Amazon announces 1,000 new jobs at the Water Garden

MATTHEW HALL
Daily Press Editor

Amazon has announced plans to create more than 2,500 corporate and technology jobs over the coming years in multiple cities across California including 1,000 jobs at Santa Monica's Water Garden.

The company will expand its Tech Hubs in San Diego and the Los Angeles area, including Irvine and Santa Monica. The company said the investments come after Amazon opened more than 15 sites across Southern California and created more than 17,000 jobs statewide in 2021 alone.

"Communities across California have welcomed Amazon over the past decade and have seen firsthand how our investments can unlock new opportunities for their neighbors and local economies. We've created more than 170,000 jobs across the state and are committed to continue investing here," said Holly Sullivan, Amazon's vice president of worldwide economic development. "These 2,500 new jobs include roles building cloud infrastructure, improving the Alexa experience, and designing cutting edge video games. They're a fantastic opportunity for Californians of all backgrounds to join Amazon and build a successful career."

In announcing the opening, Amazon said the California expansion will support various teams across the company, including retail, Amazon Games, Amazon Web Services, and operations. A variety of roles are already available, including software development engineers, game designers, and user experience designers, along with positions in human resources, finance, IT, and more. People interested in applying for roles at Amazon can learn more here.

Amazon's investments in California will include new office space in three cities, contributing to local job creation and the revitalization of downtown areas. These investments include:

• Santa Monica – As part of Amazon's expansion at its Los Angeles Tech Hub, the company plans to create more than 1,000 new corporate and tech jobs in Santa Monica over the coming years. To accommodate this hiring effort, Amazon has signed a lease for a 200,000-square-foot space with J.P. Morgan Asset Management at the Water Garden. The new site will begin welcoming employees in mid-2023.

• Irvine – Further expanding its Los Angeles Tech Hub, Amazon also plans to create more than 800 corporate and tech jobs over the next few years in Irvine. The company has signed a lease for 116,000 square feet of space at Spectrum Terrace with Irvine Company and plans to occupy the office space later this year.

• San Diego – Amazon has signed a lease for a 123,000-square-foot space with Seritage Growth Properties and Invesco at University Town Center to accommodate more than 700 employees. About 1,000 tech and corporate employees are already working at Amazon's San Diego Tech Hub. The new office space will open for employees in early 2023.

WATER GARDEN: Amazon is expanding an existing division in Santa Monica with 1,000 new corporate and technology jobs.

Amazon is already present in Santa Monica working on content creation at Amazon Studios in the Water Garden.

"Santa Monica is welcoming them with open arms and we're pleased with their commitment to stay and expand their footprint in Santa Monica," said Economic Development Manager Jennifer Taylor.

"Adding 1,000 jobs is significant. The creative and tech industries are about 37% of the city's jobs we have about 29,000 positions in creative and tech so adding to that is definitely welcomed because these are high-paid jobs and build on our talented workforce."

ROE V WADE

Supervisors voted in favor of an item that would support strengthened access to abortion statewide.

During the Tuesday meeting, supervisors Kuehl, Holly Mitchell, Janice Hahn, Hilda Solis and Kathryn Barger all approved support for a proposed California Senate Bill, SB 1245, that "aims to address the current barriers to accessing abortion care in California and will expand the work around sexual and reproductive healthcare services in the largest County in the nation," according to a motion by Mitchell and Kuehl. The bill also includes a $20 million state budget request to further its efforts toward providing abortion access to California residents and non-residents.

The motion has been on the Supervisors' agenda for days; it was drawn up well before a Monday, May 2, Politico report leaked a draft Supreme Court decision indicating the Court would overturn the landmark 1973 Roe v. Wade decision legalizing abortion. Supervisors speaking at the May 3 meeting said they were alarmed but not surprised by the news.

"I thought I knew what I was going to say about this when we were looking at it yesterday," Kuehl, representing Santa Monica for the Third LA County District, said. "And then all of a sudden we started — you know, we saw the tweet from Politico and everything opened up." Kuehl described the potential Supreme Court decision as "tectonic."

Kuehl and Mitchell's motion describes SB 1245, which they wrote would "establish a reproductive healthcare pilot project in the County to support innovative approaches and patient-centered collaborations to safeguard patient access to abortions, regardless of residency."

