MIYOUNG MICHELLE SUH

Working it in the real world

BY ASHLEY ARCHIBALD
Daily Press Staff Writer

SUNSET PARK Today, Miyoung Michelle Suh, a chef-instructor at the Art Institute of California in Santa Monica, is in South Korea, en route to Kajikistan to support members of her church as they perform mission work in the former Soviet bloc country.

Three weeks ago, she was scouring every supermarket in Scottsdale, Ariz. for perfectly-sized miniature Granny Smith apples.

"When I designed the recipe, Granny Smiths were in season," Suh explained. "As the months passed by, they got harder and harder to find."

Suh, an accomplished chef with a resume spanning multiple five-star restaurants and a host of instructional experience, was battling against one of the most accomplished pastry chefs in the country for the title of the western region's Pastry Chef of the Year.

The theme: apple.

Suh got the word that she had beat out hundreds of other applicants for the shot at the title in January, and set about creating a work of

Quarter of state parks may close

ADAM WEINTRAUB

SACRAMENTO A quarter of all state parks would close because of budget cuts approved by the state Legislature — from redwood groves along the North Coast to historic mining sites in the Sierra foothills and the Salton Sea in Southern California — under plans announced Friday by Gov. Jerry Brown's administration.

The state would close 70 of its 278 state

Lawmaker wants to end new parole law

DON THOMPSON
Associated Press

SACRAMENTO A state senator is seeking to halt a newly enacted state law that allows unsupervised parole for thousands of California convicts released from prison after one former inmate was charged with a double homicide in Southern California.

Zackariah Timothy Lehnen, 30, is charged with fatally stabbing and beating a woman and an elderly man this month in Culver City, west of downtown Los Angeles, and faces arraignment late this month.

He was placed on unsupervised parole in November after serving less than five months of a 16-month prison sentence for drug possession.

The Legislature passed the law allowing what it termed "non-revocable parole" in 2009 as a way to save money by returning fewer lower-level offenders to prison for minor parole violations. The law took effect in January 2010.

Today, more than 13,000 ex-convicts are in the program and are not being monitored.

That means they do not have to report to parole agents and can be returned to prison only for committing new crimes. That's different from traditional parole, which requires offenders to report regularly to parole agents and meet other conditions, such as abstaining from alcohol and drugs and avoiding other felons.

State Sen. Ted Lieu, D-Torrance, criticized the computerized risk-assessment program the state Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation uses to decide when it is safe for parolees such as Lehnen to go unsupervised once they are released from prison.

He called the risk assessment "fatally flawed" in a letter sent this week to Corrections Secretary Matt Cate.

"We are now seeing not just the potential public safety consequences, but actual consequences. More lives need not be lost," he wrote in the letter, which he provided to

COMMUNITY BRIEFS

CITY HALL

Urban forest of the future

City Hall and the Urban Forest Master Plan Task Force are asking for the community's involvement in planning for the long-term health of Santa Monica's urban forest.

Led by the City Council-appointed Task Force, a series of public workshops will be held in May and June on "Street Tree Species Selection." The workshops will offer residents a key opportunity to help determine appropriate trees species street by street in the event that a street tree needs to be replaced in the future.

"We all have trees in our neighborhoods that we know and love," said Judy Abdo, former Santa Monica Mayor and current Chair of the Urban Forest Master Plan Task Force. "In a dynamic system such as an urban forest, change is inevitable. It's vitally important that the community has a say in how our urban forest grows."

The workshops will be held on May 21, June 4 and June 25. All workshops will start at 10:30 a.m., and be held in the multipurpose room of the Main Public Library. Questions should be directed to (310) 458-8974.

More information on Santa Monica's urban forest and the Urban Forest Master Plan Task Force is available online at www.santamonicatrees.com.

'Thor' tops box office for a second week

DERRIK J. LANG
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES "Thor" nailed down the No. 1 spot at the box office again.

Paramount's 3-D superhero film starring Chris Hemsworth as Marvel's hammer-toting god of thunder earned $34.5 million in its second weekend, according to studio estimates Sunday.

