement. "We will vigorously defend Tchekmedyian's and the Los Angeles Times' rights in any proceeding or investigation brought by authorities."

The incident with the inmate occurred in a county courthouse on March 10, 2021 — two days after jury selection began for the trial of Derek Chauvin, the former Minneapolis police officer who was convicted of murder for pressing his knee against George Floyd's neck for up to 9 1/2 minutes.

The video shows Deputy Douglas Johnson directing inmate Enzo Escalante to move up against a wall in the courthouse. Escalante swings at Johnson and punches him repeatedly in the face. Three other deputies help Johnson wrestle Escalante to the ground and handcuff him.

The LA Times reported that Johnson had his knee on Escalante's head for more than three minutes, even after the inmate had been handcuffed, placed face-down and did not appear to be resisting. Escalante — who was awaiting trial on murder and other charges — was taken to the hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

Johnson was removed from duty months later and is under criminal investigation, Villanueva said during Tuesday's news conference. No charges have been filed against the deputy.

Escalante has pleaded not guilty to two counts of resisting an officer. He is being represented by the public defender's office, which did not immediately respond to a request for comment. Escalante has filed a federal lawsuit against members of the sheriff's department, including Villanueva, that alleges his civil rights were violated.

On Monday, Commander Allen Castellano filed a legal claim, a precursor to a lawsuit, that accused Villanueva of first blocking and stalling the investigation into Johnson's use of force, and then working to cover up the incident and retaliating against whistleblowers.

Villanueva, who oversees the nation's largest sheriff's department, is up for reelection and Castellano's claim states the sheriff was seeking to avoid bad publicity during his campaign.

The sheriff on Tuesday said he did not see the video until eight months after the incident, but Castellano wrote in his claim that Villanueva had viewed it within days.

Villanueva called Castellano a "disgruntled employee" who made "false claims." The sheriff also said the video obtained by the Times was "stolen property that was removed illegally" and "all parties" to the act are subject to his investigation of the leak.

"She received the information and then she put it to her own use," he said, referring to Tchekmedyian. "What she receives legally and puts to her own use and what she receives illegally and the LA Times uses it, I'm pretty sure that's a huge complex area of law and freedom of the press and all that. However, when it's stolen material, at some point you have to become part of the story."

During his news conference Villanueva displayed photos of Tchekmedyian, LA County Inspector General Max Huntsman and former sheriff's Commander Eli Vera under the heading: WHAT DID THEY KNOW AND WHEN DID THEY KNOW IT?

In Tchekmedyian's original story, Vera said Villanueva viewed the video at an aide's desk within days of the incident. Vera is running against Villanueva and also was commander overseeing court services where the incident occurred. Huntsman is investigating the allegations Villanueva lied about the incident and issued a subpoena ordering Villanueva to either testify or turn over records.

Tchekmedyian, who regularly covers the sheriff's department, attended the news conference and Villanueva ignored her questions.

The sheriff has previously targeted other reporters for their work, including when his deputies arrested a KPCC public radio reporter in 2020 while she was filming an arrest during a protest.

David Loy, legal director of the California-based First Amendment Coalition, said Villanueva's probe into Tchekmedyian was an assault on press freedoms.

"The press has an absolute right to report on and publish information of public concern, even if that tape is otherwise confidential and leaked to them," Loy said. "This is bedrock First Amendment law."

Housing shortage, soaring rents squeeze US college students

JANIE HAR
Associated Press

College students squeezed by a massive housing shortage and surging rents are paying too much for moldy apartments, commuting long distances or sleeping in their cars to get an education — and that doesn't appear to be changing anytime soon.

For some colleges, the housing crunch was related to the pandemic, which muddied projections for who might want on-campus dorms when classes resumed in person last fall. But the lack of housing both on-campus and off has been a longstanding problem at other schools, including many in California, where homeowners and communities have sued to curb new student housing construction.

Nationally, 43% of students at four-year universities experienced housing insecurity in 2020, up from 35% in 2019, according to an annual survey conducted by The Hope Center for College, Community, and Justice at Temple University. Students reported being unable to pay their rent or mortgage, living in overcrowded units, or moving in with others due to financial difficulties.