Supervisors placed the item on their May 3 agenda following up on a Jan. 25 request they made to County staff asking for ways to become a "safe haven" for people seeking abortion, should other states implement bans or Roe v. Wade be overturned.

At the time, all five Supervisors (four Democrats and one Republican) voted to request the County CEO, the directors of the Department of Health Services and Department of Public Health, and County Counsel coordinate with Planned Parenthood and other reproductive health care advocates to develop plans for how the County could respond to potential abortion bans from other states.

Among supervisors' requests in January were an analysis of the potential budget impact associated with the State's proposals to open up abortion access to nonresidents. They also asked for opportunities to enhance medical training in the County, including training to assist victims of botched or complicated non-hospital abortions in other states.

At the January meeting, Supervisors also asked staff to identify "opportunities to reduce and address health disparities by expanding reproductive and sexual health services, supplies and education, for marginalized communities and those who might be harder to reach."

Although abortion access is the law of the land in California, it is not written into the California Constitution, but that could change following Monday's news.

Gov. Gavin Newsom and top legislative leaders committed Monday to putting an amendment on the November ballot that would "enshrine the right to choose" in California.

Newsom has pledged to make California a sanctuary for people to come and get abortions. According to AP reporting, SB 1245 is one of 13 California bills currently proposed to help codify and expand abortion access.

Monday night, Newsom and legislative leaders added another proposal to their list: an amendment to the state constitution. They provided no further details, other than saying it would preserve the right to choose.

"We know we can't trust the Supreme Court to protect reproductive rights, so California will build a firewall around this right in our state constitution," Newsom, Assembly Speaker Anthony Rendon and Senate President Pro Tempore Toni Atkins said in a joint statement. "Women will remain protected here."

Adam Beam contributed to this report.

Natural Gas Leak Forces Evacuation of 3rd Street Promenade

On Monday May 2nd at 3:02 p.m. Santa Monica Fire resources were dispatched to a reported "Gas Odor" in the area of 1410 Third Street. The first arriving Engine company quickly determined the incident to be a significant natural gas leak and requested additional resources including the SMFD Hazardous Materials Response Team. Fire crews deployed fire protection hose lines, prevented potential ignition sources, and began air monitoring of all adjacent buildings. Santa Monica Police Officers assisted with the evacuations of the 200 block of Santa Monica Blvd. and the 1330/1400 block of Third Street Promenade. So-Cal Gas arrived on scene to repair the leak. At approximately 8 p.m. the gas leak was successfully stopped. All evacuation orders were then lifted, and residents were allowed to return to the area.

The source of the natural gas was from an underground 2" gas line that was ruptured during a nearby construction project. There were no reported injuries due to the gas leak. Assisting agencies included Santa Monica Police, Santa Monica Office of Emergency Management, Santa Monica Public Works, So-Cal Gas Company, McCormick Ambulance, and LA County Department of Public Health

Court: San Francisco can't ban suspected drug dealers

A California appeals court ruled against an effort by San Francisco to ban four suspected drug dealers from a 50-square-block area in a city neighborhood rife with drug dealing and drug use.

The ruling issued Friday is part of a case that started in 2020 when San Francisco sued 28 alleged drug dealers who frequent the Tenderloin and South of Market neighborhoods to try and clean up the area that has seen the city's largest number of overdose deaths. Then San Francisco City Attorney Dennis Herrera said the lawsuits, if approved in California Superior Court, would prevent the alleged dealers from entering that area of downtown.

The state's First District Court of Appeal said a local government may be entitled to issue narrowly targeted stay-away orders to wrongdoers in some circumstances, but not one that is so broad, the San Francisco Chronicle reported Monday.

The city's first attempt to enforce the ban against four of the 28 alleged drug dealers was blocked last May by a state judge in San Francisco who said state law did not appear to authorize a court to prohibit someone from entering a geographic area — but even if it did, the proposed order was so broad that it would violate the constitutional right to travel.

"We are mindful of, and sympathetic to, the challenges faced by the city in addressing the issues of illegal drug sales, drug use, and the drug-related health crisis and its effects on the people who live and work in the neighborhood," Justice Marla Miller wrote in Friday's 3-0 ruling.

Miller said, however, that "although the city contends these defendants have no reason to ever even be in the 50-square-block Tenderloin neighborhood except to sell drugs there was evidence that many community resources and government agencies are located in the Tenderloin."

