Man walks from New York to the Pier

Matthew Hall

PIER: Cody O'Connor, a 25-year-old cancer survivor from Cincinnati, Ohio, finished a cross-country walk from New York to Santa Monica on Friday. O'Connor has been walking across the country on a "Walk for Hope" for the past nine months to raise $300,000 for pediatric cancer patients and to shine a light on the ongoing mental and emotional toll that a diagnosis can have on a person and their family. O'Connor kicked off the "Walk for Hope" in New York on June 17 and walked approximately 3,500 miles of the journey averaging around 20-25 miles per day. At age 14, Cody was diagnosed with Ewing's Sarcoma and had to have his right fibula removed. Doctors told him he would never walk normal again.

"The walk stands for never giving up - no matter what people tell you, always try to take that next step to overcome the odds you are facing," explains O'Connor.

He said he knows all too well the effects cancer can have on the entire family. Each of his parents were forced to file for bankruptcy, despite working full time in order to continue providing for his six siblings. He is appreciative for the support and help they received throughout the community. While he credits his parents, siblings, and physicians for successfully getting him through his battle, the experience revealed what more needs to be done for families facing cancer. In 2018, O'Connor founded the non-profit Champions Do Overcome with a mission to provide financial and emotional assistance to families so that they can be with their loved one in the hospital and continue fighting, without the added stress of bills piling up at home. Several Santa Monica officials met him on the Pier at the end of his trip.

Allen calls for infrastructure, education and climate spending

EMILY SAWICKI
SMDP Staff Writer

Ben Allen wants to see California re-invest its budget surplus into programs he said have been neglected for too long.

Speaking to the Santa Monica Democratic Club (SMDC) last Wednesday, the State Senator said as the fiscal year 2022-23 budget drew nearer, he was advocating in Sacramento for ways to see State money directed toward infrastructure, education and climate resiliency. That would mean moving away from cutting more Golden State Stimulus checks and toward statewide investments.

"I think there's a lot of pressure to try to, you know, create all these tax cuts and rebates, and I do certainly agree that a certain portion of our population has really been suffering that needs the budget surplus," Allen said, "but I also think that there's so much backlog, in terms of investment, that we've just under invested in over the years." Allen cited education, transit, homelessness and climate resiliency as key areas where he felt state money could be targeted.

One obstacle in Allen's way is the Gann Limit — the cap in what the State is permitted to appropriate each budget year — but the Senator said that, though complicated, he believed there were ways to work around it; he also hoped it may be reformed in a 2024 ballot measure.

The SMDC hosted Allen, representing Santa Monica in District 26, for an update from Sacramento during an April 27 meeting. Speaking

Iao Katagiri, beloved community leader and non-profit champion, dies at 70

CLARA HARTER
SMDP Staff Writer

Petite yet powerful, double the energy of the energizer bunny, endlessly selfless — these are the words used to describe beloved champion of local organizations Iao Katagiri whose resume of community contributions is almost too long to list.

Katagiri, who died from a swift progression of cancer at age 70, will live on through the countless programs, donations and partnerships she enabled.

Katagiri worked at the RAND Corporation from 1975 to 2016 where she began her career as a researcher and went on to serve for many years as the Director of Community Relations. Katagiri

SMC'S Global Motion World Dance Company to Perform May 14-15 at The Broad Stage

Courtesy photo

DANCE: The program returns May 14.

The Santa Monica College Global Motion World Dance Company is proud to present its Spring 2022 performance featuring dances from around the world.

Performances are on Saturday, May 14, and Sunday, May 15, at 7:30 p.m. in The Broad Stage at the SMC Performing Arts Center, 1310 11th Street (at Santa Monica Boulevard), Santa Monica. Guests should visit smc.edu/coronavirus before heading to the performance for up-to-date details on vaccine and mask requirements, as requirements are subject to change.

SMC students will present the excitement and diverse beauty of other cultures through showcasing traditional and contemporary World Dance styles — including West African, Belly Dance (aka Raqs Sharqi), Mexican Folklórico, House, Salsa, Samba Reggae, Tahitian, and more. The performances include a work by guest artist Ephrat Asherie — an award-winning, New York City-based B-Girl, dancer, and choreographer — sponsored by the SMC Associated Students.

