100 YEARS AGO:

Teachers win salaries

BY DAVID MARK SIMPSON
Daily Press Staff Writer

Editor's note: This is part of a monthly feature that tracks Santa Monica's history by compiling notable city happenings from a century ago. The stories are found in old newspaper archives.

THE DISTANT PAST In May of 1915, Jessie L. Saunders, a Santa Monica teacher, won a legal battle that would result in higher pay for teachers across the state of California, according the Los Angeles Times archives.

At the time, primary school teachers were paid less than assistant teachers who worked at the upper schools. Saunders, who was making $883.33 per year (about

SPACE Santa Monica is going to space.

Two decorative patches designed by local students will be launched to the International Space Station to accompany a science experiment that Lincoln Middle School students developed as part of a national educational program.

The initiative, known as the Student Spaceflight Experiments Program, aims to promote 21st-century skills by developing student interest in STEM activities: science, technology, engineering and math.

But the program also stresses the importance of interdisciplinary learning and communication, which is why organizers include an artistic component.

"The future is technology, but if students can't communicate their science and technology findings clearly, those ideas are empty and they don't come to fruition," said Gretchen Gies-McLaughlin, an English teacher at Lincoln who is a co-coordinator for the project. "Bringing in the arts makes it more meaningful for many different students. It's their chance to have a part of this collaborative effort."

In the fall, Lincoln students did extensive research and designed experiments to be conducted in space.

Samuel Buckley-Bonanno, Adam Chamas, Charlie Gooding and Shrayes Raman crafted the winning submission with an experiment involving paper chromatography, a method for separating chemicals and other substances. Their experiment is slated to be launched in mid-June through the National Center for Earth and Space Science Education.

Accompanying the quartet's fluid mixing enclosure — a tiny tube containing the experiment — will be two decorative patches.

With Gies-McLaughlin, science teacher Marianna O'Brien and other organizers aiming to rally the local community around the project, students throughout the Santa Monica-Malibu school district were invited to enter the art contest.

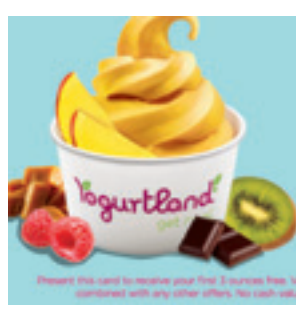

Roughly 420 submissions were received, including about 330 from Lincoln Middle School students and about 90 from elementary students at five different campuses.

Gies-McLaughlin and a panel of fellow teachers judged the entries and selected two, one by a middle school student and one by an elementary school student.

COMMUNITY BRIEFS

Santa Monica

SMC Public Policy Institute Spring Symposium

The Santa Monica College Public Policy Institute (PPI) will present its 4th Annual Spring Symposium from May 11-14. "Stop, Look, Listen: Community Advocacy for Public Health" is the theme for this year's community symposium – and a line-up of events including a screening of the critically acclaimed film "Still Alice" and roundtable discussions will explore pressing challenges to public health, well-being and the safety of youth.

"Public health policy directly impacts our communities and our daily lives," said Shari Davis, SMC political science professor and co-director of the SMC Public Policy Institute. "We are bringing top experts together with students and policymakers to foster innovation and explore what is possible."

All symposium events are free and open to the public, and seating is on a first-arrival basis.

The symposium lineup is:

Monday, May 11 at 7 p.m.: Keynote Address: State of the County. The Honorable Sheila Kuehl, Los Angeles County Supervisor for District 3 will speak on the state of public and mental health in Los Angeles County. An audience back-and-forth will follow. free. The Broad Stage at the SMC Performing Arts Center, 1310 11th St. at Santa Monica Blvd. Free Parking.

Tuesday, May 12 at 11:15 a.m.: Film and Roundtable Discussion: "Sex in College." Screening of an SMC student film on sexual assault and a discussion-led by panelists from the Rape Treatment Center, SMC "Consent Month," and Planned Parenthood LA-on new laws, new ways of communicating, and age-old advice for healthy relationships. free. Humanities and Social Sciences Room 165, SMC Main Campus, 1900 Pico Blvd. $10 visitor parking at Lot 6, Pico Blvd. and 14th St.

Wednesday, May 13 at 5 p.m.: Screening and Discussion: "Can Mainstream Entertainment Affect Public Policy?" Screening of music legend Glen Campbell's compelling documentary "I'll Be Me" covering his unprecedented tour across America after receiving a devastating diagnosis of Alzheimer's disease. Post-screening discussion with executive producer Susan Disney Lord and producer Trevor Albert addresses leveraging the medium of film as a stimulus for how public policy and entertainment coexist and can provoke activism. Free. Aero Theater at 1328 Montana Ave. in Santa Monica. Street parking.

Thursday, May 14 at 11:15 a.m. Roundtable Discussion: "Exploring Big Public Health Issues & Personal Choices." Explore the many ways public policy and personal choices shape public health. Topics will include prevention of gun violence, immunizations, wellbeing, public health preparedness, disease prevention, and access to health care. Free. Humanities and Social Sciences Room 165, SMC Main Campus, 1900 Pico Blvd. $10 visitor parking at Lot 6, Pico Blvd. and 14th St.