That brings the total haul of "Thor" to $119.2 million, though not quite as impressive as fellow comic book hero "Iron Man 2," which earned $211.2 million by its second weekend the same time last year.

Universal's "Bridesmaids," the raunchy comedy starring Kristen Wiig as a down-on-her-luck maid of honor, debuted above expectations in second place with $24.4 million.

GOING FOR A BIG HIT: Crossroads' Milo Charney-Rosen (center) tries to spike the ball against San Gabriel's Harrison Tang on Saturday at Crossroads. Crossroads lost in four games.

BY DANIEL ARCHULETA
Managing Editor

CITYWIDE Santa Monica High School's boys' volleyball team advanced to the semi-finals of the CIF-Southern Section Division 4 playoffs with a four-game win over Bishop Montgomery on the road on Saturday.

The Samohi Vikings will take on nearby Windward on Tuesday at home. The game is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

Samohi, the No. 1 seed in the playoffs, won the Ocean League this season. Windward came in second in the Alpha League.

On the other side of the semi-final is a matchup between Samohi's Ocean League rival Culver City and San Gabriel, winners of the Almont League.

San Gabriel advanced after beating Santa Monica's Crossroads in four games on Saturday on the road. Crossroads finished the season in third place in the Alpha League.

SAMOHI TENNIS STAYS ALIVE

Samohi's boys' tennis team will take on Foothill in the quarter-finals of the CIF-Southern Section Division 2 playoffs. The game is scheduled for 3 p.m. on Tuesday at Samohi.

Samohi advanced by defeating West Ranch on Friday. Samohi won the Ocean League this season.

NEW ROADS BASEBALL FINISHES UNBEATEN

New Roads' baseball team defeated Rolling Hills Prep, 7-4, on Friday to complete a perfect 8-0 record in the Coastal League and the title.

New Roads completed the regular season 16-5 overall, ranked No. 2 in Division 7.

CORRECTION

The Daily Press previously reported that playoff brackets for baseball and softball would be released on Sunday. They will actually be released this afternoon.

Mother of beaten Giants fan doesn't blame L.A. fans

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES The mother of a San Francisco Giants fan who was severely beaten outside Dodger Stadium said Sunday her family harbors no resentment for Dodgers fans or the city of Los Angeles.

"We've never held Dodger fans accountable for it. We never held the citizens of L.A. It was not their fault. We never had that. So we're leaving with everybody imprinted on our hearts," Ann Stow said. She also talked about how the kindness of L.A. residents has helped the family during the ordeal.

Stow has been out of a medically-induced coma for about a week and is stable enough to be moved to a Bay Area hospital.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Send comments to editor@smdp.com

Waiting for an opening

Editor:

How do I go about applying for the job of the guy that Lewis Soloff had to deal with at the SM Household Hazardous Waste Center? ("Treated poorly," Letters to the editor, May 13, page 4.)

How disheartening it is when our city leaders are preaching for a "green" Santa Monica and the city employees are not following that directive. I found Mr. Soloff's letter extremely creative, and I always love a sarcastic tone, but the bottom line is that the idiot that Mr. Soloff was forced to deal with has to go. I want that job. I live in Santa Monica, I can work legally, I love benefits and a high salary, and I would promise to be nicer and way more efficient than the lazy moron that Mr. Soloff was forced to deal with.

If a city employee is allowed to insult a customer, which Mr. Soloff was, why is that person on the payroll? Why should Mr. Soloff or anyone have to "kiss up" to any city worker to prompt him or her to do their job? The worst part is that we don't know how many customers that the idiot turned away, refusing to take their toxic items for proper disposal? Chances are that those alienated customers left, with their toxic items in tow, with no way to dispose of them except in a local dumpster, eventually going in a landfill.

Even worse, those customers will not return in the future based on their previous treatment by the idiot. I know that this idiot (oops, I mean this employee) must have been written up for his rudeness and lack of courtesy, but when was he terminintated or when will he be? When will the job opening be posted and where? I am anxiously awaiting to submit my resume.