For the first time since it began tracking basic needs in 2015, the survey found an equal percentage — 14% — of students at both four-year and two-year colleges who had experienced homelessness in the last year.

"This is a function of rents rising, the inability of communities and institutions to build enough housing for students and other costs of college going up that create a perfect storm for students," said Mark Huelsman, the center's director of policy and advocacy.

RENT: Student is in short supply and homelessness among college students is increasing among students at all kinds of institutions.

Terrell Thompson, a sophomore at the University of California, Berkeley, slept in his car for nearly two weeks at the start of the school year last fall, unable to find an apartment in his price range. The university has limited dorms and competition is fierce for nearby off-campus units, which can start at $1,600 for a 300-square-foot (28-square-meter) studio.

Spring Lions

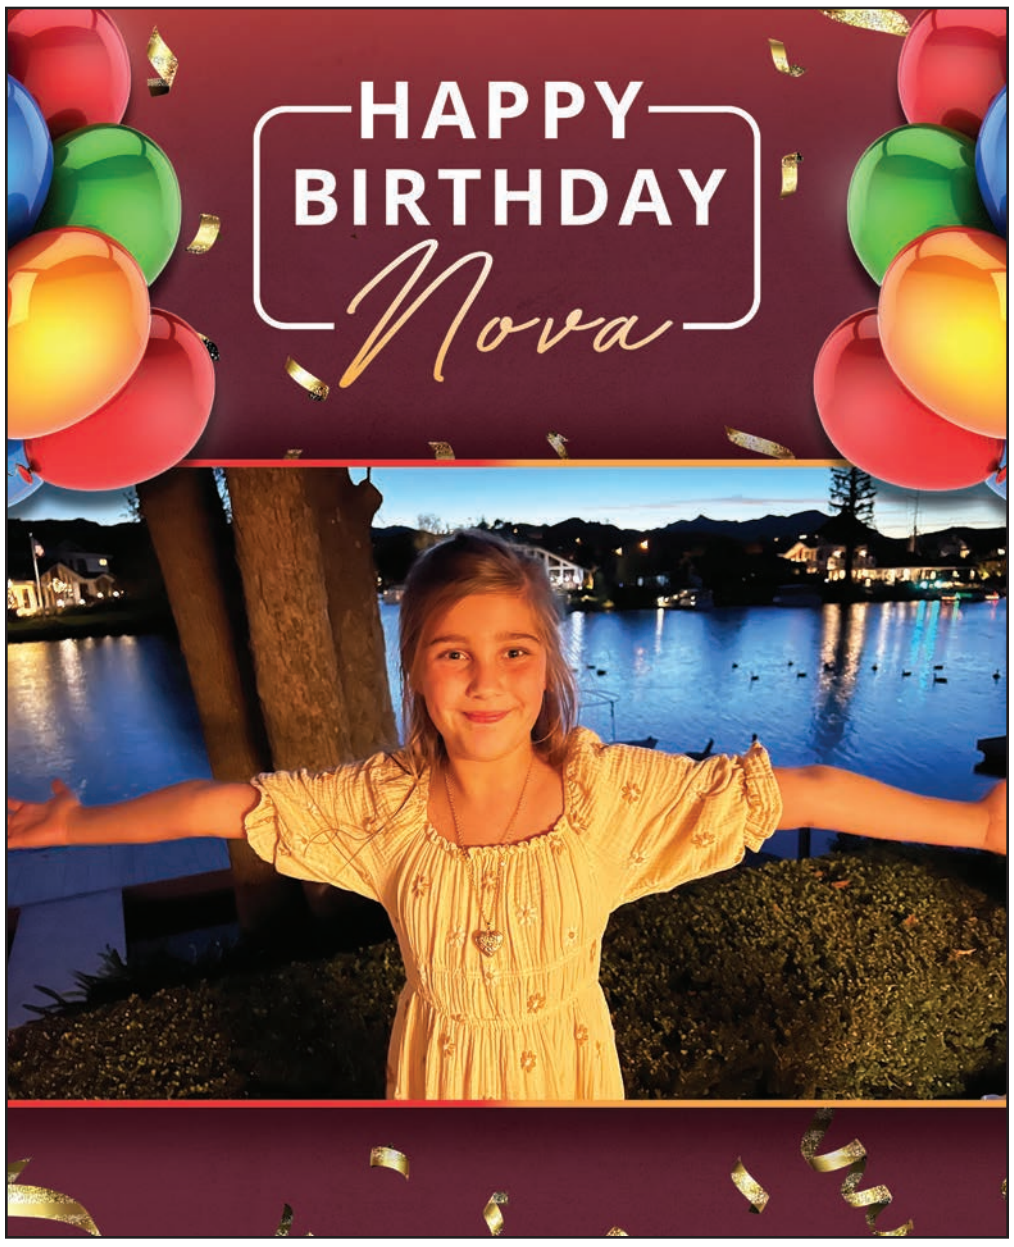

With the advent of spring, the Santa Monica Pacific Palisades Lions Club is growing and getting back to serving the community. It is hard to believe, but next year the SMPP Lions will celebrate a centennial of service on the Westside.

Our first post-Covid project will a booth at the Santa Monica Arts & Literacy Festival on Saturday, April 30th from 10 am – 2 pm at Virginia Avenue Park. The theme this year is Bugs, Bugs, Bugs! In accordance with the theme we hosting a booth for children, ages 4 and up, to create fun bug-related craft projects. We have all sorts of creative ideas to choose from, sure to appeal to any child. In addition to our crafts, other Santa Monica community members will have a bug tunnel, reading time, yummy kid-friendly food and so many more activities.

Lions are all about community, but also fun. The following weekend we are heading south to Playa del Rey to support a fellow Lions Club, the Venice Marina LAX Lions Club. It has become a yearly tradition and we are happy to join their fundraiser, eating great BBQ, playing bingo for cash prizes and laughing. It is on Saturday, May 7th at 5:30 pm and also includes a great raffle and silent auction. Contact Kingsley Fife from our Club to learn more about it - 310-454-2960.