Thursday, May 14 at 6:30 p.m. Screening and Panel Discussion: "Still Alice." Examine early-onset Alzheimer's disease and find out how advocates are fighting for a cure at a special screening of the film "Still Alice" starring Julianne Moore in her Oscar® winning role, Kristen Stewart and Alec Baldwin and based on the New York Times bestselling novel by neuroscientist Lisa Genova. Immediately following the film will be a roundtable with special guests including California State Senator Ben Allen and moderated by the film's co-producer and Alzheimer's advocate Elizabeth Gelfand Stearns. The panel will discuss how public policy and the entertainment industry together can foster policy change. Free. The Broad Stage at the SMC Performing Arts Center, 1310 11th St. at Santa Monica Blvd. Free Parking.

"This year's symposium on public health gives our students an opportunity to explore issues and community governance plans that impact their lives directly," added Richard Tahvildaran-Jesswein, PPI co-director and SMC political science professor. "To me, the best way to teach public policy is to address what is most important to them, and health policy is of huge interest to not only our SMC students but our community as well."

SMC's Public Policy Institute provides nonpartisan community programs exploring key economic, social and political issues. SMC offers an Associate in Arts Degree and Certificate of Achievement in Public Policy, with specialties in arts and cultural affairs, education, environment and sustainability, public health, and urban and socioeconomic issues.

A live video feed of the events will be made available at www.smc.edu/PPI and Twitter users can join in on the conversation using the hashtag #SMCHealthAdvocacy.

To learn more about the symposium, go to www.smc.edu/ppi or call (310) 434-3541. For information on parking and transportation at SMC, visit www.smc.edu/transportation.

Wellbeing? So what?

THE WELLBEING PROJECT IS A CITY HALL initiative to find out about the wellbeing of Santa Monicans across many subject lines such as health, finance, environment, education, health, community, and what affects a person's emotional health within the community. Results from the initiative were recently released.

Santa Monica was awarded $1 million to launch The Wellbeing Project, with grant money coming from Bloomberg Philanthropies. Our own RAND Corporation was selected as the city's research partner to develop the local Wellbeing Index, which is an element of the overall project. The nonprofit New Economics Foundation (NEF) was enlisted to provide expertise in analysis, city planning and policy development.

The concept was to define what a city needs to thrive, obtain data to quantify needs, get everyone on the same page and then take action on a direction for improvement. The idea was to better enable policy leaders "to set priorities and make decisions based on improving residents well being," the project website states.

Rand and NEF researched an extensive amount of data and statistical information from City Hall and external sources, surveyed over 2,300 residents and analyzed local social media usage. You'd think that with the project's endowment and so many academics and researchers involved, some pretty good information would be coming out of this. Call me a cynic, but I'm asking if this isn't mostly stuff we already knew — especially when City Hall annually surveys residents for their opinions on local issues and problems?

The index reports that 37.5 percent of Santa Monicans say they have financial worry. For example, the survey says that one-fifth of Santa Monicans worry about making their rent or mortgage payments. A higher percentage of younger, Latino and those not fully employed worry about personal economics. No big surprise here.

On a broader level, while 70 percent of residents said they are happy most or all of the time, 28 percent admitted to being stressed. Only 56 percent of residents felt they could count on their neighbors — far below a nationwide survey in which 80 percent of people said they could do so. Chalk that up to so many of us living in apartments where we know, at best, only a few neighbors.

Eighty percent of Santa Monica residents vote, but only 29 percent feel they can influence city decisions. Looks like we have a lot of work to do in this category. But I'm not surprised — the vast majority of our elected and appointed officials care more about personal agendas than resident wellbeing or serving their constituents. Feel disenfranchised? Hey, friends, it's because you keep voting for candidates backed by the renters' rights political cabal.

Twelve percent of residents say they bike to work. Based on personal observation, I'd say more are "saying" than actually "doing." Most transit databases I've read claim that the actual percentage of those bicycling to work here is between 5 and 6 percent.

Eighty-nine percent of residents say, "Santa Monica is beautiful," while 55 percent spend leisure time outside at least once a week. This is where a stroll to the local market counts as a leisure activity. Seventy-two percent of residents report that the city has the arts and cultural opportunities they want, while 57 percent feel that Santa Monica has too few events about nature and the environment. Cougar classes, anyone?

Most troubling is the response that, despite a 92-percent high school graduation rate, there are marked disparities across race and ethnicity lines regarding how many Santa Monica students meet University of California entrance requirements. This is still a major community problem after years of promises and failed policies by the Board of Education to close the achievement gap.

Santa Monicans have fewer chronic conditions and better health behaviors than those living elsewhere in Los Angeles County. Chalk that up to the beach and climate, plus all the yoga studios and fitness gyms.

I'm not sure how The Wellness Project is going to benefit the average Santa Monican. Some basic facts will always remain — the young, people of color and those with unsteady incomes are going to be stressed because of their economic position. And I don't see complaints about policy makers and city staff marching to their own agendas changing much.

For more information, go to the city's website at smgov.net/wellbeing.

ZONING UPDATES COOKED LIKE A CHRISTMAS GOOSE

Last Tuesday, City Council burned the midnight oil discussing updates to the city's zoning codes. The much-hated, high-density activity centers along Wilshire Boulevard were jettisoned along with the taller Tier 3 developments on Wilshire and Santa Monica boulevards — with the exception of 100-percent affordable housing projects or developments protecting City Landmarks.