My Write

Bill Bauer — Send comments to editor@smdp.com

Bill Bauer news@smdp.com

HOT SPOT: Pittsburgh's Strip District is an area where, zoning-wise, anything goes. But, it's wildly popular and the 'place to be' for both visitors and locals.

Zoning restrictions don't guarantee popularity

TUESDAY NIGHT, THE CITY COUNCIL reviewed restrictions on commercial street signage and suggested changes including banning portable sidewalk signs on Main Street and other commercial streets.

Last week, while in Pittsburgh, I made my annual pilgrimage to the "Strip District," a six-block-long section of Penn Avenue — about the length of Santa Monica's Third Street Promenade. It's home to specialty markets, bakeries, groceries, antique stores, art galleries, bars and restaurants. Sidewalk souvenir stands with loads of Steeler merchandise compete with fruit, vegetable, flower and temporary food vendors of every conceivable type.

The place is packed, especially on weekends, and at night when the bars and nightclubs in the adjacent warehouses take over.

Signs and merchandise on public sidewalks make them nearly impassable. Many sidewalks have been roofed over and annexed into shops. This visit, vendors had even blocked side streets to sell merchandise.

Back in the day, this was Pittsburgh's wholesale produce market. There are still wholesalers in the area. Over the last two decades, every possible commercial enterprise has migrated to the "Strip." And, it appears every rule in the zoning code is being broken — or maybe Pittsburgh's codes are widely lenient. In any case, nothing seems to be enforced including parking meters.

Not that' I'd want to see the same chaos here in Santa Monica, but Pittsburgh's "Strip" attracts a wide variety of humanity from rich to poor, tourist to resident, young and old and every demographic imaginable. It's a true melting pot, wildly successful and a delight.

IGNORED PARKING TICKETS HIT SOME NERVES

Last week's column on problems reviewing and processing parking tickets by City Hall and its contractors hit some nerves.

Typical of the e-mails I received was the letter from Hank Rosenfeld in Wednesday's Daily Press ("Review needed," May 11, 2011, Page 4). "When I feel I didn't deserve a ticket and request a hearing, I've found I can win maybe one of every four arguments I put forth," he wrote.

A May 11, 2010 staff report disclosed, "in excess 300,000 parking citations, generating over $16 million …" were issued the previous year.

What are the real odds of beating the system? According to a Dec. 11, 2007 staff report, "Approximately 5 percent of all parking citations are contested and enter the adjudication process.

"Past experience indicates that during the first or initial review phase approximately 62 percent of the violators are found not liable and 38 percent liable," the report continues. "About 15 percent of the violators found liable at that phase continue to an administrative hearing held by the hearing examiners."

If you chose to take your case to a hearing examiner, the chances of you prevailing are one in 10. "Of the violators who undergo an administrative hearing conducted by the impartial hearing examiners, past experience indicates about 90 percent are found liable and 10 percent not liable."

During the last year, "22 violators out of 959 hearings continued to the final or court appeal stage." If you go to this stage, the odds swing in your favor by nearly three to two. "Of the 22 that went to the final stage, 32 percent were found liable and 68 percent were found not liable," states the report. I suspect the chances of getting a ticket dismissed have not changed dramatically in the nearly four years since this report was published.

Rosenfeld continues, "Recently, however, I paid the $64 bail and requested a hearing, as did Bauer's subject in his column. Only this time, I never got a letter scheduling a hearing. Nothing. Zip. Nada."

I also heard from a number of folks who had the same experience as Harriet did. Individuals, including a friend, told me they received parking tickets, wrote to the Parking Violations Bureau as instructed and asked for dismissals. None of them received any response. My friend decided to pay the $64 and not waste any more time. Other e-mailers wrote they gave up or are "still fighting for justice."

L.A.-area forest reopens 98,000 acres burned in 2009

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ARCADIA About 98,000 acres of the Angeles National Forest that burned in the largest fire in Los Angeles County will reopen next week after months of restoration.

Campgrounds, picnic areas and more than 100 miles of hiking trails in the huge forest in the San Gabriel Mountains northeast of Los Angeles will welcome visitors Monday in time for the Memorial Day weekend, according to a U.S. Forest Service statement.