Our scholarship committee met last week and started reviewing all of the applications from Santa Monica High School students hoping to continue their studies after graduation this year. The breadth of experiences, diversity of cultures and personal family stories are amazing. None of them were slowed down by the pandemic. They not only maintained their studies but found ways to continue serving the community while also supporting their families as they faced very challenging times. Choosing only two students for the Lions scholarships will be challenging with so many deserving students.

At our last meeting on April 13th, we were happy to induct Addie Lane as our newest Lion. She is full of energy and smiles, already jumping in to help at our booth at the Festival on April 30th. Also joining us that night was Bryan Kawaskai, a potential new member from Providence St. Johns Health Center. A new transplant to Santa Monica, he is really to happy to become part of the SM community with his family. If you want to learn more about the SMPP Lions by joining us as a dinner guest at our next meeting on May 11th at 6 pm, please contact Yoriko Fisher, at smpplionsclub@gmail.com or Kingsley Fife at 310-454-2960.

has also been identified in many cases across the U.S., according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

BA.2 is a descendant of the earlier super-contagious "stealth omicron" and has quickly gained ground in the United States.

BA.2.12.1 was responsible for 29% of new COVID-19 infections nationally last week, according to data reported Tuesday by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. And it caused 58% of reported infections in the New York region.

The variant has been detected in at least 13 other countries, but the U.S. has the highest levels of it so far. Scientists say it spreads even faster than stealth omicron.

Cases are rising in places with increasing levels of the BA.2.12.1 variant, such as central New York, suggesting something about it is causing it to out-compete others, says Eli Rosenberg of New York state's health department.

It appears a similar pattern will likely play out nationally, says Kirsten St. George, director of virology at New York state's Wadsworth Center Laboratory.

In Los Angeles, the increases in case numbers have not translated to increases in severe illness, with hospitalizations and deaths remaining low and slightly decreasing. Over the last seven days, the average number of people hospitalized daily is 222, a 20% decrease from two weeks ago when the average number of people hospitalized over the previous seven days was 276. Deaths also saw a small decrease, with the average number of daily reported deaths this past week at 10, a 28% decrease from two weeks ago when the average number of daily reported deaths over the previous seven days was 14.