The bad news is that council approved removing on-site parking requirements for new developments a half-mile, not a quarter-mile, from transit hubs and allowing child care/education centers in single-family home neighborhoods.

The council split on most of its votes; Mayor Kevin McKeown, Ted Winterer, Tony Vazquez and Sue Himmelrich voted for slow growth measures, while Gleam Davis, Pam O'Connor and Terry O'Day remained committed to their well-known pro-development stances. Davis and O'Day are up for re-election next year. Let's hope the electorate is more successful in ending their council careers than it was in retiring O'Connor last year.

Council is expected to vote for final approval of the zoning updates tomorrow. After a required second reading in a few weeks, it will all be a done deal.

Santa Monica's stake in Hermosa Beach

SANTA MONICA, CALIFORNIA. JUST hearing the name of the city brings a sense of excitement, tranquility, and entertainment. Santa Monica is one of Los Angeles County's hot spots throughout the year, especially during the hot summer days. One of the most inviting parts of Santa Monica is its environment. "Sustainable Santa Monica uses the power of community to enhance our resources, prevent harm to the natural environment and human health, and benefit the social and economic well-being of the community for the sake of current and future generations" reports the City of Santa Monica's website. The second Sustainable City Plan Guiding Principles is placing protection, restoration, and preservation of the environment as the highest priority. Moreover, the city of Santa Monica says that they are committed to procurement decisions that will minimize negative environmental and social impacts. Santa Monica is also committed to sustainable rights for its residents, natural communities and ecosystems. With that being said, it is only ethically right for Santa Monica to take a stake in helping repay the breach in contract between Hermosa Beach and E&B Oil.

Briefly, the city of Hermosa Beach shut down E&B Natural Resources in the municipal elections that took place on March 3, 2015. E&B had proposed to come into Hermosa Beach and drill oil for thirty-four years and take on the responsibility to repay the $17,000 owed to McPherson for the breach in contract years ago. The consequences of oil drilling would include toxic waste and chemicals being released into the environment, constant noise, light and noxious odor emissions from the oil drilling, and significant health and environmental risks. The results of the official environmental impact reports identified nine significant unavoidable impacts including increased air pollution, linked to increased heart attacks, asthma and cancer, which will impact seniors and children the most. Although the emissions would be far less reached in Santa Monica there would be a build up of the toxins that would eventually be extremely harmful for the residents in Santa Monica and the tourist.

Like Hermosa Beach, Santa Monica has made it clear that they oppose oil drilling. Hermosa Beach has saved Santa Monica keep their immediate environment safe for several years to come. E&B Natural Resources has a history in oil spills and if Hermosa Beach were to have passed Measure O, there would have been that potential oil spill all throughout the Pacific Ocean. Just imagine that, an oil spill in the Santa Monica Bay. That would have plummeted the revenue Santa Monica receives from the constant tourist visiting the beach and pier. The noxious odors and emissions released into the air would have also decreased the traffic in the mall and 3rd Street Promenade. Inevitably, Santa Monica should feel the responsibility to take a stake in helping repay the remaining value owed by Hermosa Beach to E&B Natural Resources. What once the major engine for Los Angeles' growth, is now very detrimental to the environment.

Santa Monica says that they are committed to preventing negative environmental and social impacts as well as creating sustainability for its residents, natural communities and ecosystems and this is just what Hermosa Beach did. Furthermore, if Santa Monica takes a stake in Hermosa Beach then they are showing, not only E&B Natural Resources, but also all oil companies that they will not stand for drilling in their community. The point of all this is to show support to neighboring cities, avoid any future environmental disaster, and show Hermosa Beach their appreciation to saving the environment.

Review: Despite fine acting, 'The D Train' is off track

SANDY COHEN
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES The problem with "The D Train" isn't the performances. Jack Black, James Marsden, Kathryn Hahn and Jeffrey Tambor are wonderful in their respective roles.

The issue is the story. It's not just uneven, it's often unfunny: tinged with homophobia and centered on a wholly unlikeable, self-absorbed man.

Dan Landsman (Black) is serious about his Pennsylvania high school's 20th reunion and considers himself chairman of its organizing committee. He yearns desperately to be liked, but comes across as bossy and uncooperative, so when the group goes out for beers after committee meetings, they leave him behind.

Otherwise, Dan's life looks pretty good. He seems happily married to his lovely, supportive wife (Hahn), has an admiring teenage son (talented newcomer Russell Posner) and works for a trusting, encouraging boss (Tambor).

Watching TV late one night, Dan spots his reunion solution: He sees a commercial starring a former classmate, the handsome and popular Oliver Lawless (Marsden), and decides if he can bring the now-actor back to their hometown, he'll be in with the in-crowd, the hero of the reunion.

Dan lies to his wife and his boss about a fake business prospect in Los Angeles so he can talk to Lawless in person. By the time they meet, Dan is first-date nervous. He can't see that Lawless is actually wasted and out of work. To Dan, he's a superstar, a cool kid from high school.