The entire 36,000-acre San Gabriel Wilderness Area and a portion of the Pacific Crest Trail also will be reopened.

The wildfire in August 2009 was an arson blaze burned across more than 161,000 acres of land, destroyed 89 homes and killed two firefighters when their fire truck tumbled off a road as flames closed in. It was not fully contained until mid-October.

Subsequent rainstorms unleashed debris flows from denuded slopes that damaged or destroyed some foothill homes, while forcing repeated evacuations.

No one has been charged with setting the fire.

Volunteers and Forest Service workers removed weeds, planted trees and restored trails in the wake of the blaze. Thousands of acres, mainly in Big Tujunga Canyon, however, will remain closed. A multimillion-dollar effort to plant millions of trees and restore that area is under way.

THE AREAS BEING REOPENED INCLUDE:

- Indian Canyon Trailhead.
- Charlton Flat Picnic Area.
- Gould Mesa Campground.
- Bear Canyon Trail.
- Paul Little Picnic Area.
- Mill Creek Summit Picnic Area.
- Silver Moccasin Trail.
- Nature's Canteen Trail.
- Sunset Ridge Trail.

Salinas neighbors oppose berry farms' fumigant use

GOSIA WOZNIACKA
Associated Press

SALINAS When Annette Danzer and her husband moved into a house surrounded by brush and strawberry fields on California's Central Coast, they were drawn by the rural feel and closeness to nature.

Three years later, the couple fears the fields near Salinas could become a health threat due to potential use of the pesticide methyl iodide.

California regulators approved use of methyl iodide in December despite opposition from scientists and environmental and farmworker groups who claim it's highly toxic and can cause cancer. The chemical would likely be used primarily in California's $2 billion strawberry industry, which last year produced nearly 90 percent of the nation's strawberries on over 37,000 acres.

Danzer and her husband have moved their 10-year-old son, Luke, out of a nearby elementary school because it's close to fields that could be fumigated, and Danzer joined hundreds of thousands of others in submitting comments or signatures to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency regarding a petition seeking to block use of the chemical. The deadline to comment on the petition, filed by the environmental group Earthjustice, is Friday, but it's unclear whether the EPA will take any action.

"We are really concerned about methyl iodide," said Danzer, who now drives her son 45 minutes to another school. "This is not just strictly a farmworker issue. The fields are walking distance to homes and schools. The fields are in our watershed."

In April, 38 California legislators — led by Democratic Assemblyman Bill Monning of Monterey— sent a letter asking the EPA to pull the chemical off the market and reopen its scientific evaluation. They cited scientists who found "there is no safe level of use for methyl iodide" for workers and rural residents. It's not considered a risk for consumers because it's injected into the soil to kill pests before crops are planted and not applied directly to fruits and vegetables.

"I have the utmost respect for the challenges of our grower community faces," Monning said. "But my fear is that this chemical is so unstable and so toxic, it's not a question of whether there will be a tragic accident, the question is when."

Last month, Ventura County officials withdrew the state's first permit for the fumigant a day after granting it to an Oxnard-area farmer. County officials said the permit was withdrawn after they learned the farmer's fields were less than a half-mile from a playground.

BUMPER CROP: Legalizing pot (left-hand image), some say, would eliminate many negative environmental impacts associated with clandestine growing and illegal smuggling. It would also likely open the door for the legalization of hemp (right-hand image), a relative of the cannabis plant that can't get you high but could help us sustainably meet a good amount of our fiber and fuel needs.

Pot for the planet?

Dear EarthTalk

I heard someone say that legalizing pot – as Californians considered doing last year – would benefit the environment. How would that be?

William T.,
Portland, Ore.

IT IS WELL KNOWN THAT LEGALIZING pot could have great economic benefits in California and elsewhere by allowing the government to tax it (like it now does on liquor and cigarettes), by ending expensive and ongoing operations to eradicate it, and by keeping millions of otherwise innocent and non-violent marijuana offenders out of already overburdened federal and state prisons. But what you might not know is that legalizing pot could also pay environmental dividends as well.