Global Motion was founded over 40 years ago by recently retired SMC Dance Department chair Judith Douglas to bring knowledge, understanding, and appreciation of the diverse beauty of dance throughout the world, and to give SMC students the essential experience of working with choreographers and performing as a professional company, on a professional stage.

The SMC Dance Department uses The Broad Stage at the SMC Performing Arts Center — including the stage and lighting crew and support staff — for performances. Costumes are handmade each season by professional costumer Patricia Oliva.

Global Motion is under the artistic direction of Raquel Ramirez and Sri Susilowati. Ramirez is a dance professor at SMC and the founder and director of a folklórico performance group dedicated to supporting the traditions and cultures of Mexico. Susilowati, originally from Indonesia, creates and performs traditional and contemporary works that focus on community, gender, and ethnicity.

Faculty choreographers are Seda Aybay (Salsa), Keali'i Ceballos (Tahitian), Angela Jordan (West African), and Raquel Ramirez (Mexican Folklórico).

Guest choreographers are Ephrat Asherie (House and Breaking) and Rachel Hernandez (Samba Reggae).

Alumni choreographers are Erica Caplan (Belly Dance, aka Raqs Sharqi), and Erik Muñoz and Yessenia Bueno Muñoz (Salsa/Cha Cha).

SMC dance students audition to choreograph pieces for Global Motion. This spring, the student choreographers are Micah Klassen, Levi Klassen, and Ryoto Ogato (Hip Hop).

The ensemble has toured extensively and performed at schools, festivals, and special events throughout California and Mexico, as well as performances in Beijing, China (three times); Bracciano, Italy; Santiago, Chile; Lloret de Mar, Spain; and Paris, France.

Advance tickets can be purchased online at smc.edu/tickets at any time for $20, plus a modest service charge. Seating is on a first-arrival basis.

More information is available at smc.edu/dance or by calling the SMC Dance Department at 310-434-3467.

College fair returns to SMC

Matthew Hall

COLLEGE: Santa Monica College organized its first post-pandemic in-person college fair last week on the college's main campus quad with approximately 1,000 students in attendance. A parallel, virtual event for students who cannot attend in-person was also on offer. Taking place in a scaled-back format on-ground—the college currently has stringent health and safety measures in place—the popular event, generally the largest of its kind in California, had 93 four-year institutions in attendance including four UC campuses, 13 California State University (CSU) campuses, 25 out-of-state colleges and universities, seven international institutions, 42 California private institutions, and more. The once-a-semester event allows SMC students the opportunity to interact directly with university/college representatives, offering exposure to possible transfer destinations they may not have considered or been aware of. This enables students to choose the best fit for them and allows for personal contact with a college/university.

seemed to only become busier in retirement, doubling down on her commitments to the many non-profit boards she served on.

"She had a strong moral compass, was tireless in terms of energy level and was really at her best when she was helping other people, particularly people who came from disadvantaged backgrounds or had other obstacles that they were capable of overcoming if only they had help. She prided herself on enabling people like that to succeed," said Michael D. Rich, president and CEO of the nonprofit, nonpartisan research organization RAND.

It was Katagiri who began the internal push for RAND to become more involved in the local community, recognizing both the value the community could provide to RAND and the value RAND could bring to the community. As a result of her advocacy she was appointed as the first Director of Community Relations and used the role to professionally embody her personal commitment to be of service to others.

One of her many accomplishments in this position was successfully securing RAND a vast new campus for its research in Downtown Santa Monica, despite stiff land-use controls and a voter ballot referendum designed to defeat the plan.

"I think without Iao it was very, very possible we would have had to find another home and she provided the staying power and intellectual leadership for us to go through the process, overcome all the political obstacles and we're just very, very grateful and appreciative that we had her in the position we did," said Rich.

RAND Corporation/Diane Baldwin

VOLUNTEER: Iao Katagiri had a huge impact on the Santa Monica community first through her work at RAND and later through her many volunteer activities.

While at RAND, Katagiri also contributed to one of the organization's largest ever projects, which focused on a better way to provide affordable housing to low-income households. Additionally, Katagiri helped raise $8 million to launch the Institute for Civil Justice at RAND.