Their meeting becomes a weekend of debauchery. They share an experience that makes Dan even more obsessed with the actor, even after he agrees to attend the reunion.

To say more would tread into the spoiler zone, but most of the attempted laughs thereafter are aimed at this obsession. The problem is that in a world where gender and sexuality exist on a spectrum, Dan's response isn't that far out.

This is where the story by screenwriters and first-time directors Jarrad Paul and Andrew Mogel begins to break down and the comedy turns sad. Dan may be a jerk, but even jerks can have their hearts broken.

A few laughs land, like Lawless' advice for managing a threesome. And the soundtrack of 1980s hits is great, even if it doesn't really fit Dan's class of 1994.

"The D Train" rides entirely on its excellent cast. Marsden is flawless as Lawless, all sexy swagger and false nonchalance. Hahn heartbreakingly conveys unconditional love pushed to its limit. Tambor's sincerity is transparent.

And Black is a profound actor. Even beyond his celebrated performance in 2011's "Bernie," he's achingly real and wrenchingly vulnerable here, giving heart to a character so unlikeable that even his eventual self-awareness wouldn't be redemption enough.

The film ventures into brave territory for a buddy comedy with its twist on the trope of drunken one-night stands, but it ends up disappointingly sticking with stereotypes.

"The D Train," an IFC Films release, is rated R by the Motion Picture Association of America for "strong sexual material, nudity, language and drug use." Running time: 98 minutes. One and a half stars out of four.

MPAA definition of R: Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.

Kanin Family Film Series

Santa Monica College will host a Kanin Family Film Series May 15-17. SMC Film Studies professor Josh Kanin will introduce the films, and will join SMC Political Science professor Alan Buckley for an audience discussion after each screening, offering unique insights into the life and works of the Kanin Family.

The classic film series is sponsored by the SMC Associates (www.smc.edu/associates). All screenings are free and are held in Room 165 of the SMC Humanities & Social Science building, 1900 Pico Blvd., Santa Monica. Seating is on a first-arrival basis.

The series will screen four films that focus on work by the Kanin family's husband-and-wife collaborative teams - Garson Kanin and Ruth Gordon, and Fay and Michael Kanin - who began their professional careers in the late 1930s, and worked continuously in Hollywood and on Broadway for the next 50 years. The Kanins won numerous Oscar and Emmy Awards for their writing on feature films and TV dramas, and the themes of their works are as relevant today as they were when they were released.

The lineup of films is:

May 15 at 1:30 p.m. - "Adam's Rib," the 1949 film written by Ruth Gordon and Garson Kanin, takes a look at marriage and the legal system. Directed by George Cukor and starring Spencer Tracy, Katharine Hepburn, and Judy Holliday, the exquisite comedy depicts the problems of a husband and wife who are opposing lawyers in a case involving a wife who shot her husband.

May 15 at 6 p.m. - "Teacher's Pet," the 1958 romantic comedy written by Fay and Michael Kanin, delves into ethics in journalism. Directed by George Seaton and starring Clark Gable, Doris Day, and Gig Young, the film is about a school-of-hard-knocks newspaperman who scorns journalism schools, but after seeing one of the teachers, signs up for a journalism class.

May 16 at 6 p.m. - "Harold and Maude," the quirky 1971 film about the relationship between a young man and a much older and wiser woman, focuses on living life to the fullest. Directed by Hal Ashby and starring Ruth Gordon, Bud Cort, and Vivian Pickles, the dark, provocative comedy explores ageism and social nonconformity.

May 17 at 5:30 p.m. - "Friendly Fire," the 1979 award-winning made-for-TV movie written by Fay Kanin, takes a look at government corruption and war. Directed by David Greene and starring Carol Burnett, Ned Beatty, and Sam Waterston, the film tells the story of a couple and the lies they encounter when they try to find out how their son died in Vietnam.

$20,500 today), sued over the discrepancy and won the right to be paid like an upper school assistant teacher.

As a result, she stood to make $1,100 per year (about $25,500 today). Old school laws, the Times said, would likely change statewide as a result of the ruling.

BRITISH NOBLE CAUGHT WOOING UNDERAGE SLAVE

A British nobleman, on a mission to the United States to purchase $20 million ($465 million today) worth of war supplies for his government was accused of sending love letters to a girl being kept, by another man, illegally, as a slave.

According to the Times' archive, about 100 years ago, Sir William Ross Eaton had met Robert Elmer Denning, a drifting hustler who went by the name "Buckshot" and M. Oroma, who was known as "The Mayor of Japtown," the name for Santa Monica's Japanese fishing village on the wharf.

Buckshot apparently rolled into Santa Monica, after uprooting from a slew of Midwestern cities, with two girls, including the one to whom Sir Eaton was writing.

The nobleman was on business in Chicago when Santa Monica Police Offer Holt arrested Buckshot for bringing a 16-year-old girl to the fishing village for "immoral purposes."

Further investigation showed that Buckshot and Oroma were keeping two girls against their will. Once locked up, Denning turned over some letters from Sir Eaton addressed to "Sweet Violet," one of the two girls. Denning and Oroma were also under investigation for opium smuggling.

Police searched for Sir William in Chicago but, as of the end of May of 1915, they were unable to locate him.