She said the San Francisco judge was entitled to believe the four people's statements "that they were interested in taking advantage of the employment, treatment, housing, and health services available in the 50-square-block neighborhood."

San Francisco City Attorney David Chiu's spokesperson, Jen Kwart, said Monday the office was disappointed by the ruling and had not decided whether to appeal.

LinkedIn settles with U.S. over alleged pay discrimination

The career-networking service LinkedIn has agreed to pay $1.8 million in back wages to hundreds of female workers to settle a pay discrimination complaint brought by U.S. labor investigators.

The U.S. Labor Department announced Tuesday that it has reached a settlement agreement with LinkedIn to resolve allegations of "systemic, gender-based pay discrimination" in which women were paid less than men in comparable job roles.

The settlement affects nearly 700 women who worked in engineering, product or marketing roles from 2015 to 2017 at the company's offices in San Francisco and Sunnyvale, California. It includes the time before and after Microsoft's $26.2 billion acquisition of LinkedIn in 2016.

LinkedIn said in a statement that "while we have agreed to settle this matter, we do not agree with the government's claims; LinkedIn pays and has paid its employees fairly and equitably when comparing similar work."

The settlement agreement says LinkedIn argued that its statistical models didn't identify pay disparities. The government said its own analysis found significant pay disparities even after controlling for "legitimate explanatory factors."

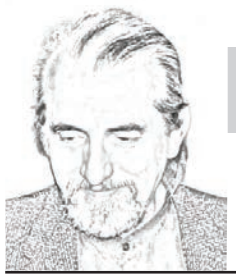

The agency said the case was sparked by a routine evaluation by its Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs. Federal laws ban discriminatory practices at companies that contract with the federal government.

WHAT IS MISSING IN THIS TOWN?

HISTORY: Santa Monica High School as it looked in 1919.

HERE I GO AGAIN

With the promise of a list I just can't fulfill.

So many blessing to living in sunny Santa Monica on the bay, and I count them every day. But, so many things missing, that threaten those blessings as never before.

Even though I'm a new kid here, compared to some, with only 36 years at the same address in Ocean Park, I know a little history. (Though not as much as Marty Liboff or Richard Orton.) I know there were plenty of reasons why famed oilman turned novelist Raymond Chandler, in the '30s, chose our charming beach town as the setting for many of his crime and corruption detective novels starring hard bit PI Phillip Marlowe, and called it Bay City. Shabby town, crooked town, sun, sin, seduction and second wives, gambling…

Oh, the gambling! What an incredible part of our history. Endless streams of small boats shuttling from our Pier to a fleet of big gambling ships anchored just past the three-mile international waters line, untouchable by U.S. law. Thousands of gamblers per ship, 24/7, made ex-con Tony Cornero a very wealthy man. When it finally came crashing down after a decade, he had taken on multiple mayors, police forces, CA Attorney General Earl Warren (later U.S. Supreme Court Chief Justice), and finally escaped without charges. His notion of courting middle-class gamblers, not high rollers, and offering a "wholesome" atmosphere with entertainment and free food, became the blueprint for Las Vegas. Way to go, Santa Monica!

WE'VE CLEANED UP OUR ACT HERE

Ha. Now our corruption is hidden behind pious pronouncements of a compassionate, progressive Santa Monica that wants only to help… outside developers take away more bags of gold than Caesar ever dreamed of.

Oh, I'm sorry, I meant to write, Santa Monica wants only to help… the homeless, the elderly, the downtrodden, the mentally ill, the displaced, low income, minorities, women, youth…

Oh, just stop, Charles. We have our own Big Lie here, that we are all that, but if you look at the evidence all around you, and our history (Belmar, Pico neighborhood, Ellis), rather than listening to politicians' rhetoric and the shiny PR nuggets coming out of City Hall (Main Street's doing great!), reality wins out. I preferred it when it was gambling and dirty cops and no baloney. At least you could clearly see what you were fighting. Now we're facing a lipstick shortage, for all those pigs being passed off as Mother Theresa. Meet the new boss, same as the old boss.

So of all the things missing here, to make this the Santa Monica it could and should be, what comes to my mind first?