Katagiri became involved in many local organizations through her role as the Director of Community Relations, but her commitment was driven by a fierce passion and not a job responsibility as she stacked up title upon title.

At the time of her death, Katagiri was chair of the board of directors of Providence Saint John's Health Center, vice chair of the Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce (which she had chaired 2009 to 2010), and co-chair of the Early Childhood District Advisory Committee of the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District. She was immediate past president of Connections for Children, and past co-chair of the City of Santa Monica's Early Childhood Task Force. Katagiri also served on the boards of the SMC Associates and of WISE & Healthy Aging, where she was vice chair.

"She didn't acquire those board memberships and leadership positions to just burnish her resume, she was active in each and every organization and I think were you did check with them, you'd hear about the substantive contribution she made to each one," said Rich.

Katagiri played a pivotal role in the opening of SMC's Early Childhood Lab School and connected the college to an influential donor, Ann Wang, who went on to contribute $1 million to various SMC education and equity initiatives.

"She was someone who was just constantly reaching out in a very selfless way to engage others and always thinking about other people," said Dr Kathryn E. Jeffrey, SMC superintendent and president. "She was such an amazing person and she will be missed by many, but because we knew her, because we had a chance to engage with her, we will see the benefits of that interaction for many, many years."

Even in sickness, Katagiri continued to work on a tuition assistance fund named in her honor. The IAO Katagiri fund was titled by Katagiri with the I-A-O intended to stand for Integrity and Optimism. The fund is a project of the SMC foundation and seeks to raise $100,000 to provide tuition assistance for SMC's early education lab school.

"For someone who was so petite and powerful at the same time, she found a way to connect those dots, connect the people, make things happen and never for herself. She was always so willing to put in the hard work and the effort to make change happen for people who needed it and didn't have a voice," said Kiersten Elliott, SMC dean of community & academic relations.

Katagiri was granted numerous accolades for her community contributions including the Santa Monica Chamber's Roy E. Naylor Lifetime Achievement Award.

"The board of directors of the Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce joins the entire Santa Monica community in mourning Iao's passing," said Michael Ricks, Chair of the board of directors and chief executive of Providence Saint John's Health Center, "Iao was a tireless community leader, children's advocate, and all-around wonderful person. Her mark on Santa Monica will remain for years to come."

BEN ALLEN

to the Club and Q&A moderator SMDC Programs VP Melissa Goodman, Allen covered a range of topics including the upcoming election as well as his priorities for 2022.

He described a diversity of priorities for the 2022 legislative session, with issues ranging from transit to recycling to gender neutral bathrooms and much more.

"It's been a very, very — a very busy time in Sacramento right now … we've had all these major bill deadlines that have been coming up this week," Allen said.

Allen said he sponsored a bill that would require new multifamily units to be built wired for electric car chargers in their garages.

"It's crazy to be building more and more multifamily units without even electricity capacity down in the garage," Allen opined.

He said he was also invested in increasing transit availability, saying he had a "big bill that's going to help speed up our transit projects in the build-up to the 2028 Olympics."

On the climate side, Allen was hoping a bill he sponsored that would give the California Coastal Commission authority to levy fines against unpermitted damage to California wetlands and coastal water would move forward. He called it "the first opportunity for the State to finally hold oil companies accountable."

The latest news to come out of the Senator's office was a new bill, SB 1194, which would allow municipalities to provide multi-stall gender-neutral bathrooms in public buildings. The bill, which Allen said he partnered with West Hollywood to write, passed the bipartisan housing committee unanimously on Wednesday.

"The fact that we had this bill — that is going to allow West Hollywood to do what's such an important thing for so many of its residents, especially the trans community that's been so vilified and attacked of late — and to have the Republican members of our housing committee vote for this bill was just such … a heartwarming thing," Allen said. "I mean, this moment of extreme partisanship, demonization of the trans community on the right, it's just a wonderful moment of humanity, to have them recognize the value of a bill like this."

He also acknowledged the likelihood of seeing a Republican challenger on the ballot for the November midterm elections, after club members suggested the two-term incumbent had the race sewn up.