TRAIN FARE POLITICS

A century ago this month, Santa Monica failed in an attempt to cut train fares to and from Downtown Los Angeles in half. Long Beach officials complained that such a fare reduction would be a major blow to their tourism industry.

Santa Monica's business community had sent a petition to Pacific Electric requesting the fare reduction.

DROWNED MAN

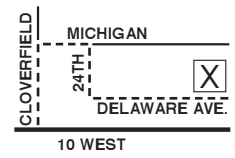

In May of 1915, the body of a man, likely a Japanese fisherman, washed up on the shore near Ashland Avenue.

Anyone who reads Santa Monica archives from the early 20th Century, when local fishing was more common and lifeguards less so, knows that waterlogged bodies washed ashore were not a rare event.

But this description of the ocean's effect on the body, which was well-dressed in a blue serge suit, light blue shirt, and a pair of sub-toed black shoes bought in Santa Barbara, is worthy of revival: "The head was entirely devoid of flesh and both arms and hands were eaten away, the body having been in the water for many days. The flesh from parts of the trunk and limbs were also gone. The corpse will be held in a sealed casket for identification."

SPACE

Tatum Meyer's chosen patch features a space shuttle with an American flag against a backdrop of Earth, stars and an asteroid.

"I drew people around the space shuttle to show teamwork," Meyer said.

Lincoln Middle School winner Alisa Boardman's patch shows the shuttle launching from Earth towards the International Space Station.

"Through collaboration, innovation and hard work," she said, "we can reach new heights together and build a better future."

The winning 3.5-inch square patches will travel with the experiment and serve as symbols "of the community's remarkable adventure in STEM education on the high frontier," the program website reads.

Santa Monica students' artwork has been to space before. A few years ago, Maddie Schultz, Luna Albertini and Grace Slansky designed emblems to accompany a locally conceived experiment about the effects of microgravity on the formation of Silly Putty.

"The program has been expanded and definitely improved upon, and so has the participation," Gies-McLaughlin said. "We had huge numbers."

RETIREMENT

several positions in the district, serving as preschool psychologist for the last 25 years, is set to retire at the end of the school year.

One might expect some turbulence in a career spanning nearly half a century, but Von der Lieth said she rarely faced significant bumps. As her daily tasks and job sites changed over the years, she always looked forward to working with new children and staff.

"I don't think I had many challenges," she said. "I woke up every day looking forward to my job ... There were days when I felt like there was not enough time to do everything I wanted to do — I think that is just something we all feel."

Von der Lieth worked with special needs children and adults from ages 3 to 22, collaborating with families and staff to address their diverse interests and needs.

Sara Woolverton, the district's special education director, said Von der Lieth has helped children whose parents were previously her students in the district.

"Jady has for many years been the cornerstone of the SMMUSD early childhood special education team," said Woolverton, Von der Lieth's supervisor. "She has been an influential and much-valued member of our SMMUSD staff, respected by peers, beloved by parents and valued by the community."

Von der Lieth started as a SMMUSD teacher in 1970 after moving to Southern California from Florida, earning a master's in education and a visual handicaps credential from Cal State Los Angeles.

She was involved in education research during her stint at the former Madison Elementary School, where RAND Corporation in 1973 installed an interactive classroom television system that allowed students with visual disabilities to communicate with their teachers. She worked on a series of RAND reports for the federal government about the students' challenges.

Von der Lieth served as a resource specialist and educator at Will Rogers, Edison and Roosevelt elementary schools as well as at Olympic High School, where her colleagues honored her as teacher of the year in 1989.

"I was able to see the changes in education," she said. "I am grateful that I was able to work with incredible professional people and build long-lasting relationships with them."

She continued her own education at Cal State Northridge, staying in the district as a bilingual psychologist. She is currently the preschool psychologist at the Lincoln Child Development Center, a role for which her teaching experiences prepared her.

Thanks in part to Von der Lieth, the district now has nine programs serving preschool children.

"I was part of a school culture that promoted learning and professional growth," she said. "My goal was to be part of a team working together to create a positive and supportive learning environment for our children and families. I was never disappointed.

"I have been so impressed with my preschool team and what we have accomplished."

In retirement, Von der Lieth won't step away from her field entirely. She might fill in as a substitute preschool teacher, and she'll consider consulting opportunities with private agencies and Culver City-based Westside Regional Center.

