SMPD PILOTING DRONES AS FIRST RESPONDERS

If you make a 911 call in Santa Monica these days, the first officer on scene may be a drone.

EMILY SAWICKI
SMDP Staff Writer

It's a bird. It's a plane. It's a $12,000 police drone. And, while it's not faster than a speeding bullet, it is capable of making it from one end of town to another in a speedy 2.5 minutes.

The Santa Monica Police Department (SMPD) drone is on call 40 hours a week from its perch above the Santa Monica Public Safety Facility, ready to fly off at a moment's notice to answer service calls. The drone, also known as a UAS, or unmanned aircraft system, is steered by a sworn officer and overseen at all times by a non-sworn licensed pilot who stands on the facility's roof with eyes on the drone at all times.

The SMPD has had a drone program in place for about six years, but its use has evolved from being an extra pair of eyes in the sky into a key tool for responding to emergencies.

Any 911 call in the city between the hours of 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. from Wednesday through Saturday could elicit a drone response — often overhead before vehicles have time to arrive on scene — through the new "drone as first responder" or DFR program.

"Basically, the concept behind that is, you have [something] similar to a helicopter, with traditional air support," Cpt. Saul Rodriguez said during a drone demonstration at the

Fresno City Attorney Douglas Sloan considered for Santa Monica position

CLARA HARTER
SMDP Staff Writer

After two years of interim leadership, the City is nearing the end of its search for a permanent city attorney as City Council is set to vote on hiring current Fresno City Attorney Douglas Sloan in a May 10 meeting.

Douglas Sloan has worked for the City of Fresno for the past 16 years and headed the legal department for the past nine. As reported in the Fresno Bee, Fresno City Councilmembers were very sad to hear Sloan's announcement to leave and plan to recognize his service by

CITY OF SANTA MONICA ORDINANCE NUMBER 2700 (CCS) (CITY COUNCIL SERIES)

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SANTA MONICA Creating SANTA MONICA MUNICIPAL CODE CHAPTER 2.62 TO CREATE The Human Services Commission; Repealing Santa Monica Municipal Code Chapters 2.48, 2.56 And 2.60; And Sunsetting The Commission For The Senior Community, The Social Services Commission, And The Commission On The Status Of Women Upon Effectiveness Of ThE Ordinance

The following is a summary of Ordinance Number 2700 (CCS) prepared by the Office of the City Attorney:

The City Council approved the consolidation of the Commission for the Senior Community, the Social Services Commission and Commission on the Status of Women into one commission titled the Human Services Commission. The Human Services Commission will solicit community input regarding focus areas, develop an overall work plan for the commission, and will make use of time-limited ad hoc committees to address discrete work efforts and emerging community needs. The Ordinance creates SMMC Chapter 2.62 to list the composition, powers and duties of the new commission. The Ordinance also repeals the sections of the SMMC listing the Commission for the Senior Community, the Social Services Commission, and the Commission on the Status of Women, and sunsets all three commissions on June 30, 2022.

The Ordinance takes effect 30 days after adoption.

The full text of the above Ordinance is available upon request from the office of the City Clerk, located at 1685 Main Street, Room 102, Santa Monica. Phone: (310) 458-8211.

declaring Douglas Sloan Day during the last council meeting of May.

The Santa Monica City Council staff report recommends appointing Sloan for a position commencing on June 6. According to the Fresno Bee, Sloan informed officials on April 28 of his intent to leave Fresno for a new job in Southern California starting in June.

In Fresno, Sloan oversaw an office of 22 lawyers and over 129 total employees. He has over 30 years of experience practicing law and graduated from the University of Missouri Kansas City School of Law in 1987. He was admitted to the California State Bar in 1998 and began serving as the Fresno assistant city attorney in 2006 before becoming city attorney in 2013.

Prior to working as a city lawyer, Sloan was a private sector lawyer in Missouri, Kansas and California and has a strong background in real estate law. He has handled trial and appellate matters in state courts, the United States District Courts, and the 8th, 9th, and 10th United States Circuit Courts of Appeals.

Sloan's 2020 base pay excluding benefits was $263,650, which is slightly below the former City Attorney Lane Dilg's base pay of $283,000 when she was initially hired in 2018.

Dilg left her attorney role to become interim city manager in April 2020, following the abrupt pandemic prompted resignation of former City Manager Rick Cole.

Longtime City lawyer George Cardona became Interim City Attorney in April 2020 and another longtime attorney with the City, Joseph Lawrence, came out of retirement to step into the interim position in October 2021 when Cardona departed. As the search for a permanent attorney dragged on, a third interim attorney, Susan Cola was appointed in April 2022.

The search has been tainted by accusations of Councilmember information leaks regarding the names of candidates.

In a Feb. 10 Council meeting, Councilmember Gleam Davis proposed opening an investigation into these information leaks and prior information leaks pertaining to the City Manager search. While the idea initially had a 4-3 majority of Councilmember support, it was subsequently shot down by a 3-4 yes/no vote in a Feb. 22 meeting as Councilmember Lana Negrete shifted her vote to opposing the investigation citing concerns that it would further exacerbate Councilmember divisions and distract from the City Attorney search.