Political power, exercised with vision, efficiency, speed and wisdom, in the hands of residents who care about our future. OUR future, you know, US, who already live here and plan to stay, not those drifting through who barely know where they are, don't care about the future here, and vote that way. And let's be clear, there are political groups who have carefully engineered this situation. By choking our small city with thousands of market-rate apartments and condos, many so tiny they are perfect for the single high-income mobile techies who just want a bedroom to crash in after work and play, nothing too permanent you know, because they will be moving on, renters, for the most part. Who will vote for the paid endorsements "renters right" SMRR and developer-funded Forward put in their mailbox. Or deliver by phone with the help of Union 11, who wants more hotels, as tall and wide as possible, please, as long as they pay a union wage. I love it when someone says, if you don't like your elected officials, vote for different ones! Not that simple in Santa Monica.

BUT… ELECTIONS

Are probably the best bet. Maybe the only one. We did get a slate of three "residents' representatives'' last time, a miracle, and a new appointee since, Lana Negrete, who thankfully votes with them sometimes (another miracle, considering most fill-in appointees for City Council seem to have been picked for their willingness to go along with a SMRR majority). It's a very similar situation to our national politics, where you have a group of political heavyweights who only want what they want and don't care about fudging the rules, and so beyond the high hurdles of money, organization and disinformation, we simply have to organize voters to turn out in numbers never seen before. Literally, our lives (Roe v. Wade) and the life of our city, depend upon it.

Gambling ships may have irked the authorities but didn't change Santa Monica. But overdevelopment like we have experienced recently has, and will continue to do so until no one will recognize this once famous and beloved city.

It is so sad, to see the exploitation and ruination of a small city with such a rich history. I mean – 'Baywatch"!! Actors from Shirley Temple, Garbo and Douglas Fairbanks to Cary Grant, Jack Webb, Robert Redford, Angelica Huston, Sean Penn (also social activist/filmmaker now in Ukraine), Jack Black, Amber Tamblyn, Doors drummer John Densmore and Bobby Shrive, Frank Gehry – all born in SM. Samohi graduated Glen Ford, Robert Wagner, Robert Downey Jr., Rob Lowe, Ry Cooder, and, shamefully, Trump's Stephen Miller and Nixon's Robert Ehrlichman. Jane Fonda and Tom Hayden lived here, as did Stan Laurel, Arnold, Abbot Kinney, William Randolph Hearst, Merle Norman. We had two American Grand Prix races here, and the Academy Awards and a long list of history at the Santa Monica Civic ("The T.A.M.I. Show"). Lawrence Welk, Gold's Gym, Douglas Aircraft, the Santa Monica Ballroom, the Cheetah Club, RAND, Synanon, KCRW/NPR. Muktananda set up his tents on the beach, one of only two places outside of India where he hung out. "Popeye" was created here. And James Dean was here to shoot "Rebel Without A Cause," at Samohi, but your School Board demolished, without good reason, the History Building, that was the original Samohi, from 1912. Oh well, Who cares?

I'm willing to bet that the Zoomer-Millennial crowd our overdevelopment-minded political folks here seem to be building out Santa Monica for, know very little of all this, and the majority don't care. I for one am tired of seeing good stuff thrown out and demolished and too much money spent unnecessarily on shiny new stuff.

Vote. (The campaign has already started.)

As Charles Andrews has lived in Santa Monica for 36 years and wouldn't live anywhere else in the world. Really. Send love and/or rebuke to him at therealmr-music@gmail.com

The future of LAHSA is unclear

CLARA HARTER
SMDP Staff Writer

In a 3-2 split the L.A. County Board of Supervisors narrowly passed a motion proposing a new master government entity in charge of coordinating a County wide response to the ever spiraling homelessness crisis.

Between LAHSA, DPH, DHS, DMH and DPSS, the list of government agencies currently addressing homelessness in LA County resembles alphabet soup and has led to an uncoordinated response to the crisis rife with department to department finger pointing.

The recommendation to create a new entity with direct responsibility, accountability and authority for handling homelessness comes out of the County's Blue Ribbon Commission on Homelessness. It has been met with a polarized response.

Supervisors Sheila Kuehl and Holly Mitchell voted against the proposal, saying that it will create an unnecessary additional layer of complexity and divert attention addressing the crisis.