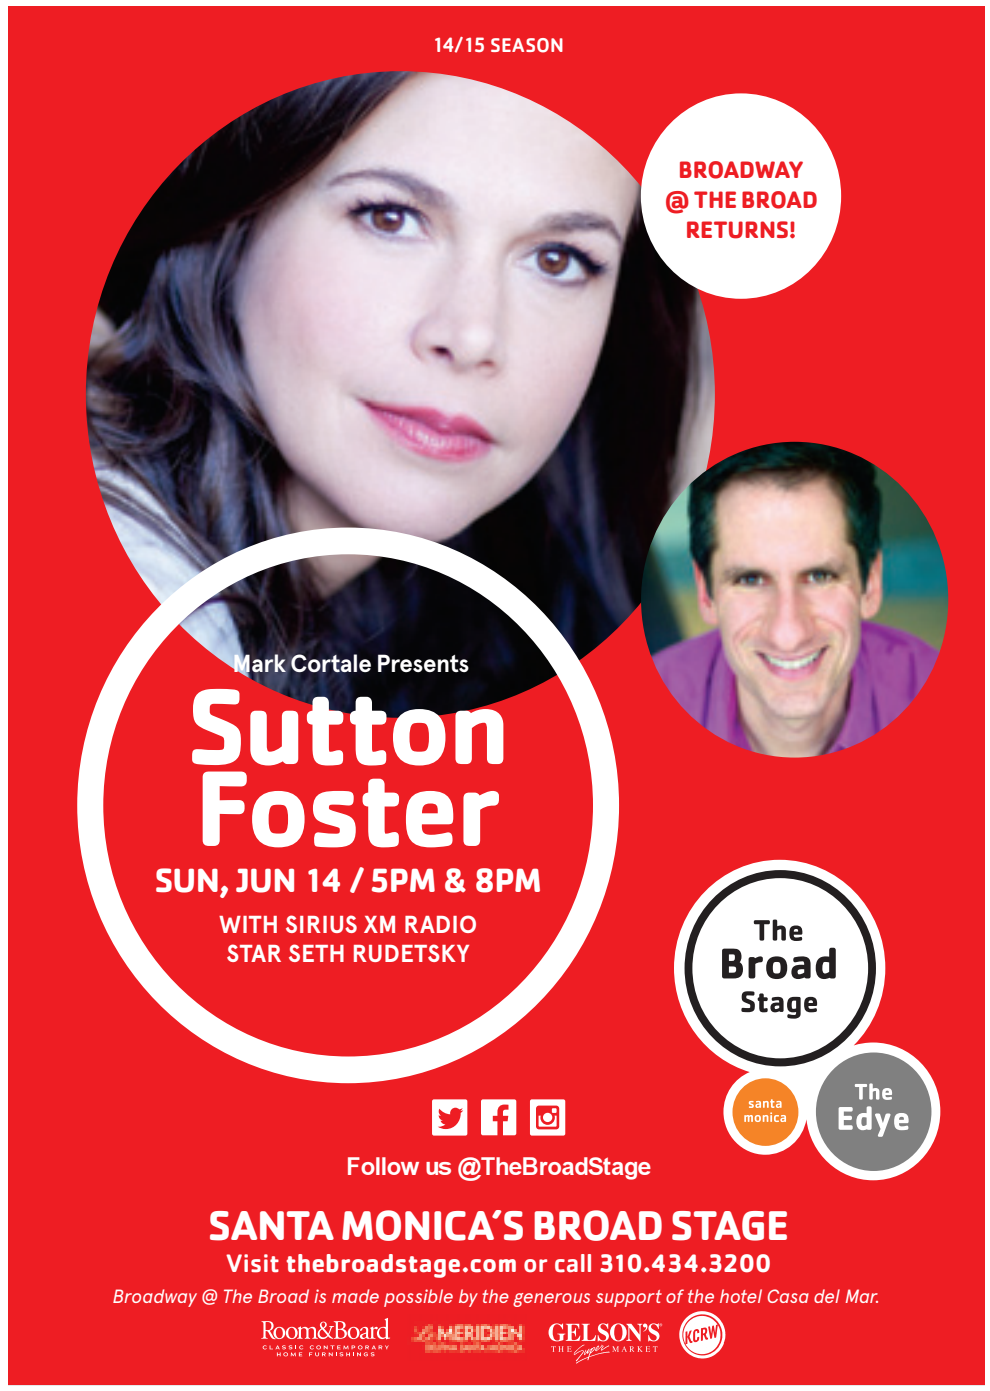

But she's also looking forward to more free time for family gatherings and personal hobbies. She's married with four children who went through the SMMUSD system and five grandsons, including one who is enrolled in a district preschool program. She hopes to read and travel more and improve her Spanish skills.

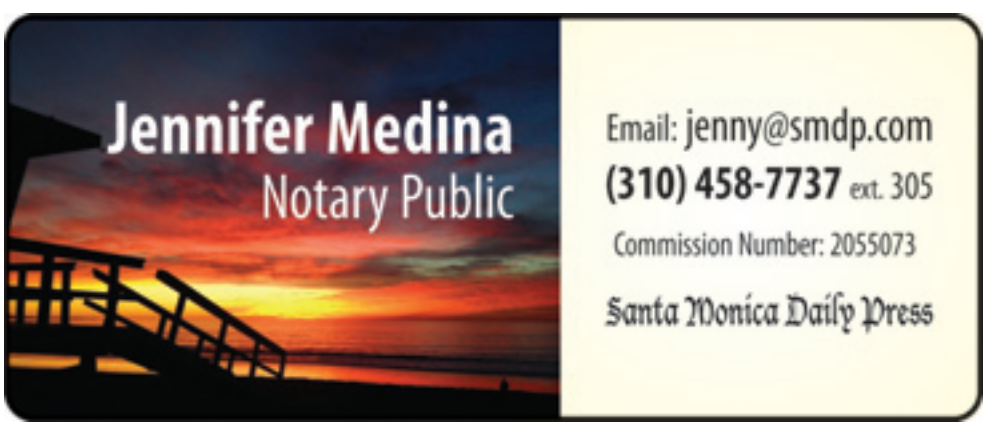

"I want to wake up every morning and take the time to decide what I want to do that day," she said. "Every day, I want to make a small difference. I no longer need to make a living, but I want to live life, try new things. But most of all, I want to enjoy my family and friends."