Nikki Gloudeman, a senior fellow at Mother Jones magazine, reports on the change.org website that the current system of growing pot — surreptitious growers illegally colonizing remote forest lands and moving pesticides, waste and irrigation tubes into otherwise pristine ecosystems — is nothing short of a toxic scourge. Legalizing pot, she says, would clean things up substantially, as the growing would both eliminate the strain on public lands and meet higher standards for the use and disposal of toxic substances.

Legalization would also reduce the environmental impacts of smuggling across the U.S./Mexico border, says Gloudeman: "Cartels routinely use generators, diesel storage tanks and animal poison to preserve their cache, when the border area is surrounded by more than 4 million acres of sensitive federal wilderness."

Also, legalizing pot would move its production out into the open, literally, meaning that growers would no longer need to rack up huge energy costs to keep their illegal indoor growing operations lit up by artificial light. This means that the energy consumption and carbon footprint of marijuana growers would go way down, as the light the plants need for photosynthesis could be provided more naturally by the sun.

Yet another green benefit of legalizing marijuana would be an end to the destructive eradication efforts employed by law enforcement at bust sites, where the crop and the land they are rooted in are sometimes subjected to harsh chemical herbicides for expedited removal.

The legalization of pot in the U.S. would also likely open the door to the legal production of hemp, a variety of the same Cannabis plant that contains much lower amounts of the psychoactive drug, THC. Proponents say hemp could meet an increasingly larger percentage of our domestic fiber and fuel needs. Cannabis, the plant from which marijuana and hemp is derived, grows quickly without the need for excessive amounts of fertilizer or pesticide (it's a "weed" after all) and absorbs carbon dioxide like any plant engaged in photosynthesis. The fiber and fuel derived from hemp would be carbon neutral and as such wouldn't contribute to global warming — and in fact could help mitigate rising temperatures by replacing chemical-intensive crops like cotton and imported fossil fuels like oil and gas.

Of course, one might argue that the best thing for the environment would be to stop growing cannabis altogether. "But let's be real: That's never going to happen," says Gloudeman. "In light of that, the next best bet is to make it legal."

KNOW BEFORE YOU GO

Transit Priority Systems Project

Installation of the Transit Priority System (TPS) at 80 traffic signals along major corridors within the City of Santa Monica. Work requires installation of wireless detectors to sense the approach of buses on routes. Work is currently taking place at the following intersections: Wilshire Boulevard and Third Street; Wilshire and Fifth Street; and Wilshire and Seventh Street. Partial roadway closures are expected and impact to traffic should be minimal.

Utility Undergrounding

Various alleys will be temporarily closed for underground work on utilities in the following locations: 18th Court between Pearl Street and Pico Boulevard; 20th Street between Pearl Street and Ocean Park Boulevard; 18th Street between Ocean Park Boulevard and Ashland Place North; on Ashland Place North between 18th Street and 16th Street. Work is taking place until approximately July, 2011.

Street & Park Lighting Project

The work consists of modifying existing high-voltage series streetlight circuits to low-voltage multiple circuits. Work will take place citywide through September of 2011. Work will be taking place on 26th Street between Broadway and Wilshire Boulevard. Partial roadway closures are expected and impact to traffic should be minimal.

Borderline Neighborhood Improvement Project

New water main installation, new various street pavement finishes, new landscaped areas, trees, and pedestrian lighting. Project is anticipated to be complete June, 2011.

culinary art, a hot dessert that would delight the eye as much as it teased the tastebuds.

Her efforts resulted in the Queen's Apple, a mini Granny Smith tucked into a baked dough filled with an almond and lemon liqueur mixture and topped with a whipped thyme sugar cream.

An apple tuile, a thin crisp of sugar and apple, formed the queen's crown, and the dessert rested on a swathe of caramel.

"It had to have marvelous flavor, had to be unique," Suh said. "It's not grandma's apple pie."

The plate contained seven separate components, including an apple confit to give brightness and aesthetic, and the whole creation had to come together from start to finish in an hour.

The challenge was immense, Suh said, with each component from tuile to the whipped cream going through multiple variations before arriving at the perfect harmony of texture, tang and sweetness.