"Implementing the recommendations of the Blue-Ribbon Commission on Homelessness as outlined in item 4 on today's agenda, will cause a thickening of the County bureaucracy and a process of administrative seat-swapping that will divert time, resources and attention from our paramount priority," stated Kuehl in response to the motion's passage.

Supervisor Kathryn Barger, who co-authored the motion with Supervisor Hilda Solis, felt the opposite. They were joined by Supervisor Janice Hahn in supporting the commission's recommendations.

"I want to be clear, this is not, and I repeat this is not about creating a new lumbering bureaucracy; It's about creating a nimble entity that will be directly accountable to this board," said Barger during a May 2 media briefing on the commission's recommendations.

Barger and Solis co-authored the initial motion to form the commission with the goal of uniting and streamlining the fight against homelessness across the County. This motion was also controversial and the City of LA declined to participate in the commission, similarly saying that it was an unnecessary distraction and complication.

The Commission was appointed in July 2021 and released a comprehensive report on the current structure of LA's homelessness response systems with recommendations for reform in March 2022. It was these recommendations that the Board of Supervisors voted on in the May 3 meeting.

The cornerstone of these recommendations is the proposal for a new master homelessness entity. Other aspects of the recommendations focus on restructuring the Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority (LAHSA), allocating Measure H funds to local governments, and creating better systems for tracking data on homelessness.

As the homelessness crisis has significantly worsened in recent years, LA County, LA City and the LAHSA have drawn criticism for their inability to get a handle on the situation.

The County and City are both embroiled in a federal lawsuit filed by a coalition of Downtown residents and business owners who allege they are failing their duty to protect public health and safety and provide shelter for unhoused individuals. Last week the Executive Director of LAHSA abruptly quit and in her resignation letter criticized the structure of LAHSA for having huge responsibility over the crisis and little authority over its own funding and direct actions.

It is the hope of Blue Ribbon Commission members that the newly proposed central entity will have strong authority and direct accountability over the crisis, which will allow it to effectively coordinate the responses of the County's numerous departments.

"It's about creating a department that will… coordinate and unify the various efforts of county departments such as the Department of Mental Health, Health Services, Public Health, and Social Services," said Barger. "It would also be authorized and equipped to act as a centralized housing acquisition unit to get people experiencing homelessness a roof over their head, connected to support services, and off our streets for good."

As the motion before the Board of Supervisors was simply to support researching and forming a recommendation for the structure of the new entity, the details of this structure remain unclear.

The second recommendation of the commission was to establish a local solutions fund that would direct a portion of the Measure H homeless sales tax fund that was passed by voters in 2017 to smaller cities. This recommendation also advocated for developing a better data tracking method for the expenditure of Measure H funds across all County departments and local governments.

"The second recommendation is about that collective action; so how do we bring more people into the solution?" said Commission Co-Chair Sarah Dusseault during the media briefing. "All 88 cities need to be a part of the solution and be able to create results at the local level that can help drive regional goals."

Recommendations three and five pertain to restructuring LAHSA. They propose transitioning certain Measure H responsibilities from LAHSA to the new central authority, changing the appointments on the County's five seats on the LAHSA Commission, and improving LAHSA's operations by better defining the responsibilities of its various governing boards.

Recommendation four is to research consolidating the LAHSA Commission, Continuum of Care Board and Coordinated Entry System into one central body. Recommendation six is to develop policies for better tracking and analysis of data pertaining to the homeless crisis. Recommendation seven is to develop an 'executive level action team' uniting decision makers across all areas of the homeless crisis response.

All seven recommendations were passed in a single motion by the Board of Supervisors. While Supervisor Kuehl's official statement likened the reforms to rearranging the deck chairs on the Titanic, Supervisor Barger felt much more optimistic.

"Initially, there was skepticism about creating a commission to assess homelessness systems. But nothing has been as comprehensive and collaborative as the Blue Ribbon Commission, and its recommendations reflect that commitment," stated Barger. "It won't happen overnight, but change starts with taking the first step. I'm ready to get off of the Titanic."