During Tuesday's meeting, Councilmembers will vote on appointing Sloan and authorizing Mayor Sue Himmelrich to execute an employment agreement with Sloan.

Mrs. Bernice Margaret Reed Passes Away

Bernice Margaret Reed

July 5, 1929 – April 27, 2022

Bernice Margaret Reed was born July 5, 1929 in North Dakota, the third child of George and Agnes Schmidt. She had two older brothers, Kenny and Buddy, along with two younger sisters, Darlene and Laverne. Both brothers were combat veterans of World War II, and were given special permission to enlist in the war while still underage.

Bernice's father George was a powerful working man, foreman of a gravel pit. He had sharp light blue eyes, a devilish sense of humor, and was the life of every party. Her mother Agnes was of a more petite build with dark eyes and a beautiful olive complexion. She loved to play cards, especially with her grandchildren. She was the rock of the family and worked in her garden nearly every day staying strong until the ripe old age of 102, outliving George by 28 years.

Bernice was born on the cusp of the great market crash of 1929 and lived through the crushing depression of the 1930s. After her two brothers returned from the war and she graduated from high school, she left one of the coldest places in the country and moved to one of the warmest, Hawaii, which was not yet a state but a territory.

Bernice embraced the Hawaiian culture, wore colorful dresses, and loved to swim in the warm ocean waters. She made many lifelong friends there. She returned later in life with her son Henry and had them teach him surfing. It was a skill which was passed on to her grandchildren and it gave her great pleasure to watch them take up this ancient Hawaiian sport.

Bernice left Hawaii soon after it became a state and moved to San Francisco, CA where she worked in the banking industry. San Francisco at that time was a beautiful bustling coastal city. She spent a number of years there enjoying the city and making many friends.

In the early 1960s she transferred to Santa Monica, CA. It was while living in a small apartment not too far from the ocean that she met her neighbor, Irving Reed, a university professor and mathematician, from the only state colder than North Dakota, Alaska.

Irving was a persistent neighbor. When asked why she finally married Irving having lived so many years happy and single, her standard answer was, "well, he was clearly brilliant, and, if Clark Gable had been just a little bit taller and a little bit better looking, he might have looked like Irving. And, he simply would not leave me alone."

While unsuspected at the time, Dr. Reed's error correcting codes would ultimately form the bases of much of the lightening speed technology that is taken for granted today. Bernice gave him a stable home, freeing his mind to work on those projects.

Bernice became the mother of one child, Henry George, at age 41. Over the years she also became a surrogate mother and friend to many other people. She was an outgoing gregarious person whose idea of a healthy meal meant one accompanied with friends, family, and wine. Her greatest joy later in life was watching or hearing about her seven grandchildren performing in musicals and sports. She loved to hear her grandchildren sing.

Bernice passed away at the age of 92 with her son Henry by her side. She is survived by her grandchildren Irving, Abigail, Ivan, Sophia, Richard, Catherine, and Percival along with her sisters, Darlene and Laverne, and many nieces, nephews, and others for whom she cared and cherished.

Final visitation with Bernice Reed will be held on Tuesday, April 27th between 10:00 am and 11:00 am at Woodlawn Cemetery Mausoleum and Mortuary, 1847 14th Street, Santa Monica, CA 90404 (310) 458-8717. Memorial services for Mrs. Reed will follow the visitation, beginning at 11:00 am at the same location. All family, friends, and others who wish to pay their last respects to Bernice are encouraged to attend.

DRONE

facility earlier this spring. "That person operates the drone, actually, from the office here on the fourth floor. And they have the ability to monitor radio calls. They can hop on calls and whenever they feel like, 'Hey, I think I can use this with a UAS,' he's able to basically navigate the drone to where it needs to go. He can do a pin drop with the software and it'll take him straight to that [point]."

The DFR program was launched in November 2021 and is based on a similar program in Chula Vista, south of San Diego. The Chula Vista DFR system came online in 2018.

Speaking to the Daily Press during the demonstration, officers acknowledged longstanding community concerns regarding privacy, but said a combination of FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) and department policies keep them from using drones for surveillance.

"We do not use this for random patrolling," SMPD Officer Peter Lashley, the drone operator, said. "I don't just go up and, you know, look for something."

But that's not to say there aren't some instances where the drone is sent out on rounds, similar to patrols a police vehicle may make.

"Say we had a specific [parking] structure where we're constantly having vehicle burglaries — there may be a periodic check," Lashley described. "But that's a documented call where I'm specifically going to that because of crime trends, calls for service and whatnot."

Lashley also pointed out that having a non-sworn pilot functions much like a built-in civilian oversight component to the drone program, since the pilot's function is exclusively safety and FAA compliance.