"I tried every size and variety of apple," she said. "I've never studied apple like this before."

She chose the Granny Smith variety for its tartness. The miniature version cooked faster than the large one, which couldn't be pared down to an appropriate size without losing texture, a compromise Suh knew wouldn't fly with the judges.

The tuile alone went through three other variations — cranberry, chocolate and caramel — before Suh decided that the apple version complemented both the flavor profile and color palette of the dish.

She finally stopped making changes to the dish two days before the April 30 competition.

"My husband said I lost a year of my life," Suh joked.

A day before the competition, Suh packed every tool she would need and every ingredient that could reasonably travel into her husband Kenny's car and set out to make the long drive to Scottsdale, Ariz.

They couldn't get the implements of pastry destruction through the airport.

It was a homecoming of sorts for the couple, who both attended the University of Arizona after emigrating from South Korea in 1983.

Kenny studied to get his masters in business, while Suh attended art classes before stepping back to take on her new role as a mother to her daughter Catherine, who also attended the competition.

Upon rolling into Scottsdale, Suh began the frantic search for the ingredients she would need to take on her competitor.

Paul John Padua is the executive chef at the Ahwanhee Hotel in Yosemite National Park, a resort that hosts foreign royalty as often as it does high-class travelers.

He works the people-facing end of the industry, performing under the high-stress environment of food production for a hungry and demanding audience.

Part of the challenge — and the reason Suh was so eager to compete — was to break from recent years focused on instruction and prove she still had it.

"As an educator, you miss the real life aspect of it," Suh said.

The missing Granny Smiths turned out to be a major road block, however. It was far too late in the process to switch apples, and buying the larger versions would compromise the integrity of the dish.

Suh began to worry. She went back to her hotel, oversized apples in hand, when her daughter Catherine called — they were in luck. One of the mid-range markets still carried bags of mini-Granny Smiths, out of which Suh was able to salvage the four she needed to make it through the next day's competition.

The next day, entering a foreign kitchen with nothing but her tools, ingredients and months of preparation behind her, Suh's nervousness and tension fell away and she began to cook.

Suh's professionalism, focus and attention to detail are legendary at the Art Institute. She was originally hired to teach classes on Asian cuisine, said Chef Christophe Bernard, director of the culinary program there.

"When we learned that she was actually a pastry chef, it was like opening a jewel box," Bernard said.

Out of that jewel box came four perfect portions of the Queen's Apple.

Although it wasn't enough to win her the title, Suh was thrilled to get the opportunity to demonstrate her skills in a competitive setting once more.

"It's a male-dominated industry, and I've survived as both an immigrant and a woman," Suh said. "We have so many girls here in our school. I want to send a message for the women and minority groups that they can accomplish things."

parks, said California State Parks Director Ruth Coleman. The park system will cut services this summer and close all 70 parks as of July 1, 2012, she said.

The parks system hopes to minimize layoffs, possibly shifting some of the roughly 200 workers who would be affected by the closings into vacant positions within the department, said Tony Perez, the state's deputy director for park operations. There are almost 2,300 full-time positions in the state parks and about 500 of them are open.

"We regret closing any park," Coleman said in a prepared statement, "but with the proposed budget reductions over the next two years, we can no longer afford to operate all parks within the system." The state will start seeking partnerships with local governments and nonprofits that could keep some of the parks open, she said.

"Closing state parks is not a task that gives anyone joy, but we are experiencing turbulent times that necessitate deep — almost unthinkable — cuts to public services," Brown said in a statement Friday afternoon. "I will work hard in the coming weeks to reach an agreement that will allow us to avoid deeper and more disruptive reductions."

The cuts are the result of a bill Brown signed into law in March that slices $11 million from the parks budget in the fiscal year that begins July 1 and $22 million the next fiscal year. That trims the system's 2012-2013 budget from the state general fund to $99 million.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card℠ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A–F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

PAROLE

The Associated Press.

The AP last year documented that some of those released under the non-revocable parole program had been convicted of violent or threatening crimes. The department said it is following the letter of the law passed by the state Legislature, although Lieu argued it was never lawmakers' intent to leave dangerous felons unsupervised.