SUBJECT: 13DEV-004 (Development Agreement); 18ENT-0385 (Environmental Impact Report); 20ENT-0303 (Local Coastal Program Land Use Plan Amendment)
101 Santa Monica Boulevard, 129 Santa Monica Boulevard, 1327 Ocean Avenue, 1333 Ocean Avenue, and 1337 Ocean Avenue

APPLICANT & PROPERTY OWNER: M. David Paul Associates/Worthe Real Estate Group

A public hearing will be held by the Planning Commission to consider making a recommendation to the City Council on the following: The applicant has submitted applications for a Development Agreement and amendment to the 1992 Local Coastal Program Land Use Plan for a mixed-use project ("Ocean Avenue Project") with the following components: a 120-room full-service hotel, 100 residential apartments (including 20 affordable units and 16 rent-controlled units), an approximately 35,500 SF Cultural Uses Campus, approximately 36,100 SF of restaurants/retail, open space including a publicly-accessible rooftop observation deck, and 285 subterranean parking spaces.

The Project proposes a total of approximately 316,750 SF (of which 243,630 SF is above grade, 4,940 SF is outdoor dining, and 68,180 SF is below grade). The Project would have a Floor Area Ratio of 2.95. Building heights vary between 58' and a maximum of 130'. The project includes on-site repositioning and rehabilitation of two City-designated Landmarks that would be a part of the new Cultural Uses Campus. The Project also includes re-routing of a portion of 1st Court through the Project Site to allow for a Pedestrian Mall on the southern portion of 1st Court adjacent to Santa Monica Boulevard.

The Project was analyzed in accordance with the California Environmental Quality Act and this analysis is contained in the Project's Final Environmental Impact Report (FEIR) (SCH No. 2018121060). The Planning Commission will consider the analysis and provide comments on the FEIR. The Planning Commission will also consider a resolution of recommendation to the City Council to amend the 1992 Local Coastal Program Land Use Plan for consistency with 2010 General Plan and 2017 Downtown Community Plan parameters applicable to the Project Site.

It makes a difference!

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 4)

You're the novelist of your life. You'll center your plot around a beautiful event this year. A perfectly imperfect relationship dances through your days. Tenacity is the quality that influences your work life. The payoff that comes at the end of an arduous journey will be strong indeed! Young people study you; older people hire you. Virgo and Leo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 1, 4, 49, 13 and 27.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Respect is one of those things that has to be given before it is received. Following the rules and customs will be easy when you know what they are, and tricky in foreign situations. Go deftly into learning.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). What you pay attention to will love you back today. Consider turning some of your focus inward. Attention to your deeper feelings and subconscious layers will repay you in resounding fulfillment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Relationships will be eventful in both good and bad ways, but when they are built from the heart, whatever happens, love will be the constant — a rhythm uncomplicated, consistent and enduring.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). The way you see things may not match up with how others do, and that only makes it even more important that you capture memories in your own way. Your point of view is vital to the big picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Looping thoughts lead nowhere. Order them into a mental arrow instead. This is best done with action. Look straight ahead and shoot yourself into the future. It's awaiting you!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). There are those who have a cause and those who have a plight. You could help in either case. Those with a cause will pay the help forward. Those with a plight will continue to require the same help indefinitely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Small changes throw off your plans. You'd rather the changes were big instead! If things aren't going to go the way you imagined, you'd rather be very surprised than mildly annoyed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Those who are highly motivated by the last hours of a deadline (which is a nice way of saying "procrastinators") will get just the inspiration (push) they need to finish strong (or at all!).

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Style doesn't necessarily cost money, though it does take creativity and effort. Put in the time to learn what works for you. You love how good style makes you feel and how people react to you as a result.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Into every relationship, little rain must fall. Conflict is normal, and when done right, working out differences will bring people closer together. Lead with compassion and you won't go wrong.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Saying "I love you" doesn't always occur to you, but when it does, don't hesitate. Someone needs to hear the words and feel that they are valued for just being themselves.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Appearances lie. People who seem like they should be happy often aren't. You'll see past the exterior and connect with how people are really feeling instead of projecting onto them what you think they should be feeling.

WATER TEMP: 61.9

WEDNESDAY FAIR	SURF: 2-3ft Thigh to waist	Fresh, long period SW swell builds in through the day — summer focal points have nice size by the afternoon with the most size showing west of Dume. Smaller NW energy blends in. Morning wind looks manageable.
THURSDAY FAIR TO GOOD	SURF: 3-4ft Waist to chest	Long period SW/SSW swell builds further for exposures. Also expecting a rise in late season NW swell with enough energy by the afternoon for nice peaks at combo exposures. Morning wind doesn't look perfect but should be manageable.