The federal authority's complex rules create firm boundaries for the program, limiting the height, distance and time of day the drone may fly. Because the pilot must have eyes on the drone at all times, it can only fly around the downtown area — anywhere within line of sight from the roof of the Public Safety Facility at 4th Street and Olympic Boulevard. Nighttime flights require an additional set of eyes and the program has limited nighttime operations. That also helps cut back on costs, since the drone team works normal 40-hour work weeks.

There is also one other major limiting factor for the drone's capabilities: its 30-minute battery life.

On the roof, the pilot, Lucy, is in charge of not only monitoring the drone, but ensuring its batteries stay fully charged at all times. In addition to comfortable chairs, snacks and an easy-up tent with a plastic windbreak, there are also a dozen pairs of batteries fully charged and waiting to be swapped in to keep the drone topped up. During longer calls or events — for example, the last time the LA Marathon ended in Santa Monica — the drone flies back to the facility every 25 minutes to have its batteries refreshed.

Although the drone program only functions for eight-hour shifts, there are enough batteries to keep a drone in the air for 24 hours should the need arise.

Above all other capabilities, Lashley said the program's greatest use is as a de-escalation tool. With a drone, SMPD can arrive at a call and assess danger while officers are still en route in patrol vehicles. That way, they'll know the precise location of any suspects and ascertain if there are any weapons, so officers know what situation they're walking into.

By way of example, Lashley showed a video recording of a DFR call, where someone called 911 to report teenagers brandishing a gun. When the drone arrived, it spotted a group of young people sitting below the awning of a building. After a few seconds, one pulls a handgun out of a sweatshirt pocket. Eventually, two black handguns are visible. But about 30 seconds into the footage, while police vehicles are still making their way toward the location, one of the young people appears to manipulate the weapon, revealing a CO_2 cartridge. It immediately begins to appear that the guns are not real.

"I've identified who have the guns [and] that I've seen visual evidence indicative of something that's not conforming to a standard firearm," Lashley said, describing what he did while on the call that day. "So, could they have a real gun? In addition to those two? Yes. Have they shown a proclivity to point these guns at people? Yeah. It's still a very serious threat level. But we've also introduced the — I've seen that at least two of these, potentially, are CO_2 BB guns, something to that effect."

Lashley said: "The primary benefit of this is de-escalation for the officers," because a frantic 911 call from a witness could include misinformation that could put officers as well as suspects in danger.

"It allows them to de-escalate, to power down and to approach the situation from hearing a veteran officer that they all know giving them the information rather than it coming from just a random source," Lashley described.

The department is enthusiastic about the program, with some suggestions of a potential expansion to cover the Wilshire corridor toward the eastern end of town. There is also a desire to see staffing increase to move the program from four to seven days a week.

"Right now, we're flying Wednesday through Saturday," Rodriguez said. "The requests are coming Sunday, Monday, Tuesday when we're not flying, because they see the value — they're seeing how much it's ingrained into the fabric of what we're doing out here. It's amazing."

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 7)

Though inspiration has been known to strike you, in the months ahead it occurs with a gentler and more constant touch. You'll absorb the wisdom of great minds. Acting on the pulse of creativity, you'll bring into form: events, teams, systems, presentations and more. Key relationships will bring sweetness and surprise to your days. Libra and Scorpio adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 3, 1, 6 and 12.

HOROSCOPES

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Make the right choice, learn, make the wrong choice, learn... as long as you're awake and responsive throughout this ping-pong game of life, you really can't lose.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). It's scary to go from what you know and love to what you don't know and aren't sure you're going to like. But this is also the way to find out who you are, so it's worth it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll sort the puzzle, decipher the meaning of the code, or discover the intention. This ability to sense what's really going on will serve you well and help a friend too.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Now you understand that it's not enough to have the goods. You also must know who to impress with them, when, and how to leverage the act to achieve your aims. It takes planning... which just makes it all more fun!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You might be surprised by what happens when boundaries are crossed today. Snarling to claim or protect spaces is a natural show of human instinct. We are territorial animals.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). To the outsider watching you mingle, it looks like you're having a good time, but inwardly it feels like work. Rightly so. Building relationships is the essential labor of success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Relationships don't come with guarantees, instructions or a qualifying pre-test. You'll find out if a relationship is a good fit for you because you're brave enough to start building and see what happens.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). It's not a strategy for every day, but today it will benefit you to stay unrelentingly positive. A loose association of people with similar intentions will figure into your luck.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). There is benefit to motion. Keep moving forward even if you don't know where you're going. And don't worry about messing up either. You'll only make the sort of mistakes you'll later be glad for.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Though nothing will be achieved without action, this is the ideal time to clean up your mental game. Purposeful, powerful and meaningful thoughts will drive you when other resources fail.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'll get carried away with a project and you may forget about various responsibilities and healthful necessities. But your complete involvement is warranted -- you're about to make a breakthrough.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). While understanding what everyone stands to gain or lose from a situation may be key to achieving your goals, you mostly study people for the fun of it.