The department also confirmed to the AP a year ago that there were problems with the risk-assessment program developed under contract by the University of California, Irvine. The department returned 656 parolees to active supervision after learning that nearly 10 percent of parolees released without supervision had committed more crimes than officials previously believed.

Officials said then that the problem was fixed, but Lieu asked for the department's independent inspector general to investigate whether the computerized program could accurately predict whether ex-convicts are likely to commit new crimes. That report is still pending.

"To me, it looks very apparent that it's not working correctly. And now you have a double-homicide," Lieu said.

Corrections communication director Oscar Hidalgo said he did not have an immediate comment on Lieu's request that the program be halted.

But department spokesman Luis Patino said results of the non-revocable program compared favorably with traditional parole. Through last October, the latest measurement available, 2.4 percent of ex-convicts on non-revocable parole were convicted of new crimes. That's less than half the 6 percent re-conviction rate for offenders on traditional supervised parole.

"We simply cannot tell the future. We have scarce resources, and the best we can do is use common sense to focus them," Patino said. "We always know when someone is classified low risk. That doesn't mean they are no risk."

Lehnen, who had no permanent address, is being held without bail in Los Angeles County Jail. He is awaiting arraignment May 25 on multiple charges in the slayings of Erica Escobar, 27, of Santa Monica, and 89-year-old Lucien Bergez at Bergez's Culver City home on May 3.

Be where the fun is, Taurus

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You work well with others; however, whether intentional or not, a haze weaves around your words and actions. Perceptions also could be off. Do some reality checking. Seek out new information. Postpone any major decisions. Tonight: Visit with a friend over dinner.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Ultimately, no sign is as grounded or as practical as the Bull. That commodity will be in demand. Others seek you out with vague or challenging requests. Put on your brightest smile and deal with the issue at hand. A get-together could be very rewarding. Tonight: Where the fun is.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ An easy, relaxed pace allows greater give-and-take between you and another person. You might wonder exactly why a boss seems so out there or ethereal. Don't question too much; accept the present state of affairs. Otherwise, you could feel pressured to do more. Tonight: Choose a relaxing pastime.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ Your intuition works overtime as you home in on the basics. Logic might not support an emotional conclusion. Many people might determine that too much is going on for their taste and might feel confused. Tonight: Express yourself as only you can.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ You might experience some difficulty as you attempt to connect on a deep level. A partner might be less than responsive in how he or she speaks to and approaches you. Observe rather than react. You will get a sense of what is going on. Tonight: Make it easy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Others clearly are in charge. How you handle their attitude (when there appears to be one) could define not only your day, but also the outcome of a personal matter. Listen rather than put out terms. Tonight: Go along with someone's idea.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Focus on one task at a time. You might have difficulty reining in your imagination. Great ideas, or at least amusing thoughts, keep popping up out of nowhere. Kick back and understand what you want to accomplish in the long term. Tonight: Put your feet up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Let your intuition take over, whether dealing with a creative project, a child or a new love interest. Your instincts serve you well. Your willingness to discuss your feelings also counts. Let another person have the same opportunity. Tonight: Ever playful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★ Focus on your roots, home life and investments. Before you go off with a wild and maybe crazy scheme, relax. A little caution goes a long way right now. Be willing to express your deeper feelings. Tonight: Be comfortable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ You might be far more diplomatic and graceful than you think. You come through with flying colors, whether in a heated argument, a lecture or simply writing a note. Your words are heard. Tonight: Do something imaginative or romantic.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Be sensitive to your finances, but do nothing that would depreciate who you are to others. Assets often go way past the realm of money. They can include a talent, skill or something as simple as helping others to feel relaxed. Tonight: Indulge a little. Enjoy the moment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ You might seem vague to others. You feel euphoric and are trying to express that feeling. Remain open to different people's take on a situation. Just the same, don't be left holding the bag right now. Responsibilities could become a drag. Tonight: Whatever you do, make sure it's not a normal part of your routine.