Von der Lieth said she often felt like a student as she worked in education because of how much she learned along the way. On the cusp of retirement, she said one particular lesson stood out.

"I realize that people who want to change the world do not need to be part of a large group," she said. "They just need to find a cause they believe in and never stop fighting for it."

Heal the Bay is a nonprofit environmental organization making Southern California coastal waters and watersheds, including Santa Monica Bay, safe, healthy and clean. We use science, education, community action and advocacy to pursue our mission.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card® is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON APRIL 30 AT APPROXIMATELY 11:45 P.M.

An officer driving through the area around the 1900 block of Main Street was flagged down by an employee of Star Liquor regarding vandalism. According to the employee, the subject, later identified as Otto Marion, 46, homeless, tried to return an opened pack of cigarettes and became upset when he was denied the return. Marion became upset and began to pull the hand-held ATM pin pad until the cord was torn. When the officer asked if Marion was still at the location, it was confirmed by the employee that he was. Marion was arrested for vandalism. Bail was set at $500.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

TODAY IN HISTORY

1960 – In Buenos Aires, Argentina, four Israeli Mossad agents capture fugitive Nazi Adolf Eichmann who is living under the alias of Ricardo Klement.

1963 – Racist bombings in Birmingham, Alabama disrupt nonviolence in the Birmingham campaign and precipitate a crisis involving federal troops.

1967 – Andreas Papandreou, Greek economist and socialist politician, is imprisoned in Athens by the Greek military junta.

1968 – The Toronto Transit Commission opens the largest expansion of its Bloor–Danforth line, going to Scarborough in the East, and Etobicoke in the West.

1970 – The Lubbock Tornado, a F5 tornado, hits Lubbock, Texas, killing 26 and causing $250 million in damage.

1973 – Citing government misconduct, Daniel Ellsberg has charges for his involvement in releasing the Pentagon Papers to The New York Times dismissed.

1985 – Bradford City stadium fire: Fifty-six spectators die and more than 200 are injured in a flash fire at Valley Parade football ground during a match against Lincoln City in Bradford, England.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Is This a Great Country or What? Counting only the pool of bonus money (not regular salaries), employees of New York securities industries in 2014 earned roughly twice as much as the total income paid to all employees in the United States who worked full time at the federal minimum wage ($7.25 an hour). (The statistic, from a report by the Institute for Policy Studies and reinforced by a University of Michigan professor using figures from the New York State Comptroller and the Bureau of Labor Statistics, was featured in a March New York Times analysis.)

■ Nikko Jenkins, convicted of murder in a 2013 spree and trying to avoid a scheduled sentencing hearing, recently self-mutilated (for the second time), which he told a judge in Omaha, Nebraska, was evidence of his mental disorder that should render him ineligible for death row. Jenkins told the judge that a "serpent god" had ordered him to carve the "number of the beast" into his forehead, but apparently because Jenkins was looking into a mirror as he carved, his forehead display more resembled an upside-down 999 (or a lowercase ddd) than it did 666.

Head home early tonight, Sag

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Don't lose your focus. You can accomplish a tremendous amount if you just keep your attention on the matter at hand. Use care with a neighbor or sibling, as misunderstandings could start up from out of the blue. Tonight: Take some much needed personal time.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Others seem to be asking a lot of you. For some reason, you'll feel obligated to meet each request or challenge. Slow down and look at what you really want to do. You could be overwhelmed by others. A late afternoon meeting will be significant. Tonight: Hang with a pal.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ You have the ability to see the big picture. How you handle a situation could change after some detachment. You'll gain new information through new insights. Observe a tendency to get frustrated when others don't seem to get your message. Tonight: In the limelight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Relate to one person directly, and make sure that your message is properly conveyed. Not everyone attaches the same symbolism to a word. Reiterating a statement several different ways likely will add power to your words. Tonight: Respond to an odd but interesting idea.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ You might be concerned about an associate or a special loved one. Much information suddenly could come forward. A friend will want things to go his or her way, which is likely to put your friendship at risk. Exhaustion surrounds you. Tonight: Nap first; decide later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Try another approach or do something very differently from how you have done it in the recent past. A boss could start becoming more argumentative and difficult. You might want to distance yourself, as this person needs to work through a personal issue. Tonight: Out late.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You could be more in touch with a problem than you are aware. You can make light of it, but ultimately you will need to deal with the issue at hand. A conversation with a dear friend will give you another perspective to work with. Tonight: Make sure to get enough exercise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Stay close to home. In fact, if you can work from home, you could be much more content and happier. An associate might be challenging you a little too much for your taste. Work with the person's ideas rather than negate them. The results will be better. Tonight: All smiles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You are likely to notice someone get quite hostile or angry in a situation, whether it happens now or in the next few weeks. A person who reacts that strongly probably feels insecure or judged. It would be wise to give him or her some space for now. Tonight: Head home early.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ You could be taken aback by a situation that surrounds your finances. Communication will be necessary once you decide which way to go. Others seem to be somewhat combative in your daily life. Find out why. Tonight: You don't need to go far to have a deep conversation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ You will be ready to head in a new direction. An issue could arise that you and your associates don't agree on. You probably will have to stall some in order to maintain a cohesive bond. Be gracious. It is better to move ahead with support. Tonight: Clear out some shopping.