Scientists are trying to figure out other aspects of BA.2.12.1, including whether vaccines are as effective against it as previous variants. Los Angeles officials said anecdotal data suggests vaccines continue to provide protection. For the week ending April 8, unvaccinated people were three times more likely to be hospitalized compared to fully vaccinated residents, and six times more likely to be hospitalized than those fully vaccinated and boosted. And the likelihood of dying was also 16 times higher for unvaccinated residents compared to residents who were fully vaccinated for the week ending April 1.

said Tuesday. "We saw the site, year after year, continue to be covered in more and more native dune vegetation. We saw the site continue to build topography, build elevation, accumulate sand. And yeah, it's a pretty staggering development over a short five years." According to Enyart, some points of the project area that had previously been groomed along with the rest of the beach saw natural sand accumulation resulting in meter-high dunes.

"And this is all passive," Enyart added. "This is all just letting these native dune species that are specially adapted to dune habitats, just letting them do their thing."

According to Predock's blog post, The Bay Foundation will be seeking a coastal development permit amendment and "once approved, visitors and residents will be able to enjoy the restored area in Santa Monica for years to come."

The Bay Foundation and its partners — the City of Santa Monica, local landowners, California Department of Parks and Recreation and the Santa Monica chapter of the Audubon Society — will soon be seeking to add an additional five acres of protected dunes, about 1,000 yards south of the current project area.

"After a successful proof of concept in the pilot project, the Bay Foundation has been approved for a $300k grant from the Refugio Trustee council for a phase 2 Santa Monica Beach Dune restoration project," Predock wrote.

> "We also hold different community events where the public can actually register, come on out and actually help with the actual restoration itself, helping do things like seeding or planting at the site or removing non-native vegetation" — Chris Enyart

Plans for the expansion are in their earliest stages, Enyart described, and the Foundation, along with the City, will be securing funding, drawing up initial plans, drafting permit requests and holding stakeholder meetings over the next several months, with initial seeding not expected until fall of 2023, Enyart predicted. The additional protected acreage will surround an existing enclosure for snowy plover birds, currently managed by Audubon Society. It may also expand up to run alongside the bike path.

When the time comes for the next phase to begin, local residents will be welcomed to volunteer, Enyart said.

"The community plays a monumental role in really all of our projects," Enyart said. That begins with soliciting feedback about the community's priorities when it comes to the project from the very beginning.

"We also hold different community events where the public can actually register, come on out and actually help with the actual restoration itself, helping do things like seeding or planting at the site or removing non-native vegetation," Enyart continued.

The watershed program manager went on to expound on the benefits of the restoration projects.

"[These are] ways to help increase coastal resiliency to the effects of climate change, help recreate habitat for different, rare species of wildlife and plants, and help enhance beach experiences for visitors," Enyart said.

Bad Neighbors

I have lived on the corner of Broadway and 26th St. for 13 years. We as a neighborhood and lucky enough to have the Colorado Center park across the street. Most importantly I AM a dog lover and that's why I'm writing this.

Over the last two years many people have adopted pets, myself included. Not my first. What many of us deal with as rescue owners are with dogs that have some sort of social anxiety .

Now the park has become a self proclaimed dog park, off leash and out of control. These people don't play by the rules and if you question them, you are told to go elsewhere, We live here and pay taxes here and many of my neighbors can't bring their mid size dogs on leash to the park, for fear of aggressive dogs and owners. The rules are not being enforced. It brings down the park, the neighborhood and the property values,

Who wants to deal with this when just trying to bring your dog to the park? I'm a dog lover. There are dog parks. Play by the rules so my dog doesn't have to be punished for your irresponsibility. There are posted signs. This is not about someone telling you to wear a mask...It's whats about the best for our dogs.

If you want to be off leash, look it up theres a lot of places. Grow up.

Mike Bongarzone, Santa Monica

The case numbers are believed to be an undercount, but officials do think recent increases reflect a true rise in infections. Many COVID-19 infections are mild enough that patients do not seek care or confirmatory lab tests. CDC officials say they plan to release a study soon that estimates that in recent months there were three infections for every reported case.

Another recent trend: U.S. health officials say they have seen two weeks of increases in COVID-19 hospitalizations, though the numbers remain relatively low. Hospital admissions number about 1,600 per day, a 9% increase in the prior week, the CDC reported.

Available evidence nevertheless offers reason to be hopeful about how the pandemic is going, officials suggested.