Happy birthday

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS
The stars show the kind of day you'll have:
★★★★★Dynamic ★★ So-So
★★★★ Positive ★ Difficult
★★★ Average

This year, you often are drawn in by the charm and caring of others. You, too, have many of those same qualities. You could opt to express your compassion through volunteer work or involvement with a key organization. You express your essence well in crowds and make a strong impression. If you are single, many people cannot stay away from you, as you have unusual magnetism and a unique style. Relationships have an explosive quality. Give yourself a full year before committing.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

ARITHMO™

CrossMath + × − ÷

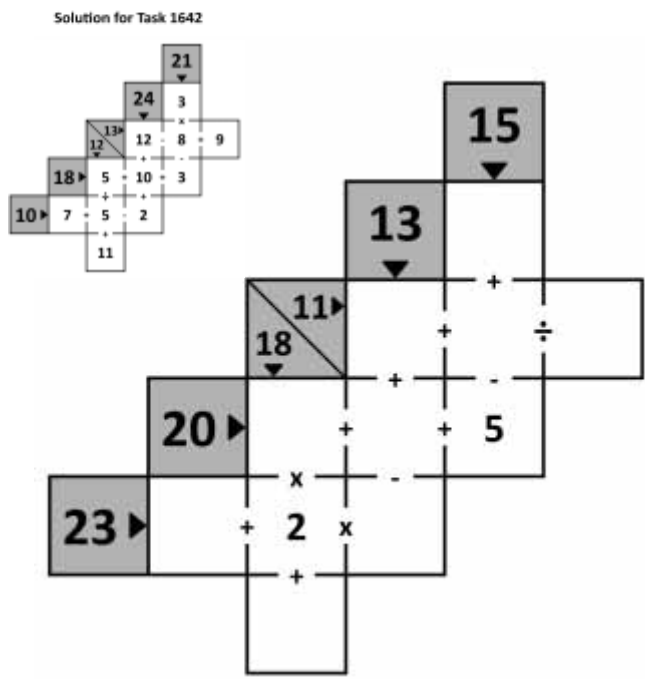

- Fill the grid with the set of given numbers (1 to 12) to satisfy the Equa demands (7 to 24) in the shaded boxes. The Equa demands represent the sum of the digits that you will insert into the empty squares.
- Each horizontal row has one Equa demand to satisfy; each vertical column also has one demand to satisfy. Each empty square in the grid dictates the math operation (addition +, subtraction -, multiplication X, and division ÷) that must be performed to meet the demands.
- You must follow the given math operations for each square and you must make sure all the numbers satisfy the demands in the shaded boxes when connected in adjacent threes and calculated together from left to right, and top to bottom.
- The numbers you insert into the grid must satisfy the Equa demands both horizontally and vertically.

For more games, go to www.arithmo.com

Fill in the empty fields with the given numbers so when calculated together they satisfy all Equas in the gray boxes:

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ The cure for emphysema is cigarette smoke piped directly into the lungs, according to chemist Gretha Zahar, whose clinic has treated 60,000 people in Jakarta, Indonesia, in the past decade. Zahar (with a Ph.D. from Padjadjaran University in West Java) modifies the tobacco smoke with "nanotechnology" to remove "free radicals" and adjust the mercury levels -- and touts her "divine cigarettes" as cures for "all" diseases, including cancer, with only a wink of the eye from the government (which opposition leaders say is in the pocket of Indonesia's tobacco industry). Though 400,000 Indonesians die yearly from smoking-related causes, nicotine "addiction" was only reluctantly and subtly mentioned in recent regulations. One pharmacology professor said he had never heard of anyone dying of smoking, which he called a "good, cheap alternative" to expensive drugs.

■ Marla Gilson, 59, was fired in April after her employer callously rejected her offer to work from home in Chevy Chase, Md., at reduced salary, while she recovers from chemotherapy and a bone marrow transplant for her leukemia. Gilson's job was chief executive of the Association of Jewish Aging Services of North America, which serves 112 facilities that help frail and elderly Jews during their final years. Gilson's termination also made her health care much more expensive and potentially made her uninsurable in the future if her treatment is successful. (Nonetheless, the board of directors thanked her for her service and wished her a "speedy recovery.")