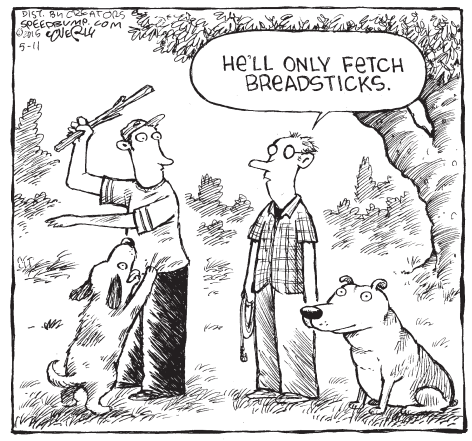

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★ Play it low-key throughout the day. You will note an intense, busy pace in the morning that could become frantic by midday. A problem with a family member is likely to flare up. Someone close to you could decide to put on war paint. Tonight: You feel better and better.

Monday, May 11, 2015

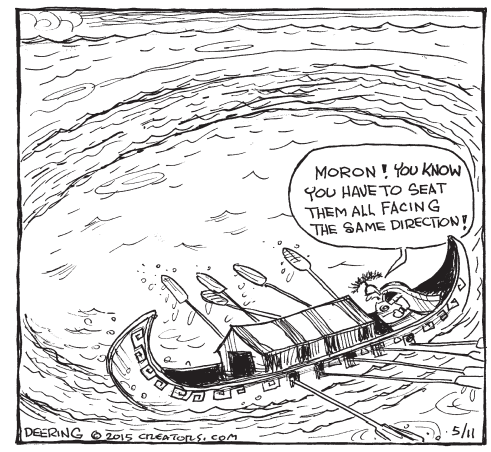

This year you often will be dealing with strong feelings. Some of you will manifest defensive behavior. You will be spending a lot of money on achieving a long-term goal. You also will have to tame a tendency to go overboard. You will be in a position of power within your community and/or workplace. Others will observe how you are able to navigate through difficult situations. If you are single, you are likely to meet someone of significance. If you are attached, a move or remodeling your home will be a mutual focus this year. GEMINI is charming but hard to get close to.

Blood is thicker than water

By Katharine Romefelt

They needle and nag. They want to know who you're dating and if you can help them move next weekend. But you know what? Family members will be there for you when friends and coworkers let you down. Find a way to reconnect this Friday. Appreciate those borne of similar DNA. Why? It's International Day of Families.

"My family is extremely important because I'm an only child and can't share things with siblings," said Hana Laskova, a Czech student enjoying the sun and picnicking with friends at Christine Emerson Reed Park.

"We are very supportive of each other, no matter what."

Laskova's heart is at her home.

Reflect on the ways you can spend time with your biggest supporters system. Call your black sheep brother or cook an elaborate dinner for Grandma. A gesture of any kind is a kind gesture.

(AVISO AL DEMANDADO):
COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES, ET AL00061634

YOU ARE BEING SUED BY PLAINTIFF:
(LO ESTA DEMANDANDO EL DEMANDANTE):
DEBORAH J. FOULKS AKA SWEETS SKYEBLUSPEAKS

NOTICE! You have been sued. The court may decide against you without your being heard unless you respond within 30 days. Read the information below.

You have 30 CALENDAR DAYS after this summons and legal papers are served on you to file a written response at this court and have a copy served on the plaintiff. A letter or phone call will not protect you. Your written response must be in proper legal form if you want the court to hear your case. There may be a court form that you can use for your response. You can find these court forms and more information at the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.caurtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), your county law library, or the courthouse nearest you. If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the court clerk for a fee waiver form. If you do not file your response on time, you may lose the case by default, and your wages, money, and property may be taken without further warning from the court.

There are other legal requirements. You may want to call an attorney right away. If you do not know an attorney, you may want to call an attorney referral service. If you cannot afford an attorney, you may be eligible for free legal services from a nonprofit legal services program. You can locate these nonprofit groups at the California Legal Services Web site (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), or by contacting your local court or county bar association. NOTE: The court has a statutory lien for waived fees and costs on any settlement or arbitration award of $10,000 or more in a civil case. The court's lien must be paid before the court will dismiss the case.
AVISO! Lo han demandado. Si no responde dentro de 30 dias, la corte puede decidir en su contra sin escuchar su version. Lea la informacion a continuacion.

Why have 24,011 Southern California homeowners chosen us to replace their windows?

No pressure. During your Free Window Diagnosis, we'll give you an exact, down-to-the-penny price that's good for an entire year.

112 years of window expertise. We're the replacement division of Andersen, the window and door brand that your dad told you to trust.

No middleman to deal with. There's no runaround between the installer and the manufacturer because we handle it all, from custom-building to installing to warranting all our products.

We won't sell you vinyl. We've replaced thousands of poor-quality vinyl windows and patio doors, so we made our window's Fibrex composite material two times stronger than vinyl.

Make an appointment and get a price that's good for an entire year!