"We are not anticipating more severe disease from some of these subvariants, but we are actively studying them," CDC Director Dr. Rochelle Walensky said Tuesday.

The tests that showed how many people had previous infections can detect antibodies for one to two years after infection, and possibly longer. Studies have shown previous infection can protect some people against severe disease and hospitalization, but CDC officials stressed that the previously infected should still get COVID-19 vaccines.

The study looked for any detectable level of antibodies; it did not distinguish how many people had antibody levels that might be protective. Scientists are still trying to understand what role these kinds of antibodies play in protection from future virus exposures.

Officials continue to urge Americans to get vaccines and boosters, which offer additional protection against COVID-19 for all, including those who were previously infected.

> We are not anticipating more severe disease from some of these subvariants, but we are actively studying them - CDC Director Dr. Rochelle Walensky

Currently the U.S. offers a booster dose starting at age 12 but Pfizer and BioNTech on Tuesday asked the Food and Drug Administration to allow healthy elementary-age kids to also get one -- about six months after their last shot. The companies cited a small study showing the extra shot for kids ages 5 to 11 revved up antibodies capable of fighting the super-contagious omicron variant. Pfizer's kid-size shots are a third of the dose given to anyone 12 or older.

HOUSING

"Academically it was hard, because I'm worried about finding housing and I'm worried about my clothes and I'm worried about getting my car broken into all the time," said the 19-year-old Thompson, who now lives in an apartment he found last September. "I was anxious 24/7."

Nationally, rents have increased 17% since March 2020, said Chris Salviati, senior economist with Apartment List, but the increase has been higher in some popular college towns. Chapel Hill, North Carolina, saw a 24% jump in rents and Tempe, Arizona, saw a 31% hike.

In some cases, the rental increases have been exacerbated by a lack of on-campus housing,

Last fall, the demand for on-campus housing was so high that the University of Tampa offered incoming freshmen a break on tuition if they deferred until fall 2022. Rent in the Florida city has skyrocketed nearly 30% from a year ago, according to Apartment List.

Rent in Knoxville has soared 36% since March 2020, and it could get worse after the University of Tennessee announced a new lottery system for its dorms this fall, saying it needs to prioritize housing for a larger freshman class.

Even two-year community colleges, which have not traditionally provided dorms, are rethinking student needs as the cost of housing rises.

Last October, Long Beach City College outside of Los Angeles launched a pilot program to provide up to 15 homeless students space in an enclosed parking garage.

They sleep in their cars and have access to bathrooms and showers, electrical outlets and internet while they work with counselors to find permanent housing. Uduak-Joe Ntuk, president of the college's Board of Trustees, hesitated when asked if the program will be renewed.

> Academically it was hard, because I'm worried about finding housing and I'm worried about my clothes and I'm worried about getting my car broken into all the time - Terrell Thompson

"I want to say no, but I think we will," he said. "We're going to have new students come fall semester this year that are going to be in a similar situation, and for us to do nothing is untenable."

UC Berkeley and other UC campuses are fighting homeowners who oppose campus expansion plans, even as the schools accept more students.

Most students have no idea of the housing situation when they choose to attend UC Berkeley, said 19-year-old freshman Sanaa Sodhi, and the university needs to do more to prepare students and support them in their search.

The political science major is excited to move out of the dorms and into a two-bedroom apartment where she and three friends are taking over the lease. The unit is older but a bargain at $3,000 a month, she said. The housemates were prepared to pay up to $5,200 for a safe place close to campus.

"You don't honestly know the severity of the situation before you're in it," she said, adding that landlords hold all the cards. "They know that whatever price they charge, we'll inevitably have to pay it because we don't really have a choice except maybe to live out of our cars."