The write-in challenger, whom Allen did not name, was likely to appear on the November ballot, he said, due to the way primaries are organized in California.

The progressive went on to disparage his potential opponent: "She seems like a very nice person who watches way too much Fox News, and she's just kind of like adopted all the crazy Republican conspiracy theories."

Should Allen win re-election, it would be for his third and final term as a legislator in Sacramento due to a 12-year term limit. Goodman asked about his reflections on his first eight years and whether his legislative style may change in his third term. Allen said it has been a learning process to develop instincts for when to rise to a challenge and when to sit back.

"I think I know the system better now and I know where I can push more, and I do," Allen said, later adding, "Now that I've got a deeper 'Spidey-sense,' I'm going to be more proactive in helping to steer things that I think might … be a little off kilter or may not be in the best interest of my community."

A German Requiem by Johannes Brahms

The Chancel Choir of the First United Methodist Church of Santa Monica, and the Chancel Choir of the First United Methodist Church of Pasadena, are joining forces to present "A German Requiem" by Johannes Brahms.

These performances will use a new English adaptation by Robert Shaw, arguably America's greatest choral conductor. Mr. Shaw spent his final years before his death in 1999, working on this new English version, which was premiered by The Mormon Tabernacle Choir, three weeks after Mr. Shaw's death. Johannes Brahms had made it clear that his Requiem should be sung in the language of the people, or in his case – German.

Therefore, an English version of the work is very much in keeping with the wishes of Brahms, performing it in the "language of the people". Brahms called his Requiem a "human requiem", intending it to be a source of comfort and grace that extends to all, especially relevant in today's challenging times. The two choirs, combined with some added guest singers, will be accompanied by a full orchestra. There will be two performances: Sunday, May 15 at 4 p.m. at First United Methodist Church of Santa Monica, 1008 11th Street, conducted by James Smith; and Saturday, May 21 at 4 p.m. at First United Methodist Church of Pasadena, 500 East Colorado Blvd, conducted by Greg Norton. The performance at Santa Monica will be preceded by Poulenc's Concerto for Organ, Strings and Tympani, featuring Ty Woodward, organist. Both performances will be presented free of charge.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 2)

There's an aspirational theme to the opening of your solar return. You'll pitch your ideas, make deals and find yourself in a position to give back. You'll help people you love and love the people you help. A new environment will become important to your days. Projects and relationships are born in this interesting place. Gemini and Cancer adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 10, 4, 44, 38 and 2.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You'll be moved to generosity, perhaps by someone who has much less than you do. For today, giving of yourself will be far more satisfying than giving to yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). People will tell you who they are. They won't even realize they are doing it, but the truth of your presence will draw out the truth of theirs, and all will be known.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Is your personal life a roller coaster, an elevator or a walk in the park? As you focus on the basics like health and well-being, other things fall into place to put relationships on an even keel.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). It does seem that exciting events should be coming into your life on their own, but unfortunately, the cosmic coordinator isn't getting the message. No worries -- this is an opportunity to plan it just the way you like!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). However well-defined and obvious your needs may be to you, another person still isn't seeing it. Maybe you don't want to spell it out, but that may be what it takes to get the fulfillment you so deserve.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You're able to be generous with those who need you because you invest your energy well. Sometimes that means declining frivolous asks and avoiding those who want you to do their dirty work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Don't overthink the day. What occurs naturally will be the harmonious and best. To overprepare, strategize or obsess will put weird vibes into your project. You'll get successful outcomes from a chill attitude.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The smart plans don't always come from your conscious mind. You've been making simple, intuitive decisions based on what your heart and body need, and as you continue in kind, you'll grow in strength and joy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). It's not such a bad mistake to accidentally repeat the same thing to the same person. You might even call it "branding" and do it on purpose. People around you will need to hear things multiple times before it sinks in.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You work through things easily with those who share your ability to laugh at life. With humorless people, it's a little harder to make things jive. So whenever possible, go where the funny ones are.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'd walk across hot coals to help someone, but unless that person is on the other side of hot coals, it's totally unnecessary. Discover what's needed before you put yourself out.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Finding a tranquil space within yourself will be much easier after you find a tranquil space in your environment. Either clear or create a space of your own or go exploring to find one.