City of Santa Monica

SANTA MONICA RENT CONTROL BOARD
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
Thursday, April 28, 2022

The Board will hold a public hearing on the feasibility of certain amendments to the City Charter during the Santa Monica Rent Control Board special meeting on Thursday, April 28, 2022 at 7:00 p.m. via teleconference:

1) Whether the Board should recommend that the City of Santa Monica adopt an amendment to the City Charter requiring the registration of all non-rent-controlled rental units;
2) Whether the Board should recommend that Section 1806(a)(8)(iv) of the Rent Control Charter Amendment (RCCA) be amended to require that an owner intend to occupy the unit for at least three years instead of one year;
3) Whether the Board should recommend that Section 1806(a)(8)(v) of the RCCA be amended to require an owner to re-offer the unit to the displaced tenant if the owner fails to reside in the unit for at least three years and to allow an owner 60 days, instead of 30 days, to take occupancy of the unit.
4) Whether the Board should recommend that Section 1803(e) of the RCCA be amended to allow Commissioners to be elected to a maximum of three full terms to align with City elected officials; and
5) Whether the Board should recommend that Section 1803(d) of the RCCA be amended to state that an election need not be held if the number of qualified candidates does not exceed the number of open board positions.

Instructions on accessing the meeting and speaking to the Board are provided in the agenda. The agenda and staff report are available on the Board's website at: www.santamonica.gov /rentcontrol.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (April 27)

The solar return casts a dreamy light on your personal life. Idealistic views will be made real; fond wishes granted. In short, relationships become very fun. Creative work comes your way. You just don't feel quite like yourself unless you're putting something new into the world! Summer brings financial solutions and domestic ease. Gemini and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 5, 22, 18 and 47.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). "Sell the sizzle, not the steak" may be the con artist's creed -- then again, not every meal needs the steak. A good sizzle can be applied to myriad options. You'll bring your unique seasoning to the table today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The day's success comes from a simple effort to show up and try to do the right thing. Simple isn't always easy, though. For instance, today, the right thing may seem to take a herculean effort.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Ancient history and old acquaintances will play a role. You can remember the less than ideal scenario from the past and still keep your mood and energy flowing bright. It's all how you decide to see it.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). The deadline just ahead doesn't scare you in the least; in fact, it seems to be pulling you forward. You'll work faster than ever and with great clarity of thought.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Everyone has their own definition of the good life, and it changes with different ages and stages. What do you really want these days? Your appetites and curiosities will point the way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You're growing in efficiency and your efforts will bring plentiful results. The point of diminishing returns will come someday, but it's not something you have to worry about now. Ride the big wave and enjoy yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You'll find comfort in the predictable behavior of others. Because you've seen someone show up consistently in a certain way, you'll be ready to make the most of the interaction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). What you are looking for will be found within. It's a hard place to look for things. You need the flashlight of objectivity to help you see the way. A trusted friend will hold it up for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Your mind keeps wandering, a sign that maybe what you're doing isn't all that interesting to you right now. Consider changing things up to accommodate your novel cravings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Fear will try to take over the bus you're driving. Don't let it! Take its ticket to ride but don't give it the wheel. At best, fear belongs in the back seat, where it can inform you without interfering too much.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You strive to bring out the best in people. Hold this intention and you're halfway there. Expectations find a way to fulfill themselves. Capricorn and fellow Aquarians figure into the plan.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Times have changed. New rules are not only necessary but they will be essential to an orderly existence. You're in a position to influence the new order.

Bergamot Station Arts Center invites you to our station-wide Spring Fling event from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Don't miss this unparalleled arts and community celebration in Santa Monica. Bergamot Station is an internationally renowned creative arts complex, boasting over 20 galleries and creative businesses. The Spring Fling highlights gallery exhibitions and brings together artist talks, curator walk throughs, local vendors and special events. Bergamot Station Arts Center, 2525 Michigan Avenue.

WALKS WITH BROCK
Meet Councilman Phil Brock at 8:30 a.m. at Hotchkiss Park (2302 Fourth Street) to talk policy. Street parking and bike racks available.

SUNDAY | MAY 1

WALK & TALK WITH ARCHITECT JOHN BERLEY
In this walk you will discover the intentions and hidden mysteries of the landmark Beach House, and hear how the past, present, and future are interrelated through design to harmonize the historic setting into an experience of delight, wonder, and a sense of well-being. Leading this walk and talk is John Berley, former Senior Associate with Frederick Fisher and Partners, who was responsible for managing the design and construction of the Annenberg Community Beach House. Walk & Talk with John Berley is a free event. Registration is requested (https://www.eventbrite.com/e/a-walk-talk-with-architect-john-berley-registration-310156254707). In-person registration will be available at Guest Services. Annenberg Community Beach House, 415 Pacific Coast Highway, 10 - 11 a.m.
